SETTLING FAMILY COSTS $10,000

MONTREAL, May 26.—The Australians estimate that it costs over $10,000 to settle a family on the land and this expense is being borne by the states of the island continent, according to Hon. Robert Fairbairn, who is now on his way to London to undertake the duties of agent-general for the state of Victoria.

While in the fulfillment of his office one of his primary duties will be the encouragement of trade between the Old Country and Australia. Mr. Fairbairn will also do all in his power to further immigration to his homeland.

In Australia, as in Canada, there is considerable inclination among the newcomers to settle in towns, which are already too largely populated, remarked Mr. Fairbairn. The immigrants were starting to arrive, when he left on March 25, for, curiously enough, it is the winter season which is considered there the best time for introducing settlers to new conditions. The federal government of Australia has an arrangement with the British government, whereby they share the expense of the passage, but the very heavy expense of settling the newcomers properly, falls upon the states which correspond to our provinces.

LEAGUE HAS A NEW PLAN FOR NAVAL SCHEME

Regional System of Grouping Powers Developed By Rome Conference.

By HNERY WOOD.

GENEVA, May 26 (United Press).—entirely undiscouraged by the meagre results of the recent conference of naval experts at Rome for the drafting of an international convention for the limitations of naval armaments, the League of Nations is determined to push this question to a show-down during the present year.

At the next meeting of the League Council on June 11, decision will be taken whether the next step will be the summoning of another conference of experts or whether the League shall proceed immediately to the convoking of an international conference of official representatives of all governments concerned. Regardless of whether another meeting of experts is held, this international conference will be summoned just the same, and the date for it will be fixed at the June Council meeting.

In the meantime all interested Governments are being asked whether in their opinion anything is to be gained by another meeting of experts or whether it would be better to bring the question immediately before a full international conference.

To date, England is the principal power that has expressed opposition to any further conferences of experts on the subject, and in League circles it is generally considered likely that the Council will decide for an international conference as the next step.

Problem Can Be Solved.

Despite the apparent failure of the Rome conference, Leaguers declares as a matter of fact that this conference served to develop that the problem can be solved by approaching it in a different manner.

The conference at Rome was given as a specific task the drawing up of an international convention extending to all countries now possessing capital ships the principles of the Washington Naval Disarmament Agreement as accepted by the United States, England, France, Italy and Japan. The basis of this agreement was the acceptance of the present naval status quo of the five great powers.

This principle the Governments represented at Rome refused to accept on the ground that in many cases it would render impossible for countries which now possess only one or two capital ships ever to have a navy large enough to insure their coast defense or to place them on a basis of equality with neighboring states that for the moment have larger navies.

As a matter of fact, Brazil notified the League two years ago that not only could she not accept this principle, but that it was contrary to the League covenant, which provides that in all measures for disarmament the peculiar geographical and political situation of each country shall be considered.

While this was the basis obstacle on which the Rome conference failed, there was also developed the fact that the interest of the various countries represented were entirely to diverse to permit of any common basis of reduction.

Russ a Great Power

Russia, for example, it was conceded is a power that should really have had the question settled by the Washington conference, as would also have been the case of Germany had not the question of her disarmament been provided for in the Versailles treaty. Russia is admittedly a great power, with little if anything in common from the standpoint of naval necessities of the smaller powers.

In the second place, the Rome conference developed that the interests of various groups of nations have nothing in common with those of other groups. Argentine, Brazil and Chili, it developed, have a problem that has nothing in common with that of the Baltic States represented at the conference, or with the Mediterranean group of Greece and Turkey, and in which Roumania and Portugal will probably be included later.

As a consequence, Leaguers declare the Tome conference, while apparently failing, succeeded instead in developing the lines on which the question can now be solved.

These lines in brief are, first, a settlement by regional agreements and, secondly, a settlement, not on the status quo principles of the Washington conference, but on the covenant principles of recognition of the geographical and political situation of each country concerned.

Regional Agreements

For example, Leaguers are now confident that Argentine, Brazil and Chili can settle their naval limitation problem on a question of equality, namely, the acceptance of some such figure as 80,000 tons for each country, instead of 81,000 tons for Argentine, 45,000 for Brazil and 35,000 for Chili, as under the Washington agreement.

In the same way Leaguers are confident that the question for the group of smaller Mediterranean powers such as Spain, Greece, Turkey, Portugal and Roumania can be settled by a regional agreement.

Confidence is expressed for the Scandinavian and Baltic countries to reach a basis of limitation compatible with their regional interests.

The only country that would be thus left out of an understanding would be Russia, but her position as a great power is such that Leaguers feel this must be reached in agreement with the other great powers.

This tendency towards regional or group interests for naval limitation is precisely the same that has developed in the League's efforts towards reduction of military armaments and Leaguers feel that it offers a sure basis for immediate progress.

It is expected that definite agreements on this basis will be reached before the close of the year between a large number of states for both naval and military limitations.

HASTINGS DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE DEDICATED MEMORIAL TO THEIR MEN OF THE EMPIRE'S GHOSTLY LEGIONS

Twenty Names Engraved In Granite Perpetuate the Glory of Hastings' Sacrifice In the War—Monument Erected on the Bank of the Trent Where Those Who Pass May Know That These Men Are Not Forgotten By Their Kindred.

A TESTIMONY OF SERVICE AND LOVE.

By STAFF REPORTER.

HASTINGS, May 26.—The war work which the members of the two chapters of the I.O.D.E. have been carrying on with tireless energy since the opening of hostilities, nearly 10 years ago, reached a climax here Saturday afternoon when in the presence of a crowd that was large in spite of the unseasonable weather a monument in memory of the 20 young men from Hastings who lost their lives overseas was unveiled with appropriate service. The monument, which was designed by the ladies and made by John Coughlin of Peterborough, is a work of art and has been erected on Government land on the banks of the Trent Canal in plain sight of the tourists who pass up and down that waterway.

The Work To Go On.

During all the four years of the Great War the Hastings Daughters of the Empire never forgot the village's contingent in the fighting line. A well-filled parcel was sent regularly to each man. When the survivors returned they were accorded a reception which showed the high appreciation in which their sacrifices were held.

Then came the work of raising funds for the erection of a memorial to those who were left behind in the cemeteries of Flanders. The various churches had put in tablets recording the names of their members who had fallen, but a public monument, in the erection of which all the residents could have a part, was the aim of the I.O.D.E.

There is a senior and a junior branch of the order here. The former, known as the Hastings Chapter, has Mrs. F. M. Howard as Regent and Mrs. Walter M. Fowlds Secretary. The Regent of the junior or Darontal Chapter is Mrs. W. Buckholder and Miss Mary Lambert is Secretary. Both chapters co-operated in the work of raising the funds required, but the members are unanimous in their commendation of the tireless exertions of Mrs. Howard in the task which the organization set itself.

The work of the I.O.D.E. on behalf of the veterans is not to cease with the unveiling of the monument. The survivors who took part in the services Saturday received the assurance from Mrs. H. Burkholder of Hamilton, Provincial President of the I.O.D.E., that the organization would continue to look after not only the interests of the men themselves but of their dependents.

March To Monument.

It was 2 p.m. when the procession, which formed on the lawn in front of the Town Hall, marched through the village to the monument, the veterans in uniform being led by Col. Everett Birdsall and the Northumberland Regiment Band of Campbellford, playing a military dirge. Then came the pupils of the Public School, each boy and girl carrying a flag. Members of the Village Council and of the School Board brought up the rear.

The Service Begins.

It had been announced that Major J. F. B. Belford, M.L.A., who is an Anglican clergyman, would conduct the religious services, but the Major has not yet sufficiently recovered from the effects of a recent auto accident to leave his home. His place was taken by Rev. Canon Sawers of Cobourg, formerly of Peterborough. On the platform were Warden W. M. Fowlds, who acted as chairman; Col. N. F. MacNachtan of Cobourg, Rev. D. A. Thomson, Rev. M. L. Hinton, Rev. W. A. Pippen, M. E. Maybee, M.P. for Northumberland; G. A. Brethen, M.P. Peterborough East, and Mesdames Howard and Burkholder, Regents of the I.O.D.E.

Canon Sawers read the solemn dedicatory services, and after the band had rendered "Lead Kindly Light," the flags that convered the names on the monument were drawn aside by Mrs. G. Marryat, nee Helen Fowlds, who went overseas as a nursing sister from this village and who on Saturday wore the uniform that distinguished this class of war workers.

Harry Dodd, one of the veterans, then read the 20 names that are cut in the stone, as follows:

S. Armour, J. E. Barry, H. Baker, J. W. Denine, A. Dunlop, J. Doherty, D. G. Fowlds, B. Hicks, J. L. Logan, T. Parker, A. R. Peters, R. S. Plant, W. J. Powers, R. Richardson, R. Scriver, W. G. Seeney, E. G. Stevenson (M.C.), J. Wharrie, E. J. West, J. Warner.

The Addresses.

In a brief opening address Chairman Fowlds extended the sympathy of the community to the friends and relatives of the fallen heroes. In his opinion the I.O.D.E. had done more during the war to help the boys at the front than any other organization in existence. It was a hard task in a small town like Hastings to erect such a memorial, but the ladies had undertaken it and had gone over the top.

What The Monument Means.

"What mean ye by this stone?" the question asked by Joshua to the Children of Israel in the Wilderness, was the theme chosen by Canon Sawers. The unknown soldier who lies in an honored grave in Westminster Abbey may be, for all we know to the contrary, one of those whose name appears on the monument just unveiled. It is the duty of the survivors of the war to live for Canada as others had died for it, and a country like this was certainly worth living for.

"Another Day Coming."

"Let me speak a word to the younger men here today," said Col. MacNachtan, one of the most prominent military figures in Canada. "There is another day coming, another war. Let us be prepared for it, ready to do our duty when the call comes."

The Colonel does not believe that the time of perpetual peace has arrived, and it was recalled on Saturday that in an address in Hastings before the late war broke out Col. MacNachtan had foretold that cataclysm. On that occasion Germany was spreading her pernicious propaganda in every civilized country in the world as a preparatory step to the opening of hostilities, and the result was inevitable. The late Lord Roberts, the speaker said, stood almost alone among the leaders in England when in 1911 he predicted the war, so that when it did break out Britain was ill-prepared to take the field. Canadians should be proud of the part their country had taken in the war and the promptness with which the call to arms was answered. Two days after war was declared one corps that the speaker knew of was on its way to the front.

Major Belford Sends Regrets.

M. E. Maybee, M.P., brought a message from Major Belford regretting his inability to attend the services. Mr. Maybee reported that the Major is recovering from the effects of his recent accident, but is still confined to his home.

Mr. Maybee hoped that the occasion would be an inspiration to the people and their children after them to prove worthy of the sacrifice that had been made for them by the fallen. He expressed sympathy for the friends of the dead and hoped that they would regard the monument as a token of appreciation.

One Lesson From The War.

G. A. Brethen, M.P., said that all the losses and wastage which the war entailed were outweighed by the spirit of sacrifice and service that had been developed—Canada had found her soul in that sacrifice. Repeating Col. McRae poem, "In Flanders' Field," the speaker said that if we follow the counsel of the dead we will fight for the weak and help the widow and fatherless.

A Word For Survivors.

Short addresses were made by Revs. Thomson, Pippen and Hinton.

Standing in line during the service were several men prematively aged as a result of their service overseas, two or three who were gassed being now in the last stages of tuberculosis. For these as well as for the dead Mr. Hinton spoke a word, saying that while the dead are honored, the survivors should not be neglected.

Greetings From Headquarters.

Mrs. Burkholder brought greetings from the Provincial Chapter, I.O.D.E., of which she is Regent. Hastings had done wonderfully well in erecting such a memorial.

Speaking directly to the veterans, Mrs. Burkholder said that some people were forgetting the service they had rendered, but the I.O.D.E. never would forget.

"We will always be ready to help you and your dependents," concluded the speaker. "There is much in the future for the Daughters of the Empire to do."

Said It With Flowers.

The wreaths placed at the base of the monument by friends and relatives were donated by the following:

Hastings Chapter I.O.D.E., Darontal Chapter, Provincial Chapter I.O.D.E., Mr. P. Powers, Mrs. Doherty and family, Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Wilcox, Mrs. R. Skinkle and Mrs. S. Fife, Mr. James Stevenson, Sr., and family, Mrs. Parker and family, Hastings Village Council, Hastings Separate School, Hastings Public School, Women's Catholic League and others.

MARMORA, May 26.—"Hymnal Associations" was the subject of an instructive and fascinating address delivered before the Young People's League of the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening by W. J. Cottrell. In the course of his address the speaker made allusion to the fact that "Rock of Ages" was composed scarcely eight miles from his own birthpalce. Tourists from all over the world visit this rock today. In August, 1921, a vast pilgrimage of over 20,000 gathered beneath it for a united service of commemoration at which service of commemoration gan preached.

As a boy, Mr. Cottrell came into close touch with William Chatterton Dix whose hymns have found their way into almost every hymnbook. His most notable hymns are "As with gladness men old" and "Alleluia, sing to Jesus."

Many interesting facts concerning the composition of other familiar hymns were disclosed to the audience and at the close the speaker recited a hymn of his own composition composed for the dedication of a hut of prayer overseas.

SHAKES.

Persident Coolidge was wise in abolishing the custom of shaking hands with visitors at the White House.

Pumping several thousand arms at a session is a foolish waste of energy and time by an official whose minutes and strength are extremely valuable to himself and the public.

The whole system of shaking hands is foolish and dangerous for it spreads disease germs. The League against Hand Shaking is on the right track.

ROTARY HEARS SOME THOUGHTS ON OSTEOPATHY

Dr. Bruce Marshall Explains the Principles of Drugless Healing as Laid Down by Dr. Still

THE ARTERY SUPREME

Before the Peterborough Rotary Club to-day Dr. Bruce Marshall, speaking on the subject, "Fifty Years of Osteopathy," gave an interesting exposition of the system of drugless healing practised by doctors of osteopathy and referred to the developments that have been made.

Dr. Marshal explained that osteopathy came into being fifty years ago as a result of the investigations of Dr. A. T. Still, who became dissatisfied with the old methods of healing, and after much research laid down the principle that the ruie of the artery is supreme, that no disease could develop,, or germs became harmful unless the system at some point became dammed up.

Since the founding of the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Missouri, over 10,000 osteopaths had graduated and Dr. Marshall mentioned a number of Peterborough graduates and students, including Frank Hillier, Miss Edna Earl, David Gladman, Albert Ovens, Fred Rutherford, who graduated to-day, Grant Braund and Fred Marshall.

The speaker explained that osteopathy had no bones to pick with exponents of other methods and pointed out that the training undergone by students in osteopathy was much the same as in the case of other doctors.

Osteopathic schools require evidence of graduation from an accredited high school or academy, and a perilminary study of physics, chemistry and biology for entrance, and a minimum of four years' intensive training in all general medical subjects, including pathology, bacteriology, diagnosis, surgery, obstetrics and X-radiance, with much dissection and other laboratory work and clinical practice, before the degree D. O. is conferred.

Three provinces in Canada, British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan had given osteopathy every recognition and it was hoped that Ontario would soon fall in line.

Dr. Marshall explained the scope of osteopathic privileges as given in the Ontario registration.

The practice of Osteopathic Medicine, Surgery and Obstetrics, which contemplates all known (or that may hereafter be devised) methods of treating disease—Mechanically, Electrically or Thermally—without the use of Drugs as the primary remedial agent, excepting only as Anaesthetic, Antiseptics, Antidotes, and Anodynes; by diagnosis, prescription, advice and treatment of and for disease, pain, injury, disability or other physical condition, according to the methods taught in the reputable Colleges of Osteopathy whose graduates are eligible for membership in The Ontario Association of Osteopathy, and who are thereby recognized by said Association.

Mr. David Irwin of Belfast, Ireland, a visitor to-day, expressed his appreciation of the good fellowship shown, and declared he would convey to Rotarians in Belfast his impressions of the Peterboro Rotary Club. Speaking of political conditions in Ireland, he said if one element—the Irish-Americans—could be removed, and the man in the north and the man in the south were allowed to come together, a satisfactory future would be the result.

President Wren announced that the Rotary-Annes would hold a dance at Rye's pavilion on June 13th or June 26th. There would be a house warming party to the boys' camp when a number of camp articles purchased by the ladies would be turned over.

A committee to arrange for supplies for the camp consisting of Rotarians James Adams (chairman), G. A. Gillespie, Jim Juby and Gordon Matthews, was appointed.

EUROPEAN ROYALTY ARE GIVEN HEARTY WELCOME.

LONDON, May 26. — Immense crowds which had been gathering since early morning around Victoria Station, gave King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena of Italy, and Prince of Piedmont and Prince.s Mafalda, a rousing reception upon their arrival this aftenoon from Dover, where the Prince of Wales had met them.

The brilliant gathering, including members of the British royal family and of the government, soldiers, staff of the Italian Embassy, and a number of black shirted Fascisti, were at the station to welcome the royal visitors.

King George and Queen Mary gave the Italian Sovereigns a cordial personal greeting.

Then the pageantry and ceremony of a three days' state visit began with a fanfare of trumpets, blaring of military bands and lusty cheering of multitude of onlookers as the Royal cars wheeled away from the station and moved along the streets lined by troops towards Buckingham Palace.

MARX GOVERNMENT REMAIN IN OFFICE

None of the Successful Parties in the Recent Elections Have Enough Strength for New Cabinet.

(By Carl D. Groat—United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, May 26.—The Marx Government probably will remain in office and go before the Reichstag to-morrow with a programme embodying the acceptance of the experts' report. None of the successful parties in the recent national elections having shown sufficient strength to produce a new Cabinet, the present Chancellor and his Ministers see no reason why they should not retain office. Were the Nationalists to accept the Cabinet positions under a middle party Chancellor, the combination would force Marx to retire. This the Nationalists have steadfastly declined to do, and they are unable to form a Government of their own. Their final decision was to be reached this evening with political forecasts all favoring the retention of office by the present Government.

ACTION INSTITUTED AGAINST A DOCTOR.

TORONTO, May 26.—(Canadian Press.)— Charging that Dr. Wm. P. SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

TO BAKE A PIE.

While some pie bakers scoff at the idea of measuring flour, lard and water for the crust, the inexperienced cook finds it quite as necessary to measure her ingredients for pie as for cake.

So, for the benefit of the new cook, this rule and method for a rhubarb pie is carefully worked out.

First and foremost, pastry flour should be used. Less lard is necessary to make a flaky crust and there is consequently no danger of a "lardy" taste to the pie. Half butter and half lard can be used if preferred, but the amount of shortening must be doubled.

The lard should be cold and firm, but need not be chilled.

The water should be cold, but need not be ice water.

Quick work and a light touch are two necessary ingredients for a good pie.

RHUBARB PIE.

One pound rhubarb, 1 to 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 cup pastry flour, 4 tablespoons lard, 1 scant teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons cold water.

Remove skin from rhubarb and cut in inch pieces. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt, add rhubarb, and stir with a fork until rhubarb is well covered.

Mix flour and salt and rub in lard with tips of fingers. The mixture should be much like coarse cornmeal. Add one tablespoon of water at one side of the flour mixture and work into about half of it. Add the other tablespoon of water at the other side of the mixing bowl, and work up the rest of the flour mixture. Work the two together, always rather tossing and lifting the dough than pounding or kneading it.

Divide, reserving a little more for the upper crust than the under. Work the dough into a round flat cake with the fingers, then put on the moulding board, evenly floured, and roll. Turn the dough half way around after each roling to keep it round.

Roll the dough to about three-eighths of an inch thickness. Fold one-half over the other and place on an eight-inch pie dish.

Fit smoothly with the tips of the fingers. Be sure the dough covers the edge of the dish. Roll the remaining pieces of dough just as you did the first and cut a gash in the centre. Fold over ready to put over under crust.

Fill the lined pie dish with prepared rhubarb. Any sugar and juice that have settled in the bowl of rhubarb should, of course, be poured over the rhubarb in the pie shell. Moisten the edge of the dough with cold water and fit top crust over dish. Press edges lightly together and trim close to the dish with a knife. Run the rolling pin gently around the edge to ensure even pressure. Roll the edges together with the thumb and first finger of the one hand, using the first finger of the other to make a sort of "flute" if you have on pastry jagger.

Put into a hot oven and bake about twenty minutes. The rhubarb will cook as quickly as the crust.

Cornstarch is used in place of the flour to thicken the juice because there is less danger of its boiling up out of the pie.

One cup of sugar will make a tart pie and one and one-half cups will make a very sweet pie.

One pound of rhubarb measures three cups of rhubarb cut in inch lengths.

The oven should be hot enough to brown the pie as it bakes. Any pie with a top crust should be a healthy tan. Nobody likes an anaemic looking pie.

EIGHT POINTS CHURCH UNION

Churches Seeking Union Object to Amendment

TORONTO, May 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Objections to amendment passed by the Private Bills committee of the House of Commons to Church Union Bill are set forth in a statement issued to-day by churches seeking union. Eight points are made by unionists in the statement, chief being that the amendemnt involves fundamental change in basis upon which union has been negotiated.

Another point claimed is that necessary result of such an amendment would be a considerable delay, probably three or four years, and possibly longer.

Churches maintain that if litigation were to proceed and there were no legislation before the House decision adverse to the minority would mean that the Presbyterian church in Canada would go into union without any provision for the minority, as the minority would then have no rights however.

JAPANESE SERVICE MEN PROTEST U. S. EXCLUSION

TOKIO, May 26 (Canadian Press) — Ten thousand former service men, who are now army reservists, took part to-day in an anti-exclusion demonstration at the National Military Shrine here and adopted a resolution asking reservists of the entire country to unite for the sake of the fatherland.

Shinkichi Uyesugi, noted Nationalist publicist, told the reservists that it was no longer possible for Japan to reach a compromise with the United States.

"If history teaches anything," he said, "an eventual collision between Japan and America on the Pacific is inevitable."

"In view of the American-Japanese situation," said the resolution in part, "the Tokio Association of Reservists declare determination to fulfill at a moment's call the duties of its members as military men."

BROOKLYN HOLDUPS MADE A HUGE HAUL

Entered Storehouse of the United Tobacco Company in Brooklyn and Stole $250,000 Worth of Merchandise.

NEW YORK, May 26.— (Canadian Press).—After trussing up two watchmen, a gang of eight hold-up men, led by a man in the uniform of a city policeman, at one o'clock yesterday afternoon looted the depot and storage warehouse of the United Cigar Stores Company, on 39th Street, Brooklyn, of merchandise valued by the representative of the firm at more than $250,000 and hauled it away in four of the Company's biggest motor trucks.

FAREWELL SERVICE REV. W. R. COURAGE

Presentation Will Take Place This Evening at St. George's Church.

Three years ago the Rev. W. R. Courage from Hastings, Ont., accepted the charge o St. George's Anglican Mission, South Peterboro; yesterday's services concluded his ministry here.

The attendance at the services yesterday of large congregations testified to the success of that ministry, residents from all parts of the city helping to overflow the little church at the evening service.

The morning sermon was on the subject of prayer, from standpoint of petition, with special reference to Rogationtide, when a blessing on the sowing of the seed is prayed for. Yesterday was "Rogation Sunday."

At St. Mark's Church, Zion, at 2:30 pm., the members were out in full force to hear their rector's message of farewell and to bid him Godspeed.

The evensong last night was fully choral. The anthem "Hark, Hark, my Soul," was finely sung, in the proper place, after the third collect. Taking the subject of "Peace," the preacher urged all to work for the Kingdom of Christ by co-operating one with another, even as did our blessed Lord. The future of their parish depended upon the foundation now being laid; a review of the parochial efforts showed progress all along the line but satisfaction could not come until perfection was arrived at, for the Master had said, "Be ye also perfect." He asked for their prayers for his family in their new sphere of work as his prayers would be constant for St. George's.

A minute of silent prayer was followed by "The Grace," and Mr. Courage's official ministry was over.

Expressions of regret were heard on all sides, as the congregation slowly dispersed, for Mr. and Mrs. Courage have many friends from one end end of the city to the other.

To-night at 8, there will be a meeting of a farewell nature, when addresses, musical numbers, and a presentation will take place.

ROSENEATH, May 26.—Mr. T. W. Morrison, of Norwood, is at the home of his daughter, being laid up with a fractured hip. He was building a garage for H. Gaden when a board of the scaffold broke, allowing him to fall about eleven feet upon the rubbish below.

Three new cars arrived in the village, a touring for Jos. Braithwaite, a roadster for George Mauncy, and a sedan for Thos. Ingham.

The league baseball game, which was scheduled to take place at Orlande, between that team and the locals, on Wednesday, May 28, has been postponed until Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong returned from Toronto on Friday where he has been attending the doctors' conventions.

The C.G.I.T. held their regular meeting at the parsonage on Wednesday evening. A pleasant feature of the evening was a contest on Bible questions. Misses B. Clark and V. Varcoe chose sides, and Mrs. Walsh asked the questions. It was conducted the same as a spelling match, and resulted in a win for the side captained by Vera Varcoe. It provided considerable amusement as well as being very instructive for the members.

DEATH RAY INVENTOR MAY BE OUT OF LUCK.

French Firm Claims To Have . . Learned The Secret.

LONDON, May 26.—The inventor of the "death ray" has declared that although he is an Englishman, he will sell the secret to France if financial support is not forthcoming from his own government. Meanwhile the French firm of Chantiers Durhone, of Lyons, which has been negotiating with Matthews, claims to have learned his secret and to be able to reduce the death-ray regardless of whether it is sold to England or France.

The claims he makes for his ray is that it can kill or stun human beings at a distance of between six and ten miles, that it could put out of commission the machinery of an enemy fleet approaching the English coast, although it could not sink battleships, that it can bring down in flames airplanes with which it comes in contact and that a chain of forts equipped with machinery for transmitting the deadly rays would prove a perfect defence of the country against airplane attacks. Mathews also claims that the ray can explode ammunition at great distances. Another British inventor, Dr. Wall, claims to have invented a somewhat similar ray which will require nine months to perfect, differing from Mathews. He says he will place his invention at the disposal of his country and if it is not accepted, destroy the models and plans so that no foreign country may obtain them.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Hamilton, Ont., May 23, 1924.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir:

The Departmental order providing for immediate local payment of cheques on P.O. Savings Deposits, is a step in the right direction, and by extending or abolishing the limit, raising or abolishing the limit on deposits, the Govt. would gradually accumulate sufficient funds to establish a Govt. Federal Reserve Bk. (not a Bankers Federal Reserve Bk.) which could re-discount the ordinary bank securities for say 50 per cent. to 60 per cent. of their value, when they required more funds, this would effectually cure the audit business, for if they were unable to produce sound security, they would not get the advance, whereas an audit would add columns of millions of dollars of Call loans to brokers, bucket shops, wild cat scheme promoters, etc., in N. Y. and elsewhere, which could count in their assets, but could not be re-discounted in the Govt. Fed. Reserve Bk. or perhaps in any other financial institution in Canada.

The Public are expecting the establishment of a Govt. Fed. Reserve Bk. which would help cure most of the ills of our present Banking System. But if the Parliamentry advocates of a Federal Reserve Bk. mean "A Bankers Federal Reserve Bk.", then the imaginary cure will be worse than the present disease, still worse, it would carry with it the imaginary approval of Parliament, which might be misconstrued to mean Govt. assurance, and be much more serious than the present difference of opinion, as to whether the depositors would have any more Govt. security than they now have, in the Home Bank case.

Nothing will satisfy the Public except absolute Govt. responsibility for deposits, and the Govt. can only assume this responsibility, if they actually receive the money, either in the P.O. Saving Bk. or the Govt. Federal Reserve Bk. The various promoters of a Federal Reserve Bk., must clearly define whether it is "A Govt. Federal Reserve Bk." which would be absolutely safe, or a Bankers Federal Reserve, which would be only private corporation security as at present.

Govt. inspection of Head Offices, or Branch Offices, by practical Bankers, lawyers or accountants, or any other suggested make-shift safeguards will be of little avail, as per representations made before the Royal Commission on the Home Bank, because real security can only follow Govt. receipt of deposits. Why longer confuse the Public on this most important and distressing matter.

Yours truly,

W. O. Scaley, 61 Hunter St

REMARKABLE OPERATION.

KINGSTON, May 26 (Canadian Press). — A remarkable operation was performed in the local Hotel Dieu Hospital yesterday when Dr. K. G. Bogart operated upon a woman patient for appendicitis and gall stones, and removed no fewer than 1,032 stones, a record in point of number for this city and district, and probably a record for any place.

They ranged in size from duck shot up to the field pea.

The only way to run a Ford after the tank runs dry is to be wise and install a REMINGTON AUXILIARY now. Then you will always have enough to take you to the next gas pump. It fills automatically and stays full until you need it.

It will feed on any hill.

GLOBE CRUISERS SEE LAVA FLOW

Passengers on Round the World Cruise Have Weird Tales to Tell About Kilauea Crater

VICTORIA, B.C., May 26 (Canadian Press). — Returning globe circumnavigators on board the Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Canada, which arrived here on Saturday, brought remarkable eye-witness' tales of the eruption of the ever-active crater of Kilauea, in Hawaii, as reported over the cables a week ago on Saturday.

By a freak of fortune the 360 passengers of the round-the-world cruise had gone to the crater as one of the features of their trip like other tourists, many of whom are disappointed, they waited for the temperamental display that the famous mountain occasionally stages. They were all unprepared, however, for the tremendous demonstrations of uncontrollable fury which rewarded their delay.

It was early in the afternoon when "The House of Everlasting Fire," as the natives call the crater, first began to emit a slow, silent white vapour like a genie out of an Arabian knights' underworld.

There was no sign of fury in her smoking. It was the sort of thing she had done for years.

Then suddenly a dense cloud of snarling smoke belched forth, and then began the greatest eruption that crater has ever given out, the greatest with one exception, for 120 years ago it had a similar outburst, and wiped out the bulk of an Hawaiian army moving against Kamehameha, the Napoleon of the Pacific.

The tourists, among whom were a large nmber of Canadians and Americans, stood rooted to the spot.

Subterranean noises filled the air, and a dense cloud of smoke rose thousands of feet towards the sky, and streaks of fire embroidered it.

When it seemed impossible for the cloud of smoke to go higher, the storm burst, a storm of stones, ashes and lava, and some of the stones were hurled for miles, a few small ones even falling close to the spectators scattered around three sides of the mountain.

There were no casualties, though the official photographer of the cruise, who was working his camera well in advance of the party, was struck by small stones.

That one accident did not occur was due to the heroic efforts of August Curtis, of Chicago, who, at great risk to himself, saved the life of Geoffrey C. Bushby, of Woodacre, California.

The two had left the main party to obtain a close view of the famous crater, and had advanced far beyond the line usually taken by tourists.

Bushby had gone on ahead and started across the lake of lava near the edge of the crater. Suddenly the lava beneath him began to heave, and with a terrific roar the eruption commenced from the mouth of the crater directly in front of him, and a shower of boulders fell on all sides.

He turned and rushed for safety, and does not to-day understand how he missed being hit by one of the flying boulders.

Almost overcome by the gasses and steam he twice fell while hurrying to protection, and had given up all hope of getting away alive, when he suddenly heard Curtis calling.

The latter had been searching for him through the clouds of dust and ashes, and Bushby's strength entirely given out, picked him up and carried him to safety.

The rest of the round-the-world tourists had at no time been in danger, and when the eruption had moderated down they returned to the ship, Empress of Canada, well satisfied to have been thrilled as few world travellers had ever been thrilled before.

"It was an unforgettable experience," said General John F. O'Ryan, of New York, here to-day, and he termed Kilauea, nature's greatest showman.

The General was one of the heroes of Chateau Thierry, and he is now of the opinion that there are worse things in the way of artillery than war offers.

GAVE GOOD CONCERT AT HALL'S BRIDGE.

Capacity Audience Turned Out To Hear Peterboro Talent.

It was a capacity audience, drawn from all parts of Harvey township and North Smith, that greeted Mr. R. J. Devey and his company of artistes from Peterborough on Tuesday evening last in the Community Hall at Hall's Bridge. The concert, arranged in aid of St. Matthew's (Anglican) church, proved to be first class in every respect, the programme submitted by Mr. Devey worthily deserving the vigorous applause accorded to the several contributions. The audience showed in no uncertain way their delight and appreciation of the rich musical treat provided for them.

The instrumentalists were Mr. R. J. Devey, piano, who executed "Sonata," by Beethoven, in his usual masterly style, and Mr. Farthing, celloist, whose rendition of "Tarantella," called for an encore, to which he responded with "Slumber Song." Miss Connolly and Mr. H. J. Devey provided elocutionary items, the former's contributions were "In the Crowd on Coronation Day," "Should Women Propose in Leap Year," and, in encore to the latter, "Tit for Tat." Her description of the various sightseers and their remarks in native dialect were vividly interpreted in the first named item. Mr. H. J. Devey treated the audience to a huomorus moralizing from the well known nursery rhyme "Old Mother Hubbard."

In vocal contributions the audience was treated to a rich variety of song, the splendid soprano voice of Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie being heard to advantage in "Sweet of the Year," "I Cannot Help Loving You," "Elegy," and "Danny Boy." Mr. Farthing's accompaniment on the cello added effect to "Elegy."

Miss Doyle contributed "An Old Fashioned Town," "The Lilac Tree," "Little Brown Owl" and "Keep on Hopin." "The Lilac Tree," a pernickity song, and "Little Brown Owl," were rendered in a delightful manner that the audience readily enjoyed the quaint humor of the songs.

Mr. H. Boddy, in excellent voice and style sang "Ship Ahoy," the breeziness of the song infecting the audience so that they took up the chorus. Mr. Boddy further contributed "You're My Sweet Forget-me-not."

"The Floral Dance" was well sung by the Rev. J. L. Hughes in his usual good style. He later contributed "My Old Shako," and in response to hearty applause rendered "Nancy Lee."

As humorist of the evening Mr. Chas. Coleman simply brought the house down. In his inimitable style he sang "I Love a Lassie," "It's Far Too Early in the Morning for to Waken Me," "The Man They Left Behind," and "The Horse the Missus Dries the Clothes On," each item evoking screams of laughter from the audience. In response to a strong call for "more," he gave a humorous recitation.

The programme concluded with the pert duet, "A Country Courtship," Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devey interpreting such a courtship with realistic effect.

Mr. R. J. Devey acted as accompanist for the Peterborough artistes, the songs of the Rev. J. L. Hughes being accompanied by Mrs. Hughes.

During an interval in the programme refreshments were served by the ladies of the church congregation, a sumptuous supply of good things being on hand. During the course of the evening the Rev. J. L. Hughes, incumbent of the Mission, tendered sincere thanks to all who had contributed in any way to the success of the function, to the members of his church congregation, to friends in the community, and especially to Mr. Devey and his Peterborough friends. He referred to the official connection of Mr. Devey with St. Matthew's church, he being lay representative for the congregation at the Diocesan Synod, in which connection he carried out his duties with his usual earnestness.

In replying for himself and friends Mr. Devey expressed their indebtedness to Mrs. Darcy, Mr. Conway and Mr. H. J. Devey for their kindness in motoring the party out from the city.

The evening's proceeds amounted to over $50.

FATE LEADS BOY BACK TO MOTHER HE DIDN'T KNOW FOR MANY YEARS

By HAROLD MATSON.

LYNN, Mass., May 26.—A son, 20, has just met his mother for the first time since he has been out of swaddling clothes.

He comes to her, after 17 years, at a time when she needs him most. She is poor. Her little farm in Maine is heavily mortgaged. She is sickly.

"And I was so afraid I would be just a stranger to you," the son told his mother. "I am happy to have found you, and I am happier that I can be a real son to you."

Howard McConnell's story is one of strange complications—the sort one finds in the movies. Mystery, action, the unexpected, and the happy ending.

When he was three years old his father kidnapped him from his mother. They had agreed to separate, but neither could agree to give up the boy. Police, the mother's relatives and friends were unable to find Howard after the kidnapping.

His father had taken him to North Handley, Quebec, and there he was brought up, believing that his aunt was his true mother.

It was not until Howard was 17 that he learned the truth.

His "mother" was ill. One afternoon on his way home from school, a relative hurried to meet him. His "mother" was dying. The doctor had said it was but a matter of minutes.

Howard raced home. In the sick room the woman lying on the bed beckoned to him, and drew his head down close to her mouth that he would be sure to hear her whisper.

"I am not your mother," she gasped—but she could tell no more. Death had intervened.

"It was almost like suffering the loss twice," McConnell tells of his tragedy. "I had loved and worshipped her as my own mother—at the time I almost wished she had not told me the truth."

The shock, with its ante-climax, was almost more than the boy could bear. Running away from his home he set out to find his real mother. All he had as means of identification was a picture of himself when he was a baby, a picture his mother might also have.

HOWARD McCONNELL AND HIS MOTHER, WITH (INSET) HIS BABY PICTURE WHICH LED TO THEIR REUNION.

For a year he searched through the eastern States. Discouraged, desperate he joined the navy. Wherever he went he continued his hunt.

But it was not until early this month that he came across a tangible clue as to the whereabouts of his mother.

McConnell had left the navy and was but two weeks in the army, stationed at Fort Slocum, New York. By chance he met a relative of his mother. On a leave of absence he came to Lynn—

But by a similarly peculiar coincidence, Mrs. Marian McConnell Mason of Wellington, Me., had come to Lynn. She was ill and friends here were caring for her.

Mother and son met, brought together by George W. Kitchell, the boy's grandfather.

And now action is being taken to have the son released from the army, that he may support the mother whom he has just met—for the first time.

REFUSED TO SOVIET

Grandson of Karl Marx Will Not Permit Transfer of Body to Moscow.

PARIS, May 26.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency.)—Jean Longuet, grandson of Karl Marx, father of modern socialism, refused on Saturday the request of the Soviet Government for permission to transfer the body of his grandfather from Highgate Cemetery, London, to Moscow.

In refusing, M. Longuet declared the Bolshevist interpretation of Karl Marx's doctrine was entirely wrong, and for that reason he thought his grandfather would not like his memory to be associated with it.

The delegation of the Soviet Government, participating in the Anglo-Soviet Conference in London, has been carrying on negotiations with the British Government for the transfer of the body. The Soviet Government was credited with intending to spend more than $500,000 for the erection of a monument to Marx in the Red Square in Moscow.

THE STONEWALL OF THE CONFEDERACY.

One of the greatest of the Confederate leaders in the American Civil War, was Thomas Jonathan Jackson, or as he as called by his men, "Stonewall" Jackson. He was born in 1824 of Scotch-English descent. When eighteen years of age young Jackson was made sheriff of Harrison county, Viginia; but almost immmediately was offered an appointment to the West Point Military Academy, from which he graduated to the army. Leaving the army in 1851, he became professor of military tactics at the Lexington Military Institute. On the outbreak of the Civil War he entered the Confederate army with the rank of Colonel.

It was at the battle of Bull Run that General Bee gave Jackson his nick-name. Wishing to hearten his hard-pressed South Carolinians, General Bee called to his command:—"Look at Jackson; there he stands like a stone wall." Jackson, in the opinion of many competent critics, was the ablest tactician engaged in the war. He never fought on the defensive. Even when compelled to retreat before superior forces he took the offensive on making his stand and was invariably successful. His unerring skill in analysing the position and discovering the weak spots of the enemy, the mobility of his forces and his wonderful tenacity of purpose, made him invaluable to the South.

It was the irony of fate that he should be killed by his own men, whose love and devotion had been proved on many a battlefield. While reconnoitering after the battle of Chancellorsville, which he had done so much to gain, he was fired on and mortally wounded by his men. His religious ardour gained for him the name of the Havelock of the Confederate armies. Like Cromwell he combined the devoutness of the Puritan with the severity of the good soldier.

It is fitting that the invincible five cent cigar, the "Stonewall Jackson," should be named in honour of this invincible man.

STONE CAIRN UNVEILED AS GARRISON MEMORIAL

TORONTO, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—Loyalty that remains strong and undaunted even to the doors of death, and that has been traced in glowing letters upon many a page of Canadian history, still remains an ideal ever in the minds of Canadians of to-day, for when General Sir William Dillon Otter last evening unveiled a memorial to the men of St. John's Garrison Church who made the supreme sacrifice in the late war, more than 2,000 citizens, as well as representatives from every unit of the Toronto garrison, gathered to share in the ceremony. The monument is a stone cairn, erected by the members of the congregation. And coincident with the unveiling of the memorial, the Garrison Church added one more symbol to its collection of famous military standards when the original flag of His Majesty's Army and Navy Veterans' Association was, with due ceremony, deposited in the chancel.

CASCADE, B.C., May 26.—(Canadian Press).—A total of eight lives were taken in a drowning accident which occurred at Christina Lake yesterday afternoon and has cast a gloom over the town as practically all were well-known citizens. "HEARTS AFIRE!"

By MAY CHRISTIE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—a brilliant young inventor, who has become entangled with a designing, heartless beauty.

Virginia Dale—guest at the country home of Mrs. Vansittart—a wealthy woman, from whom (unknown to all, save Prudence, who has been wrongly accused of one of her thefts) Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Performing an experiment in his laboratory, there is an explosion, and Peter is blinded. His nurse, Janet Mercer, takes Prudence to see the injured man.

Mrs. Vansittart urges Virginia, for decency sake, to go also.

Prudence shows Peter her unquenchable love for him, and at that moment they overhear Virginia announcing that she will never marry a blinded man!

Virginia turns to her old sweetheart, Bert Traymore, who tells her he no longer wishes to marry her—"A Common Thief!"

And says he knows of her thefts and must have 'hush money'. Later, Virginia is arrested.

Traymore goes off to do some stealing on his own account!

CHAPTER LXXVIII.

The Masked Intruder.

Just about the time Bert Traymore had left Winston Towers, Prudence, at Green Gables, was summoned to the front door by a double knock.

Her parents were both out, and she was a little startled to see Janet Mercer and Will Ogilvie upon the step.

"Nothing wrong with Peter?" she asked quickly, her heart leaping to her throat. Since that palpitating time with the invalid, only a few hours back, life had opened up new vistas for the girl. All in a day she had had the stunning tidings that Peter would be blind for life. Following on the heels of that was his fiance's cruel repudiation of the tie that bound her to the injured man. Even before then, she herself had realised, with a forcefulness that was torrential and that swept aside all barriers, that she (Prudence Page) loved Peter Armstrong with a love that any mere physical disability would only make the stauncher.

And then, after Virginia's words, Peter and she had turned to each other just like steel to magnet, and time itself seemed to stand still, breathless, just to hear their passionate, broken avowal of undying love.

Peter had clung to Prudence as though never, never could he let her go again. He had confessed to her, in broken tones, that always, from the first, she, and she only, filled his thoughts and hopes, and that he had only stood aside because he thought she cared for Traymore.

Then Virginia—(although Prudence didn't like to probe too far, and Peter was too innately chivalrous to give even a woman of that type away)—Virginia, it was apparent, had played her cards so cleverly that, for a period, she had won the game.

But never had Peter loved her.

"This lets me out," he whispered, when Virginia's cruel words had died away, and the woman who had sworn she loved him had run off because she knew that he was blind! "Perhaps this awful trouble is a blessing in disguise——"

Prudence had held him in her arms and kissed his dark hair just above the bandages.

"What does anything matter, if we've got each other?" she had whispered back again, her eyes aglow.

Now, as Janet Mercer and Will Ogilvie stood upon the doorway, the fear that love begets, seized her.

"What's happened to Peter?" she whispered with dry lips.

"Peter's fine," said Janet, brusquely, stepping into the little hall of Green Gables for a moment. "But there have been great doings up at the Towers tonight. Virginia Dale's been arrested for thieving, and taken off by the police!"

"What?"

"Oh, yes; it's true. Will was present, and a fine time was had by all!" Janet smiled grimly, turning to her young man. Then she added:

"I've no time now to give you the details, and anyway, you'll read them in the papers pretty soon, for she'll be tried at the court in due time. I'm on my way to the Towers, for Mrs. Vansittart, poor soul, is completely overcome, and has sent for us. She's upset Lucia, too, and the place is all at sixes and sevens. My other patient's fine, and Nurse Brown is there in charge, but he's got a fancy he wants you near, and even though it's lateish, I thought your mother would let you go along and humor an invalid's fancy—only I'm thinking it's more than a fancy he's got for you!—and Janet smiled in sympathy, for hadn't her own precious Will been restored to her tonight!

"Oh, yes; I'll go," said Prudence, quickly, catching her hat and coat from a peg. "I'll go at once."

"It's only for an hour, and Nurse Brown will be there, too." Janet was a little uncertain as to what this young girl's parents might say. "To tell you the truth, Brown isn't much of a nurse, and to-night she says she's bilious, or something, and wants to lie down. I'll feel better about leaving the patient if you're at hand."

They left Prudence at Pear-Tree Cottage, and the pair went up to Winston Towers.

"I'm glad you've come, dearie," said Nurse Brown, "for my head's that bad I can't keep up any longer. I'm going upstairs to my room, if you don't mind. If the patient wants me, come for me."

Prudence was left alone with the sick man.

He felt along the coverlet until he caught her hand.

"Queer how nervous and jumpy I am to-night," he said, with a shamed half-laugh. "I suppose I haven't quite got over the shell-shock—(you'd call it that, I think?)—of the explosive. Moreover," he lowered his voice a little—"I'm worried about something! It's the record of my experiments—the invention, you understand, I was going to take out patents for it, but there wasn't any time before the accident occurred; my notebooks are all intact, thank God! They're in a secret drawer in the laboratory desk, and the doctor says the desk wasn't struck at all—so I just left the papers there—"

"Then they're quite safe," said prudence, reassuringly.

"No, no," he whispered; "I keep on thinking I hear footsteps in the laboratory—someone moving. . . . Listen!"

Prudence listened in the eerie silence.

"You think someone has broken in, and is trying to steal your invention?"

S-st! Through the thick wall there came a stealthy sound.

"I have the key," said Prudence, bravely. "It's probably only a cat, but I'll go along and have a look."

She took a candle with her, and treading softly on the grass, went round to the laboratory door, which had been 'fixed' since the accident. Gently she turned the key in the lock, pushed the door silently open, and in the candle rays—oh, horrors!—she saw a man with his back to her, crouching over some documents at Peter's desk! Just as a gust of wind blew out the candle, the door flapped, making a grating noise, the man wheeled sharply round, and Prudence saw two eyes glaring at her through a black mask that hid all the rest of his face.

She screamed, and with a sudden spring he came at her, through the darkness, hurling her backwards to the floor!

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE QUEEN AND THE CHESHIRE CAT

Three gardeners were trying to paint some roses.

The Twins loved a story, so the next day Mister Muggs took them to see Alice again, and to hear more about her adventures the time she went to Wonderland by way of the rabbit hole.

"After you left the tea-party, where did you go?" asked Nick, when they were all seated in the orchard, and Alice and Nancy had started to make daisy chains.

"Oh, dear, dear! That was funny!" laughed Alice. "I went to the palace of the King and Queen of Hearts. They were made of cards and all their servants were cards. It was very amusing. And three gardeners were trying to paint some roses on a rose-bush red, because they had made a mistake and planted white ones against the queen's orders.

"When the queen saw it she cried: 'Off with their heads,' but I hid all of the gardeners in a flower-pot, so they were safe."

"It must have been a queer place! Was the queen nice to you?" asked Nick.

"Sort of!" sighed Alice. She asked me a silly question, and when I said, 'How should I know?' she cried 'Off with her head!' It seemed to be the only thing she knew."

"I don't call that polite," remarked Nancy. "And did they?"

"See for yourself!" said Alice, waggling her head hard. "I said 'Nonsense,' quite firmly, and it silenced her. Not another word did the queen say about it. Before she knew it she was asked to play croquet. Do you know how?"

"Oh, yes!" said Nick. "We have a set at home. We knock wooden balls through wire arches with long wooden mallets. It's loads of fun!"

"This was a far different game," said Alice, "although it was the same thing. Our balls were hedgehogs and our mallets were large pink flamingoes. I had a dreadful time with mine, for no sooner would I get his body nicely tucked under my arm and his neck straightened out to hit the ball, when he would twist around and look at me in such a queer way I had to laugh.

"When I got things fixed up again, the hedgehog had crawled away. It was a queer game. Nobody took turns and everybody quarreled. The queen kept saying 'Off with his head' or 'On with her head' at a dreadful rate. I really grew alarmed. So I wandered away and came across the Cheshire Cat. He was just a head, you know, and grinned all the time.

"'How do you like the queen?' asked the Cheshire Cat. I waited until his ears appeared before I answered, for he wasn't quite complete. He had a habit of appearing and disappearing that was most surprising.

"'Not a bit,' I answered. 'She is so——' But I saw that the queen was listening. 'Likely to win,' I went on, although that wasn't what I had intended to say at all!

"'That's a good girl,' said the queen and gave me a pat. Wonderland was a great place and I enjoyed it. I should like to go back."

"That was a fine story and we're ever so much obliged," said Mister Muggs. "Say good-bye, children, and come along. We must be going."

"Good-bye," said Alice. "I hope you can go to Wonderland some day."

BLUNDERS

WHY IS THIS WRONG?

One of the many annoyances that the postal service has to contend with is the receipt of bundles of carelessly sealed letters, many of which are stuck together. Since letters can be run through the cancelling machines only one at a time, all those stuck together must first be pulled apart by some postal employee. This may result in mutilation of the addresses or in placing the letters to one side until other mail has been handled.

LITERARY LIONS AND LAMBS FIGHT TOGETHER FOR PEACE

Mrs. Dawson Scott Quotes That the Pen Is Mightier Than the Sword and Attempts to Prove It.

When Floyd Dell sits chatting pleasantly under the same roof with Ida Tarbell—

When Hamlin Garland strokes his picturesque gray moustache not more than a bottle's throw away from Ludwig Lewisohn—

You may well know that a movement for the promotion of peace is quite seriously under way.

Certainly these literary persons had nothing in common, except a desire to eat, when they gathered in a banquet room at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, at the P.E.N. Club convention, at which literary notables of 14 nations were present.

By way of brief explanation the P.E.N. Club is an international organization of poets, playwrights, novelists, essayists and editors—including such names as John Galsworthy, Gerhard, Hauptmann, Selma Lagerloff, May Sinclair and Anatole France. The best literary company belongs.

Its founder was Mrs. D. A. Dawson-Scott, who lost several sons in the war and became an ardent worker for peace. She felt that a joining of writing forces of all nations would blaze a trail to better international understandings.

"The pen is mightier than the sword," she quotes and sets forth to make the saying come true.

Whatever else the distinguished foreign delegation may gain from the convention, they have learned from the mouth of Mayor Hylan of New York, himself that he is "fighting the crooked money forces."

There is a tradition that the mayor takes out this speech on the slightest provocation and when the writing intelligentsia were being shown the city hall he did not disappoint them.

If a champion of the people rises from the pages of might European works one day—thank Mayor Hylan.

Rebecca West, the quite beautiful and very brilliant young British writer of "The Judge," hurrying away at midnight had time to remark to a member of the survey:

"You Americans dance too much I haven't had time to do half the things I had in mind."

Dr. Barnouw of Holland, regrets American prohibition. "Standing of a drink is made a crime," he says feelingly. Also he finds that American editors won't consider Holland stories, thus making Dutch writing practically unknown to rulers of this land.

"The editors say the tempo is too slow," he states. "The Dutch writers are word painters. They deal with the picturesque."

This comment was considered by the survey party as a direct dig at Carl Van Doren, editor of Century who had come to the meeting wearing the most approved Van Doren haircut—a work of art that defies description, but which is worn by both brothers Van Doren and runs largely to bangs.

It is rumored that several of the Dutch scripts were wagged under the Van Doren nose.

Van Doren, as toastmaster, is up with a witty sally that the slogan of the P.E.N. be "books as ambassadors."

"How can they be ambassadors," questions the Hollander, "when the American editors refuse to receive them?"

H. Acina, representing Japan, told another surveyor that he wants Americans to know that the Japanese are great readers:

"There are as many book stores in Japan as there are drug stores in America,' he notes.

One of the surveyors notes an amazing scarcity of bobbed hair among the more notable women writers.

The farther away from fame the shorter the bob, someone comments. But Rebecca West, with her defiant bob, is a rare exception.

Fannie Hurst's marvelous near-scarlet gown attracts feminine attention.

The survey notes that even the menu is international. Shad roe, Americaine—filet mignon, Francaise—salad, Espagnole, etc.

"Why didn't they serve Hungarian goulash or Irish stew and have all nations represented at once?" queries a wit.

May Sinclair, whose world fame does not affect her child-like timidity apologizes in soft voice for her incapacity at speechmaking.

A check of the room shows, among those present: Zoe Atkins, Gertrude Atherton (looking younger every day since "Black Oxen"), Bruce Barton, Henry S. Canby, Padraic Colum, Theodore Dreiser, Robert Frost, Floyd Dell, Hamlin Garland, Ida Tarbell, Ernest Gruening, Burton Rascoe Grant Overton, Anzia Yezierska, Mme. Chekova from Russia, Rudolph Kommer from Austria—a very mixed company indeed. And there are hundreds more.

At the end of the convention the notables attended "Abie's Irish Rose."

Surely the day of world tolerance is at hand—concluded the surveyors.

WATCH BABY'S WEIGHT.

Just before the Mann baby was born, Mr. Mann of Anytown appeared with a scales and a chart.

"We're going to do this right," he announced.

"Well, be sure that you go about it properly," Mrs. Mann admonished.

"I've learned to-day that the best index to a baby's growth is his weight," Mr. Mann announced with the air of one who has made an important discovery.

But Mrs. Mann already knew very well that the baby should be weighed regularly every week through the first year of life. The same hour should be used, and the child should wear the same clothing. Beam-balance scales should be used, and the quarter ounces should not be overlooked.

Seven and a half pounds is considered a normal weight for a boy, with a half pound less reckoned as an average for a girl. It is likely that the baby will lose from six to ten ounces for several days after birth. The first month is not marked by any particular gain, but after that, six ounces a week is considered a normal gain. After six months, and up to the end of the first year, three or four ounces a week is considered a sufficient gain.

During the summer months the gain will not be so great.

Whatever the fluctations, the child should double its weight within six months, and treble it within a year.

MAKING MAKE MONEY MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The spent dollar and the saved dollar both encourage production.

What you really do by saving or spending money is decided not how many more people shall be set at work, but what kind of work they will do. If you spend that extra dollar just to be spending it you will encourage production of one sort, perhaps of a commodity the country does not need; whereas if you saved that dollar it might go to the assistance of a worth industry in need of more capital to increase production.

How many times have you agreed with your neighbor that folks must spend money freely in order to encourage trade? Is it your idea that surplus funds saved instead of spent cause trade to languish and workmen to be out of employment?

A person who saves and accumulates rich cannot help employing labor of some kind or other. Funds deposited in a bank or used to purchase bonds do not stand idle, but are used in 'urn by merchants, manufacturers, and builders to increase their business and employ more men.

AGED PETTER PAID $362,000 FOR HUGS

He Accuses a Disbarred Boston Lawyer of Extorting Cash and Securities.

BOSTON, May 26th, 1924.—Edmund D. Barbour, 83 years old, suffering from heart disease, infirm and able to see only a few feet in front of him, tottered to the witness stand of the Middelsex Superior Court to-day and testified that he had paid over to Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston lawyer, $362,000 in cash, bonds and stocks for a "petting" party he had in his office with a "Mrs. Daley." Barbour, a Boston china merchant, told the court that he had never been the same since the occurrence, that his body became infirm, and his mentality was shaken.

Coakley and William J. Corcoran, former District Attorney of the county, went on trial to-day on indictments for conspiracy to extort money from Barbour and others by means of threats between 1914 and the present time. Coakley is conducting his own defense.

The incident, according to the witness, occurred in 1916. Barbour said that he had known the "Mrs. Daley" for ten years previously. One day in July, 1916, he testified, she came to his office for money. "While she was there," he said, "I embraced her and we had a petting party—just a petting party, your Honor and nothing else."

Suddenly, the witness explained, he heard a noise over the transom and saw the head of a man who said that he was a policeman. "I was all excited and didn't know what to do," continued Barbour, "but while the man was still in my office Mrs. Daley made the suggestion, which I accepted, that I go to see Mr. Coakley, who would be able to straighten the matter out.'"

Barbour testified that when he reached Coakley's office, only two hours later, he found not only Coakley and "Mrs. Daley" there but a man who said he was "Mrs. Dailey's" husband. "I told Mr. Coakley the whole story and he said that I should return at a later date and he would then be able to tell me more definitely what he could do for me," the witness added.

At the next conference, ran the testimony, Coakley told Brabour that he had bought out through Corcoran, who is now under a five-year sentence on other blackmail charges a certain man who had a grudge against him, and had spent $6,000 "to get the goods" on him. The witness said that when he offered to reimburses the mysterious sleuth for the money he had laid out he was told by Coakley that he would have to pay $75,000, not $6,000, to appease the unidentified detective.

Barbour paid this. Several days later he got a bill from Coakley for $25,000 as counsel fee for Corcoran, who it is alleged, had induced the mysterious man to take the $75,000. Barbour paid this, he said, on Coakleys assurance that it was "all right."

Several months later, according to the witness, "Mrs. Daley" said she wanted something. Barbour went to Coakley.

"When I got through, Coakley told me that it was a pretty serious matter and that I would have to give the woman money, too," he said. By the time he got through paying "resentful, but unidentified detectives," "lawyesr," and "the injured woman," Barbour testified he had expended $362,000. This amount, he said, he delivered to Coakley in cash, stocks and bonds.

"However, in all this, he averred, "I was never permitted to see or know the name of the detective who looked over the transom."

WORKING FOR 69 CTS. A DAY

Wages in Germany now range from 69 cents to $1.09 a day. So reports Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, banker and internationally known statistician, who was a member of the Dawes Reparations Committee.

Your first thought is: "I wouldn't want to be over there working for that."

The low wage in Germany, nevertheless, affects you here in America—affects all of us. For high American wages and low German wages come in competition with each other when the things they make go out to find foreign trade markets.

That is why the restoration of German finances to a normal level is extremely important to all of us. It's important for reparations, also for getting the world balanced better in the international markets.

* * *

Many British bankers believe that the United States is on the eve of a gold inflation period and they are willing to help it along in the belief that we will buy great quantities of British goods, despite any high tariff.

That's another idea brought back from abroad by Colonel Ayres.

Think it over. Maybe we shouldn't rejoice so loudly at cornering the lion's share of the world's gold. The danger of this gold skyrocketing our cost of living (based on gold) has been worrying able economists for several years.

An even greater danger is the possibility that European nations will discard gold as a basis of money and, in its place, substitute a more scientific measure such as units of human energy.

The value of gold, after all, is mainly imaginary, not logical.

SIGNALMAN'S ERROR RESULTED IN SMASH COSTING FOUR LIVES

Cup Final Special Crashes Into Electric Train in Camden Tunnel — Driver's Heroism — Forty-seven Hurt

The dead, all of whom are Coventry men, are:—

Thomas Bradshaw, 95, Queen Victoria road.

Samuel Ives, 97, Queen Victoria road.

Thomas Dix (57), 21 Spon-end.

James Gray, 75, Albert street, Hillfields.

A straightforward confession of error by a signalman provided the explanation of the Cup-tie train collision near Euston, London, in which four people were killed and forty-seven injured.

Arthur Chambers, who was assisting William Hill with the signals in No. 4 box at Euston, was called as a witness at the official inquiry, which was opened and adjourned.

"I wish to express my deep sorrow at having been the cause of an accident of this sort, which had such serious results," said Chambers, who added that he did not wish to throw any responsibility or blame on any one else.

The signalman at "Camden No. 1," he said, "offered" him the electric train which was involved in the smash on the slow line, and he "accepted" it, thinking that the excursion train from Coventry which had preceded it was on the fast line.

The Coventry train, as a matter of fact, was standing on the slow line. "It was my unfortunate self-confidence,' 'said Chambers, "that the train was on the fast line. I was not conscious until after the collision that anything was wrong. I had no worry that would make me forget. I can only explain it as a peculiar misconception."

Because he believed that the excursion train was still on the fast line, the "fast" home signal was pulled off. He could not remember whether he pulled it off.

Colonel Pringle complimented Chambers on having given his evidence in such a straightforward and manly way, and chief general superintendent Tollows of the London, Midland, and Scottish Railway, said he had an excellent record of service, and that there were no bad marks against him. He was due for promotion.

The accident occurred just before eight o'clock. The train from Coventry had stopped in the Camden Tunnel preparatory to drawing in to the platform at Euston when an electric train full of business people from Watford and other suburban stations crashed into it.

The choking fumes of the tunnel, the danger of the electric rails, and a small burst of flames among the wreckage of the coaches added to the terror of the moment.

The momentum of the electric train had forced four or five coaches of the steam train into each other, completely telescoping the last, while the front coach of the electric train, itself telescoped, had mounted the wreckage, reaching to the tunnel roof.

All the victims were living when extricated from the wreckage, and the four deaths occurred in hospital. One of these—Mr. Dix—died after a transfusion of blood was made from another Coventry man, Mr. Thomas Laybourne, who was less seriously injured. None of the passengers on the local electric train was dangerously injured, the majority suffering from cuts, bruises, and shock. The guard on the Coventry train—T. Reading—is on the danger list suffering from a broken hip and other injuries, while Driver Edward Adams, of the electric train, is also in a precarious condition.

The stoicism of Driver Adams, while he endured five hours' torture, was the admiration of everyone. When the crash came, his motor collapsed on top of him, the control handle pressing into his stomach and, like a stake, pinning him to the ground while the wreckage piled overhead. When discovered he was conscious, but uncomplainingly awaiting his release from a position of agony.

Adams, who is a widower, 50 years old, living at Wrexham-road, Bow, even joked with his rescuers, maintaining his iron nerve by constant sips of water. He has been in the service of the railway company for many years, and has never previously been involved in an accident.

Link With 1820 Lost By Death Of Mrs. Lowther

Mrs. Lowther, whose first recollection was of her pet canary dying in 1820, has died an Cavenham, Suffolk, at the age of 106 years 11 months. Her son and grandson officiated at her funeral.

When she was interviewed on New Year's Day she had just had a hearty dinner of pheasant, vegetables, and mince pie. She remembered somebody saying in 1821 "Boney's dead." She had seen all the monarchs since George III., and remembered the Iron Duke riding through London.

Mrs. Lowther had seen King Edward as a baby aged three being taken for an airing with the Princess Royal on Brighton Pier. She did not show much physical sign of great age, took two glasses of ale a day, and ate what she fancied.

COLONEL JARROT DROPS FROM SIGHT

Famous Racing Motorist and Pioneer Last Seen March 24

INQUIRY FRUITLESS

Resigned Chair at Automobile Association Last Year

Lieut.-Colonel Charles Jarrott, the racing motorcyclist and pioneer of the motor-car industry, disappeared from London on March 24.

Widespread inquiries by his sister, Mrs. Edgar Herring, of Keswick-road, Putney, with whom he lived, have failed to reveal the slightest trace of his movements since he last last seen on that date.

Lieut.-Colonel Jarrott thrilled vast crowds on British tracks and on the Continent. He started thirty-second in one race, and finished in front of all his rivals. He was the dominant figure in lifting the British motor industry from obscurity of its early days.

His resignation from the chairmanship of the Automobile Association last year caused a sensation in the motoring world . The association announced that he had retired owing to the pressure of business affairs, but Lieut.-Colonel Jarrott promptly denied this.

Lieut.-Colonel Jarrott's marriage to the Countess of Rosslyn in 1903 was one of the surprises of the year. He drove up to his office in Great Mariborough street one morning in a powerful motor-car, upholstered in crimson. A woman in grey sat beside him.

He alighted for a few minutes, and then, as he stepped in the motor-car again, said to his friends, "I'm off on my honeymoon." The next moment the motor-car vanished down Regent street.

It was not until later in the day that it became known that the woman in the car was Lady Rosslyn, whom Colonel Jarrott had married secretly that morning.

REMAINS OF WOMAN FOUND IN BUNGALOW ON LONELY CRUMBLES

Richmond Sportsman Arrested at Waterloo on Calling for Bag of Bloodstained Clothing—Victim Identified by Cousin of Hailsham

A bag containing women's bloodstained silk underclothing, claimed by a man at the main-line cloakroom at Waterloo Station, London, has revealed one of the most sensational crimes of recent years.

The man was taken to Scotland-yard by detectives who had waited two days for him. After a long interrogation, two of the chief detectives made a swift night journey by motor car to Eastbourne, where, in "The Officer's House," at Langley Bungalows, a former coastguard station on the lonely Crumbles, dismembered remains of at least one woman, and probably two, were found.

A man named Waller rented the bungalow a month ago. The detained man is named Patrick Mahon. He is a native of Liverpool, married, and lives in West London.

The dismembered woman found in the lonely bungalow on the Crumbles, near Eastbourne, has been definitely identified as Emily Beilby Kaye, about 30 years of age and formerly a bookkeeper employed in Bond street W.

She is a native of Hailsham, near Eastbourne, and left to work in London two years ago. A cousin, R. E. Beilby, is a veterinary surgeon there, and Miss Kaye spent a holiday with him last August. Beilby last night identified a photograph of her which was found at the bungalow.

Miss Kaye, an attractive young woman with fair bobbed hair, lived in London at the Green Cross Club in Guilford street. When she left the club early in April she told her girl friends that she was leaving to be married, and would go to Capetown with her husband.

"Patrick" Mahon—his real name is Herbert—is a well-educated, cultured man of charming manner, and was extremely popular in Richmond sporting circles, where he had a reputation as a good lawn tennis player and a runner of more than average merit. He is secretary of the New Bowling Club, Richmond, and last year was secretary and treasurer of the Richmond open amateur bowls tournament. His business office was at Sunbury Common, where he was manager of a mineral water machine factory.

WIDOW SUICIDES AS RESULT OF FEAR

Dread of Poverty With £3,000 Savings Laid By

Although possessed of £3,000, Mrs. Millicent Doyle, a widow, of Leigh-on-Sea, Essex, took her life owing to a dread of poverty.

At an inquest it was said that she gave her 11-year-old son a small packet to give his elder sister. This, when opened, was found to contain £100 in notes, with the information that there was War Loan to Mrs. Doyle's credit amounting to £2,800.

Mrs. Doyle was found dead with her head in a gas oven.

The verdict was suicide during temporary insanity.

Vaccine War on Germs is Planned By Irish Surgeon

Doctors and scientists long thought that the white corpuscles in the blood made war on disease germs by actually attacking them and even devouring them. Sir Almroth Wright, the famous Dublin surgeon, in a lecture to students at St. Mary's Hospital, London, proved his theory to be only partly correct.

He has invented a method by which it is possible to see that the white corpuscles kill the invading germs without even coming into direct contact with them, by emitting a secretion that meets them and arrests their development in colonies.

He demonstrated this with a lantern slide picture of blood. The disease germs were seen in a thick colony at one end, and the white corpuscles were massed at the other. In between the two was what Sir Almroth termed the "No Man's Land," a tract supplied by the white corpuscles, wherein not a single disease germ was able to flourish.

Germ disease in the future, said Sir Almroth Wright, will not be treated by ordinary medicines in their early stages, but by special therapeutic methods based on bacteriological tests. He has discovered a method by which it is possible to ascertain by blood tests, at the outset of a disease, the exact dose of vaccine necessary.

CAUSTIC BEQUESTS MADE IN WILL

Bequests of a very caustic nature, contained in the will of a retired British Civil Servant of Irish descent, include the following:—

To two nephews living in Scotland, "one shillingsworth of farthings between them."

To a person named "the poor orphan boy whom I was jenerous (sic) enough to take, educate, etc., etc., receiving a very poor return for my good intentions, I leave a shillingsworth of smallest postage stamps."

To a niece, the bulk of his property, "on condition that she never by word, act, or deed, of any description, has anything to do with a man who is known by a certain alias——"

To another relative, one shilling and half a collection of photographs.

To a brother, to whom he makes a very small bequest, he states: "He is not to have a single farthing or anything else from me, except what is given to him above."

DEATH LURKS IN PET DOG'S KISS

Coroner on the Great Risks That Women Often Take

The suggestion that a woman's death was caused by her kissing a pet dog was made by the Westminster coroner at an inquest on Mrs. Agnes Hodgson, formerly of Chesilton-road, Fulham.

A post mortem examination revealed that she was suffering from a hydatic cyst.

"These cysts," said the coroner (Mr. Ingleby Oddie), "are not very uncommon, and are due to dogs.

"Watercress grown where dogs run about is supposed to be the cause of the spread of this disease, and, curiously enough, Mrs. Hodgson was fond of watercress.

"She was also very devoted to a Pom., the coroner continued, "an animal women are so fond of hugging and kissing—a disgusting habit that is to be seen in the streets of London. "Women also kiss Pekingese dogs on the nose and mouth, and they should know that they are liable in that way to acquire this horrible cyst, generally with fatal results. No doubt Mrs. Hodgson's death was caused in this way.

Death by misadventure was the verdict.

Less Fish in the North Sea Nowadays, According to Report

Nearly half a million hundredweight (25,000 tons) less fish was landed from the North Sea last year, compared with 1922.

John Leng, chief fishery officer for the North-Eastern Sea Fisheries Committee, states this in his report, and remarks of the great scarcity of fish in the North Sea.

Trawler skippers, he says, cannot explain the reason for the shortage. He thinks that during the last three years the North Sea has been overfished, and far too many trawlers have been working there.

Accompanied by the Earl of Kinnoull, she reached Perth and attended the Sheriff Court clad in flying wraps.

The charge related to motoring at Scone, on her first visit to Perth on April 6, and the countess, pleading guilty, explained that she was in a hurry at the time of the offence.

Interviewed, she laughingly remarked that it was rather hard lines to be caught speeding while on his homecoming to her husband's family seat, Balhousie Castle.

RADIO RECEIVING WITHOUT BATTERIES

New Invention Will Make Costly Valves Everlasting

A wonderful invention, which no less a person than Sir Oliver Lodge, the famous scientist, declares "marks a new and important era in wireless reception," is to be exhibited in London to experts.

Wireless will be immensely simplified by the apparatus, which does away with the necessity for the employment of high-tension batteries in valve receiving sets. All wireless amateurs will appreciate what that means. Costly valves will be practically everlasting, and there will be no danger of blowing the valves out.

Another quality of the apparatus is that it provides greatly improved reception results. Sound distortion in loud speakers will be avoided and atmospherics will be largely eliminated. Reception sets will be a great deal cheaper than at present.

The young inventors are G. V. Dowding and K. D. Rogers.

A new two-valve wireless receiver has been demonstrated at Basingstoke, when L. E. Akehurst, its inventor, tuned in a concert from Bournemouth, sixty miles distant, on a large loud speaker.

AMATEUR FOOTBALL LOSES STALWART

"Pa" Wilson, of Dulwich Hamlet, Has Passed Away

A severe loss to amateur football has been sustained by the death of Mr. Lorraine Wilson, president, and for many years treasurer, of the Dulwich Hamlet Football Club, which he primarily founded. He had been ill for a long time, and has passed away in his 50th year.

"Pa" Wilson as he was affectionately called, was a popular figure in the sporting world. For 20 years he rendered inestimable service to the London Football Association as honorary treasurer.

Mr. Wilson was an old boy of Dulwich College, and was a great supporter of the College Chapel in Dulwich Village. Enthusiasm was written all over him, and upon this occasion of the big match day at Champion Hill, when the boys were doing well and the receipts were good, his beaming smile was a real tonic. Mr. Wilson became the president of Dulwich Hamlet in the autumn of 1923, after serving for many years as honorary treasurer.

KINGSTON PONIES GOT BREAK AT THE BARRIER AND WON FIRST CANTER

Holiday Game Played Under Unseasonable Conditions Attracted Crowd of Loyal Fans Who Were Impressed With the 1924 Petes and Satisfied They Will Be In the Front of the Fight.

SCORE WAS 6 TO 4.

Taking advantage of several costly defensive slips in the early stages of Saturday's Central Ontario League game at Riverside Park, the Kingston Ponies secured a big enough lead to stand off the Petes' later determined bid for victory and won out by 6 runs to 4 after a battle brimful of excitement. Under the conditions, with heavy going under foot as a result of the morning's rain and with half a gale blowing, chilling the players and making fly balls cut queer capers, it was a surprisingly well played game and the big holiday crowd was satisfied—even though the home team lost.

One swallow does not make a summer, and one ball game does not make a pennant.

The fans are confident that the Petes have the material from which a winning team can be moulded, and they are looking forward to a season crammed full of exciting baseball.

Judging by Saturday's exhibition, they are going to get plenty of that.

Manager Solomon sent his left-handed twirler, Charlie Serth, in to do the gunning, and although the portsider was not hit hard, his control was none too good, and several costly errors were mixed in with the complimentaries, with the result that in four innings the Ponies had manufactured five runs out of four hits. The tall left-hander had plenty of stuff, however, and he is going to be a big help to the Petes on the long campaign that has just opened.

Heckman took over the pitching burden in the fifth and showed his old-time form, his fast ball slipping into Swanston's glove at top speed. He fanned eight of the visitors in the five innings he worked and blanked them until the ninth when it took a bad decision on Batstone, a passed ball and a wind-blown foul ball that ordinarily would have been an easy out to squeeze the last Kingston counter over. The Petes' right-hander looked to be in mid-summer form.

Gallagher opened for Kingston, but failed to go the route. He weakened in the fifth, and was lucky to escape without being scored on, and when the Petes had batted in a run in the sixth and had two runners on the paths, the veteran was derricked in favour of the much-heralded Kelly.

The new left-hander averted further trouble in that frame, but got into deep water himself in the next inning when the Petes nicked him for two runs and had the bases full when the third out was registered. Kelly looks like a good pitcher, but not the world-beater the press reports have pictured him to be on his showing on Saturday.

The Kingston team with most of last year's players in line has picked up two fine youngsters in Compeau and Purvis. The young short stop ed his position splendidly and his team on the attack while s covered first in excellent Rickman the new catcher has ng on Rice as a backstop and not appear to be the hitter that is.

The two youngsters on the Petes' line up gave an excellent account of themselves. Jimmy Hall covered right field in stylish fashion, having three splendid catches, one of which he converted into a double play and getting a hit and drawing two walks while Batten at shotstop was good defensively—and he'll hit too with a little more experience.

The season was ushered in with a brief but successful ceremony in which Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., pitched the first ball, with Mayor Turner swinging the bat and Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. catching. The Deputy-Speaker had too much stuff on the ball for His Worship who only succeeded in getting a foul on three attempts.

Evans first up for Kingston was hit and when Compeau bunted for a sacrifice Serth threw high over Harrisons head, Evans reaching third and the batter second. Trouble was averted for the moment when Batstone hit to Johnston who threw Evans out at the plate. When Batstone started to steal second Johnston slipped as he took Swanston's throw [illegible] Compeau scored. Batstone [illegible] the 10,000 distance [illegible] back to first. He rode home a moment later on Cherry's sacrifice fly to Legon. Daley singled through short and Rickman was safe when Batten lost his roller. Purvis was passed filling the bases. Kelly drove out a fly to Wolfe in right centre and Daley was called safe after the catch although Wolfe made a fine throw home and the runner apparently did not touch the plate. Gallagher's tap to Serth ended the inning.

Peterboro went out in order. Legon struck out, Johnston grounded to Purvis and Evans cut Helson out of a hit by a fine stop of a hard hit ball.

In the fourth Evans was tossed out by Swanston. Compeau, however, singled to left and Batston walked. Cherry hit to Batten, forcing Batstone at second. On a double steal Cherry was tagged out but Compeau scored before the out was registered.

Heckman was on the firing line when the fifth opened and struck out Daley and Rickman.. Purvis was hit but died stealing, Johnston making a fine play on a high throw.

The Petes had two hits and a base on balls in their half but failed to score. Hall walked to start with. Wolfe struck out and Hall was forced at second on Batten's bunt. Legon singled to left and Johnston followed with a single to centre on which Cherry by a perfect throw nailed Batten at the plate.

For Kingston Kelly fanned, Gallagher lifted a high one which Heckman grabbed and Evans struck out.

In the Petes half Helson singled past Batstone and was sacrificed to second by Swanston. Harrison singled past Evans, Helson scoring while Harrison went to second on the throw in. When Gallagher passed Heckman the Ponies yanked the veteran southpaw and sent Kelly to the rescue, Gallagher going to right field. Managers Solomon and Daley got into an argument at this stage and both were chased by Umpire Benson. Hall singled back of first filling the bases but a glorious chance failed when Wolfe hoisted one to Compeau and Batten with the count 3 and 2 on him missed the next one.

Compeau led off for Kingston with his third hit in a row, a single to right and Batstone was passed. Cherry and Daley fanned and Rickman rolled to Helson who threw him out at first.

The Petes made a big bid for victory in their half. Legon doubled to deep left to open the frame and after Johnston had fanned went to third on a balk. Helson missed three but Swanston boomed a fly to right which Gallagher dropped, Legon scoring. Evans missed Harrison's roller. Heckman exploded a double down the first base line scoring Swanston and Harrison would have tied the score had he not slipped at third, being forced to remain there. Hall walked, filling the bases but Wolfe with the count 3 and 2 missed a high one on the inside.

In the eighth Purvis singled to right, Kelly bunted to Helson and was safe on a fumble but Gallagher and Evans fanned and Batten and Heckman picked Purvis off second.

Batten first up for the Petes fanned, Legon was walked but was caught off first and Johnston rolled to Batstone.

Kingston got their last run in the ninth. Hall made a fine catch of Compeau's long fly to start with. Batstone hit to right and Hall's quick throw apparently beat the runner but Umpire Allen called him safe. Batstone stole second, a passed ball helping him and crossed the plate on Cherry's clean hit to center. Hall made another great catch of Daley's fly to right and doubled Cherry off first.

The Petes went out in order, Helson grounding to Purvis and Swanston to Compeau while Harrison struck out.

FIVE GOALS BY RICHMOND WERE GAME'S FEATURE

Centre Forward of the Thistles Carried Off the Honors In His Team's Defeat of the Woollens On the Holiday—Senior League Fixture.

Woollens Scored Two.

On Saturday afternoon, (Victoria Day) at Nicholls Oval, the Thistle defeated the Canadian Woolens five goals to two in a senior league game, before a good crowd. The play was fast from beginning to the end and full of nice combinations. With only 13 minutes to go, the Woollens slacked up on their play which proved costly to them. Richmond got five goals himself.

The teams:

Woollens—Warde, goal; Read and Perry, backs; Quinn, Monkman and Sawyers, half-backs; Mitchell Gaskill, Wyllie, Chambers and Elliott, forwards.

Thistle—Curtiss, goal; Rae and Anderson, backs; Jackson, Dawson and Hotston, half-backs; Melville, McPhail, Richmond, Williams and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—A. Mitchell.

Opening Very Fast.

The Woollens won the toss and took advantage of the wind which was blowing west down the field. They made a raid upon the Thistle's goal from the kick-off through Wyllie trying to beat Curtiss but Anderson shouldered him off the ball, to go past. Burgess retaliated after a run along the wing, centered nicely to Richmond who found Perry and Read safe and sound. Play was fast and beautiful, as the ball travelled from end to end in quick succession that called the services of the goal keepers to show their mettle, in fact, Curtiss save a sure goal when Wyllie sent a fast ground shot for the corner of the goal. Both teams were playing first-class soccer throughout.

Warde Brilliant in Goal.

Chambers went through on his own to test Curtiss, the goalie passed out to Hotston who sent Burgess along the line. He let drive from touch to make Warde punt clear in a dangerous raid. Markman shot the ball forward to Chambers, the Thistles centre-half tackled the Woollens players and gained a free kick. Warde cleared on the attack, then Dawson gave Melville an opportunity to test Warde but the outside right lifted the ball into goal where Richmond headed through, out of Warde's reach. Three minutes afterwards, Melville manouvered around three players in nice play. He drove hard for goal but Woollen's goalie picked up the sphere cleverly but had not time to get back into position to prevent Richmond adding the second goal.

Curtiss Saved But Ball Through.

After this sudden success, the Thistle slackened up in their play to their own detriment. Jack Chambers initiated a move on his own to break through the defense pair to pick the corner of the goal. Curtiss saved after the ball had been over the goal line by throwing himself right across the whole goal but the referee awarded a goal. The Thistle retaliated to let Melville and Williams have inffective tries. The run of play was very even with perhaps a slight balance in favour of the Woollens. On one occassion, Gaskill was left with nobody but the goalie to beat, three yards from goal, then finished poorly as he landed the ball into Curtiss' hands. All the Woollens' forwards went down into Thistle area to keep Rae and Anderson busy clearing their goal. They obtained relief through Wyllie getting into offside position. Half time—Thistle 2, Woollens 1.

Half-Time.

When the game resumed, it was seen that Wyllie and Chambers had changed their places. The Thistle were more aggressive in front of goal. Good work by Melville and McPhail, let the former send a rocket ground shot across the goal-mouth. Burgess sent back into goal again where Richmond compelled Warde to fist over the bar.

Chambers Unfortunate.

Fast end-to-end play followed, ultimately Chambers in one of his characteristic moods left the Thistle defense bewildered. If [illegible] been for Anderson wa[illegible] perhaps, he would [illegible] had not stead of hitting [illegible] have scored indiately after[illegible] the upright. Immeter[illegible]y Myr[illegible]wards, a well-placed cen- Aoul [illegible] Mitchell went abegging as Anderson punted forward to McPhail who in turn sent the outside down into Wollens' area. The combination of this pair was excellent along with Richmond, of course, fancy play is alright in its place but not profitable—goals count. The Woollens had the pull now for a time but no award accrued.

Chambers Scored From Penalty

A foul against Dawson made the Thistle defense hussel. Quinn kicked into goal, Wyllie trapped nicely but was a little late as Anderson lifted the ball away from his toe when in the act of shooting.. Monkman worked his way down upon goal again, then lifted ball into penalty area when some infringement caused the referee to award a penalty which was converted by Jack Chambers. The game was very interesting at this point because both teams were working hard to gain the necessary winning goal, and a splendid brand of clean soccer. Every man was playing his position well. With only thirteen minutes to go the break came.

Richmond's Three Goals in Thirteen Minutes.

It was nice to witness the spectacular tussels between Sayers and Perry versus McPhail and Melville. The Thistle's inside man drew out the edfense, then passed back to his partner who centred. Richmond caught the ball in mid-air, to lift it over his head, thereby giving Warde no chance whatever. Two minutes later he accepted a similar chance from Melville on a low ground shot for number four. At the other end two unsuccessful corners brought no award for the Woollens. Three minutes to go Richmond scored his fifth goal in the game. Thistle 5, Woollens 2.

Goal scorers—Thistle, Richmond 5; Woollens, Chambers 2.

LOCKWORKS-C.G. MEET TUESDAY

Last Year's Champions Meet New Entry Tomorrow Night in A Mercantile League Game.

The Lockworks and the C.G.E. hook up in a scheduled game in the Mercantile League tomorrow night at 6 o'clock. This game should be a good one as it brings together the Lockworks, who were last year's champions of the Mercantile League, and the C.G.E., one of the new entries this year.

Both teams will be at full strength for tomorrow's clash. The C.G.E. have rounded up a good team and the Lockworks, although they have lost a couple of last year's men, have a few new men to replace them.

The caliber of ball that the Mercantile League are dishing up this year can be gathered from the fact that the games played to date have been of A-1 class and have been close, hard-fought battles. The Western Clock defeated the Bankers 4-3, and the Examiner trimmed the Quaker Oats 2-0. This shows the class of the games being played.

The Lock-Works-C.G.E. clash tomorrow night should be equally as good as any of the games played, and it should be greeted by a good crowd. There has been good crowds turning out to the games and they have been amply rewarded. The game starts at 6.00 o'clock sharp.

On Thursday night of this week the Examiner meet the Bankers.

C.P.C. GREY BIRDS LOSE TO DUMMER

First League Game Played On Home Grounds Won By Score of 4 to 2.

IN JUNIOR LEAGUE.

North Dummer played their first league game at home on Saturday afternoon when they defeated the C. P. C. Grey Birds by 4 goals to 2, Melville Payne scoring 3 of the goals. There was a nice crowd on hand, many motoring from the city to see the game.

The township men started with a rush having the wind in their favour and it was soon evident that the city men were in for a lively forty-five minutes. Payne, the centre forward was prominent and from one of his timely passes Taylor opened the scoring. The Grey Birds were doing their best to score. Foster was plying Cross with the sphere and Jory was often in difficulties and his backs coming to the rescue. Foster gave to Anderson who in turn centered and Foster beat Jory and made the game even from the centre kick. Payne fastened on to the ball and sent in a terrific drive which gave Jenkins no chance and gave the township men the lead. The game was very fast and each side was doing their level best to score. Bruce Bradley at back played a great game First one goal and then the other was visited. Their was no further scoring. Half time arrived with the township men leading by 2 to 1.

SECOND HALF.

Upon resuming the Grey Birds put Kilenback in goal and brought Jenkins to half back but it did not have the desired effect. Mell Payne and his wing men by nice short passes came very close to adding to the score. Bradley relieved by a huge kick. Foster was trying to get his men settled down but the half backs of the township team were playing a great game. A. Jory placed nicely to Mell Payne and beating Linsey scored a beautiful goal. Somers with Foster was often testing Jory, but backed by a great defense he saved the situation. Anderson by some nice tricky play gave to Somers who raced away and passed to Foster, the centre-forward beat Jory with a hot shot well out of his reach. This put the township men on their metal, it was a treat to see their forwards at this period of the game, the whole five coming down the field in a line Batten centered and Mell Payne again scored. The township men were now in control of the game. They bombarded the Grey Birds goal Bradley and the goal-keeper were having an anxious time. Feely eventually got possession and sent to Cross who made a fine run on the right but his final effort however went just wide of the post. The Grey Birds tried to rally their forces in the last few moments of the game but the township men kept them at bay. Time was called and a very fast, clean and an exciting game gave the township men their first win by 4 to 2. The Grey Birds were entertained to supper by the home team after the game and are loud in the praise of the excellent way they were treated.

The teams:

Grey Birds: Jenkins, B. Bradley, Linsey, Killenbeck, Feeley. H. Hotston, Cross, Somers, Foster, Edwards' Anderson.

HITS CIRCUIT CLOUT WITH BASES CROWDED IN THE OSHAWA GAME

Belleville Hung Up Five in the Fourth But Lost to Oshawa 19-9 -- Used Sawdust to Dry Up Infield and a Left-Hander to Wipe Up Visitors.

NEW STAND OPENED

OSHAWA, Ont., May 26. — In weather that was more suitable for rugby than baseball, Oshawa carried out its big opener on the holiday.

After a half hour's delay and the use of a quantity of sawdust, the infield of the ball diamond was made ready for the opening League ball game and Manager Walter Gerow, of Belleville, trotted out the same line-up that faced Oshawa in the play-offs last year, with Jack Oulette doing the slab duty and Billy Mills on the receiving end, while Manager Charles Schultz, of Oshawa, chose Dainty, the local left-handed pitching ace, with Tyson as his battery mate, and the left-hander registered a 19-9 win over his opponents.

Belleville were blanked in the first three innings, but in the fourth, after Williams had fanned, Meagher got on through an error by Murray. Hagerman was given a walk, Casey singled, filled the bases. Dainty issued a free pass to Oulette,, forcing Meagher across the pan and with the bases still choked, A. Weir, Belleville's shortstop, realized a ball player's dream by clouting out a circuit drive to deep left and five runs were hung up on the score board. Ross and W. Mills finished the innings with easy outs. They were blanked in the 5th, 6th and 7th, but in the 8th put over a quartette of runners after one was out. J. Weir, who batted for Casey, and Keen, who replaced Oulette, both got on through errors. A. Weir came through with his third hit of the game, which was a two-bagger, and while R. Fair in centre let it ooze through his legs, J. Weir and Keen crosed the pan and A. Weir leaning upon third. Ross singled, scoring A. Weir and went to second on the throw to the plate. W. Mills poled out one to centre which R. Fair grabbed on the run and Ross was safe on third when Murray was not covering the bag to take the throw. H. Mills singled, scoring Ross, and J. Williams flew out to R. Fair in centre. In the ninth they were held scoreless. Oshawa scored four runs in their first when Murray, the first man up, got on through a low throw to first on his roller to Williams. R. Fair was issued a free trip to first. Tyson hit for three bases, scoring the two runners. Dainty flew out to Meagher, Roddick was safe when Williams again made a bad peg to first on his grounder, and Tyson scored, Roddick going to second base on the throw to the plate to catch Tyson. Wilson poled a line drive out to right and Roddick raced for home, beating the throw from right by inches.

The second and third were scoreless, while in the fourth four were chalked up on the score board on two walks and three hits. Two were added in the 5th on three safe singles, and another brace in the sixth on three errors and a single. The 7th was scoreless, while in the 8th they garnered seven on two errors, a walk and five hits, one of which was a three base clout by R. Fair.

The line-ups:

Belleville— A. Weir, s.s.; Ross, c.f.; W. Mills, c.; H. Mills, 1st; Williams, 3rd; Meagher, 2nd; Hagerman,, l.f.; Casey, r.f.; Oulette, p.; J. Weir, r.f.; Keen, p.

Oshawa—Murray, 3rd; W. Fair, r.f.; Rowden, 2nd; Tyson, c.; Dainty, p.; Roddick, l.f.; Wilson, 1st; R. Fair, c.f.; Morrison, s.s.

Umpires: Freeman at the plate; Hallinan on the bases. Both of Toronto. Week end umpires.

OPENING DAY NOTES

Considering the weather conditions the crowd was a remarkable one. There were delegations from Lindsay, Cobourg, Port Hope and other district centres and they all rooted for the Petes.

Both teams had to get along without a pilot after the sixth when Managers Solomon and Daley were chased by Umpire Benson.

Compeau and Batstone for Kingston and Legon for the Petes were the leading batters of the day and the only players to get more than one hit.

The Petes got as many hits as the visitors and all the extra base blows, Swanston, Legon and Heckman getting doubles.

Serth made the first Peterboro error, Swanston the first put out and the first hit, Legon the first run and Hall started the first double of the season.

Compeau the Kingston shorstop is a real find. He hit everything tossed at him and gather everything hit at him—and Everett Scott could do no more.

Evans pick-up of Helsons hard smash in the third was one of the fielding features.

Kingston are billed to play in Belleville today while the Petes invade Oshawa on Wednesday with Dainty and Company back here on Saturday.

REDDICK WON IN CALGARY

CALGARY, Alta., May 26 (Canadian Press). — Jack Reddick, Canadian middleweight and light heavyweight champion, retained his laurels on Saturday night when he kayoed Oakland Billy Harms, of Everett, Washington, in the fifth round of a scheduled 15-round bout.

A terrific right below the heart followed by a right to the chin as Harms was going down, terminated the bout.

A number of spectators cried foul as Harms was being counted out.

THE WEATHER ON VICTORIA DAY

TORONTO, May 26. — Not for many years has the weatherman been so unpropitious in his favors on Victoria Day as he was this year. From all over the province reports indicate that it was the coldest 24th of May for the past decade at least. Toronto fared little better than other towns and cities throughout Ontario and most of those who did not leave the city for homes in other places were content to hug the fireside.

An odd flake of snow fell in Toronto on Sunday morning while Palmerston and other places received a more generous supply of the unwelcome "beautiful."

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 26.—(Canadian Press).—The Pittsburgh National League Club Saturday night announced the sale by the waiver route of Pitcher Ray Steinder, to the Philadephia Nationals. Steinder came to the Pirate in 1920 from Vineland, N.J., where he had played semi-professional ball.

"BLACK GOLD" REPEATS.

CLEVELAND, O., May 26 (Canadian Press). — Black Gold, three-year-old champion runner, owned by Mrs. C. M. Hoots, of Tulsa, Okla., won the first $5,000 Ohio State Derby, a mile and an eighth, in 1.57 1-2, over a muddy track at Maple Heights Track here on Saturday.

Payman, S. A. Cowan's colt, was second, and Dunoon, owned by J. J. Russell, was third.

SIKI TAKES THE COUNT.

Battling Siki may never fight again. The picturesque Senegalese conquerer of Georges Carpentier is in worse shape to-day than he was when Mike McTigue got through with him. An auto ride and then a smashup—perhaps some corn whisky—have sent him to a hospital in Omaha with five shattered ribs and a bruised shoulder. And this despite the fact that his trainers had hired two body guards to keep him away from the "white lights."

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. How must the batsman turn after overrunning first base, in order not to make himself liable to be put out?—H. M.

2. Runner on first base, batsman singles to right and runner on first tries for third. Fielder hits runner on the head with the ball, knocking him down, the ball falling dead nearby. Third baseman recovers ball and touches runner who gets to his feet and tries for third but fails by a narrow margin. Is he out?—L. S.

3. Bases filled. Coacher at third yells that the cover is torn and requests pitcher to throw the ball to him. Pitcher obliges and coacher steps aside and lets the ball go to the stands. Two men score on the play. What is the proper decision?—L. S.

ANSWERS

1. The batsman can turn either to the right or left after reaching first and not be liable to be put out, provided he makes no attempt to go to second.

2. Runner was out at third, as the ball is in play and no consideration can be given the accident that knocked the runner down momentarily.

3. This is a trick of 1776 vintage. The pitcher was at fault and runners could score, Ine the major leagues when such a raquest is made, the umpire always calls time and looks into the matter of the defaced ball.

Timely Tips To Amateurs

SAYS JOHNNY TOBIN, Outfielder, St. Louis Browns

The modern player who lacks the ability to hit the ball hard need not bemoan his fate.

There always has been, and always will be, a place in the lineup for the smart batsman.

If you have a good eye at the plate using the head with the eye, will make up for any deficiency as a hard hitter.

The batsman who can mix them up at the plate is as much feared as the home-run swatter.

Learn to bunt. Good bunters are scarce.

A big league manager always welcomes a player who can lay them down. Such players are useful.

Place hitting is a difficult task, but the batsman with a good eye who chops at the ball rather than swings is always more successful in the art of hitting 'em where the fielders ain't.

Batting isn't all physical by any means.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

LLOYD USES COUE THEORY FILMING "THRILL" COMEDY

Day by Day in Every Way I'm Getting Braver and Braver, Was Comedian's Version of Dr. Coue's Theory While Filming Thrilling Scenes on a Twelve Story Building.

Harold Lloyd Also Discovered a Metho by Which He Could Get Used to Per? forming Stunts at Dizzy Heights in "Safety Last," His New Pathe Feature Comedy, Which Promises to be "Something Different."

"Day by day in every way I'm getting braver and braver!"

That is what Harold Lloyd repeated to himself during the filming of his latest feature comedy, "Safety Last." For Harold figured out that if Dr. Coue had any luck with his "better and better" theory, he ought to have luck with his own version—"braver and braver"—which was certainly a necessity.

When "Safety Last" was selected as Lloyd's next Pathe starring vehicle, it was determined to make it a "thrill" picture—but a "thrill" picture that would even surpass "High and Dizzy," "Now Or Never' and "Never Weaken," three of his shorter comedies. In the action of "Safety Last" Harold climbs the side of a skyscraper, and to do this and not bring a serious injury to himself, the comedian put his new version of Dr. Coue's theiry into practise.

Lloyd figured that anyone can walk across a board when it is on the ground, or when it is raised a few feet. But place this board across an areaway twelve stories or so from the ground and the feat would be almost impossible. To overcome this, Lloyd practised for a number of weeks, each time having the board raised higher and insisting to himself that "day by day he was becoming braver and braver."

And then the day for the filming came. The location was twelve stories from the street with the thermometer registering 100 in the shade—and there was no shade. Clinging to the side of the building was Harold Lloyd. Twenty feet out from the building, and twelve stories high was Walter Lundin, Lloyd's head cameraman, shooting from a narrow balcony, roughly constructed. Sam Taylor and Fred Newmeyer, co-directors, also took their places on this blistering platform.

This is just an idea of the easy life led by motion picture stars and their co-workers. For Los Angeles was in the throes of the worst heat wave in years. But there was not a single day that the Lloyd company did not go through on schedule, except for the few days when Harold was laid up with an injured shoulder.

The life of movie people has been rose-tinted in the press, but no steel construction worker ever toiled harder than Harold Lloyd and his company in making this picture. For two months the comedian gave up all amusements, except swimming, for his work was too strenuous. It was the most daring effort Lloyd has made in his nine years before the camera, and it unquestionaly will stand as a monumental achievement in this line of picture making. At any rate, Lloyd can hardly hope to surpass it, and it is doubtful if he will attempt to.

For in "Safety Last" Harold Lloyd threw all caution to the winds. His object was to produce a picture that would not only top all the thrillers he had made in the past, but would practically be impossible for him to bea himself. But the feature comedy is not entirely comprised of thrills, however. The whole first faction of it is laid in a department store, and few ever realized what a fruitful stamping ground for comedy a department store is.

Harold Lloyd has never desired to be classed as a "thrill comedian" any more than he wishes to be associated with any one type of comedy. He likes to mix them up and make each of his characterizations different. And coming out now with "Safety Last," following "Dr. Jack" and "Grandma's Boy," he has fulfilled his desires completely. But with it all, Harold kept saying to himself as he climbed to perilous heights and extricated himself from hazardous, but humorous predicaments: "Day by day in every way I'm getting braver and braver!"

AT THE ROYAL

LLOYD HAMILTON SAVED THE DAY WHEN JOLSON JUMPED THE JOB

For Some Time Things Looked Dark for "His Darker Self."

THEN HAMILTON TOOK ROLE

He was Loaned by Educational and Everyone Was Happy Once More.

"Yes, we have no Al Jolson," sang the employeesof the Griffith Studio at Mamaroneck when that comedian departed on his well known trip to Europe. Al Jolson was to have made his picture debut in "His Darker Self," the first feature comedy in blackface, but suddenly changed his mind and jumped a boat for Europe without even saying goodbye to Mr. Griffith.

The latter didn't feel in the mood to join in the parody of the famous song. It looked as if "His Darker Self" would never see the light and that meant the loss of thousands of dollars, but finally Mr. Griffith thought of Lloyd Hamilton, who had been delighting folks with his funny antics in two-reel Educational comedies. Hamilton was borrowed from Educational and Jack Noble, who had been associated with him in recent pictures, was procured to direct him.

Everybody sighed with relief and went around congratulating everyone else. "All's well that ends well," they said. And it has ended well. Hamilton has more than fulfilled everyone's expectations. In the role of Claude Sappington, he is said to be a scream in both white and black face. His supporting cast includes Tom Wilson, well known heavy, remembered for his work with Douglas Fairbanks; Kate Bruce, who has appeared in practically every production that Griffith has made; Lucille La Verne, who is scoring a hit in the stage play "Sun Up"; Edna May Sperl, popular screen comedienne; Sally Long, of Ziegfeld fame; Tom Wilson, famous "heavy"; Irma Harrison, last seen in "One Exciting Night," and Tom O'Malley, who for many years played the title role in the stage production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

"His Darker Self," which comes to the Royal Theatre for a three days' run to-day, ,was written by Arthur Caesar, author of "Napoleon's Barber," a play that is proving a hit in Paris.

AT THE CAPITOL

FOURTEEN GOWNS ADORN GLORIA IN HER NEW PICTURE

Stunning Clothes and Special Coiffeurs Make Her More Glorious Than Ever

Gloria Swanson returns to her wardrobe in her newest Paramount picture, "A Society Scandal," an adaptation of Alfred Sutro's stage success, "The Laughing Lady."

This picture, following as it does "Zaza" and "The Humming Bird," is a direct contrast to the two in the matter of clothes. Miss Swanson wears fourteen different gowns in this production, while in "The Humming Bird" she had but four outfits, one of them being boy's clothes.

She is resplendent in dinner frocks, dazzling evening gowns and snappy sport togs in her role of an ultra-fashionable young society woman, and she hasn't forgotten her acting of "Zaza" and "The Humming Bird" either.

And that's not all—with each of the stunning gowns Miss Swanson has a special coiffeur that will make the women-folk green with envy.

Besides being a highly dramatic story, this new picture is a fashion-review of the highest order.

It's a story of New York high society life—that side so carefully concealed from the public—an expose of the private life of the 'Four Hundred.'

You've never really seen Gloria Swanson until you've seen her in "A Society Scandal."

Rod La Rocque and Ricardo Cortez play opposite the star, and Allan Simpson is also prominently cast as Gloria's pampered husband in the picture, which will be the feature at the Capitol Theatre to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. Thompson, in organizing his unit show, used great judgment in selecting his performers, and has lined up a strong cast of entertainers. Julia Varady, noted Hungarian prima donna, will be heard in a selected programme of vocal numbers, while the Romanos will offer their latest dance steps in a number entitled "Dance Creations." Felix Rush and Tucker Nelson, comedians, will offer a big laugh in their sketch, "Two Old Bats." Addill and Maie will be seen in a programme of songs and dances, while Harry Thompson will offer a series of songs that will be appreciated. Along with the vaudeville unit, which contains five acts, will be the usual picture programme: Mae Murray, in her latest success, "The French Doll," will be the feature attraction.

FAMILY REUNITED CAVAN TOWNSHIP

Separation Extended Over Fourteen Years-Family Came From Dummer.

CAVAN, May 26.—After a separation lasting fourteen years Mrs. Sam Davis of Dummer Township three of her sons and one daughter learned the whereabouts of her other daughter and two sons. While very young Ernest Joe and sister Dorothy were placed in an institution. For the last few years these three have been working near Millbrook. Last fall when the roads were closed to the wheels Ernest and Joe heard from a friend Ernest Carveth. They then wrote to another friend in Dummer who gave them their mother's address. When their mother received their letter their brothers James and Leonard set out at once to find them followed more slowly by another brother William.

Now all the boys have work in Cavan and have secured the first house east of Ida for a permanent home for their mother and sisters Estelle and Dorothy. She is now comfortably settled there.

It is a nice thing that the boys worked and planned to provide a home for their mother and as Ernest says "I tell you it's a mighty nice thing for us boys to have a home to go back to and life seems more worth while since we've found our mother."

KING'S WHARF.

KING'S WHARF, May 27. — Mr. Walter Herlihey motored to Peterboro on Sunday to see his sister Lillian, who is down there.

Mr. Wm. O'Neill has purchased a new car from Mr. King, Lindsay.

Mr. Richard Murtha left Monday for Spanish Mills, where he has been engaged to work for the summer months.

Mr. W. C. Herlihey attended the wool-growers' meeting at East Emily last week.

Mr. Maurice Dorgan is spending a few days in Lindsay, the guest of his daughter, Mrs. J. O'Connell.

A large number from here attended the county U.F.O. meeting in Omemee Tuesday evening, where many important topics were discussed.

Miss Muriel Fox of Lindsay is at present staying with her aunt, Mrs. Thos. J. O'Neill.

Miss Gertrude O'Neill spent the week-end the guest of friends in Lindsay.

Messrs. Patrick Dorgan and Michael Harrington are at present erecting a garage for Mr. Neil Herlihey here.

Messrs. Patrick Herlihey and Joseph Gosselin are making various improvements here at their farm. They built a new verandah around the house, painted it, and also the house, which adds greatly to its appearance.

Mr. Joseph Guiry has a fine lot of lambs this year. He has fourteen sheep and thirty lambs. Two sheep had three lambs each and the others two.

The recent heavy frosts have done serious damage throughout here. There were no gardens far enough advanced to hurt, but it burned a field of barley at Begley Bros., which will have to be sown again. It also checked the small fruit, peas and wheat. The clover was browned, also meadows and pasture.

The fresh seeding this year that was over ground is all killed in this locality.

The farmers in the vicinity are nearly finished, and most of them will be through this week with everything but buckwheat.

Mr. and Mrs. John Guiry were business visitors to Lindsay Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Neill spent Saturday in Lindsay, the guest of friends.

Tramp Had Few Meals.

The first tramp seen in a few years was through this locality the other day. He was fed in a few houses, and said he was going to Peterboro. Strange to see able-bodied men tramping among the farmers, and if asked to do any work would walk away. Such men will get a cool reception from the farmers now.

TO OUTLAW WAR.

BAKE CAKES WHILE EGGS ARE CHEAP

Time was when the recipes books called for a dozen eggs and a pound of butter for a single cake. Nowadays, we do not speak of butter and eggs in this casual fashion, but we do still like cake.

At this season of the year, eggs are usually at their best and cheapest, so we not only eat more of them poached, scrambled and boiled, but we use them more generously in cooking than has been our custom during the winter months.

A leter came to us the other day, asking us for some recipes for "health cakes." There are several cakes which may be considered under this heading.

Plain "butter cake", served as a dessert, with a simple frosting or pudding sauce, is unlikely to upset a normal digestion. Sponge cakes and angel cakes are delictae and not too sweet, because they are usually served unfrosted.

In addition to the plain cakes and cakes made without shortening, there are other health cakes—one made with whole wheat flour or white flour mixed with bran. These are usually flavored with spices, and raisins or dates may be added.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear grandson, Joseph Fallon, who died May the 26th, 1921:

Three years have passed, my heart's still sore,
As time rolls on I miss him more.
His loving smiles, his welcome face,
No one can fill his vacant place.
His memory is as dear to-day
As in the hour he passed away.
The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But Death has left a vacant place
The world can never fill.
—Inserted By His Loving Grandmother.

IN MEMORIAM.

GRAY. — In loving memory of my dear husband, George Wilson Gray, who died May 26, 1923:

Our family circle is broken, within our happy home
A father dear, a husband true, from loving ones has gone;
Life's golden cord is severed, his soul from earth has fled,
That faithful one, so dear to all, is numbered with the dead.
Now all within our happy home is still;
Yet fast the moments fly, this life is but a passing dream,
He'll welcome us on high.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

BEATRICE FEE'S DEATH POINTS MURDER CHARGE AT HER OMEMEE LOVER

Fred. McGaughey, Primed With Liquor and Provided With Revolver, Paris Green and Carbolic Acid, Took Fiancee For Motor Ride, Accused Her of Keeping Company With Another and Sent Four Bullets Into Her Chest.

LOVE TRYST ENDS IN TRAGEDY

LINDSAY, May 27. — Beatrice Fee, nineteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fee, of Omemee, died in the Ross Memorial Hospital here at 6.15 p.m. on Monday from the effects of four bullet wounds inflicted by her fiancee, Fred McGaughey, aged 24, of Omemee, near McArthur's School in Ops Township on Sunday night.

McGaughey was remanded without bail until 2nd June by Magistrate Bradford yesterday morning on a charge of attempted murder, which will be enlarged to the major arraignment.

He is nursing the stubs of two fingers which he blew off with the revolver.

The motive of the murder is said to have been blind jealousy, but McGaughey refused to say anything yesterday except that he was crazed with liquor when he shot his sweetheart.

When arrested by Provincial Officer Storey, McGaughey is said to have been drunk and to have made three attempts to kill himself.

Before the .32 revolver was taken from him he shot two fingers off his left hand. Later he tried to swallow paris green which he took from his pocket, and finally to take carbolic acid.

The tragedy occurred on Sunday night near McArthur's School House while Miss Fee, who had been keeping company with McGaughey for about a year, was riding with him in his automobile.

Girl's Statement.

Miss Fee, after being emoved to the hospital, made a statement to her father that the shooting was the result of jealousy on the part of McGaughey. She stated, it is said, that he accused her of keeping company with another man and refused to accept her protestations that the charge was untrue. Without warning he pulled the revolver when the school house was reached, and fired four times at her.

The spot at which the tragedy occurred is not far from the home of the prisoner's mother, to which he brought the blood-drenched girl after shooting her.

He told his mother, in explanation of her condition, that they had been held up by highwaymen. He telephoned for Dr. Rich and for the girl's father at Omemee. Neighbours telephoned for the police.

Whn the girl's father arrived, McGaughey told him he had shot her, admitting that he was jealous.

Bullets in the Dashboard.

Police found two bullet marks on the dashboard of the car, the bullets apparently having passed through the girl's body.

The revolver was recovered from Fred McGaughey by a brother Lawrence some time after the shooting.

The brother learned from the prisoner that after the first shot was fired the girl attempted to take the gun away from her escort, and that in the struggle he shot her again three times.

Resided With Her Aunt.

TORONTO, May 27. — Miss Fee, who had been residing with her aunt, Mrs. Madill, 130 Bleecker Street, left for Omemee on Saturday morning at 9.15 with a girl chum, Miss Helen Stuart, where they were to spend the holiday with Miss Fee's parents.

Fred McGaughey, with whom Miss Fee had been keeping company for about a year, had subsequently become engaged to him. He had recently purchased a new car, and was to meet the girls at the station at Lindsay, which he did.

Mrs. Madill, aunt of Miss Fee, stated that her niece had been keeping company with the young man, and both had been the best of chums, and the two girls had left for Lindsay on Saturday morning intending to return on Sunday night.

Two hours before she died last evening from bullet wounds inflicted by her lover, Frederick McGaughey, on Sunday night, while motoring near his home, Beatrice Fee, of Toronto, aged nineteen, stated her forgiveness for his rash act.

She declared that he acted in a drunken rage, and because of this, asked her mother to be equally forgiving.

"Please do not go to any trouble about it, mother," were the last words of the dying girl. "I know he loved me."

SALES TAX FOR CANNED FISH IS NOT REDUCED

Fair Source of Revenue, Declared Hon. Mr. Robb, When Budget Amendments Were Dealt With Monday—Government Is Hacking and Trimming and Patching, Says Meighen.

Sales Tax 5 Per Cent.

OTTAWA, May 27 (Canadian Press) —The resolution providing for a measure to amend the Special War Revenue Act by reducing the sales tax from six to five per cent was considered by the House of Commons in committee yesterday afternoon.

Sir Henry Drayton (Conservative, West York) criticized the Government for the present situation in regard to the sales tax. Fous hundred and thirty-one firms were in arrears in payment of the sales tax, he said. Sir Henry asked for complete information regarding the situation up to date.

A. E. Maclean (Liberal, Prince Edward Island) hoped that the Government would see fit to administer strictly the reduced sales tax. He said that some companies were refusing to reduce their prices in spite of the lowering of the tax.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, said that in regard to the latter case he felt that competition would adjust that matter.

Clog on Industry.

T. W. Caldwell (Progressive, Victoria-Carleton, N.B.) said that the principle of the sales tax was not sound. It was a clog upon the wheels of industry. It was a fine for doing business. He iould prefer to see the income tax ncreased so as to include smaller incomes, with a tax rising by sharp graduations.

Mr. Robb asked Mr. Caldwell what system of taxation he could subetitute for sales tax to provide a hundred million dollars.

Mr. Caldwell replied that it could be obtained from the income tax.

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter (Conservative, St. John), asked the Minister to give an explanation of the remission of taxation under the sales tax and under the customs duties.

Sales Tax Remission.

Mr. Robb replied that it had been estimated that the reduction of the general rate of the sales tax from six to five per cent would involve a remission of $16,000,000; the reductions on boots and shoes and other exemptions in the original budget would amount to $8,000,000 more; while exemptions granted since the budget was first brought down would add $845,000 to this. As for the customs, it was estimated that the original changes would amount to a remission of $750,000, while reductions made since that time would add $473,000, or a total of $1,223,000 from customs.

In answer to questions by H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) Mr. Robb stated that it was estimated that the sales tax this year would yield a slightly smaller revenue than last year.

Sales Tax Exemptions.

The resolution carried, and the House (in committee) then took up resolution number two, which covers exemptions from the operation of the sales tax. A long list of articles is enumerated as coming under this resolution.

W. G. Hammell (Liberal, Muskoka), in referring to the exemption of ploughs from the sales tax, read a notice, issud by the Cockshutt Plough Company of Brantford, of reduced prices on some implements due to the removal of the sales tax.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) criticized the acting Minister of Finance for not putting the resolutions regarding tariffs and taxes into more simplified form. He moved an amendment to the resolution providing for the including of further articles in the sales tax exemptions. The list included poultry feed. Mr. Neill moved that calf, cattle, and hog feed be added to the list of exempted articles. This would only make the exemptions consistent throughout.

The Minister accepted Mr. Neill's amendment, and it was adopted by the committee.

Creosoted Ties.

General J. A. Clark (Conservative, Burrard) then brought up the question of the sales tax on creosoted railway ties. He maintained that when imported from the United States they were free of both customs duty and sales tax, while under the present amendments to the sales tax they were subject to 2½ per cent tax in Canada.

Mr. Stevens supported Mr. Clark's contention, and said that under the tariff creosoted timber came in free, while under the proposed legislation there was a sales tax of 2½ per cent on it. The request which had been made was that the oil for creosoting ties should be made free of the sales tax, but the Minister had, under the amended resolutions, limited the exemption of creosote to such as wa used "only in creosoting logs and round unmanufactured timber" (not ties), whereas in the original resolution the exemption applied to creosote used for all timber.

PARIS IN LIVELY CORSET DEBATE

Designers Divided On the Question of Waist Line Return For Fall Gowns--Question of Health Involved.

PARIS, May 27.—From the inner councils of the great dressmakers where advance Fall and Winter styles are now being developed in utmost secrecy, it is learned that a tremendous fight is being waged for the reintroduction of the corset.

Until now the majority of dressmakers persisted in clinging to straight line styles, but now they are equally divided over the question of reintroducing the feminine form into fashions.

The fact that for the last three years the succeeding styles have so resembled each other that a woman has not had to buy a new dress until the old one wore out, resulting in large losses to trade, especially in America, which is Paris's biggest customer, has been a big element in persuading recalcitrant dressmakers to the urgent necessity of a radical change in line.

Waist Line Taut.

According to my information, progressives now urge that the Olympic games be made the occasion for the introduction of the new line. Short dresses for short hair will still be the slogan, but the most significant thing will be the return of the waist line. Pinched bodices, accentuating the upper half of the body, will return, but instead of the tightly lace, flouncy laced bodices of former days, the new style will resemble waistcoats tightly drawn at the waist.

The sole question at issue now is the shape of the skirt—whether this, too, is to be tightly laced or loose. If the former prevails it means that the corset is bound to come back into style—but the mere whisper of these intentions has caused a storm of protest among clients as well as doctors, who say it is ridiculous that the Olympics should be made the excuse for the return of the old tight laced "ironside" corset.

Question of Health.

Opponents of the corset further point out that thousands of healthy, athletic women will shortly be flocking to Paris, some to watch and others to take part in the games which this year will have a big female division.

It is inconceivable, they say, that the trainers of these women would permit the introduction of any line that was not conducive to health. The fate of the corset, therefore, apparently hangs on a thread. Whether it will definitely return to favour depends on which side in the fashion battle wins within the next few weeks.

Father and Four Children Burned

....MEDICINE HAT, Alta., May 27.— (Canadian Press). —Four children and their father perished in a fire at a homsteader's home near Alderson, Alta., Sunday morning. The homsteader's name is Guest, according to meagre reports received here. Mrs. Guest was in the barn milking cows and escaped.

The fire followed an explosion of gasoline which the man was using to light the kitchen stove. The were asleep when the explosion occurred.

PRAIRIE CROPS PROMISING BUT NEED SUNSHINE

Seeding Has Progressed Exceedingly Fast But the Growth Has Been Slow Under Unseasonable Weather—Alberta Grain Has Fared Better.

AMPLE MOISTURE.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 27 (Canadian Press).—The general crop situation in the prairie provinces is very promising, but at present warm weather with plenty of sunshine is needed, states the weekly crop report issued by the Agriculture Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Seeding has made exceptional progress and the present status is little behind that of last year.

Exceptionally low temperatures for this season of the year prevailed in Manitoba and Saskatchewan during the past week, resulting in very little growth of grain crops or pastures. Better conditions are reported from Alberta, and germination is normal in that province. The grain appearing above the ground is strong and healthy.

Frost In Manitoba.

Covering the provinces and British Columbia the report adds:

"Manitoba.—Ten to twelve degrees of frost during the past week did some temporary damage to wheat, which was well out of the ground but there was no damage reported to oats. Wheat seeding is completed and much of it is up and looking well.

"Saskatchewan.—Wheat seeding is finished with the acreage about the same as last year. Oat seeding is 60 per cent. to 75 per cent. completed and barley and flax 50 per cent. to 60 per cent. There are prospects for a large increase in barley acreage this year.

Seeding Finished.

"Alberta. — Moisture conditions throughout the province continue satisfactorily and the new crop is germinating well, especially on summer fallow. Wheat seeding is completed and a large percentage of early fields are showing two to four inches above the ground.

"Edmonton Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway District.—Weather has been favorable for seeding. The early fields are showing up well and the grain is exhibiting a good stand and color.

"British Columbia.—The fruit crops are in good condition, and promise satisfactory yields, with the exception of strawberries, which will probably be less than in 1923."

Alberta Gets Rain

Calgary, Alta., May 27.—Following precipitation which commenced on Saturday evening and which was practically general throughout the province, there was from ten to twenty hours' rain on Sunday between Red Deer and Edmonton; from three to five hours' rain from Calgary south to the international boundary; as much as eight hours' rain from Calgary north to Red Deer, and showers from Medicine Hat to Swift Current.

For the most part the rain was exceedingly heavy and arrived at a most opportune time, particularly in the south where moisture was beginning to be urgently needed to help along the growing crops.

POOL MANAGER BEING SOUGHT

Saskatchewan Wheat Producers Want "A Sir Henry Thornton of the Grain Trade" — Sapiro Not Considered.

REGINA, Sask., May 27. — Directors of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Wheat Produce Limited, when spoken to yesterday admitted that they were still looking around for one who would be placed in supreme commamnd of the pool when the necessary acreage is signed up. "If there is a Sir Henry Thornton of the grain trade, we want that man," said one director, and "that goet, irrespective of what country he may happen to be in at the time we want him." It was intimated however that the choice would not include Aaron Sapiro, the co-operative marketing expert.

It was stated at pool headquarters that it was believed a working arrangement between the three western pools—Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan — would be reached and that an interprovincial directorate would name the chief for the three prairie provinces with provincial directorates naming a provincial manager.

It was admitted that the appointment would not be a Saskatchewan one. It was also stated that Winnipeg "would appear to be the logical place for temporary headquarters for a start."

GRAIN EXPORTS.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(Canadian Press). —Grain exports from the United States last week totalled 2,379,000 bushels, against 2,500,000 for the previous week.

Canadian grain in transit totalled 3,849,000 bushels, against 1,254,000 bushels last week. United States and Canadian wheat flour in transit totalled 549,000 barrels, against 149,000 barrels.

BROTHER AND SISTER DROWNED AT LINDSAY

Thelma Robinson, Five, Jumped Into the Scugog River When Brother Fred, Four, Fell Off Log Near Horn's Factory—Both Bodies Recovered.

LINDSAY, May 27 (Special to The Examiner). — A sad double drowning occurred on Monday afternoon about four o'clock in the Scugog River, when little Thelma Robinson, aged five years, and her brother Fred, aged four years, went to their death.

The little tots, who were children of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Robinson, were playing on the banks of the river just opposite Horn's Mill.

The boy fell in off a log, and the little girl pluckily entered the water to save him.

In the meantime the mother was searching for the children, and was informed by a little boy who saw the accident, that "they were in swimming."

The mother raised the alarm, and a search was immediately instituted for the bodies.

The little girl's body was recovered twenty minutes afterwards, and every effort was made at resuscitation by the use of the pulmotor, but without success.

The search was continued for the body of the boy, which was recovered at 6.15 o'clock.

TANCREDIA, Calumet Island, Que., May 27.—Joseph Beland is 107 years old, and to celebrate his birthday he "bucked" a cord of wood—sawed it into stove lengths and split it.

The job did not fatigue him. It only gave him a better appetite for the birthday dinner.

Beland wants to know if there is anyone his age on the North American continent who can equal his record.

Records in the parish church show that Beland was born in May, 1817, —when Napoleon was in exile on St. Helena.

Beland, French Canadian, has been a lumberjack, river-driver and farmer. eH has worked hard all his life, kept regular hours, eaten only plain substantial food and refrained from worry. He is an inveterate smoker and doesn't turn down an occasional "nip". He has 137 living descendants.

HULL TO FIGHT HEALTH BOARD

Contests Penalty of $22,755 For Not Installing Filtration Plant—Council United In Action.

HULL, Quebec, May 27.—The City of Hull will fight the action taken by Quebec provincial board of health in the Hull Superior Court to penalize the city to the extent of $22,755 for non-compliance with its order issued in 1916 to install a mechanical filtration plant for the treatment of the city's water supply, and will carry the case to the Privy Council, if necessary.

"It will be far cheaper for the city to fight this case, and to eventually pay the $22,755, if we lose," said Mayor Louis Cousineau, "than to install the mechanical filtration plant at an estimated cost of over a quarter of a million dollars, and pay $40,000 annually for its maintenance." The Hull city council is a unit in opposition to the city being forced to undertake such an enormous expenditure.

The world's total wool consumption is more than 500,000,000 pounds a year in excess of total production.

HUMAN FACE IS GROWING LONGER

British Anatomist Discovers That Teeth and Mouth Are Being Forced Downward--Has Studied Skulls.

LONDON, May 27. — The human face is growing longer, according to Sir Arthur Keith, famous British anatomist.

Many strange changes are overtaking the human face, says this professor, who has spent a lifetime in studying the skulls of all races.

The chief change is in the bone of the mouth. This is growing downward and carrying with it the teeth, as a result of which there has been an increase of half an inch in the length of the modern face.

Among other changes which he mentions in the modern skull are:

A contracted palate.

Downward growth of cheek bone.

Teeth sinking backward.

Teeth now twelve millimeters below the teeth of primitive peoples.

The longest ski slide in the world was opened recently in Sweden. It is 60 miles long.

SERAFINI TRIAL FOR MURDER OF BANK EMPLOYEE

Only $32,000 of $142,288 Stolen In Holdup of Bank of Hochelaga's Collection Car In Montreal Recovered — Jury Selected on Monday Afternoon.

FIRST OF PRISONERS.

MONTREAL, May 27. — Only $32,000 of the $142,288 stolen when the collection car of the Hochelaga Bank was held up here on April 1, has so far been recovered, R. L. Calder, K.C., crown prosecutor, told the jury in the Court of King's Bench here late Monday afternoon when Giuseppe Serafini was placed on trial of charges of murder and receiving stolen money. During the hold-up the bank chauffeur, Henri Cleroux and one of the bandits, Harry Stone, were shot dead.

It was not until after four o'clock that the jury in the case had been finally selected, and there was barely time for the crown prosecutor to lay before the jury the main points of his reconstruction of the case.

Mr. Calder commenced with the departure of the bank collection car on its tour of the branches on April 1, 1924. He explained the system by which from day to day, but especially at the end of the month, the bank branches tally up their currencies, sort out the bills of other banks in their possession, tie them in bundles and send them into head office along with other documents.

Bank Car Stalled.

He told how the collection car met a small car halted on the tram tracks under the subway on Ontario Street and how a bigger car was met a little farther on from which bandits opened fire on the bank car. Cleroux, the bank chauffeur, stepped on the gas and his car stalled. He then got out and opened fire on his assailants. Cleroux fell shot dead, and as soon as its defenders ran out of ammunition, the bandits rifled the car of $142,288 in currency.

Mr. Calder claimed that when the bandit car drove off and eventually stopped in the north end of the city, Giuseppe Serafini and others were identified as having got out of the car there. This car had then been abandoned and in it were later found quantities of arms and ammunition together with the dead body of Harry Stone, one of the bandits. It was from a card found on the dead man's body that the telephone address of Serafini was discovered. The man was subsequently arrested there and money found on his person which was later shown to have come from the Hochelaga bank. Money found on Serefini and other suspects and identified as money handled by Hochelaga Bank branches on the day of the hold-up had totalled up to $32,000 out of the $142,288 originally stolen.

The Crown, said Mr. Calder, will endeavor to show how that money reached the house in St. Henry suburb where Serafini, his wife and two other persons were arrested. He contended that the woman Lebeau, one of those arrested in the house, and who has since turned King's evidence, was a fairly innocent participator in the affair.

The hearing of evidence will begin today.

GAMEKEEPER CHARGED WITH MURDER OF MAN ON A COBOURG ESTATE

Was Not Asked to Plead--Case Laid Over Until the Result of the Inquest Is Known.

COBOURG, May 27 (Special to The Examiner). — With the doors of the Police Court Room barred by the Chief of Police and a civilian here yesterday, William John Crossen, gamekeeper, who shot Byron McCroden, of Toronto, and Edward Rowe of Hamilton Township, on the private estate of Mr. W. J. Crossen, on 18th May, was charged that he did on the above date commit murder.

Crossen was remanded until 4th June. He was not asked to plead.

Crown Attorney Kerr stated that Rowe will not likely be able to appear for at least two weeks.

The case will not be proceeded with until the results of the inquest on Byron McCroden is made known.

A large crowd had gathered in the main Court Room, where Magistrate Floyd announced the case would be heard, and were disappointed with the sudden turn made by some one to have them excluded.

NINE SAILORS REPORTED DEAD

Other Eight of Wrecked Trawler's Crew Rescued In Pitiable State of Exhaustion.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Nine of those who were on board the Grimsby trawler Mikado when she went ashore on the west side of Forchu Island, Cape Breton Sunday night are dead, and eight of the members have been rescued, according to word received here last night by the local agent of the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

The tug Ocean Eagle, which reached the scene of the disaster about nine o'clock Monday morning, has arrived at Canso with seven survivors and with the body of one of the crew who died while being taken from the wreck to the tug. Six bodies were found on the beach near the scene of the wreck. One man, thought to have been a passenger on the Mikado, was rescued by the lightkeeper's boat, and the only other one of the sixteen believed to have been on the ill-fated craft is unaccounted for. The sixteen are all believed to have been foreigners, it is thought Norwegians.

The sailors rescued by the tug Ocean Eagle were in a pitiable state when rescued. The men were so exhausted that they were unable to tell their names. Every possible comfort has been extended by the members of the crew of the Ocean Eagle, and it is thought that within a few days the rescued men will be none the worse for their trying experiences.

Captain Aloso Greenlaw, of the Ocean Eagle, which returned from the wreck of the steam trawler Mikado, in which nine men were drowned at six o'clock last evening with eight survivors, reported that there was great difficulty in effecting rescues owing to the heavy seas that were running at the time.

The survivors were all hanging on the rigging of the sunken ship, and they could only be saved by dropping one at a time into the sea and by being hauled on to the Ocean Eagle by the aid of the heaving line.

Captain Greenlaw and two sailors manned the lifeboat, and though at times it looked as if the little craft would be swamped, by persistent efforts rescues were made.

One man, W. Simpson, succumbed after being taken aboard the lifeboat.

The bodies of the drowned men were taken ashore at Forchu, and brought to Canso to-day.

The dead are: W. Saxby, captain, England; J. J. Ensen, engineer, Denmark; W. Brown, second engineer, England; W. Hendry, wireless operator, England; B. S. Grimshaw, England; M. Neilsen, fireman, Norway; J. Saley, fireman, Scotland; W. Simpson, deck hand, England; T. Williamson, deck hand, England.

Scarlet snow, due to the presence of small and very thin worms, has fallen at Halmsted, Sweden.

MARX ADMINISTRATION IN GERMANY RESIGNS

President Ebert Has Accepted But Requested the Chancellor to Carry on Current Affairs — Von Tirpitz Is Candidate of the Nationalists.

BERLIN, Mayy 27.— The German Government has resigned.

President Ebert accepted the resignation of the Ministry and requested Chancellor Marx to carry on current affairs.

President Ebert will confer with the Parliamentary leaders to-day regarding the selection of a chancellor and the formation of a new government.

Prior to the resignation of the cabinet, attempts to construct a straight bourgeois government definitely foundered on obstructionist tactics carried on by the German Nationals, who after a four hours party caucus, drafted an evasive resolution in which they reiterated their readiness to co-operate with the other middle parties, but only on the condition that they be given representation commensurate with their numerical strength and that the selection of the new cabinet take precedence over the question of formulating a programme of internal and foreign policies.

Von Tirpitz Candidate.

The reactionaries again sent Admiral von Tirpitz to the fore as their candidate for chancellor, designating him as a man who by virtue of his antecedents and past record, was eminently qualified for leadership in the new government.

The Nationalists informed the Middle Parties, who were awaiting their decision in an adjacent chamber, that "the question of agreeing on a leading personality must take precedence over the form of government, inasmuch as outstanding political issues will more readily be solved through the medium of leaders than through parliamentary formulas."

Balk at Reparations.

They consented to observe a certain line of continuity so far as recognizing the present government's foreign policies was concerned, but declined to agree to any previous arrangements which tied the hands of German agents in connection with impending reparations negotiations.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Weather Man Did Not Favor the Holiday Programme--Personals.

MILLBROOK, May 27. — Evidently the "weather man" did not encourage the holiday spirit on Empire day this year, as he sent rain and mud where sunshine and dry roads had been hoped for. Community sports were not as generally planned as usual owing to the discouraging persistency of cold, wet weather.

Omemee, Bethany, with some local "stunts" by the C.S.E.T. organizations, at Bailieboro, made up the list for this vicinity. Clearing weather in the afternoon permitted the junior baseball nine to keep their appointment to play at Bethany, where they met Pontypool in an exhibition game —winning out by one point. The score was 6-5.

Those going were E. Burnham, F. Russell, S. Gilmour, R. Shaw, L. Ingram, E. Carson, L. Russell, K. Larmer and A. Armstrong.

Cars were very numerous on the roads during the afternoon and evening, many motor parties going to attend the sports, visit friends or take in the movies or other entertainments in Peterborough or Port Hope.

Regular Meeting.

The "Wide-Awakes," C. G. I. T. group held its regular meeting on Friday evening, taking up the subject, "The Lord and His Church," during the devotional period. A number of familiar nursery rhymes were given in the form of charades as a variation in the usual programme, and proved amusing and interesting.

Two of the girls, Marjorie Sayles, president, and Elsie Spence, treasurer, are to be sent as delegates to the C.G.I.T. summer training camp at White House on Lake Couchiching, in July. One or two of the other members may also attend. The camp aim to develop the four-fold life with the girls, under trained leadership, Bible study, group meetings, nature study, handcrafts, games, hikes, swimming, and twilight religious services, when the decision for life work will be presented from the standpoint of personal consecration, are among the activities of the ten days, which the representatives of the various groups spend together.

Diamond Jubilee.

Mrs. (Rev.) W. Matheson and little son, Bruce, of Stratford, are guests of her sister, Miss M. E. Fisher, Anne Street. Mrs. Matheson is this week attending the diamond jubilee of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, which is to be held in Erskine Church, Montreal, from May 27 to 30 inclusive. Speakers will include workers from both the home and foreign field, and one of the interesting features will be the presentation of gold service medals to those who have served twenty-five years, with a bar for every additional five years. Silver medals to pioneers in each department of work are to be presented also.

Reminiscences of earlier days will be heard from those who have been longest connected with the Society. Sixty years ago there was one branch with fifteen members, one missionary receiving support and no stated income. To-day there are 3,282 branches, 90,000 members, 63 Presbyterials, 250 missionaries receiving support, and an income of $490,281.

A table of literature, and a curio exhibit including many things brought home by missionaries, or gifts having some historical association, will also contribute to the interest of the occasion.

Dr. G. H. Needler and daughter, Miss Winnifred, were guests of Miss Etta and Mr A. A. Needler over the holiday week-end, returning to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Raymes, of Brighton, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Richards over the holiday.

Mrs. E. Kenyon was the guest of her sister, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, over the week-end, returning to Peterboro on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Garnett, of Port Hope, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Fallis and other friends on Fallis Line over the holiday week-end.

Mrs. I. E. and Miss May Needham went to Toronto on Monday for a visit with friends in that city and Brampton for the next ten days or two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Forsyth, (nee Edna Guthrie), of Peterborough, were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Guthrie, over the holiday week end. The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth took place in Peterborough on Monday, May 19th, Rev. Robert Pogue officiating.

Mrs. Walter Williamson of Leader, Sask., and two children, are guests of her mother, Mrs. G. Locke, and other friends in Millbrook and Cavan, coming from the west for an extended visit.

Mr. Arnold Raper, of Toronto, is holidaying at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Raper.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Bateson and two children, of Campbellford, spent the holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Raper.

RALLY TOO LATE.

MONTREAL, May 27—(Canadian Press).—For eight innings here yesterday George Crowe, of the Ottawa-Hull combination was a complete mystery to the Canadiens batsmen and they found him for only four singles. In the ninth Pat Grenier hit a home run, also scoring Savaria, but it was too late, and Ottawa-Hull won by 4 to 2.

AGAIN DISCUSS THE SALES TAX

Amendment Followed Amendment But Few Were Accepted.

OTTAWA, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—The discussing of the sales tax proposals in the Budget brought lively cross-firing in the House last night. "Instead of looking across with his eyes fixed on the leader of the Government," exclaimed Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, in reference to Robert Forke, the Progressive leader, "claiming that there is no bargaining when bargaining is written across the face of everything done in this House, let him go over as a straight supporter of the Government and take all he can with him. Let us have two parties and fight the issue in this country and let the will of the majority rule."

"I think the language used by the leader of the Opposition," retorted Mr. Forke, "is not language that is fitting for a leader of a great party."

And Hon. H. H. Stevens referred to "bargaining" as part of the price the Government are paying for support. It is part of blood money of politics of this country, Mr. Stevens charged. He spoke of Mr. Forke as "pussy footing" across the House and speaking from his place with sanctity and self-righteousness of a Pharasee.

There was keen and at times acid discussion. Amendment followed amendment, few accepted, others falling by the way. Within a few minutes the House in Committee divided twice.

Mr. Stevens had moved that "salmon and other fish prepared or preserved, including oysters," be subject to the sales tax at two and a half instead of five per cent. Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance, declined to accept the amendment. "I think it is a pretty fair tax on boys who go out at night and buy lobsters and sardines," urged Mr. Robb. "They should pay something towards the administration of this country."

As the Acting Minister of Finance was speaking, Mr. Meighen described the Government as "floundering around like a wounded whale."

Additions made to the list of goods exempt from the sales tax, namely, calf cattle and hog feed, windmills and complete parts thereof, portable engines with boilers in combination, horsepowers and traction engines for farm purposes and complete parts, gas engines used by fishermen in their own boats.

Sir Henry Drayton moved that lumber should be subject to the sales tax at the 1921 rate, but his motion was lost.

When the House rose the sales tax was still under discussion.

PROMINENT AUTHOR DEAD OF APOPLEXY

Fell Dead on Steps of Home Leading to His Physician.

NEW YORK, May 27 (Canadian Press). — Victor Herbert, whose waltz music is as familiar in American homes as the marches of Sousa and the ragtime of Berlin, dropped dead yesterday while he was talking to a friend on the steps of his physician's home, 57 East Seventy-Seventh Street.

He was mounting the stoop when one of Dr. Barch's family came out. He stopped and chatted lightly.

Mr. Herbert turned toward the door, and without a word he fell headlong down the stairs, dead of apoplexy.

The body was taken into the house and Dr. Barch worked over him for several minutes, but his friend was past help.

Mr. Herbert was 65. He was born in Dublin on 1st February, 1859, son of Edward and Fanny Lover, and grandson of Samuel Lover, the Irish novelist and poet.

BANK NOTE TAX YIELD.

OTTAWA, May 27.— (Canadian Press.)—The sum of $1,236,067 was collected in the fiscal year 1923-24 from the tax on bank note circulation. In 1922-23 the tax yielded $1,244,437. The tax is one-fourth of one per cent. quarterly calculated on the basis prescribed under the Special War Revenue Act of 1915.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Heavy Grain Traffic on the C.N.R. — Sections Changed.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27. — There is a heavy traffic in wheat over the Peterborough-Belleville branch of the C.N.R. these days, six or seven trains, or about 150 cars, passing through here on Sunday on the way east.

There has as yet been no permanent appointment made to fill the vacancy caused by the superannuation of H. Lavoie some time ago after he had worked for the road for over fifty years, more than half that time having been put in as engineer of the Peterborough-Belleville mail train. David Elliott, of Lindsap, spare engineer, and well known in Campbellford, is now at the throttle of the mail train.

Mr. Elliott comes of a railway family, his father having been for a number of years on the Lakefield run as engineer, Fred, a brother, is yardsman at Peterborough, another brother is an engineer with headquarters at Allandale, and another Herbert, who lives in Lindsay, was obliged to give up his post as engineer after being badly injured in a wreck at Victoria Harbour about 12 years ago.

Change in Sections.

The sections on this branch have been re-arranged, and each will now consist of seven miles instead of five.

In the shuffle the Godolphin section near here has been wiped out, and the foreman, H. M. Hoard, has been transferred to Hoard's Station to take the place of G. Hoard, who recently resigned.

There will be a staff of four men on each of the new sections to take care of the extra mileage.

Here on a Visit.

Will Brady, the star pitcher last year of the Campbellford baseball team, and who recently moved to Hamilton, spent the holiday visiting friends here. He is now with the Dominion Stores branch in Hamilton, and will reside for the summer at Burlington Beach. He left for home last night.

Brady's old colleagues on the team regret his departure, realising what his loss means to their chances for winning the championship. He has received offers from teams in Hamilton, but his new duties demand his entire time.

She Found Them Very Satisfactory

Saskatchewan Lady Used Dodd's Kidney Pills for Dropsy and Diabetes.

Mrs. P. Shaw Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Are Certainly Doing Her Good.

Weyburn, Sask., May 26.—(Special.)—That Dropsy and Diabetes are caused by weak kidneys and that the right way to treat them is to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, is again P. Shaw, a well-known and highly shown by the experience of Mrs. respected resident of this place:

"I suffered from Dropsy and Diabetes. My back and head used to ache, and I always felt tired and nervous. My limbs swelled and I was depressed and low spirited.

I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills during the winter. Twenty boxes in all, and they are doing me a lot of good. I have found them very satisfactory."

Mrs. Shaw's ailments were caused by weak kidneys failing to do their work of straining the impurities out of the blood.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not heal and strengthen weak kidneys.

OTTAWA, May 27. — The will of Mrs. Henrietta Birkett, widow of former Mayor Thomas Birkett, has been filed for probate, and disposes of an estate of $87,483. The chief beneficiary is her brother, Thomas Lincoln Gallagher, of Toronto, who will receive about $60,000.

DEATH RAY TO GO TO FRANCE

Inventor Angered by Small Offer of British Government.

(By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, May 27. — France is to get the death ray invented by Grindell Matthews, a Britisher.

Angered by his own Government's lower offer for the allegedly diabolical invention which may revolutionise war, Matthews packed his bags in a huff, and announced he was taking an airplane to Paris at noon to do business with the French Government.

Some scepticism on the part of the British Air Ministry appeared to have added to the inventor's indignation.

After a two-hour demonstration yesterday, held in secret behind barred and guarded doors at Matthews' laboratory, officials of the Ministry reported to the Government on the merits of the death ray.

The Government communicated with Matthews, proposing "another simple but more conclusive test."

The inventor said to-day that the British Government had offered him only one thousand pounds for the secret of the ray, and had made this offer conditionally upon further successful tests.

In great indignation, he flatly refused the offer.

"Such a sum is too totally ridiculous to talk about," Matthews said. "If I were to accept such miserable terms I would lose the option which the French Government holds. Then the British Government could treat me as it pleases, which, judging from experience, is not overgenerously."

Matthews said he was sorry his own country was not to get the death ray, which he claims can kill men at great distances, bring down airplanes, and put warships out of commission.

"It is not my fault," the inventor added.

Meanwhile it develops that the Air Ministry has been experimenting with a death ray all its own, of which progress has been made.

SALES TAX

Mr. Robb replied that while creosoted ties imported from the United States were free of customs tariff, they were not free of sales tax.

Sir Henry Drayton contended that, under the sales tax prior to the present budget, railway ties were free of sales tax, but the Minister replied that they were free only if produced or sold by an individual settler or farmer. In reply to further argument by Sir Henry, the Minister stated that such had been the ruling of the Department.

General Clark took the ground that creosoting oil for railway ties should not have been taxed under the provisions of the last budget. He thought that the Minister should consider rebating those firms which had paid the tax. Evidently a mistake had been made by officials of the customs department in imposing this tax on railway ties.

Mr. Robb promised to give consideration to the suggestions of General Clark.

Traction Engines.

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, then moved an amendment which would add to the list of articles exempt from the sales tax, windmills, portable engines, horse-power and traction engines for farm purposes, threshing machine separators and parts thereof.

Mr. Robb said he was in sympathy with the spirit of the amendment. He was not sure that the wording might not have to be changed, however.

Mr. Forke's amendment was accepted at the evening sitting.

Canned Fish.

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter (Conservative, St. John City) advocated the placing of canned fish on the reduced sales tax list. He presumed it was a matter of oversight and hoped the Minister would accept the suggestion.

Hon. H. H. Stevens moved that canned salmon be added to the list of articles required to pay two and a half per cent. of the sales tax. It would only be consistent with the general policy which the Government had adopted.

A. J. Doucet (Conservative, Kent, N.B.) also made an appeal for the reduction of the sales tax on canned fish. In his section of the country this industry was in its early stages and should be encouraged. Hon. S. F. Tolmie (Conservative, Victoria) also urged the Government to seriously consider the reduction of the sales tax on salmon.

Mr. Robb said that such a move would involve a question of administration. Considerable reductions in the sales tax had been made this year. The reduction of the tax on canned fish would lead to further demands for reductions. He believed the tax on canned lobsters, sardines, oysters and salmon to be a fair source of revenue.

Amendments Defeated.

An amendment to the Stevens amendment providing that the reduction apply only to canned salmon and not to lobsters and oysters, was moved by A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni). This was defeated on a standing vote by 52 to 43. The Conservatives voted for the amendment, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen being the sole member of the opposition to support the Government.

The Stevens amendment was then put to a vote. It was also defeated by 65 to 25, Mr. Meighen voting for it.

Mr. Robb then moved to exempt gas engines for use by fishermen in their own boats from the operation of the sales tax.

Mr. Meighen asked the Acting Minister of Finance when the Government was going to stop hacking and patching and trimming and changing the Budget.

Floundering Like Whale.

"The Government is floundering round like a wounded whale," he said. The only thing the House knew now was that the Budget brought down some weeks ago by the Minister, was not a Budget. Surely there must be some finality to all these changes.

G. W. Kyte (Liberal, Cape Breton South) asked if there was not some significance in the fact that, though the opposition leader had permitted amendment after amendment to pass his first objection came on one that would benefit the fishermen of the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. Kyte said that on one occasion, when the Conservatives were in power, a large number of Budget amendments were necessary. Rather than take the responsibility for them, however, the Government of that day had declared that they were necessitated by typographical errors at the printing bureau.

Mr. Meighen retorted that Mr. Kyte's efforts to raise a sectional issue were a failure as he had just supported an amendment which was designed to help fishermen.

Second Attempt.

Mr. Stevens then moved a further amendment providing that canned salmon and canned small herring be placed on the total exemption list. He pointed out that herring was certainly a food consumed by the poor.

Mr. Robb raised the objection that the committee had already voted on the canned salmon amendment.

On a vote being taken the Stevens amendment was rejected by 57 to 37. The majority of the Progressives voted for the amendment, but Robert Forke, Progressive Leader, voted against it.

DOCTORS HOPEFUL OF A CANCER CURE

Now Leaning Towards the Germ Theory and Overeating.

NEW YORK, May 27.— (Canadian Press.)—American doctors will find cure for cancer within a few years, it was predicted yesterday by Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochster, Minn, who spoke at the opening of the New York City Cancer Institute.

Asked later how soon this cure would be effected, Dr. Mayo predicted it would be found "within a few years and that it would be discovered in the United States."

Setting out that more than 1,000,000 persons in America died each year from cancer, Dr. Mayo said if cancer germ could be located it would be found to act inwardly and would be infectious but no dangerous.

Over-eating he said, was one of the principal causes of disease. Deaths from cancer, he said, were on the increase two and one half per cent.

Bill Introduced For Transferable Voting.

OTTAWA, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—A bill to introduce the principle of the transferable vote into the Dominion Elections Act was given a first reading in the House of Commons Monday, on the motion of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice. He explained that the new principle would apply only in single member constituencies and when there were more than two candidates. Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, said that the speech from the Throne had spoken of "the alternative vote." Mr. Lapointe replied that the bill now before the House had the same purpose as the announcement from the speech from the Throne.

OTTAWA, May 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Hon. William Pugsley, investigator of war claims, has heard 528 of these claims, aggregating $31,285,619 but has not yet rendered any decisions. In answer to a question in the house of commons this afternoon, Hon. A. B. "Enoch Arden" Provision In New Czech Marriage Laws.

PRAGUE, May 27.—(Associated Press).—The newly formulated bill regulating marriage in Czecho-Slovakia contains an "Enoch Arden" clause. It provides that, in the event of the return of a husband thought dead after the woman has remarried, he has no legal rights that can affect the new marriage.

The conditions that prevailed throughout Europe in the period just after the war, when the return of men missing or reported dead to find remarried wives, was an ordinary affair, probably inspired the law.

Otherwise the Marriage Act as framed follows those of most countries. Both civil and religious ceremonies are recognized. The marriageable age for males is fixed at 18 and for females 16.

Non-Resident Barristers Not Entitled to Fees in Saskatchewan Courts.

REGINA, Sask., May 27.—Settling a point long debated by members of the Saskatchewan Bar, Mr. Justice McKay of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal, in a judgment yesterday ruled that barristers not resident in the province are not entitled to solicitor's or counsel fees between practice in cases tried in Saskatchewan courts. The fact that the non-resident barrister is enrolled in Saskatchewan has no bearing on his claim, the judgment held.

Food That Supplies Muscular Nourishment

THE man whose nerves and muscles respond with precision is the man who, above all else, eats foods which supply energy and muscle nourishment.

Grape-Nuts is a highly-nourishing food. It contains phosphorous and iron—body builders, energy producers. Highly concentrated owing to long, slow baking. Easily digested.

Crisp, crunchy, wonderfully delicious and satisfying! It is economical—only four heaping teaspoonfuls needed for a serving. There are many helpings in each package. Eat Grape-Nuts. Build your body—build health and strength right into it. Serve with milk or cream and perhaps a little sugar. Order Grape-Nuts with your other groceries. All grocers have it.

GRAPE-NUTS QUEEN PUDDING

1 cup Grape-Nuts, 1 quart scalded milk, 2 eggs, separated, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 lemon, grated rind and juice, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Mix the Grape-Nuts, milk, egg yolks, sugar, butter and lemon rind together, stir well and bake about 1 hour, or until set. Take juice of lemon and pour over top of pudding, and then frost with the whites of the 2 eggs beaten stiff with the powdered sugar. Set in oven until a delicate brown and serve cold. This recipe serves five people.

PROTECTING THE CHILDREN.

The recommendation of a Montreal jury following the death of a three-year boy who ate a quantity of tablets containing strychnine that such tablets be sold under the same conditions as poisons, and that they be put up in conspicuous blue retainers, does not seem of much value.

The tablets, like many other pills, are harmful only when taken in excess, and there is no reason why their purchase should be made difficult in the case of adults.

At the same time there would be no protection for young children in having a conspicuous retainer.

The child imagines the pelects are candy, and the colour of the bottle would have no effect whatever in keeping him from eating the contents.

The only way to protect children from medicines that are deadly if taken in large quantities—and that applies to many patent medicines when so taken by children—is to keep the medicine where the youngsters cannot reach them.

In every household there are remedies that would be fatal if taken in excess.

They should be kept ecurely locked up and out of the reach of little fingers.

THE SHOOTING EPIDEMIC.

Almost daily the Examiner's bulletin board and the Examiner's news columns have been carrying stories of shooting affrays.

They are much more common in this disagreeable month of May than fine days.

There seems to be a regular epidemic of shooting—and yet no attempt is made to tighten the regulations in regard to the sale and carrying of firearms.

Anybody who wants to get a revolver with which to plug a fellow-being full of holes seems to be able to do so as easily as he can get a street car at the corner.

The Examiner has said a lot on this subject, and intends to keep on saying a lot until some effort is made to deal with the conditions.

It is obvious that the present laws do not prevent people from obtaining guns for illegal purposes.

They must be amended so that at least there will be some check upon such purchases, and so that the penalty for unlawfully carrying a revolver will be heavy enough to discourage the practice.

It is said that if they could not get revolvers the individuals who want for some reason or other to attack others would use other weapons.

Some of them might, of course—but it is the fact that the revolver is easily carried and is available at all times that is responsible for many homicides.

Banish the gun-"toting" and there will be an end to the epidemic.

TELL THEM THE FACTS.

The assurance is given out in Ottawa in reply to the statement of Tom Richardson, former British member of Parliament, that it was criminal to send British people to Canada at the present time, that Canada was not holding out any inducements in the matter of work in the trades to the people of Great Britain who proposed to migrate, but every man brought to this country was assured of farm labour, is satisfactory so far as it goes.

The Examiner hopes that when work on the farms is guaranteed that prospective emigrants are given accurate information as to the rate of pay they may expect to receive on Canadian farms.

There is farm work for many thousands of Britishers, but under the present conditions it is not possible for farmers to pay big wages—in fact, the average is so low that a married man would have difficulty in supporting a family.

These facts should be made known in Great Britain, and no man should be induced to come to Canada under false pretences.

Otherwise it means that immigrants come here to do farm work, are offered a rate of pay that does not appear to them sufficient, and congest in the cities, adding to the unemployment and aggravating conditions that at the present time are far from good.

Let the immigration agents overseas frankly tell the prospective settler just what he may expect in the way of remuneration for his services as a farm labourer.

SHOULD BE TAUGHT A LESSON.

The Examiner is informed that in one of the local theatres on Saturday evening when the building was crowded with holiday patrons somebody with a queerly distorted idea of humour let off a number of firecrackers.

The individual who has such a mentality as that should not be allowed to run at large.

In the interest of the public safety he should be locked up in jail—or, better still, in an asylum for the insane.

The results that might have followed his thoughtless action are so terrible that one hates to contemplate them.

In the first place, there was the risk of fire—but that was not so serious a danger as the possibility of a panic that would have sent hundreds of people madly struggling for the exits and resulted in many deaths as the weaker were swept off their feet and trampled by the mob.

A panic in a crowded building does not require very much foundation to get started.

All things considered, it was a miracle that the conduct of the fool who lighted the firecrackers did not end in tragedy.

If the identity of the offender is known to the authorities he should be given a chance to explain his conduct to the Magistrate, and at least receive a reprimand that will impress upon him and others of the same frame of mind that a packed theatre is no place for a fireworks display.

THE PEOPLE MADE THIS LAW.

The decision of the Supreme Court of Canada puts an end to the claim of John T. Smith of Toronto, so far as the courts of this country are concerned, that he had a right, as a citizen of this Province, to import liquor for his own use, says the London Advertiser. Mr. Smith claims that the next move will be to take the matter to the last court of appeal, the Privy Council in England. It is his privilege to do so, but there is precedent to warrant the opinion that he will not be successful. The Manitoba case is still fresh in public mind, and it was established there by the Privy Council that a Province had the right to regulate the sale of liquor, and the traffic generally, as the Province desired.

The Smith case has been remarkable for the tenacity with which it has been followed from one court to another. It has appeared in various courts, starting at Osgoode Hall, on eleven different occasions. It began on May 18, 1922, and was not finally dealt with by the Supreme Court until May 22, 1924. The whole process of law has been tested and tried to the limit to see if there was not some way to establish a breach in the O. T. A. that could be made into a permanent disability.

The case can be viewed from another angle. The people of Ontario voted by a very large majority for the present temperance legislation, and it is the popular view of democracy that the will of the people shall be reflected in the laws. On the ground of expressing the will of the people of Ontario the O. T. A. was certainly law in that sense of the word. But what would have happened if the decision of the Supreme Court had been favorable to the Smith case? Would it have been possible that we would have faced a situation where, after the people had signified their intention as to what they wanted for a law, that the legal fighting of one individual could have had the effect of making the will of the people non-effective and no standing?

It hardly seems possible that such a thing could have been brought to pass, yet the possibility of it was always present in a very real form. If the will of the majority of the people cannot be accepted as the justification of any enactment, then where are we to find safe ground on which to base our laws?

FRANCE AND GERMANY AGREED.

The marked significance of the French and German elections is beginning more and more to penetrate the collective mind of the world—that is, the composite mind of students who watch the development of world forces as trained meteorologists watch the making of the weather. Those who merely see in any event, such as an election or a change of Government, a justification of their own preconceived and highly cherished personal opinions, learn little from these "weather signs" in the field of world politics. They are not seeking the truth—they "know" the "truth" and are only seeking "arguments" to support it.

But the truth—especially as regards such tremendous forces as those which launch wars upon our unhappy heads—is well worth seeking. It is of far more importance than to make a point for or against Poincare, or to prove that the Germans either are or are not reverting to Kaiserism.

* * * *

The really significant thing about the German elections is that the German people, as a whole and where not under special pressure of some sort, voted to continue the Republican policy of trying to "buy their freedom" from the yoke legitimately imposed upon them as a consequence of having failed in their attempted conquest of Europe. "Buying" their freedom is the tame, sensible and business-like course. But they were being urged to fight for it by the Nationalists, and to take a desperate plunge into disarming anarchy by the Communists. They took neither advice. They kept patiently to the middle of the road.

This is very important. After five years of slipping deeper into the abyss of bankruptcy and debt, they still want to pay their way out. They still think they can do better working than fighting. And they are still unready to follow the Russian example and plunge into repudiation. The Communist vote in the Ruhr was only the exasperation and despair of a locally discouraged section. Germany as a whole wants neither to commit murder or suicide. German patient industry still holds.

* * * *

The French elections revealed that the great silent masses of the French people, outside of excitable Paris and the sorely wounded districts which were "devastated," are not very much afraid of German "revenge" during this generation, and so are willing to give this policy of "pay" a chance. They do not for a moment think that Germany should be let off. But they do think that it will be quite safe to let her get to her feet again and so possibly become able to pay reparations.

In two words, the French peasant wants the money, and is not to be frightened into keeping his German debtor so tightly tied up that he cannot earn it. The damning thing about the Poincare policy in his eyes was not that it was "imperialistic" or likely to alienate British sympathy, but that it cost money without earning dividends, and so increased taxation on the French citizen. He not only voted for peace; but he voted his belief that peace is at present in no danger.

So the net result of the two elections would seem to be that the ordinary German and the ordinary Frenchman are through with fireworks, and simply want to settle down and work hard, the German being quite willing to pay a fair assessment—say, that fixed by the Dawes Commission—to the Frenchman for damages inflicted on his country during the war. The German thinks this will be cheaper and surer than fighting. The Frenchman thinks that it will be cheaper and safer than keeping an army in the Ruhr.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIOL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Sir Harry Lauder having decided to enter politics, the comedian of the House of Commons, Jack Jones, will have to look to his laurels.

A few hundred thousand people in Ontario on Saturday morning thirsted for the gore of the man who wrote "'Tain't Gonna Rain No Mo'."

Judging by the number of motor accidents over the week-end, however, it is perhaps just as well that there was bad weather for the holiday. It kept many cars off the road.

One of the most urgent needs of Canadian business men, says the Globe, is a revision of Sales Tax regulations. Importers of textiles, especially those who sell to manufacturers in less than price lots, are greatly hampered by the present regulations.

A professor in the U. S. says there should be no age limit fixed for "bobbed" hair. There does not seem to be any—in Toronto.—Toronto Telegram.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 26. — With trade more active than for some time, wheat scored new upturns in price here to-day largely as a result of higher quotations at Winnipeg and because of unfavorable crop reports from parts of the southwest, where no rain has fallen of late. The close was unsettled at 1-8 and ¼c to ½c net gain; July $1.08 1-2 to $1.08 5-8 and September $1.09 5-8 and ¼ to $1.09 3-4. Corn finished ¼c to 1c up; oats 1-8 to ½c advance and provisions at a shade decline to a rise of 5c.

Special significance attached to the pronounced strength of the Winnipeg wheat market, inasmuch as with May delivery there going to a wider premium over Chicago and with July virtually the same figure as Chicago, the prospect for export business from the United States became better than in months past. In this connection it was noticed that vessel room was chartered to-day for August loading of 120,000 bushels of United States wheat to be shipped by way of the Gulf of Mexico. Meanwhile exporters were said to be busy picking up wheat at Winnipeg, with Fort William stocks 3,000,000 bushels under last year after the biggest crop in the history of Canada.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 26. — Arrivals 2190 cattle and calves; 1290 hogs and 10 sheep.

Trading on the cattle market was somewhat inactive.

A few desirable butchers and better grades of stockers and feeders moved out at prices fairly in line with the close of last week.

The hog market remained unchanged; thick smooths going at $7, and select bacons $7.70.

The sheep and lamb markets were not established owing to short receipts.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg, May 26. — Prices were somewhat easier at the opening of to-day's wheat market, due to the lower Liverpool cables, and some pressure being in evidence, but an excellent class of buying developed which easily absorbed all offerings and values continued their upward advance, May finishing 5-8c higher, and July and October 3-4c up. About mid-session prices showed gains of 1¼ to 1 3-8c but a reaction set in just before the close. Considerable strength developed in October on reports of unfavorable weather conditions in the winter wheat section of the United States. Most of the buying this morning was for the seaboard account, with the country doing little and spreaders not very active.

The future coarse grains were displaying firmness with prices generally unchanged to a fraction higher on a light volume of business. Extemely small offerings came out.

Flax was stronger and prices ruled from 1½c to 3 1-2c higher on a small turnover.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, May 26. — The market has again advanced and the demand for storage purposes is very strong. Exporters are asking 35c for firsts at seaboards for fall shipments. The quality of receipts continue good but any further advance in prices for the present is not anticipated.

Toronto market firmer; jobbing specials 34c; extras 31c; firsts 26c; seconds 24c.

Montreal market stronger; jobbing specials 35c; extras 32; firsts 28, seconds 24.

Ottawa market was steady. Dealers are quoting to country shippers, extras 23 to 26; firsts 23 to 24 f.o.b. shipping point.

Manitoba market is firm with receipts very light. Dealers are quoting to country shippers delivered extras 24; firsts 22; seconds 18c.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, May 26. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day:

Demand 4.4088.
Cables 4.4125.

VANCOUVER SUGAR $8.60

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 26. — Granulated sugar was quoted at $8.60 wholesale here to-day, a decrease of 20c a hundred pounds.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 26. — There was no change in the condition of the local cash grain market to-day. The flour market was featured by a marking up of prices for all grades another 20c per barrel.

A fair business was reported in mill feed and there was no change in the rolled oats market. The demand for baled hay continues fair. There was nothing new in the egg situation. The market for potatoes was fairly active. Butter prices were up a further 1-8c per lb. Cheese prices advanced 1-16c per lb.

QUEBEC BUTTER AUCTION

MONTREAL, May 26. — At the Quebec Agricultural Co-operative Society auction sale held here to-day there were 1500 packages creamery butter offered of which 100 packages special pasteurized creamery sold at 32 7-8c per lb.; 600 packages No. 1 pasteurized creamery at 32 5-8c per lb.; and 300 packages No. 1 creamery at 31 7-8c per lb., which showed a further gain of 1-8c per lb., as compared with the previous sale.

There were also 500 packages No. 2 creamery offered for which 30 3-4c per lb. was asked, with no buyers.

MONTREAL CHEESE SALES.

MONTREAL, May 26. — At the United Dairymen's Co-operative auction sale of cheese held here to-day the offerings amounted to 1235 boxes of western cheese of which 505 boxes of colored cheese sold at 14 5-8c per lb., and 730 boxes of white at 14 9-16c per lb., f.o.b. cars at Belleville.

LAWS

More than 4000 new laws have been passed so far this year by the legislature of 10 states.

We have too many laws, too many lawyers.

The nation has a feeble-minded hallucination that prompts it, as soon as a problem of any sort rises, to try to solve it by a new law. How many problems, tackled by creation of new statutes, would be solved sooner and better by leaving them to the natural laws such as cause and effect? Fetch an adding machine.

Another thing we need is a house-cleaning of statute books, weeding out the obsolete junk useful only as precedents for delay.

Is 10% Too Much?

When a man has 100% of his income with which to supply his family's needs and his own, shouldn't he arrange it

90%—as a maximum for present expenditures

10%—as a minimum for care of family in case of his death or for his own old age if he lives.

Even the small proportion of 10% of a man's salary will continue a goodly amount of income to his family under our Jubilee Monthly Income Policy.

For example, a man age 30, earning $250 a month—by investing 10% in a London Life Jubilee Policy can guarantee to his wife (aged 30) at his death, an income of $100 a month as long as she lives.

If you are not adequately insured, your family carries the risk of your death by accident or disease, not yourself. Transfer the risk to the London Life and provide for "the monthly cheque that never fails."

WESTERN WEATHER BECOMING BETTER

Bitter Winters of Years Ago Are Not Encountered.

CALGARY, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—Weather observers as well as old settlers in the West entertain the belief that the climate of this country is changing. A weather authority, formerly of the United States, maintains positively that this change has been slowly but surely taking place for the past thirty years.

The bitter winters of several decades ago are not experienced by the present-day settler. The blizzards that raged continually in parts of the Prairie Provinces are now comparatively rare. In those days the dread silence which preceded a storm held nature in a deadly grip until the onrush of the maelstrom of snow and wind with its destruction engulfed all things in its wake.

The weather has perceptibly changed for the better.

Strawberries can be raised anywhere in the Prairie Provinces, together with other varieties of fruits, the growth of which was regarded as impossible several years ago. Men connected with forestry work in these Provinces say that in time horticulturalists will be able to supply the people of Western Canada with every kind of fruit demanded, outside of the tropical varieties.

Discussing the causes of this weather transition, weather prohets advance several logical theories. Some claim that the weather merely moves in cycles—first warm, then hot. They inspect records of years back, and by taking the weather averages over periods of ten years each, that the average temperature of these cycles has never varied to any great extent since the first observations were made. Others are supporting the viewpoint of those who believe that a change is taking place.

Some attribute the climatic transition to irrigation projects of the West. There are now about 19 million acres under irrigation, and through this means a tremendous amount of moisture is brought into what was formerly a dry country. Evaporation and subsequent precipitation has also been largely instrumental in changing an arid plain into a fertile grain-producing country.

The theory is also often advanced that the climate has been affected by the destruction of forests. These forests, it is claimed, formerly conserved moisture and kept the snow from melting too quickly, so that the action of the sun on the earth was slower.

In Ontario where the forests formerly sheltered the country, there are now fierce storms both summer and winter. Where a blizzard was an unknown quantity in years gone by, there are now storms that rival the early storms of the Western Prairies.

Breeders of Holstein Cattle To Meet Next In Virginia

CHICAGO, May 27.—Seventy-nine Holstein cows have made yearly records of more than 1,000 pounds butterfat, and 34 cows of the same breed have in one year produced 30,000 pounds and more of milk, it will be shown in reports to be made at the convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, to be held July 4 at Richmond, Virginia.

In an announcement from headquarters here, made by President Frank O. Lowden, the business of the association for the last fiscal year shows an increase and a sound financial basis, "although decreases in business were shown for the previous successive three years."

"Since 1885, when the association was organized, more than 1,200,000 cows and bulls have been registered in the Herd Book. Creditable records for production of milk and butterfat have been made by more than 100,000 cows under the supervision of agricultural colleges and recorded in the Advanced Registry."

A national sale of 120 purebred Holsteins will follow the meeting.

NINE O'CLOCK GONG PUTS CONS TO BED

Three Thousand Men Close Their Eyes and Dream That They Were Boys Again.

By KAIN O'DARE

The nine o'clock gong rang through the great halls of the cell-houses in the penitentiary at Leavenworth.

In half an hour would come taps.

Gallery runners hustled here and there in a last effort to finish their errands for their kindred, pacing their little floors in their little cells dotting the corridor.

Books were closed and tossed into cupboards. Sheets were flapped back from bunks, and pillows were spanked. Shoes were scudded across cement floors. Water faucets hissed and clicked their valves. Songs partly finished were ended. A guitar died mournfully. Streamers of sparks shot through bars, over the railings of the galleries, and the butt of the cigaret, itself, was swallowed up in the abyss of the hall below. Keys rattled. Gallery runners were locked in for the night. Sliding bars sealing a hundred cells at once were slid into place. A guard in gum shoes passed like a phantom through the galleries and took count of his charges.

Then came the ebb-tide of 3,000 men, creeping silently across the bar of their tragic day.

The long, drawn-out song of a bugle heralded them under the magic wand of taps back to the sea of life, out there beyond the grim walls, under June stars.

Three thousand men closed their eye and dreamed they were boys.

Spelling of Egyptian Names Standardized By American.

CHICAGO, May 27.—(Associated Press).—The style in Egyptian spelling seems likely to be set for the English-speaking world by an American. The orthography of the names of Egyptian historical characters varies sharply among scholars, the same personage, for example, being given appellations as mutually remote as Amenophis and Ahmenhotep.

The editors of Cambridge Ancient History, credited with being the leading authorities on Egyptology, have informed Prof. J. H. Breasted of the University of Chicago of their intention to follow his usage in the spelling of Egyptian names. Prof. Breasted was a prominent figure in the opening of Tut's tomb.

Of the eight archaeological expeditions now on the Nile four are exclusively American and three are Anglo-American, according to Prof. Breasted.

GROVE SCHOOL CADETS PARADE AT LAKEFIELD

Students In New Uniforms Marched to St. John's Church — Rev. Walter Cox Preached Sermon On Empire Citizenship—Business Men's Outing June 5th.

LAKEFIELD, May 27. — "The Grove" cadets paraded to St. John's Church on Sunday morning, looking very trim in their new uniforms. Their flag was carried at the head of the parade by Cadet C. James attended by Cadets Christmas and Griffiths.

The service was strongly related to the day, the hymns being suitable for National anniversaries and included Kipling's "Recessional," and "Oh God our help in ages past." The National Anthem was sung immediately after the offertory. Rev. Walter Cox took as his text the words of the Psalmist, "His dominion shall reach from sea to sea' and the words of one of the apostles, "A citizen of no mean country." He preached an eloquent and powerful sermon which embodied the pride we as individuals feel in being part of this great Christian Empire.

Weather Spoiled Holiday.

The holiday passed quietly in Lakefield and was observed generally by the plans and specifications set forth by the weather man, which meant a good furnace fire and the family sitting around the registers talking about gardening or reading of the joys of the sunny south. Many people planned to make the holiday a sort of Arbor day at their homes but the weather man vetoed any plans of that sort.

Almost a capacity audience turned out in the evening to the Queen Street theatre where "The Darling of New York" starring Baby Peggy was shown.

Many at Stoney Lake.

A goodly number of cottagers went up to their cottages on Clear and Stoney Lake on Saturday for the holiday week-end but the weather man provided probably the worst holiday weather on record. The day began with a driving rain but cleared about noon when a cold north-west wind which might easily be termed a gale, made boating of all sorts if not actually a danger, at least, a doubtful pleasure.

The work of planting flower beds and gardens was practically an impossibility owing to the late season and picnics were as unseasonable as at Easter.

On Sunday there was a heavy hail storm in the afternoon between the hours of three and four and some people declare there was snow. However, that may be, but the general hope is for warmer, calmer weather so that "he" may get the garden in and the lawn put in order and "she" may wear her nifty summer clothes.

Flags Were Flown.

There was a fair display of flags to be seen on Empire Day but there could have been many more without anyone suffering from an over supply. The first part of the day was unpropitious but the afternoon was fair and nature supplied a generous breeze to wave the grand old banner. We are, in Canada, inclined to be fed up with the flag waving of our American neighbors, but we can at least show a display of our flag on at least three days in the year: Empire Day, the King's Birthday and our National Birthday, July 1st. Only one of these days is past and let us show what we can do on the other two.

Business Men's Outing.

The annual excursion of the Lakefield Business Men will be held on June 5th, the first of the half holidays instead of the second Thursday as in former years. This excursion has been rather an institution for about a dozen years, according to accounts, its chief charm being that only men were allowed to go. As the attendance has been growing smaller each year probably the charm of the day of freedom is wearing off. A ladies excursion has been held the same day on a couple of occasions and has been very popular.

No announcement has been made as to the destinations and the rival excursions this year.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

Sir—The appended remarks of the Rev. Jonathan Goforth regarding foreign missions ought to bring up with a jerk if anything can these masquerading modernists who condemn much of the Bible and many of the works of the Creator.

Unless this 'social service' madness gets back to the churches and the churches to the Bible as the Word of God and the source of man's instruction we might as well give up all missions. Though they wear the garment of the Lord and the uniform of Christians their treachery is leading the great army of the people to destruction. "Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad."

— J. H. BURNHAM.

P.S.—The old proverb says: "When man says he's a god—he's a devil."

The remarks of Rev. Goforth follow:—

"The greater enemy of the Christian cause in China to-day is the enemy within the Church itself in the guise of modernish Rev. Jonathan Goforth D.D. well-known Presbyterian foreign missionary told a large congregation in St. John's Presbyterian Church last night when he spoke on 'The Task Set Before the Church.' The devil outside the Church he said whether in the form of heathenism worldliness or infidelity could be known and fought but the devil inside clothed as an angel of light was as dangerous as death.

Task Before Church.

The task that had been set before the Church was one that had been set by the Master Himself. He had committed it to His servant;' and woe to them if they do not fulfil it. Out in Honan Dr. Goforth stated St. John's Church was responsible for a parish that numbered more than three times the population of Ontario. Doctors and educators were needed badly there he said and there were enough and to spare of these in Toronto if they would only hear the call.

Dealing with the hindrances to the work of the Gospel Dr. Goforth instanced the lowering of the moral life of the Chinese themselves. Educated Chinamen he said freely admitted that the moral tone of the nation was getting lower and lower with each succeeding generation. More dangerous also than heathenism was the infidelity that was coming in from the Western world.

Into the Church in China had also swept the tide of worldliness and too often the speaker said it had been fostered by some of the missionaries who had set a bad example to the tChinese Christians and others by the things they allowed in themselves.

Menace of Modernism.

All these hindrances bad as they were could not be compared to the menace of modernism the speaker thought. The mightiest hindrance to the work of the Gospel that Satan could bring was to get men and women to disbelieve in the Bible as the Word of God. In universities in China supposedly Christian students were being taught doctrines that were subversive to the faith of evangelical Christianity. Instances of these from his own experience were told by the speaker.

Despite all the discouragements there were many encouragements in the work of Christian missions in China Dr. Goforth said in closing his address. It was not necessary now to pray that the doors of China might be opened to the Word of God. The doors had been broken down the barriers had been removed and the whole land was awaiting the reconciling message of the Cross.

Several Gospel songs were beautifully sung by Madame Maria Karinskaya including "I'm But A Stranger Here" and "Pass Me Not O Gentle Saviour" which she sang in Russian and English."

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dirt and dust and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Watch your Skin!

It's up to you to look your best

Young girls, old girls, plain girls, pretty girls—don't we all know those days before the mirror when, with a sigh, we turn away and say,

"Gosh—I do look plain!"

On those days when our skin looks bad and won't get right—our noses won't powder—our eyes are dull! We all know them. But wise women watch their skin and at the first sign of something take the best remedy—a dose of

GREAT MAN BORN EVERY 100 YEARS

By Bob Dorman

TONCONTIN, Honduras, May 24—History shows than on an average, one really great man is born in a century.

The trouble with Honduras is that there are at least seven or eight men at the present time, each of whom is firmly convinced that he is that man man.

Which wouldn't be so bad if it weren't for the fact that each seems able to convince a certain portion of his countrymen that he is right.

The adherent of each party wears a colored hat band to designate his particular brand; generally it bears a printed inscription "Viva-ing" his favorite candidate.

The result is a medley of colors and names—reds, blues, red and blue red and white, etc.—together with Carias, Arias, Bonilla, Funes, and Ferrera.

Just at present the warring factions are the reds and the blues

The reds carry a red and white banner. The blues—a blue and white one, except the followers of Perrera the best figthers of the blues—who carry a red and white banner also, as Ferrera used to be a red.

The causes of the revolution are many.

Hidden behind the verbal barrage of high-sounding phrases are the real reasons—personal ambition and foreign intriguing.

And still behind this are the men who are really patriotic, really honest—who are seeking to establish an honest government in their country.

But they are sadly in the minority.

The government of Gutierrez, which expired Jan. 31, 1924, was a revolutionary government.

It had overthrown a government that had endeavored to make itself the private property of one family.

General Ferrera had been one of its foremost leaders.

For a time the government of Gutierrez was honest.

Then the usual grafting of the Central American governments found its way into being.

The country sank deeper and deeper into debt, though its revenues were greater than ever before

The soldiers of the government invaded the homes of the people, violating the women and taking what they desired.

Men like Ferrera, who had been rewarded with the post of collector of customs at the important port of Ceiba, finding protests vain, resigned from the government.

But these indications of a coming storm went unheeded by the politicians in offitce.

Last October saw the holding of the presidential elections.

The two major parties, the Liberals (in office) and the Conservatives, placed their candidates in the field.

Tiburcio Carias was the candidate of the Conservatives.

Manuel Arias of the Liberals. In order to split the vote of the Conservatives the Liberals placed a third candidate in the field, Policarpo Boinlla.

In the resulting election, Carias had more votes than any other candidate, but not a majority.

This despite the padded voting such as occurred at Puerto Cortez, where 87 Aristas voted the entire electoral vote of the town, to the number of 1256.

The constitution of Honduras requires a majority.

Gutierrez declared "No election." Then he proclaimed himself dictator. Followed the revolution.

COULDN'T SLEEP HEART WAS BAD NERVES A WRECK

Mr. H. A. Reid, Upper Musquodoboit, N.S., writes:—"I am very thankful fro the benefit I have received by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

When I came home from overseas, in 1920, my heart was very badly affected by concussion, and my nerves were a dreadful wreck. I was very short winded, and could not possibly sleep at night, in fact, I was in such a condition I felt as if I did not wish anyone to speak to me. I thought I would try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had taken two boxes I could enjoy a good night's rest as well as anyone.

There are lots of returned men who are suffering the same as I did, and I feel sure that if they would only try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they will receive the same relief that I have."

RUM-RUNNERS LAUGH AT NEW 12-MILE TREATY

Ships Now Lie That Distance Offshore—Faster Craft Used For Inshore Work — May Have An Air Fleet to Elude Revenue Cutters.

By HOWARD MINGOS.

BOTH the United States and Great Britain having ratified the treaty giving this country the right of search and seizure over all vessels within an hour's steaming distance of the American coast, the question arises: What will the effect be?

Formulated by the prohibition authorities with the idea of keeping rum-runners so far off the coast that liquor could not be brought ashore, the treaty virtually abolishes the traditional three-mile limit. It has been termed a twelve-mile treaty, though it means that the faster ships must remain from fifteen to eighteen miles out at sea while carrying alcoholic fluids. It means, too, that the small boats running the contraband from ship to shore must make a journey in the open sea many times longer than formerly.

This fact alone encourages the Government agencies in the belief that they could patrol the new territorial waters with such effectiveness that rum smuggling would be reduced to a minimum. But investigation proves that they haven't succeeded, though the rum ships have been staying out beyond the new treaty limits for more than four months. The liquor-runners anticipated the new treaty's provisions and put into voluntary practice what they would have to do when the treaty became operative.

The rum fleet is still doing business. One can find the ships scattered between Montauk Point, L. L., and Atlantic Highlands, N. J. Prohibition officials admit that liquor is coming ashore in quantity. The rum-runners say that they are putting off their cargoes as rapidly as the weather permits. And they say that business is better to-day than at any time since the Christmas holidays, when imports of contraband broke all records.

Hope to Supply Convention Crowd.

The rum-runners are planning to deliver many cargoes in New York before the Democratic Convention in June. They come from England, France, Italy, Spain, Bermuda and the Bahamas, these rum-running steamers and schooners. Some of them carry 30,000 cases of whisky. Others hold half that quantity. When they come out, they are prepared to lay off shore two or three months awaiting opportunities for sending their cargoes over the rail.

New York bootleggers, in making plans for evading the treaty and any other enforcement measure which may be adopted, expect to use seaplanes in increasing number. Aircraft were tried out last year and found successful. They were used mostly for spotting—locating a particular rum ship so that at night the small boats could go out to the exact location.

A number of airplane companies have received overtures from prospective customers this last few months. In several instances it is specified that the planes must be flying boats, with engines guaranteed to function steadily for twenty-mile flight out over the sea and back again. The hulls must be seaworthy and capable of remaining afloat in the waves. And they must be able to carry paying loads, enough to make the game profitable.

There are said to be at least a dozen flying boats, some old, others new, now being conditioned for service with the rum fleet. Recently designed flying boats would seem to have been built especially for the rum traffic. They have waterproof hulls and wings so loads may be carried The price range from $20 000 to $50.000.

Rum-Ship Men Come Ashore.

During the bad weather of early Spring, which halted rum-running activities for several days, many of the rum-ship captains, supercargoes and agents came ashore, where they were entertained as lavishly as were the sailors from the Pacific fleet, then in the North River. For obvious reasons they were not entertained publicly. They were guests, however, of the New York bootlegging fraternity, a phrase which is more inclusive of the entertaining element in this city than one might suppose at first glance.

A captain of one of the schooners came in one night and met by invitation a liquor broker and the New York agent of a foreign liquor company. They talked quite freely about the treaty and laughed when asked if it would be effective. Said the captain:

"The ships have been recognizing practically for four months now, and if the prohibition people tell you the truth, they will admit that the stuff is coming ashore, barring weather, in greater quantities than ever before. Before leaving England I met a former pilot, who was trying to organize a new combine to bring liquor over in boats. He would equip each boat with seaplanes, so that, anchored fifteen miles offshore, he could send the stuff not only to New York but far up the Hudson and on occasion to Philadelphia and Baltimore. He was especially keen on flying direct to Newport, because you know the rich people there and at Southampton buy their booze in thousand dollar lots. They must have it. They entertain so much, you know.

Five Big Liquor Rings

"Of course you know that you have at least five big liquor rings handling most of the business in New York. These big syndicates sell to smaller rings, which in turn dispose of it to others. The big syndicates buy up the stuff in Europe far in advance. They charter ships through their own agents or order the stuff to be delivered in whole cargo lots off the treaty limit. Then they handle it themselves. They either hire their small speed boats to go out and bring it in or else they maintain a fleet of small craft and also a complete hauling service such as motor cars, trucks and moving vans. One big concern is using a floating grain elevator.

"When you speak of a $20,000 flying boat, it means little or nothing to the bootleg ring, because they are financed up in the millions. One outfit, I'm informed, is backed as high as $30,000,000. It can well afford to maintain a whole aerial fleet if it will serve the purpose."

The bootleggers laugh at the so-called twelve-mile treaty. They say that a flying boat may go twenty miles out over the water and alight near a vessel, take aboard its load and get away before the surface craft can approach closely enough to stop it. They add that there is nothing like a plane to enable an observer to keep watch while a fleet of small craft darts out and takes on thousands of cases of liquor. At the approach of a law-enforcing boat the warning can be given in time for the boats to separate, scatter and leave decoys, if necessary, to lead the pursuers a lively and useless chase.

Using a Decoy

One night recently a fleet of small boats was out almost under the guns of the Coast Guard cutters standing by the rum ships off Atlantic Highlands, N. J. The cutters had their boats lowered ready for a quick dash. From shoreward came a few customs boats. It seemed as if the liquor laden boats could not escape. During the chase that ensued one of the rum craft seemed to lag behind. The others escaped. When the officials came up to the one boat they found to their disgust that it was loaded with empty fruit cases—technically innocent of wrongdoing.

Captain R. I. Merrick, enforcement officer in charge of the New York prohibition agents, asserted that while liquor is still coming ashore, the captures on land are increasing monthly. He said that when the smugglers begin using aircraft in large numbers his department can use them for observation and trailing purposes. He believes seaplane observers can help in finding where the stuff is being landed.

In the Coast Guard appropriation bill now in Congress provision is made for millions of dollars' worth of small craft to be used against the rum smugglers. Rear Admiral Billard, the Commandant, believes that aircraft will be useful in the Coast Guard work, beginning in a modest way at first and increasing its air forces as the bootleggers increase their aerial smuggling fleet.

Coast Guard officers say that they will need at least fifty small boats, fast speed craft, in the New York district alone. They estimate that only a small percentage of the smuggling is detected in time for arrests to be made. Publicity they say the 12-mile treaty is a good thing. Privately they admit that for every precautionary measure taken the bootleggers seem to devise new means of tricking the officers.

Figures on Arrests and Losses

Bootleggers expect that some arrests will be made. The losses are closely estimated in fixing prices. And in New York the bootlegging industry functions like a stock exchange. Mimeograph bulletins with daily prices, quotations, remarks and suggestions are circulated among the trade every weekday.

That is why they are willing to face conditions such as the treaty imposes. They have placed guaranteeing payment for the liquor aboard the present fleet off New York, and they hav placed similar guarantees for the next big shipment due here before the convention. Contracts have been made with syndicates in most of the large Western cities. It requires but a brief investigation to convince one that a great liquor ring is now operating throughout the country.

A representative of the largest organization here talked frankly after introductions had been made through friendly sources, so that he was assured of maintaining his identity a secret.

"What if the Coast Guard does use aircraft? The twelve or fifteen miles limit is better than three miles actually," he said. "The flying machines have a greater radius in which to fly. We will bring the stuff ahsore at night. We do all our hauling from fleet to shore at night, anyway. As the surface craft now operate, if we start toward Keyport, N. J., for example, and find a police boat coming towards us, we simply turn around and run toward a Long Island port. Now, that is much easier than when we were operating three miles off shore, because it gives us a larger area. The prohibition people say it makes the gamut longer for us to run. It works both ways, you see. The larger the the less chances for discovery. And we have proved to our own satisfaction that even when discovered we have better chances of getting away."

Since they have taken to anticipating treaty terms, the runners have been working from midnight to dawn. How can surface craft or flying boats be spotted at night, especially in fog or mist? The bootleggers want to know. Said the rum-runner:

"In some instances they might trail us by our exhausts if we are using seaplanes. But they, too, must carry riding lights, else stand a chance of being run down in the dark. And a collision in midair would be fatal to both sides. As for shooting our fellows out of the sky, we're willing to take a chance. We have scores of ex-service men willing to take that chance. And I do not believe the Coast Guard can find enough airplanes to carry searchlights and scan that entire area from midnight until dawn. That is where the larger area between land and Rum Row gives us the advantage.

"There are as many brains working to defeat prohibition as to support it. New innovations are being developed constantly. The Coast Guard and marine police have already found that machine-gun bullets do little or no damage, because the fast speed boats running the stuff to shore are sheathed in steel so that the bullets cannot penetrate.

"They are equipped with the strongest engines built, airplane motors, often two, three and sometimes four, usually one held in reserve in case an engine fails. These speed boats can travel as fast as thirty knots. The law enforcement agencies have been unable to match such speed. By the time they have made requisition for them, and the boats are made available, we shall have still faster machines and aircraft."

Some of the speed boats are using engines of foreign make, others Liberty airplane motors. Empty, they are unbeatable. And they are a paying proposition for their owners, for where the liquor ring does not control its own mosquito fleet, they charge from $150 to $300 a trip. It has about doubled the cost of getting liquor ashore since the rum fleet moved out to sea.

Sometimes the Wives Go Along

Is it safe? If one believes half the stories he hears from the better class of bootleggers, the men who go down to the sea in small craft and bring their goods to New York, one must conclude that it is safe. Said the bootlegger who played host to the skipper of his rum ship:

"The shifting fortunes in our trade are caused by the liquor market. If times are bad, as they have been since the first of the year, you will find a certain clique cutting prices, and where there is price-cutting you will find watered liquor, vile home-made stuff, new whiskey from Europe. These people will refuse to pay graft for protection where graft is due and protection is badly needed. Those are the fellows who sooner or later are caught; and most of them prove to be anything but gentlemen. Few of the real ones are caught.

"Rum-running is great fun. Some of us take our wives along. You see, it is pretty lonesome for the women folks, staying alone from midnight until dawn. And they always worry for fear we will stop a bullet or have a wreck. So they go along with us when there's room."

Meeting the Rising Cost

The rum-running captain explained how the rising cost of importing liquor has been met.

"There are usually three or four ships plying far offshore," he said. "We call it the second line of defense. The prohibition agents think they are mother ships to supply the small schooners in Rum Row. They are mistaken. Those fellows out there are doctoring liquor. They bring over a third of a cargo of new whisky or old stuff, as the case may be. Then they make three bottles out of a good one.

"You are getting two kinds of whisky in this country and most of you don't know the difference. The new Scotch is from three nights to six weeks old. It isn't fit to drink, but it tastes good. An American syndicate is buying it up as fast as it is made. They ship it into Germany, where arrangements have been perfected for putting the stuff in bottles and under old labels to make it look like the real goods.

"You saloons and restaurants are selling new Scotch and most of it is half water at that. I'll explain why good stuff costs money in this country. Take Scotch, for example. It sells in England for $27 a case wholesale for the old, cured stuff. The new Scotch costs only $12 a case. The big syndicates buy 10,000 to 50,000 cases of old Scotch. The pikers get only the new stuff.

"The syndicates sell to other and smaller rings for from $23 to $25 a case in lots of 500 to 1,000 cases. Then they in turn sell to smaller rings of 'brokers' for from $35 to $50 a case in lots of 50 to 150 cases. That is also sold through brokers and salesmen. They have their business cards and offices, telephones, and in many instances cable addresses. There seventy-three bootleggers in one New York office building within a half mile of prohibition enforcement headquarters.

Sell on Credit, Too

"The brokers do a lot of business on credit. They trust their customers. Lawyers are the best customers. They buy a lot for clients. Doctors come next. They buy for themselves and patients. For the most part, the real liquor and wine coming into the United States is being consumed by the rich people. They are willing to pay any price for the good stuff. Why sell to others?

"Honest bootlegging pays an average income and that's all. A bootlegger with a list of respectable clients rides the trucks to his customers' homes and samples each case before accepting payment. He depends on good-will for continued patronage.

"It is all very well to say that the ships cannot stay out there for months at a time. Let's see. To charter a ship on the other side for the standard rate today costs 40 cents per case a month, when the ship is intended for the American liquor traffic. Also bonds given insuring the owner against loss, confiscation, &c. The charter is indefinite. As 40 cents per case, the ship can stay offshore three months for $1.20 a case. That is added to the initial cost of the liquor. It doesn't mean so much."

HULA BATHING SUITS ARE WORN THIS YEAR

Yellow Ribbon Streamers Suspended From Belt With Woollen Loops — Removed Before Dipping

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, May 27 (United Press).—The bathing suit's worn all year 'round,
By fashion's social Dame;
But when the girlies splash up North
We know that Spring has came!

"One Swallow does not Summer make," but one bathing suit goes a long way toward making Spring. When we see the first bathing suit up North we know it's time to put the sealskins where the moths won't get a chance to brouse on them, for Spring has come, tra-la-la!

If the bathing costumes shown in the shops prove popular we'll be an assortment of Follies Beauties before Summer is over. Almost every material has been pressed into service: taffeta, satin, velvet, stockingette, jersey cloth, silk broadcloth, and crepe de chene being those most displayed.

Black taffeta made in long-waisted dress effects, with skirts of tiny ruffles, are shown in quantities. These are sometimes trimmed with large-sized 'kerchiefs of brilliant colors which tie about the low waistline, ending in a bow in the rear. Plaided and checked taffetas are also shown, and as taffeta is a desirable bathing material, drying rapidly, these should prove successful. Artificial silk stockinette and wool stockinette come in regulation one-piece effects, as well as in dress effects. A few black velvet suits are shown made in straight-line effects, worn over satin bloomers. These are sometimes trimmed in cut-glass buttons resembling crystals.

In Apron Effects.

The two-apron effect is used on many models, with the front and rear apron outlined in white or color. These apron effects allow ample freedom for swimming. Front and back panel effects are also shown, the panels being of contrasting color from the rest of the garment.

One particularly lovely suit using the panel ideal is made of black taffeta with front and back panels of old blue taffeta. A deep skirt border of old blue is joined to the skirt by means of flat appliqued poppies of rose shade. A suit of this sort seems too pretty to dampen in the waves. There are several suits following this idea, however, which are easily made and which will withstand salt water. One such suit is made of black sateen with deep yellow front and rear panels and skirt border. Appliques of yellow cretonne flowers join the skirt border to the suit. Cretonne appliques are extremely popular on the better grade suits, the cretonne motifs being applied by means of buttonhole stitching.

A quaint bathing suit is called the "hula suit." This is made of light brown stockingette, with long bodice and short skirt. Over the skirt comes a belt of brown wooden loops from which hang yellow ribbon streamers forming a hula effect. The belt can be removed before dipping into the water.

Two typical bathing suit styles which were worn by Anu Pennington at a recent fashion review depict the mode for the young miss. The first was a suit of knit wool with a black bodice portion and a black and white striped skirt. The bodice, of course, was long, and a checked silk handkerchief tied about the waistline ending in a tiny knot in back. The skirt of this model was cut extremely short, displaying no sign of the bloomers beneath however.

The second costume was made of a printed material in gay colors, including red, green and yellow. To the slender-fitting bodice was attached a tiny skirt consisting of five rows of narrow ruffles of self-material. The bloomers were of brilliant red silk and these extended below the tiny skirt several inches.

All sorts of wraps are included in this season's beach attire — black squares, appliqued in cretonne designs which will form a border; fringed squares rubberized capes in vivid shades like orange, peacock and scarlet, etc. Bandana head-dresses vie with the more elaborate ones of flower-trimmed rubber. Japanese parasols of oil-silk or oil-paper painted in brilliant colors are shown.

COUNTERFEITERS

The underworld is quick to adopt the latest in science. Now they're using color photography in counterfeiting. A banknote faked by this method is difficult to detect. And one counterfeiter's work looks just like anothers. In older methods each counterfeiters had peculiarities that showed in his work, so that detectives, studying the fake, would recognize almost instantly the identity of the veteran maker.

SAVED

Diabetes killed 24,530 Americans in March, 1923. The death toll was only 18,150 in March, 1924.

Insulin, the new remedy for diabetes, is beginning to get in its good work. Already saving over 75,000 lives a year in our country alone. Doctors Banting and Best, discoverers of insulin, have performed a service of incalculable value. Lucky that a profiteer didn't make the discovery.

PRISONER PAINTS CHRIST IN PRISON

His name was Leon, and he was sentenced to the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth for 10 years after a conviction of counterfeiting. Leon, the artist, was an English subject and the head of a colony of empire dreamers in Canada. Of course the colony came under Canadian laws—but Leon was a dreamer, a dreamer of great things that would eventually set his people free and allow them the harvest of his great dream, whatever it was.

Financially the colony was weak. Leon came to the United States to raise money.

He found out that folks down here were building automobiles, homes and pushing baby-carriages, and were producing instead of dreaming.

Leon's plea for his empire fell on deaf ears.

It is alleged he made several thousands of dollars worth of counterfeit money which was so good that banks counted it as genuine.

Of course, the Secret Service had to butt in and Leon went to jail for ten years.

Good counterfeiters are usually good artists. The officials at Leavenworth assigned Leon to decorate the Protestant and Catholic chapels.

Today, if you were to visit Leavenworth, you would behold a picture of Christ, done in oil above the altar in the Catholic chapel. The Saviour is sitting in a cell in consultation with two prisoners in stripes.

People from all over the world have stood before that picture with bared heads, and with eyes glistening with emotion.

To the right of Christ the prisoner has only one arm. The man who posed for this picture was Ben Sterns, the famous one-armed train robber of Oklahoma. To the left of Christ the prisoner is hollow-chested, eyes peering from deep sockets—it is those eyes that hold and grip the person below the picture; there is a light there like some dead spirit coming into flame. The man who posed for this picture was also a prisoner who had spent years and years behind the grim walls of Leavenworth.

And then there is Christ himself!

Of all the beautiful paintings that have been made of this wonderful character I do not believe there is any to surpass the one that Leon painted within prison walls. The man who posed for this picture was a Jew doing a long term in Leavenworth.

There came a Washington society woman to Leavenworth to look at the picture of Christ. For hours she stood in front of the altar.

Back in the shadows, near the entry, a guard paced back and forth, waiting to usher the visitor to other places of interest. He had had orders from the warden to give the visitor all of the time she wanted.

The end of the day came. A golden light struck through the stained windows of the sacred chamber, and fell on the shoulders of the society woman from Washington who was kneeling in prayer.

Shortly after this woman returned to Washington and showed President Wilson a photograph of the Christ painted within prison walls.

It is said that the president did not speak for some time, and that when he lifted his eyes to the woman, who was a close friend to his daughter Margaret, there was a light there that comes from another world.

"I want you to do something for the man who painted that picture," requested the woman.

"I shall wire the warden of Leavenworth to parole him to Washington," promised the president.

The man who painted Christ within prison walls is today a decorator of public buildings in the capitol city.

To-day's Women Buy Shoes to Fit Feet

Even If Each Foot Has a Size of Its Own, They Smile and Serenely Say So.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, May 27 (United Press).—

He asked her for her number
As he gazed into her eyes—
He was a young shoe salesman
Inquiring for her size.

She smiled at him serenely,
And said, "Sir, I'm in a fix!
My right foot's number seven,
While my left is number six!"

It's no disgrace to have large or misnated feet these days. A few years ago no woman would admit to the salesman that her foot was larger than a 4B. But the modern woman knows that no salesman, regardless of the sleekness of his hair, is worth the sufferance of a corn. Instead of trying to cram her No. 6 foot into a No. 4 shoe, she is inclined to weat a size 6½ to insure comfort.

A shoe dealer in New York informs us that the majority of ladies' shoes sold are large sizes, 6's and 7's. Formerly a size 5 is considered the average sample shoe. Now, feet haven't grown any larger during this generation, so it must be that women have grown more sensible.

Beauty and Comfort

Shoes have never been more beautiful or more comfortable than they are this year. While they are not vastly different from the shoes of last year, it is their details which establish them as this season's models. Vamps are medium in length, neither blunt or pointed. Heels are either high or one-inch walking types. Extreme high heels and heelless effects are not shown this yea The tendency seems to be to have a shoe that comes up over the foot to support it, rather than one which is cut out at the sides displaying the arch of the foot. The extreme cut-out at the side is only shown for dancing slippers this year.

Cut-out sandal effects are still worn, although they are modified this season. Ankle straps are not shown at all. While this year's models are fully as ornamental as those of last Spring, they are cut with the idea of supporting the foot rather than displaying a large expanse of foot protruding between cut-outs and straps. Ornamentation is achieved by means of appliques rather than by open-work effects.

Suedes in light shades, piped in black patent leather, are shown in all of the better class shops. "Piping" is the new shoe note, it would seem. Black and brown satin piped in gold leather is stressed for dressy wear. White sports for resort wear. The piping usually extends about the top of the slipper and is matched by patent applique over the vamp. Buckles are being used, but these are usually small affairs which and oblong ornaments, set with rhinestones fashioned with loops in back so that the instep strap may be held in place by them.

Colored Shoes For Sports

Colored shoes are again being shown for sports wear. This year we see such colors as dark red, burnt orange and peacock blue, as well as the shades that were popular last Summer. White sports shoes, trimmed in piping and appliques of colored leather, offer a feature that is new. Green trimming on white leather is the favorite combination.

Brown is a popular color this season that is used in suede, lustered kid and satin.

After purchasing a shoe, if one finds that it is too short, a rubber inner heel can be glued in the bottom of the shoe, which will draw the foot back and allow more freedom for the end of the foot.

A shoe that is too large can be equally uncomfortable, as it will slip at the heel when walking. By glueing a strip of felt around the top of the shoe at the heel this slipping will be eliminated.

Silver and gold remains the mode for evening slippers. Trimmings are ornaments of rhinestone, cut steel or pearls. Plain, unornamented slippers are also popular this season.

ELECTRIC.

Only 5 out of every 200 Americans farmers are receiving service from electric light and power companies. Many others, of course, have their own generating plants on the farm.

But, with cities and towns using electricity almost without exception, it's surprising how slowly electric service is being extended to the farms. A link is very definitely missing, and the link may be transmission of electric power by radio, which inevitably will be the eventual way.

Meantime, waterpower—which will be one of the greatest future electric generators—must be conserved for the public. Concentration of waterpower to private hands, headed for monopoly, is an increasing menace.

ADDRESS TO BAR ASSOCIATION

(By F. D. KERR, K.C.)

The appended address was given by Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., president of the Ontario Bar Association at the annual meeting of the Association at Osgoode on Thursday last.

The Lord Chancellor And The Privy Council.

To an unusual degree the minds of the English speaking lawyers the world over are turned at the present time to that little Island, whence came the laws which are the pride of the English speaking world,—the immediate cause being the near approach of the great, and, what I believe will prove to be the historic gathering of the lawyers of the United States of America in London, England, as the guests of the Bar of England and of Canada.

The Lord Chancellor, who presides over the Committee of the Law Lords, the ultimate Court of Appeal for all England, and who, as Chairman, presides at the meetings of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the highest Court of Appeal for the Empire, will, by reason of his great office and by reason of his own personality, prove to be the cynosure of all eyes on that occasion.

Perhaps, therefore, it may not be thought out of place for me to take advantage of this opportunity to say something to the Members of the Ontario Bar Association about the Lord Chancellor and the Judicial Committee over which he presides.

It seems to me that Lord Haldane owes much to heredity, and to properly appreciate Lord Haldane it is necessary to keep in mind the influence brought to bear upon him for many years by his mother. We have all read how his mother, a gracious, cultivated old lady of ninety-nine, has written and continues to write daily letters to her son from the old home at Clonanden, Perthshire, Scotland.

May we not conclude that these daily letters to an appreciable extent have inspired, to some further extent, that display of tremendous energy, which, combined with unusual capacity and laborious study, has carried Lord Haldane brilliantly through several Universities, to triumph at the Bar, to a high place in Statesmanship, and for the second time to the exalted position of Lord Chancellor of the Realm of England.

Richard Burdon, Viscount Haldane, is the son of Robert Haldane, Writer to the Signet, and Mary Elizabeth Burdon Sanderson. Born in the year 1856, he graduated from Edinburgh and Goettingen Universities, and was called to the Bar in 1879, appointed a Queen's Counsel eleven years later, held the position of Secretary of State for War from 1905 to 1912, Lord Chancellor for the first time in 1912, holding that position until 1915, and again appointed to the Woolsack in 1924.

From his father and from his mother alike he received a natural bent towards the law. For on his mother's side Lord Haldane can boast (if he so desires) that the law is in his very blood. For it will be recalled that the great Jurist and Statesman, Lord Eldon, for so many years Lord Chancellor, and Lord Stowell, the Admirality Judge, were both great uncles of his mother. From the example set before him by Lord Eldon he learned the sacredness of the duties of a Lord Chancellor, and he was taught by Stowell the great principles of international fairness. It was Stowell, the Judge in Admiralty, during many years of the Napoleonic Wars (from 1798 to 1826), who laid down the broad principles "That a prize Court is not merely of the country in which it sits but of the law of nations." His decisions are presumptive evidence of the international law of the United States. "I have taken care," writes the famous American, Mr. Justice Story, "that they shall form the basis of the maritime law of the United States and I have no hesitation in saying that they ought to do so in every civilized country of the world." Lord Eldon, of whom it was said that he was all but in name the Prime Minister of England, as a politician was as far removed from Haldane as are the poles, Eldon's chief parliamentary efforts being expended in the repress on of all demands for freedom. Of Eldon it is said that he was prompt in his decisions as a statesman because he never doubted that any change was ipse facto wrong. Of him it was said, "For nearly 40 years he fought against every improvement in law or in the constitution—calling God to witness on the smallest proposal of reform, that he foresaw from it the downfall of his country."

Lord Haldane has possibly been lacking in the somewhat romantic spirit of Eldon, for the then future Lord Chancellor Eldon gallantly held a ladder up to the window to enable his lady love to elope from her father's home, while on the other hand his distinguished nephew remains at sixty-nine an unconvinced bachelor.

The endless pursuit of knowledge, hours of toil in the Courts and in the Library, the study of Philosophy (both Scotch and German), the continuous outpouring of writings on Philosophy, the study of war problems, and the intricate matters of statesmanship and diplomacy have given the subejct of this sketch a busy life, a useful life and apparently a happy one.

Lord Haldane is no stranger to Canada. Many present will remember the occasion of his visit to Montreal in 1912, when the United States Bar Association held its great meeting on British and Canadian soil for the express purpose of doing honour to the Lord Chancellor of England. It will also be remembered how on that occasion His Lordship captured the good-will and admiration of every American and Canadian lawyer who heard and saw him.

The impression made by the Lord Chancellor on an American newspaperman who, after the custom of New York reporters, greeted him at the pier, will perhaps furnish a side light which may be of interest. I read a few extracts:

"There has set foot on the West shore of the Atlantic Ocean, in the City of New York, en route for Montreal, the only common man in the whole British Empire, to assassinate whom would be reckoned worse than murder—high treason. Next to the King, he is the most sacred personage in the Empire. He is a Viscount and a Lord High Chancellor, superior to the very Prime Minister of England, who gave him his position, Keeper of the King's conscience and custodian of the Great Seal of the Empire. Titles, offices, privileges, rights, obligations, traditions and duties hang about his neck like links in a great chain. He has decorations and uniforms, silk hose, a wig, and wears lace on his velvet coat. He is Viscount Haldane, Lord Chancellor of the United Kingdom.

He landed to-day in New York. He is not very tall. He is rather rotund. His face is heavy, almost to pugnacity. His eyes are glowing orbs that look out upon the world with steady, firm gaze, a trifle hostile, a trifle cold. He has the habit of clearing his throat noisily, like a lion giving a premonitory growl. His hands are bone and muscle that can fell a man or affix the Nation's signature to a petty bill of Parliament with equal ease. He appoints the Judges of England. He sits in the British Cabinet and draws twice the salary the Prime Minister draws—$50,000 a year.

He walks cheerfully and speaks as though care were a thing unknown to him. From a royal suite on the great steamer to the wharf, to a taxi-cab, to a hotel, passed the great Lord Chancellor, as happy as a boy on a holiday, finding entertainment and amusement wherever he looked.

But he did not bring the great Seal with him. He left it in England in the great purple velvet, gold-embroidered bag, adorned with the arms of England. It might be mentioned that the State provides a new bag for the Seal every year at a cost of $500.00.

Although there is no law forbidding a Lord High Chancellor from leaving the Kingdom, still his absence is a difficult thing to bridge over. In order to come to America, Lord Haldane required the special permission of the King and the Prime Minister. Meantime the seal has to be specially guarded."

A Canadian editorial writer in the Peterborough Ontario Examiner greeted His Lordship on the same visit, as follows

"He is the first occupier of the office in history to put the seal in cold storage and hie himself out of the limits.

"Haldane, the great Lawyer, the great Statesman, the scholar and the writer of profound learning is still in the prime of life. Fifty-seven years of age a man of striking personality, of agreeable address and a happy example of adaptability and homor. Our own and the United States statesmen will be able to see at a short range a British statesman embodying the best traditions of his class, and be able to institute comparisons if not draw contrasts."

The picture of the meeting at Montreal is ineffaceable from my own memory. The hall packed with lawyers. Three very striking personalities, Chief Justice White, of the United States Supreme Court, Ex-President Taft, Judge White's successor, and the Lord Chancellor of England, the Chief Justiciar of the Empire, seated side by side, beaming, smiling, nay chuckling like school boy friends meeting after many years. When they spoke, moved or every while they sat the 3 B's of an English Judge were in evidence, and they each personified the humanity, the strength and the intellectual power of the law. I can still see the clean shaven face and powerful physique of the Lord Chancellor, and I can still hear his clear toned carrying voice, heard without effort. It has been well said that his address was "the principal outstanding feature of that great gathering, splendid in its legal wisdom, its ethical tone, its human touch and in its unsurpassed literary style." There was no seeking after applause, nothing of the oratorical, clear even where it was complex, and dignified in the simplicity of its delivery. It was indeed an epoch making speech which sent away American and Canadian lawyers alike conscious of the fact that the English Law and the English language bound closely together the English speaking countries of the world, and made all realise that a mutual understanding meant much for the avoidance of War.

It is not idle, I think, to attribute, in some degree, the sympathy of the American lawyers with the cause of the allies to that meeting at Montreal and especially to the Lord Chancellor's wonderful address, in which he wove closely together the threads of our common outlook and connection with the problems of the World.

I will not dwell upon his work in the War Department work that has brought him much praise and much blame. It cannot be doubted that he made a great and sustained effort at army improvements. Whether his plans went as far as they should have gone or could have gone will probably always remain the subject of dispute, but the work of the Expeditionary Force, that so-called "Contemptible Little Army" with its story of undimmed glory and the performance of the territorial regiments in every theatre of the War will always be pointed to as evidence of his genius and of his patriotic zeal. In 1919 Lord Haldane writes with dignity and pride: "On the main issues the German General Staff made an astounding strategical blunder, first, in not recognizing what it means to war with a country determined to command the Seas; secondly, its failure to strike with submarines and destroyers at all costs when the Expeditionary Force mobilized on Monday, August 3rd, 1914."

Lord Haldane's activities as a lawyer were not confined to appearance as counsel in English cases alone, but he appeared frequently before the Privy Council in cases from the Dominions and from the Colonies, and upon his elevation to the Lord Chancellorship he became necessarily closely in touch with the many constitutional and legal problems affecting this Dominion.

Lord Haldane's view respecting appeals from Canadian Courts is the view so well expressed in the words of another great Judge, Lord Fitzgerald, in the case of Price vs. Gagnon, 8 Appeal Cases, page 103 (1882). I quote the langugae of Lord Fitzgerald in rendering judgment in the last mentioned case:

"Their Lordships are not prepared to advise Her Majesty to exercise her perogative by admitting an appeal to Her Majesty's Council from the Supreme Court of Canada, save where the case is of gravity involving matter of public interest, or affecting property of considerable amount, or where the case is otherwise of some public importance, or of a very substantial character. The final decision being that of the Supreme Court of Canada, which is entitled to every confidence on the part of the Canadian people."

Time will not permit me to refer in detail to the numerous cases affecting Canada in which Lord Chancellor Haldane has delivered the judgment of the Privy Council, but I will refer very shortly to a few of his judgments.

Perhaps the citizens of Toronto have not unanimously approved, although possibly few lawyers would care to quarrel with the decision of the Privy Council, as delivered by Lord Chancellor Haldane, in the case of Toronto and Niagara Power Company vs. the Corporation of North Toronto 1912 A.C.P. 834, where it will be remembered that the Privy Council declared that the franchise granted to the Toronto and Niagara Power Company gave power to the Company to erect poles on the public streets without the permission of the Council.

Another famous case in which Lord Haldane was concerned arose out of the ne temere decree which had been the subject of much agitation in Canada. I refer to the decision of the Privy Council in the matter of the proposed amendments to the Marriage Act (1912) A.C., when the Privy Council upheld the Dominion Supreme Court and declared the respective powers of the Dominion and the Provinces with respect to marriage. Curiously enough the decision of that great body being delivered by a bachelor Lord Chancellor.

Another famous case was Rex vs. The Royal Bank (1913) A.C. p. 283, when judgment was rendered declaring ultra vires the Legislation of Alberta whereby Alberta attempted to confiscate some $6,000,000.00 of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway Company deposited in the Royal Bank at Edmonton.

The case of the Attorney General of British Columbia vs. the Attorney General of Canada, (1914) C.A., p. 153, is another illustration of some of the problems which have come before the Lord Chancellor. In that case the powers of that Province and of the Dominion in reference to fishery rights were considered, and it is interesting to recall that Lord Haldane in maintaining the Dominion's fishery rights in tidal waters based it upon the "public right to fish in tidal waters"—a right, he pointed out, established by Magna Charta itself.

It is indeed odd that the title Lord Chancellor should be the title of the highest Judge in the State, when it is remembered that the title "Chancellor" originally designating the Court Usher who sat at the cancelli or lattice work separating the Judges from the audience.

The office of Lord Chancellor dates back to the reign of Edward the Confessor, and from the Lord Chancellors, themselves Eccleciastics, we derived those equitable principles which ameliorated the hardships of the common law, and according to Barton's Equity the Chancellor, as early as the reign of Edward I., began to exercise an original and independent jurisdiction as a Court of Equity in contra distinction to a Court of Law.

I am aware that some of our leading jurists and lawyers are not strong supporters of the continuation of the present appeal to the Privy Council, but on the other side I bring to the consideration of the members of the Bar the view of Lord Chancellor Haldane as set forth in the July (1923) number of the Empire Review, from which I quote the following extracts:

"It is convenient to have as the tribunal of ultimate resort a body which is detached and impartial and which yet administers the law of the particular Dominion and administer it with the large outlook which is the result of having to take cognisance of systems of jurisprudence of various nations—its very remoteness and its genuine unwillingness to claim jurisdiction has given it a certain popularity all over the Empire. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is a real link between the Dominion and the Colonies and the Mother Country. How long the judicial committee of the Privy Council will continue to exist as the link of Empire which it is to-day and how soon the distant parts of the world which are under the Constitutional Rule of the British Crown will continue to regard the Committee as a Supreme Tribunal of ultimate appeal, it is not possible to predict—the jurisdiction appears to be at present generally recognised as a useful and convenient one and there is little real desire to disturb it on the part of the great majority of those concerned. Its work is of a delicate kind and often difficult as well as delicate. As Lord Haldane says its varied duties and atmosphere have produced at times great personalities and that the weight of their authority produced contentment with their decisions. There is no visible weakening of the old traditio of giving the best help available to the Committee and the Judges of the Dominion and of India have begun in a new fashion to lend their assistance."

Personally I like to think that from Ontario the Robinsons, the Mowats, the Blakes, the McCarthys, the Oslers, a Riddell, a Nesbitt, a Hellemuth and a Tilley, with many other leaders of our Bar have entered and will continue to enter in wigs and robes the old oak pannelled room in Downing Street to argue and expound the principles and practices of the law "before five elderly gentlemen, who without wigs or robes sit round the horse shoe oak table of the Judge with the masks of years of immersion in legal contemplation written on their brows."

I like to think that some future Lord Chancellor will continue to deserve to receive as his just due praise similar to that bestowed by Ex-Lord Chancellor Birkenhead on the then Ex-Lord Chancellor Lord Haldane, "Lord Haldane has all his life been the most industrious man in England. He is immensely courteous, very patient, very learned, very conscientious—occasionally somewhat reminiscent—(Note: Reminiscent men are not revolutionists.—F.D.K.)—his colleagues at the Bar and at the Bench know his great qualities—his work on the Judicial Committee has been beyond all praise, so that no name throughout the British Empire is more respected than that of Lord Haldane."

With this faithful servant of the King as Lord Chancellor I find myself unable to believe that our laws, our courts or our constitution will be radically or suddenly changed.

I believe that the following extract in reference to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council indicates his mental outlook on many problems, and should be assurance, if any is needed, that he will not attempt to destroy those things which we and he have hitherto held as sacred.

"There is still more that can be done, but care must be taken to bring it about, not rashly or hurriedly, but in a fashion in which continuity of spirit may remain unbroken.

"For the spirit is everything with a tribunal of a nature so anomalous from a modern point of view as is the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. It is hopeless to search for the secret of such success as it has had merely in printed documents. For it is not in the written letter that the description of the real nature of the Court is to be found. The true description can only be given by those who, living here or coming from afar, have been in daily contact with the working of this extraordinary organization, and have experienced the extent to which it is continuously seeking to adapt its life to the needs which it has to fulfil as a link between the parts of the Empire."

OUT OUR WAY--By Williams

THIRTY-FIVE SUICIDES TODAY

Every day at least 35 Americans commit suicide. Last year there were 12,948 who killed themselves, reports the Save-a-Life League. These are the known cases. Many others — probably thousands — did away with themselves never to be discovered.

The league estimates that a third of the suicides are due to instanity. As a matter of fact all suicides are temporarily unbalanced mentally. That is why the person, depressed and tempted to take his own life should wait at least for 24 hours.

A day almost always changes the decision from self-destruction to the normal desire for self-preservation.

And to-morrow may bring better things it is always blackest just before the dawn.

Poverty, remorse, sickness and loneliness are the principal reasons for suicide. At least two of them can be mastered—poverty and loneliness. Sickness, too, usually is not hopeless. Remorse, of course, cannot be escaped except by atonement.

Twenty per cent. of last year's suicides, it is estimated, were due to business failures. Despair is a better way of expressing it—or lack of courage to fight for a come-back.

Sex complications are believed to cause a third of all suicides. Rejected lover, deserted wife, loss of a mate by death. A cataclysmic emotion is love. Without it most people do not consider life is worth living.

But the most pathetic among the suicides are the children. Four thousand between the ages of 6 and 18 killed themselves in 1923. Generally they were the victims of unhappy homes, unpleasant school experiences, youthful marriages or jazz life.

Hesitate, you who are so melancholy and depressed that you are on the border land of mental instability. To-morrow will be a brighter day. Sunshine follows every storm. And the commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," applies as much to self-destruction as to the killing of others.

PATHETIC

The right of tenement children to play in their backyards is upheld by the New York state supreme court, appeals division. It has been claimed that the kiddies were trespassing.

That such a thing has to be taken to court, is a clear-cut picture of metropolitan "civilization."

Alleys have disappeared. Backyards are vanishing. Streets are perilous. Where can the children play? They are getting a rotten deal. Parks are too few, too far away.

Most cyclones in North America follow definite tracks which cover southern Canada and Northern United States.

SATIN COAT

The black satin coat of this season makes itself unusually attractive by following the new Directoire line with one or more shoulder capes, and uses rows of buttons most knowingly.

FIRST AND PARAMOUNT, ABSOLUTE SECURITY TO POLICYHOLDERS.

"PERHAPS I'll take out a policy next year," you say.

Your life is just as uncertain during this year as it will be later. Don't leave your family's future in doubt for another day.

Twice recently we've seen instances of men who have died within a year of their having been solicited for life assurance.

In one case the man put the matter off—to-day his widow is almost penniless. The other man purchased a policy—paid only one premium—and his widow received three thousand dollars. Comment is unnecessary.

We've a booklet called "The Creation of an Estate" that we'd like to send you—if you've interest enough to write for it.

SLOW EYES BLAMED FOR AUTO SMASHES.

Persons Three - Fourths Blind Should Not Be Permitted to Pilot Cars on Streets.

Editor's Note:

In their zeal to reduce traffic accidents, police, legislative and auto authorities have paid little attention to one important factor—the eyesight of motorists. It is to lack of good eyesight that Dr. W. B. Needles, famous Chicago oculist, attributes a great number of auto accidents. And it is in a universal examination of motorists' eyes and refusal of driving licenses to those with poor eyesight that he sees the solution to the accident problem. Dr. Needles has made a thorough study of vision as regards motoring. His story follows:

By DR. W. B. NEEDLES

resident, Northern Illinois College of Ophthalmology and Otology

Through almost criminal negligence we permit the piloting of high-powered automobiles through our crowded streets by persons who in some instances are three-fourths blind and partially deaf.

Of course, not all accidents in which the driver declares, "I did not see him," are due to eye defects. But investigation has shown that an amazing number of them are.

But, you ask, would such a person be rash enough to drive an automobile? The fact is the semi-blind often do not know that their vision is below normal. Some of them are born with poor sight and have never even suspected that they do not see the same as others.

A cause of accidents seldom recognized lies in the weakness of eye muscles, resulting in slow eye movements. Some individuals can turn their eyes to the right more easily than to the left. Others turn to the left more easily than to the right. Some have difficulty in turning upward, others downward, and some have trouble with all eye movements.

Health Impaired

Not only are eyes with weak muscles less efficient, but they frequently cause great discomfort and even contribute to impaired health. They sometimes induce dizziness, frontal and temporal headaches and occasionally give rise to digestive trouble and disturbance of the nervous system with far-reaching effects.

There are many cases of defective eyes for which there is no aid and which are positively dangerous to an automobile driver. A number of states require all drivers to procure special licenses after physical and mental examination.

Even the most superficial examination of those who apply for drivers' licenses reveals hundreds of cases among the applicants who are totally unsafe to conduct a motor car through city traffic.

Hooch Harmful

A person whose eyes reveal any imperfection is permanently unsafe to drive an automobile and when he does so is a menace to pedestrians, other drivers and himself. It is a lamentable fact that moonshine poisoning is causing many cases of partial blindness these days. Periodic renewal of drivers' licenses after re-examination is, therefore, necessary, especially for truck and cab drivers.

A chauffeur in Providence, R.I., who had three serious collisions in a short time, was found to have only one-fourth vision and acknowledged what he called a mild case of wood alcohol poisoning some time before.

It is obvious, therefore, that a system of licensing only those drivers who can meet certain minimum requirements, cannot fail to bring about a very great reduction in motor accidents. Many states have such a method in operation and others are contemplating passing similar laws in the near future.

Eye Test and Exercise

To test your eyes select two pictures or other objects 15 feet apart and in the same plane. Stand midway between the pictures 10 feet from the wall on which they hang. Have a friend time you for exactly 10 seconds.

As the word "Go" start shifting your eyes from one picture to the other as rapidly as you can and continue the movements until time is called.

The normal count is 20 oscillations in 10 seconds. Few eyes are capable of as high as 24 to 26, but more fall below 20.

To exercise your eyes take you position once more between the pictures, rotate your eyes from one to the other 10 times, as rapidly as possible. Close them while you count five, then open and move them up and down as far as possible in each direction so as to exercise the vertical muscles. Do this 10 times, then close the lids, count five, open and repeat the side-to-side movement.

These exercises should continue for three minutes at a time, at least twice each day, preferably on rising and retiring. Every few days repeat the test by the watch and note the increase in speed.

Keep up the exercises until you are capable of 24 oscillations in 10 seconds. This allows for a slight slump which may follow discontinuance.

REICHSTAG MEMBERS WANT PROTECTION OF REPUBLIC

BERLIN, May 27. — The extreme Nationalist members of the Reichstag, numbering 32, last night formulated a remarkable programme, including the immediate election of a new president, the repeal of the law for the protection of the republic, amnestity for all participants in the Munich and Kuestrin revolts, trial on charge of treason of all who participated in the revolution of Nov., 1918, and collaborated with Soviets, expulsion of all Jews who entered German, since 1914, confiscation of their porperty, and the abolition of the right to change Jewish names.

MUJIKS

Russia, taxing every one heavily will assess farmers about 18 per cent. of their crops.

This seems scandalous to a reader in America. But if you check up with a rence, you'll find that 18 per cent of total income of the public is not far from the cost of national, state, county and municipal government in the United States.

A Good Bedtime Story

The Board of Pardons and the Prisoner: Based on the Recent Trend in All Parts of the Continent.

(Case No. 1. J. LeGrand Larceny, a bucket-shop king).

Q: What do you wish?

A: If it's the same to you I'd like to get out of prison. I find it most uncomfortable there.

Q: What were you charged with?

A: Stealing about $100,000 from customers.

Q: What's your objection to the prison?

A: I don't like the location.

Q: What's the matter with the location?

A: It's too far away from the business centre.

Q: Any other objection?

A: Yes. It's practically impossible to sell the warden and guards anything.

Q: If released will you promise to do better?

A: Better? By at least another hundred thousand a year.

Q: Petition granted. Anything else we can do for you?

A: Could you manage to set me up in business again?

Q: Matter put over until next meetin of the Parole Board. Will you join us at lunch?

A: I don't mind.

They exit merrily.

(Case No. 2. Simon Sparrow, clam digger.

Q: What's your name?

A: Simon Sparrow, sir.

Q: Well, whaddaya want? Speak quick and don't be taking up our time.

A: I would like to get out of prison.

Q: That's a laugh! How long have you been in?

A: Nine years s'r.

Q: Why, you've hardly started your sentence. What were you charged with?

A: I stole a Hot Cross bun.

First Member of the Board: Hear that? He admits it!

Second Member: Horrible! Take him away!

Q: Don't you know it's a grave offense to steal a Hot Cross bun? Think of your example to the youth of our country. What would become of us if we let people go in for Hot Cross bun stealing promiscuously?

A: I'm sure I don't know, sir. I'm very sorry.

Q: What did you do with this bun?

A: I gave it to my wife and eight children.

Q: What did they do with it?

A: They ate it, sir.

Q: Are they in prison with you?

A: No, sir.

Entire Board (indignantly): Why not?

(He is rushed back to his cell.)

(Case No. 3, Nicky Crabalot, serving term for robbing widows and other gullible investors of life's savings.)

Q: What can we do for you?

A: I must get out of prison at once.

Q: When did you begin your term?

A: Saturday.

Q: What day is today?

A: Sunday.

Q: Can't you manage to stay in over the week-end as a special favor?

A: I'll try it.

Q: By the way, how many people were you accused of robbing?

A: About six hundred.

Q: Did they try you on all counts?

A: No, only on one

(Case No. 4. Avery Goopus, umbrella repairer. Offense: Snatching animal crackers from a bakery store window.)

Q: How long you been up?

A: Twelve years next Tuesday.

Q: What did you do?

A: I stole a half dozen animal crackers.

Q: What did the judge give you?

A: Two years on each of six counts!

Q: Back to prison! Whaddya thinks we are, a lot of simps?

ROLAND McDONALD CONFESSED TO KILLING

ELLSWORTH, Maine, May 27 (Canadian Press). — Roland McDonald, a fifteen-year-old pupil in the country school at Amherst, has confessed, according to Sheriff Wescott, of Hancock County, that he killed Louise B. Gerrish, the youthful school teacher, on a lonely road last Wednesday night.

The Sheriff said that Roland had pointed out the spot where he shot the girl and re-enacted the crime.

PAYING

In nine months Uncle Sam collects nearly 2147 million dollars in internal taxes. New York state paid a fourth.

The total is about $20 for every American man, woman and child. And much of it is pyramided before it is passed on to final consumers. We pay all taxes—pay on everything we buy. The landlord "figures" his taxes in adjusting rent. So with other things.

Uncle Sam's latest estimate places the national wealth at nearly 321 billion dollars. A 4 per cent tax on all this wealth would wipe out the national debt in two years.

BRITAIN SPENT OVER BILLION TO HELP HER IDLE SUBJECTS

Doles, Which Still Continue, Have Amounted Already to $1,500,000,000—Paid Week by Week to Jobless Men.

By CLARENCE DUBOSE

LONDON, May 27 (United Press).—England has spent $1,500,000,000, in unemployment relief since the armistice, and expects to continue spending large sums under the pending bill to increase the "doles," or weekly payments made to the unemployed.

The expenditure of this vast sum for the relief of persons out of work has: 1 Prevented serious social upheavals and checked, to some extent, social unrest by relieving a great deal of human suffering. 2. Brought about what seems to be a permanent improvement in the unemployment situation. 3. Caused the commencement of public works which, while intended primarily to give jobs to hungry men, will remain as community assets in the way of roads, bridges, drainage schemes, etc.

The future bill for "doles" will, it is believed, never again be as much as it has been in recent years, even though an increased "dole" be given each unemployed person—because the number of unemployed is decreasing.

There are now 11,500,000 men and women workers registered under the government unemployment insurance act and of these slightly more than 1,000,000 are unemployed and receiving "doles"—weekly payments ranging from $1.50 to $3.75. The new bill proposes to increase the maximum weekly payment to an unemployed person to $4.50, and to liberalize the additional allowances for each invalid or young child dependent upon an unemployed person.

Where the Money Goes

The total amount of "doles" paid from the beginning of the plan, after the armistice, to date, is, in round numbers, $772,000,000. This sum has actually been paid, week by week, to men and women who had no jobs and who could not have lived without this or some other relief arrangement. The administration of the act—salaries of employees, office expenses, etc., has been $78,000,000, or a total "dole" bill of $850,000,000. Another $650,000,000 has been spent in other unemployment relief not scheduled under the unemployment relief not scheduled under the unemployment insurance act, making a grand total of $1,500,000,000. Of this about $145,000,000 has gone for building roads, bridges and public improvements, in order primarily to provide jobs; and $505,000,000 has been paid to individuals under the various schemes of post-war relief. This, together with the weekly doles, makes $1,277,000,000 paid directly to unemployed since the armistice.

Government "unemployment insurance" is compulsory in England. Every manual worker in all the country, both men and women—with the exceptions of agricultural workers, house servants and a few other classifications—must register. No workman can get a job without showing a card. As long as he has a job, he retains possession of the card. When he loses his job he turns in the card to the nearest government unemployment insurance bureau, whereupon he commences receiving a weekly "dole," which continues until he gets another job. Thus, at any time, all the government has to do is to count its cards in order to know exactly how many persons are out of work in England.

Not Really Charity

Strictly speaking the term "dole" is a misnomer, because the payments are not really charity. The workpeople themselves, and the employers, contribute more to the government unemployment fund than the government itself does. For the last twelve months the fund has been composed by payments of 18,000,000 pounds from the employers; 16,000,000 from the workers and 12,500,000 from the government.

These payments are compulsory. Under the law small weekly deductions, varying according to a prescribed scale, are made by the employers from each workman's salary. The employer is at the same time assessed a larger percentage upon his payroll which he must turn over to the government, together with the deductions he had taken from the workers' salaries. The government adds to this form the State funds a somewhat smaller sum than either of the other contributions—and this makes the money paid to the English "out-of-work-er." When he accepts his "dole" he knows that he himself contributed toward one-third of it while he was in work.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, May 27.—The annual congregational meeting of the Methodist Church, held on Friday evening, showed that the past year had been a very successful one under the pastorate of Rev. R. F. Stillman, formerly of Omemee. There is an increase in membership of over fifty, and the different societies, in their reports, showed there was considerable interest and progress in their different avenues of work, and a commendable standing, both financial and otherwise.. Societies' representatives were elected to the quarterly official board, and other business transacted.

No Revenue Stamp.

Because it was claimed that he sold Flora Dora cigars without the Revenue stamp attached, a local citizen was fined $20.00 and costs, the latter amounting to about $14.00. Inspector Floody paid a visit to local tobacco stores last autumn, and it is alleged that a number of packages were found at this store without a stamp. The accused claimed an employee had removed the packages from the original carton bearing the stamp.

Tennis Club Organized.

The Young People's League of the Methodist Church has organized a tennis club with following officers:—
President—Stewart Machlin.
Secretary—Miss May Black.
Treasurer—George Hall.
Chairman of Ground Committee—Harold McMillan.

Male Voice Choir Here.

It was with a great deal of pleasure that Cobourg citizens welcomed Mr. M. B. Chenhall and the Peterborough Male Voice Choir to Cobourg on Thursday evening. They gave their recital in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, of which Rev. W. A. Brenner is pastor, which was well filled with a representative audience, including a large number from other churches. From the opening to the closing number the concert was very much enjoyed.

Presbytery to Meet.

A meeting of Whitby Presbytery has been called for Wednesday, May 28, at Port Perry, for the purpose of inducting Rev. Mr. Thornby, who has accepted a call to that village. Other business is to come up also in connection with representation at the meetings of the General Assembly, and other matters.

Fire at Canton.

A fire at Canton on Thursday night burned the lighting plant, cream separator and supplies at Batt Farm. There was an entertainment in progress in the Methodist Church when the fire broke out, and the promoters adjourned to help fight the fire, thereby confining it to the one building.

MOTHERS' ALLOWANCES HAVE BEEN EXTENDED TO COVER THE BLIND

Only Special Cases Will Be Considered By the Board — Must Take Training Course.

Since the institution of the mothers' allowances for children, benefits administered under the provisions of the Act in such respect, and by the Provincial Commission, allied with the Department of Labor, entreaty and efforts have been made to have the scope of the Act enlarged, that other cases of privation, resulting from the disability of the bread-winner of the family being incapacitated, have been made. One form of appeal concerns cases of blindness, not such cases as where loss of sight was in evidence in very early years of childhood, for instance, but brought on by any one of the natural causes, or, indeed, by accident, and of which latter many cases are coming about from month to month throughout the Province.

Also cases in which some affliction or disease has ruined the eyesight, that which no personal affliction can hardly be greater, to one accustomed to sight. The powers under the Act have limited assistance in such cases to those only where the husband of a wife, and with two or more children, was wholly and absolutely incapacitated from earning for the support of his family. Not alone from the loss of eyesight, but with accompanying physical affliction. In the past, and since 1920, a number of such cases have benefitted. The Local Board have had cases in its care in which after a period of almost total deprivation, eyesight has been well restored, enabling the husband to resume occupation.

It has been held that loss of sight does not permanently disable a man from taking up such employment as offers to those blind and so earning. One obstacle has been, and will no doubt always be in evidence, that a person blind, but otherwise in fair physical condition, requires to be taught and trained, and very often there is no money available for the period of tuition. For such cases develope, it is noticed, more frequently among those ill able to pay, and who have never been in even fair shape so far as means are concerned. But in response to appeals for consideration, and no doubt with approval of the Department and Government, the Provincial commission handling the mothers' Allowances is enabled to announce some easement of the rule as hitherto. In a circular letter, addressed to the local branches throughout the Province, the following statement is made:—

"The attention of the Commission has been drawn to some sad cases of need, caused through the total blindness of the father, and the Commission has decided to consider cases of this nature under section 5, clause 3-a, of the Mothers' Allowances Act as amended.

"If the circumstances warrant assistance will be given, such assistance to be of a temporary character, and conditional on the father taking the course of training leading to self-support, provided by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind."

As this is practically an extension of the work, and so provides an opportunity not hitherto available, the attention of the public is called to the above provision. If cases such as outlined, exist in the city, the local board will be glad to so be advised that action may be taken. And if such cases are within the knowledge of citizens, those afflicted might be advised and the suggestion made that, with a view to an examination of the circumstances, an application be made to the secretary of the local board—Mr. F. H. Dobbin, at the Y.M.C.A. Building—the case will be given attention.

IMPROVE DIESEL TRANSMISSION

HAMBURG, May 27.—(Associated Press).—A local firm of ship builders has turned out a motorboat with new wheel equipment that is said to solve the problem of transferring power from the Diesel motor to the shaft without vibration. The inventors claim also that their system results in the delivery of more power.

Lamb's Kidneys With Bacon.

Eight lamb's kidneys, four thin slices bacon, salt and pepper, few drops lemon juice.

Parboil kidneys for five minutes. Drain, dry and remove skin. Split in half lengthwise without detaching the halves and thrust a skewer through to keep flat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and a few drops of lemon juice Put a slice of bacon over each cut side and broil under the flame. Broil bacon side first, then turn and broi skin side. It will take about three minutes for each side.

Total calories, 860. Protein, 348; fat, 512. Iron, .0076 gram.

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 1 cup cooked wheat cereal with 6 dates, ¼ cup cream, 2 codfish balls, 2 waffles, 2 slices rye toast, 1 cup cream of spinach soup with 1 tablespoon whipped cream, 2 corn fritters with 4 tablespoons maple syrup, 4 spring onions, 2 tablespoons whole wheat croutons for soup, 2 slices rolled oats bread, 1-6 raisin pie, 1 cup cream of onion soup, 2 broiled lamb's kidneys with bacon, 3 new potatoes in ¼ cup cream sauce, 1 stuffed tomato salad with 3 tablespoons mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons jellied prunes with 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 1 pint whole milk, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 dinner rolls.

Total calories, 4417. Protein, 471; fat, 1872; carbohydrate, 2074. Iron, .0308 gram.

If less calories are necessary for the day, a lighter breakfast should be planned.

The rhubarb, cereal and toast furnish a hearty, well balanced meal of about 630 calories. The codfish balls and waffles, without butter or syrup will add about 450 calories.

So if your required calories number around 4000 and you eliminate the codfish balls and waffles, you will have a total of 3976 calories for the day.

The very short waisted frock is seen in creasing numbers as the season advances and the desire for something new and different becomes mor insistent.

"Exhausted Nerves and Palpitating Heart"

Mrs. L. Whiting, 202 King St. West, Brockville, Ont., writes:

"I took very sick with my nerves and stomach, and seemed to be all run down. At times my heart would flutter and palpitate so and I would take such weak spells in the pit of my stomach that I sometimes thought I would never get better. I tried several doctors, but it seemed nothing they gave me helped. I had almost given up hope when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I tried it, and can say it certainly has done wonders for me. I did not stop until I had taken twenty-five boxes."

KEEP MEDICINES OUT OF THE WAY

That is the Advice Given by Head of One Company.

MERLIN, May 27. — Amendment of the drug regulations to include in the classification of poisons the widely used A.B.S. and C. tablets will be urged upon the Provincial Government as a result of a verdict returned by a Coroner's jury here, inquiring into the death of the three-year-old son of C. C. Fischer.

From the evidence it appeared that the small boy had eaten some A.B.S. and C. tablets, the cause of death being given by Dr. A. E. Stewart, who attended, as strychnine poisoning.

Strongly Worded Rider.

With these facts in mind, members of the Coroner's jury added the following strongly worded rider to their verdict:

"That A.B.S. and C. tablets be considered as poison requiring a signature from the purchaser, and also that they be put up in conspicuous blue containers, so that such mistakes would in future be avoided."

The recommendation will be forwarded to the Ontario College of Pharmacy, with the request that the facts of the case be laid before the proper Provincial authorities with a view to securing the requested revision of the regulations.

Rider Branded as Useless.

Officials of the nationally known drug distributing and manufacturing companies were unanimous last evening in condemning the above recommendation as useless. They point out that A.B.S. and C. tablets are no more harmful than any other medicine, and say that if any simple remedy is taken in excess it may prove dangerous.

As to the quantity of strychnine in the pills, they maintain, that it is sufficiently small to make the inclusion of the tablets under the poison regulations very ridiculous.

One of the strongest points was made by the managing director of one of the largest Toronto firms, who pointed out that, since these fatalities always happened in the case of very small children, all precautionary means would be useless.

Colour Makes No Difference.

"What difference would it make," he asked, "if the pills were placed in blue bottles? To the small child they would still seem like 'nice chocolate candies.' It must be remembered that the thing to do is to keep medicines out of the way of children rather than to make their purchase by adults more difficult."

The formula for the pills in question is quite open, according to the drug companies, and the tablets are manufactured or sold by practically all wholesale dealers. The pills contain aloin, belladonna, strychnine, and cascara.

Women Students In Germany Turn to Technical Courses.

HEIDELBERG, May 27.—The number of women students in the German universities has more than doubled in the last ten years. Recent statistics show that in 1914 there were 4,100 women students, while today there are 9,531.

Medicine, jurisprudence and studies designed to fit the students to become teachers are the most popular clases, notwithstanding the fact that these professions already are very much over-crowded.

German women this year have taken a greater interest in agricultural subjects than at any studies designed to fit the students to become teachers notwithstanding the fact that these professions already are very much over-crowded.

German women this year have taken a greater interest in agricultural subjects than at any other time and all of the universities report enlarged classes also in architecture, engineering, and other technical studies.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

A SMALL DEPOSIT WILL STOP CANCELLATION LOSSES

Business can usually prevent wholesale cancellation of orders by requiring deposits with the orders. The time to require deposits is during periods of rising prices.

If there is any one thing that can bring on gray hairs among business men, it is wholesale cancellation of orders.

A reasonable deposit with orders will certainly tend to cut down cancellations, yet it may drive business away.

During periods of high prices cancellations hurt the worst because they involve more money. However, during periods of rising prices there usually is an apparent shortage of goods. Evidently this is the time to require a deposit without losing trade.

Apparently the business man can require a deposit to prevent cancellations at the very time when they are the most costly.

FLOWERED COATS

Coats of flowered material, the larger the flowers the better, are very picturesque for country wear.

BAD BLOOD PIMPLES AND BOILES
Banished By
Burdock Blood Bitters

Miss Irene A. Matthews, Stayner, Ont., writes:—"I thought I would write and tell you of the experience and benefit I have derived from Burdock Blood Bitters.

Some few months ago I was troubled with bad blood which broke out on my face in the nature of pimples, boils and ring-worm, and I got so bad I really did not know what to do.

I was ashamed to go anywhere, and the itching and burning caused such a terrible sensation I could get no relief day or night.

One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I used one bottle and felt quite a relief, and by the time I had taken 3 bottles I was completely relieved.

I cannot praise B.B.B. enough and I hope anyone afflicted like I was will get the same benefit I received."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Handle Livestock In Japan on Large Scale.

EDMONTON, May 27.—A firm of Japanese livestock dealers, headed by a wealthy Japanese of considerable prominence in Yokohama, known as the Japanese Butchers' Association, is already preparing to handle livestock shipments into Japan on a large scale. If a recent shipment of livestock to that country proves satisfactory and providing reasonable freight rates can be secured, it will be Canadian cattle that this big firm will handle.

The company is now engaged in the erection of livestock yards and corrals at Yokohama capable of handling at least 200 head of cattle each month.

The fact of the matter is that the Japanese are beginning to eat more meat, and this fact has prompted the Japanese Butchers' Association to the action they have taken.

HANDKERCHIEF HAS BIG FASHION ROLE

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, May 27 (United Press)—

Consider the lowly little "hanky,"
Always chic and always swanky—
Tucked in a vest or worn on the wrist;
Any place for fashion's gist.
Wrapped 'round the throat, or worn on a garter,
Poor little hank! It sure is a martyr!

The handkerchief plays an important role in the fashion world today. It forms Milady's hatband, acts as a scarf, becomes a charming appendage on her wristlet, conceals her powderpuff, forms the bow of her garter, and does numerous other fashion stunts.

One has only to glance at the accessory departments of the shops to get the full significance of the 'kerchief's power. Counters are ladened with handkerchiefs of every color, every size and every price. Some of these sell as high as $15 each. The average wisp of chiffon or fine linen sells from 75 cents to $2. And each gown must have a handkerchief of it's own! So the yearly handkerchief bill assumes enormous proportions, if Milady follows the mode.

One of the newest "handky holders"—if one may call them that—is a finger ring with a silver loop attachment which holds the colorful chiffon handkerchief. These are worn on the little finger. Wristlets of velvet or beaded bands are fashioned in similar manner as a means for displaying the dainty handkerchief. Old ivory budhas suspended on necklaces are made so that they will open and close, being veritable hanky concealers

Powder Puff Bags

Then there are the powder-puff bags made of lovely silk handkerchiefs. These make adorable gifts and can be easily made. A circle is drawn on the centre of the handkerchief sufficiently large to hold a powder-puff. A bias strip of silk is sewed about the circle through which is run a narrow ribbon. This forms a little bag, with four corners of the handkerchief making a ruffle. These are very lovely for evening wear.

Fine ecru lace trims many of the more elaborate handkerchiefs this Spring, forming the border for the pastel-hued chiffon or georgette square, the lace in some cases being so wide that it forms almost the entire handkerchief. Fine linen squares of bright shades are still popular and these are embroidered in self-color or trimmed with lace edges this season. The drawn-thread effect and colorful embroidered patterns are not quite as popular as formerly.

Garter Handkerchiefs

These are also lovely gifts for th bride or the young miss. Silk ribbon garters of pastel shades are made with loops at the sides, through which are run tiny silk handkerchiefs of chiffon or crepe de chene. Though the garters are of the same shade, the handkerchiefs adorning them are of contrasting colors.

On mentioning the oddity of the garter 'kerchief, the clerk explained that these were particularly popular with the "dancing debbies," who were forever losing their handkerchiefs and wanted to carry extra ones to replace lost ones. At any rate, the tiny lace-edged squares make adorable garter bows.

Fashions in Lip-Sticks

Women don't retire these days to redden their lips. They carry their lip-sticks right with them where they can have them always handy. Many lip-stick containers are shown this season which in themselves are works of art. There are tiny doll-shaped cases made to contain lip-sticks, hand-painted pendants for necklaces, which conceal the lip-stick; lip-stick tassels for trimming one's frock, lip-stick umbrella handles, and what not. The Mandarin tassel is one of the most effective ways of concealing the lip-stick. These adorn some of the imported frocks, handbags and fans. They are colorful, tubular cases, from which are suspended silken tassels. Sometimes the lip-stick case is concealed beneath the tassel itself.

Bracelet Mirrors

Little ribbon wristlets with medallion-shaped mirrors are among the latest novelties. The mirrors are about the size of the average wrist-watch and are sometimes outlined in brilliants.

RESURFACING ROADS.

Quebec Programme Calls for 1,000 Miles a Year For Five Years.

QUEBEC, May 27.—According to the progress of road maintenance which has been drafted by Hon. J. L. Perron, Minister of Roads, on advices of J. L. Boulanger, Deputy Minister of Roads and his engineers, the re-surfacing of the 5,000 miles of improved roads will now be carried out at the rate of one-fifth per year. That means that to meet the requirements and keep the roads in good condition it will be necessary to completely replace the surface within a period of five years.

Germany Offers Good Market For American Automobiles.

BERLIN, May 27.—(Associated Press).—Prospects for American automobiles in Germany are excellent, and especially in the medium priced cars may a substantial business be looked for, says a trade report of the American Chamber of Commerce in Germany. Auto trucks also will find a good market here, the report avers.

High priced passenger cars will meet the competition of German manufacturers, according to the chamber, so it appears that cars selling below $1,000 will be mostly in demand.

Sleeping Sickness Increasing Rapidly In Great Britain

LONDON, May 27. — Sleeping sickness is rapidly increasing in this country, and 649 cases were notified by doctors in the first three weeks of April against 468 in March, 217 in February and 75 in January.

While investigations into the cause of the disease are being carried out by the Medical Research Council, doctors admit they do not know either a cure or any means of preventing the spread. Large towns appear to be more affected than rural districts and the disease seems to spread westward.

A medical officer of health says from one-fourth to one-half of the patients die and not many of the remaining have, so far, completely recovered.

HURONIC IN DRY DOCK.

All the damage is above the water line at the stern. When her cargo is discharged she will go into drydock for repair.

New Electric Power Plant Nearly Ready In Brazil.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 27. — (Associated Press).—What is said to be the largest hydro-electric power development in South America is now nearing completion on the Parahyba River near this city. For more than two years an organization of about 3,000 men, under the direction of a staff of American engineers and construction men, has been building dams, canals, power-house and transmission lines which will generate and distribute 162,000 electric horse-power over a large zone in this part of Brazil.

It is expected that the new plant will be in operation by June of this year.

Homesick Ex-King Manuel Secretly Revisits Portugal.

LISBON, May 27.—If a story that is being whispered among royalists and scowled at by republicans is true, Dom Manuel of Braganza, ex-king of Portugal, recently broke his exile and paid a clandestine visit to his favorite old country place of Villa Vicosa. Manuel was exiled when the republic was declared in 1910 and forbidden to reenter the country.

His brief return, however, was not to conspire against the republic, but was impelled by an irresistible homesickness, according to reports, to revisit the scenes of his happy youth in this beautiful palace and park.

While there he is said to have received two personal friends and to have made close inquiries as to the administration of the Braganza estates.

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—brilliant young inventor, who, though loving Prudence, became entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—Guest at the country home of wealthy

Mrs. Vansittart—from whom Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Virginia throws Peter Armstrong over because he has been blinded in an accident in his laboratory, and she tries to marry an old 'flame,'

Bert Traymore—who will not have her. Immediately thereafter the police arrest Virginia for her numerous thefts, and takes her off.

Prudence is sitting at Peter's bedside one night when she hears a sound as of someone moving stealthily in the laboratory. Prudence lights a candle, goes into the laboratory, and a masked man springs at her.

CHAPTER LXXIX.

Hope.

Prudence could scarcely remember afterwards what happened. There, in the darkness of what had been Peter's laboratory, she fought like a little wild-cat with the masked intruder.

"Help! Help!" she shouted at the top of her voice. "Help! Quick!"

She hung on desperately to the thief, with a life-or-death determination that go he should not till Peter's rightful property had been restored! Those papers at the desk he had been fumbling over—without a doubt they contained the whole, secret record of the sick men's experiments and forthcoming invention.

This brute was deliberately robbing a blinded man—but she (Prudence! would sooner die than let him get away.

"Shut up, you fool!" The man had some sort of scarf that he was desperately trying to twist about her mouth and head.

Prudence's courage did not fail her. indeed, it seemed as though some superhuman strength were given her in this hour of need.

She struggled for those papers, calling breathlessly the while, though her voice seemed to come from very far away.

The man contrived to get his two hands on her throat, and a great, roaring noise surged in her ears, just like a mighty torrent.

Beneath it all, there was a queer realization that she had heard the creature's voice before.

Peter's invention! The work of months and years! His high hopes smashed forever! She couldn't . . . couldn't . . . let this creature steal those papers . . . even if she died to save her lover's work!

Suddenly the ghastly grip relaxed, and at the same time a bright light was flashed into the room. Prudence's eyes were closed, but through her lids she was conscious of this brilliance, and then conscious of a crash that echoed through the place as someone literally hurled himself across the floor in the direction of the intruder, and . . .

She sat up painfully, dragging her eyes open, to perceive—oh! most astounding picture!—Peter Armstrong with the masked man in his grip!

From behind her came a woman's scream, shrill, strident:

"You'll kill yourself! Leave him go!"—and, to add to the melee, Nurse Brown tottered forward.

But before another word was uttered, Peter had wrenched the mask from the intruder's face, revealing to the woman's startled gaze the fury-twisted features of Bert Traymore!

"So it's you, is it?" Peter shouted, and lounged out straight at him. "You'll pay for this! You'll——"

The blow was dodged by Traymore, who ducked his head and made a wild dash for the open door, shooting through it with what seemed to be the velocity of a six-inch shell!

The lamp which Nurse Brown had set down as she entered the laboratory behind her amazing patient, still flooded the place with light, and the floor was strewn with loose leaves from a notebook and various other documents.

Prudence leapt to her feet and ran to Peter, who was now swaying on his feet. She flung an arm about him, calling to the nurse:

"Quick! Help me!"

Nurse Brown pulled herself together and darted forward just as the invalid slumped helplessly against the girl.

"He's fainted! How on earth he had the strength to get in here, God only knows!" mumbled the woman, helping Prudence to lay her patient on the floor. "There was no holding him back, I tell you. He had the power of Samson! But he'll never survive tonight's excitement, never in his condition!"

Prudence ran to shut and bolt the door, and as she did so almost collided with a man upon the mat. Was it Traymore back again to steal the papers? . . . back again to try to kill her? . . .

"I say, what's happened?"

She gave a stifled cry, and then she saw that it was—heaven be praised!—Will Ogilvie!

"I say, what's happened?" Will rushed past her and up to the recumbent figure on the floor. "Armstrong? —good God! Who brought him here?"

"He came himself," said Nurse Brown, in a shaky voice. "Miss Page was attacked by a thief, and nothing would hold Mr. Armstrong back. He was out of his bed and at the front door the moment he heard her calling. I tried to stop him, but he flung me back with the strength of Samson, I tell you. So I grabbed up the lamp and overtook him just as he got in here——"

"Did the fellow hurt him?" Will Ogilvie knelt down on the stone floor, while Prudence carried the lamp nearer. "A chap dashed past me across the fields just now, carcering hell-for-leather——"

"It was Traymore from the Towers," said Prudence, with dry lips.

Between them they carried the sick man back to his bed, and then Will Ogilvie got a neighbor to hurry for the local doctor.

Will came back quickly.

"I'm not going to leave you two women alone in the cottage for fear this scoundrel of a Traymore—or his pals, maybe—come back and make a second attempt," said he. "What was the rascal trying to steal? Queer—wasn't it?—how Janet had a premonition that something was going to happen in her absence—so she sent me back."

"Traymore was trying to get hold of Peter's invention. It wasn't patented, you know." Prudence gave a half-sob, gazing down at the unconscious face of the man she loved better than life itself.

"Then I'll run into the—what'd you call it?—laboratory, and collect those papers I saw lying about."

Prudence was left alone for a moment, and in that moment came a sudden realization of a strange fact, a most astounding thought.

"When Peter tore the mask from Traymore's face and shouted: 'So it's you, is it?' that surely went to prove," thought Prudence, all a-tremble with a palpitating hope—"that surely went to prove that Peter's sight had suddenly come back to him!"

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE TWINS VISIT ROBINSON CRUSOE

Robinson Crusoe was sitting on the seashore.

"Does Robinson Crusoe live in Once-Upon-a-Time Land?" asked Nick.

"Of course he does," said Mister Muggs, and so does his man Friday, and his dog, and his parrot, and his goat."

"I'd like to visit him," said Nick. "May we go?"

"Why, yes; I think the poor man would like to have company," answered the fairyman. "He must get lonely."

So they all got into the little automobile and whizzed away to Once-Upon-a-Time Land, but they soon came to the edge of it and they had to get out and take a little boat and sail off to the desert island where Robinson Crusoe lived.

Robinson Crusoe was sitting on the seashore with his goat-skin umbrella over him. The Twins thought it a funny parasol, but then it was no queerer than his cap and coat and shoes, which were also of goat-skin.

On top of the umbrella sat a parrot sound asleep in the sun.

"Hello, hello, hello!" screamed the parrot, suddenly opening its eyes. "Wake up, Crusoe. Here's a boat-load of cannibals! Help! Help! More cannibals."

"Keep quiet and go and call my black man, Friday," said Robinson Crusoe, jumping up and upsetting the bird off his perch.

"How do you do, good people," he said. "It's been many a year since I've seen a white man. Come into my house and have some cheese and a cup of goat's milk. Besides, Friday is baking barley bread to-day, and it ought to be done by this time."

"Barley bread! Does barley grow on this desert island?" asked Mister Muggs in surprise.

"Yes," said Robinson Crusoe. "I discovered some grains in an old sack that I found after my ship was wrecked, and I planted them. We have quite a barley crop now.

"Friday! Friday! Man Friday!" they heard the parrot screaming. "Come out and give these folks a goat to milk. And throw a barley loaf at them!"

"What a funny bird!" laughed the Twins. "And isn't he smart!"

"His voice is better than his manners," said Robinson Crusoe.

After that they all went to the house, half of which was hollowed out of rock like a cave, and half of which was made out of old sails stretched over posts. It was completely surrounded by a high fence that Crusoe had made when he was first shipwrecked on the island.

There was no gate, so they had to climb up a rope ladder on the outside, and then down a rope-ladder on the inside. Everything was as snug and tidy as a bird's nest.

And if they thought Robinson Crusoe's clothes were odd, I'm sure I dont know what they thought of Man Friday's, for there wasn't enough of them to make remarks about.

Robinson Crusoe's dog was there and his two cats and his goat and his parrot, and altogether they had a merry party.

The wrecked sailor told them stories of his adventures for an hour, and how he expected to go home soon to London, but that he loved his desert island too well to leave it.

"We'll have to be going now," said Mister Muggs. "Thank you for being nice to us. Good-bye!"

"Good-bye!" called Polly. "Come back when you can't stay so long."

This Season's Dresses Fit Father's Pocketbook and Mother's Taste.

By MARIAN HALE.

The girl graduate of this season will dress like a school girl, not a society deb.

A survey of the smartest shops fails to disclose any of the creations such as parents and teachers disapproved of so thoroughly a few years ago.

Since so many of the smart boarding schools have adopted the middy blouse and white skirt as the regulation graduation outfit, high schools have followed their lead.

And the heavy expenditure of father's income that used to be a part of the commencement programme, is not necessary this year. For graduation frocks were never more simple, more attractive or available at more reasonable prices.

In cotton materials there are the organdies, plain or embroidered, and voile with dots, checks, overplaids, and lace stripes that require practically no trimming. And there are lovely sheer handkerchief linens, dotted swisses and novelty materials.

Silk used to be frowned upon for the school girl, but the white crepe de chine dress of the sport type is so useful and such a general favorite, that we find it recommended very highly for a commencement dress.

Georgette crepe is used very simply for the school girl, usually with a slightly bouffant frock and lace ruffles or flowers, or with a bit of embroidery or hand hemstitching.

Though sheer dresses are usually worn over plain white slips there are many flesh-colored ones shown and a bit of color either in the slip or sash or about the corsage is quite the rule.

MAILED MATCHES START FIRES.

WASHINGTON, May 27 (Associated Press). — Warning that matches and other inflammable materials are prohibited transportation in the mails, is being given by postmasters throughout the country at the direction of the Post Office Department.

The warning resulted from complaints of the German postal authorities that two fires in the Bremen post office, and a fire in a postal car at Lenpzic, were due to matches enclosed in parcel post packages mailed in the United States.

Day by Day

Just to stand upon the corner while the world passes by and to view the types of people you will find, is a thing that's worth the trouble; its' a lesson, through the eye, and it sends a lot of wonders through your mind.

Comes a cripple on his crutches and he wends a weary way as he hobbles, selling things from place to place. You'll admit that he has trouble, yet he doesnt' look that way, and you wonder at the smile upon his face.

Then a newsie, with his papers, selling everyone he can, keeps his pep up through the daily long-hour grind. Is he better at his business than the average business man? There's another little wonder for your mind.

Walking gaily is a maiden and her lips are brilliant red, and the color on her cheeks is not her own. And you wonder why the makeup, for, when all is done and said, she'd be sweeter if her looks were let alone.

People pass and you can view them, and impressions come galore. Just a-wond'ring is a natural thing to do. But when you are on the corner eyeing others by the score, dont forget that folks are wond'ring over you.

Washington Annuls Citizenship Granted Under Confederacy.

NEW ORLEANS, May 27.—(Associated Press).—After residing in New Orleans virtually all his life, believing himself to be an American and exercising a citizen's suffrage, William Dixon Seymour has learned in Federal Court that he is a British subject. Seymour was born in Mexico of British parentage and his father was naturalized by the Confederacy during the Civil War.

The discovery that he was a British subject was made when Seymour attempted to obtain a passport to visit Europe. It was denied by the State Department upon the ground that he could not prove his American citizenship. At the same time it was held that rights granted by the Confederacy were not legal.

SEARCH MOUNTAIN CAVE FOR SLAYER

Police Hope to Find High-Power Rifle Used to Kill Couple at Marysville.

VICTIMS' FUNERAL

MARYSVILLE, Pa., May 27.—A cave used by Blue Ridge Mountain bandits nearly twenty years ago is being searched to-night by State police in the hope of finding the high-powered rifle used by the murderer of Leah Ellenberg and Harry Ganster, who, with one bullet, were killed last Friday night near Lambs Gap, seven miles from here.

Still pinning their hopes to the vengeful moonshiner theory, State police endeavored to-day to link it with another theory implicating two bitter enemies of the Ganster boy, residents of Marysville.

The funeral of the young couple's over, the police and county authorities settled down to-night to what they predict will be a long term of watchful waiting and investigation.

Late Tuesday evening Major Lynn G. Adams, head of the State police conducting the investigation, was approached by a mountain farmer who attended the funeral of the Ganster youth. It was this farmer who confided to the Major that not more than a mile from the scene of the crime there is a cave, which, fifteen years ago, was used by bandits as a cache and hiding place.

This spot is on a little frequented section of the mountain and has so far been overlooked by the police in their search of the vicinity. It is located alongside a little stream, which, police believe, could have been used by the moonshiners in making their mash. The police believe they will find that the place is habited by the same man or men who, two years ago, operated the still near Camp The Limit, which was destroyed by State police after pictures of it, taken by young Ganster, had been published.

This afternoon Major Adams held another long conference with Cletus Corson, twenty-two-year-old life-long intimate of the slain boy. It was Corson who told newspaper-men of Ganster's two local enemies.

The calibre of the rifles owned by the two local suspects is the one thing which police here are anxious to learn. It is known they are of high calibre, but it is not yet known whether or not either of them is of the same calibre as the bullet which killed the two.

Rifle is Best Clue.

If this proves to be true, Major Adams said he would at once have the owner arrested and the rifle tested to learn whether the grooves and flanges on a ball fired from it would be of the same width and length as those on the bullet used by the murderer.

It is now thought that the two local men, enemies of Ganster, had operated the still in the mountains which Ganster disclosed two years ago. It is believed that these men, still moonshiners, were known by Ganster to be such, and that meeting him Friday, while possibly crazed by liquor, they killed him after trailing him to the desolate spot near Lambs Gap.

The discovery this evening of footprints leading from a fork in the main road to a spot fifty yards from the scene of the tragedy strengthened this idea. Major Adams said these tracks had evidently been made by a man who spotted the car at the crossroads and then hurried to a position where he could shoot. The man then returned to the same spot and on over the road in the general direction of the place in which the bandit's cave is believed to be located.

A cabin, not more than five hundred yards from the Gap, is thought to have been occupied recently by these same moonshiners. Within was found a stove which two years ago had been stolen from the Ganster cabin at Camp The Limit. It was this theft which led the boy to disclose the still to the police.

FABLES ON HEALTH

WATCH BABY'S GROWTH.

"Growing fast," Mr. Mann would say, studying the tiny figure in the crib.

"Yes," the doctor would smile. "But, after all, the growth is not so reliable an index of development as most people think."

Weight is, after all, the most important factor. However, since most people are equally interested in size, Mr. Mann made it a point to find out a few things.

The average baby is twenty inches long at birth. After a half a year a growth of some four inches should have taken place. Three inches more should be added to this at the end of a year, and the leg bone should have commenced to harden to support the weight.

Generally, head, abdomen and chest measure the same at birth, but these dimensions soon change. The depressions to be found in the head at birth soon fill in, and bones at the back of the head begin to close at the end of six or eight weeks. If openings are still noticeable after 18 months and the head remains seemingly large and square of shape, with broad frontal bones, the child is likely to be subject to rickets and a doctor should be called.

Her Sex Wrongly Registered, Girl Is Called to Colors.

PRAGUE, May 27.—(Associated Press).—When a class of recruits was called up for miltary service in the Bohemian town of Chlumec recently, among them was a young woman of 20, dressed in her holiday attire and wearing a huge bouquet.

To the officer in charge she presented a proper summons for the compulsory 18 months' service.

Suspecting an attempt at evasion an examination of the girl was ordered and she was found to be what she claimed. Investigation of the registers showed that date and place of birth and all other particulars were correct, except that sex had been erroneously entered as male.

On Preventable Blindness

Advocating Provincial regulations throughout Canada, to make prophylactic treatment of the eyes of all newly born infants compulsory by attending physicians, Miss Hayhurst, Prevention of Blindness and Social Secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, has presented somewhat startling facts and figures in a report which she has prepared for a special committee dealing with problems of blindness in Canada.

"One-half of the blindness in Canada, as in the world generally, is due to preventable causes," the report states. Blindness is almost always the result of abnormal, wrong conditions, ignorance, disease, dirt, illness, accident, shock, crime—therefore, it is, in the main, as preventable as other plagues, such as smallpox, typhoid, venereal diseases or tuberculosis. It should be, and often can, be prevented. Think of the ravages of smallpox in older days. We have almost conquered typhoid, we are bravely tackling tuberculosis and the venereal diseases. We hope that the people of the next or following generation will be able to record similar progress when they speak of preventable blindness. The old fatalism which regarded such afflictions as the Divine will, and made no effort to discover causes or to apply remedies, must go. This is the age of prevention. Let us then consider some of the facts regarding blindness and act on them.

Quoting from figures collected in Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward, Miss Hayhurst says: "In these Provinces there are 189 cases of needless blindness from ophthalmia of the newly born alone. This represents about 14 per cent. of all cases of recorded blindness in these Provinces, and it is believed that this ratio applies to all the other Provinces in Canada.

Quotations are made from Stokes of the Mayo Clinic, who states that one-third of all cases of blindness in institutions for the blind in the United States and one-half of the "born blind" are due to gonorrhoea of the eye—that is, are a direct result of venereal disease in the mother, which is itself a highly infective but preventive social plague.

Mention is made of a paper on ophthalmia neonatorum by Dr. Digby Wheeler of Winnipeg, which appeared in a recent issue of "Social Health," the official organ of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, an organization which is vigorously backing up the demand for Provincial regulations for prevention of blindness. Dr. Wheeler described the Crede method of disinfection of the eyes of the newly born, and advocates its compulsory use at every childbirth. He states that one out of every hundred children born in London, England, suffer from ophthalmia neonatorum, while out of every 2,000 of the population one has its sight seriously impaired or destroyed by it. He also the Pennsylvania Institute for the Blind at Overbrook, in a period of 30 years, this disease accounted for 267 cases of blindness out of a total of 1,020, or 26 per cent.

The report states that in the United States it is estimated there are at least 20,000 cases of blindness from this cause. It has been on these figures that there has been based a nation-wide agitation for effective State regulations for the prevention of blindnes in the newly born. In most of the States of the Union, the report shows, these regulations now exist. Are they worth while? The answer is a decided yes. Denmark has had not only compulsory notification of O. N., but treatment to the eyes of all new-born children for 20 years, and today has no cases of blindness from this cause.

Chicago, through a live Prevention of Blindness Commission, had legislation passed in 1915, and as co-operation and enforcement has grown more widespread results have correspondingly improved, so that last year through a total of 331 cases of ophthalmia neonatorum were reported not one infant suffered blindness.

The regulation asked for by the Canadian Committee and Social Hygiene Council provides that on every birth certificate there should be the queries, "Has a prophylactic for O. N. been used? If so, what?" These must be answered by the physician in charge, and it is felt that this will provide not only an effective reminder of the importance of this treatment, but a check on whether the preventive has been used or not.

"Canada must wake up," concludes the report. "This is only one of the preventable causes of blindness, but why not begin on it? Though we cannot immediately eradicate deadly venereal diseases, we can prevent this form of ophthalmia. Education, intelligent action, prevention, saving, must be our slogan. It takes but two minutes to administer the prophylactic to the eyes of a new-born child and costs but a few cents, yet it may save a lifetime of darkness and a cost to the country of many thousands of dollars.

"The average cost per year to the Canadian Government to educate and keep an afflicted child in our schools for the blind is from $500 to $600 over a period of not less than ten years. At the end of that time you have still only a partially self-supporting citizen as the State must heavily subsidize any training schools or work-shops which keep them employed. If such places manage to pay for raw material and wages its about all we can expect. The overhead expenses remain a public charge. As Helen Keller says, 'If a tithe of the money we spend now to support unnecessary blindness were spent to prevent it the country would be much the gainer'."

FARM LIFE AND ITS PROBLEMS

A SUBSTANTIAL SAVING FROM ANNUAL LEAKAGE BY CONSERVING ASSETS

Granary Depredations Of Rats and Mice, Machinery Left Exposed to the Weather, Run Down Woodlots And Indifferently Handled Manure Cause Big Losses.

$500 MORE A YEAR.

BY AMOS BRADFORD.

Money comes to the farm through saving as well as from making. To find out the farm leaks and then stop them is a mighty fine step for every farmer to take in these days of shortage of real cash. There are leaks in many directions, even on the best managed farms. There is loss often in the granary, with rats and mice eating and destroying many bushels of grain. In the aggregate this farm loss is enormous. On the individual farm it may reach a score or more dollars in a single season.

A farm leak that is tremendously wasteful is the loss on machinery due to lack of shelter. On a million farms, it is estimated, farm tools and machines are left in the open. The rust on farm tools is greater in dollars and cents than the cost of running the rural schools of the country. A little oil or grease on the iron parts of tools and machinery when not in use would avoid practically all of this loss.

Think of hundreds of thousands of plows left in open sheds or under trees from springtime to springtime—the loss from rust is much, but the loss from time spent getting them in working order when needed is equally great. When you extend your observation to harrows, cultivators, wagons, rollers and various kinds of presses you get an idea of the extent of this farm loss. Exposed to sun, wind and storm, the life of these tools is shortened by half.

There is another leak—the waste of the farm woodlots. Farmers own something like 300,000,000 acres of woodlands, much of it in a rundown condition. The difference between the total of what it produces and what it might be made to produce with care is enormous.

During Winter many limbs have fallen to the ground. To let them remain where they fell is to lessen the pasture for the stock. On well-managed farms where the woodlots are utilized this broken timber is removed before grass starts, thus preserving the pasture. The wood is sawed up or hauled to a convenient place where later it is made ready for fuel. There is money in this farm wood and, if properly utilized, it will be a direct or indirect source of income to the farm. Even if labor is costly the price of cordwood is high, making it possible to send surplus wood to market. By doing so many farmers now add many dollars to the farm income.

There is just one more leak which should be mentioned. It is the leak that permits stable manure to decline in value. Dr. Hopkins once estimated that over one billion tons of farm manure are annually produced on American farms. If this manure were all carefully preserved and applied to farm lands the increase in production would amount to at least ten bushels of grain an acre on over 100,000,000 acres of land. The increase would extend into other years, because its effect would be felt on the grass and other crops following the crop which first had its great advantages.

This manure is indifferently handled on ninety out of every one hundred farms. Only 10 per cent. of our farmers look after the manure as a real farm crop. A billion tons are made each year. At a dollar a ton, it reaches a billion dollars in value—more than the wheat crop, as much as the cotton crop and not far behind the corn crop.

The Gospel Of Labor

This is the gospel of labor,
Ring it, ye bells of the kirk.
The Lord of Love came down from above
To dwell with the men who work.

This is the rose he planted,
Here is the thorn cursed soil.
Heaven in blessed with perfect rest,
But the blessing of earth is toil.

Henry Van Dyke.

WILD HORSES SELL AT ONLY $10 EACH

Alberta Will Conduct a Round-up of 10,000 on Southern Ranges.

EDMONTON, May 27.—The Alberta department of agriculture is making arrangements for rounding up 10,000 wild horses, at large on the range areas of Southern Alberta, in the Bow Valley district and other open range sections in that portion of the province. The roundup will be held some time in June, according to present arrangements. The corrals, according to the department officials, will be built within the next few days.

For years bands of horses have been running at large in these sections and are practically wild. Some of them are strays that have come into the district from other parts of the province and have not been claimed by the owners. Only a small percentage of the horses is branded, and really belongs to the ranchers of the district.

A certain percentage of them, or at least those that are branded, will be claimed by the owners, while the remainder will be sold at auction. The horses that are branded can only be claimed after paying the government $2 a head for rounding up expenses. There will be some upset price fixed for the others, probably about $10 a head.

Young's Point Has Its Grand Old Man.

YOUNG'S POINT, May 27.—Every little village or town throughout the land boasts of its grand old man, and Young's Point has its grand old man, in the person of Mr. Charles Godfrey, who resides on his farm three miles north of the village.

Mr. Godfrey is eighty years of age, and a more active man at his age would be very difficult to find. For twenty-nine years he has been drawing milk to the local cheese factory and in that time has never been known to be late, and whenever or wherever one meets Mr. Godfrey, he has that same kind manner, and a word of encouragement for old and young alike. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey live the quiet and simple life in their little home and everyone is given a hearty welcome at any time they may call, and if the many people who are inclined to stray from the straight and narrow path through life would only listen to the kindly advice offered by this dear old gentleman there would be less wrong done and the hard feelings toward one another which are so often rife in any community would be banished.

It is the sincere hope of the surrounding country that Mr. Godfrey will live to enjoy many years of good health and happiness.

POULTRY WIT AND WISDOM

"If you want any eggs," said the little red hen,
"You've got to do your share.
I've been laying steady since I don't know when;
But I'll strike if I get no care.
I must have the stuff to make eggs for you,
I insist on a balanced diet;
If you haven't the protein and minerals, too,
You'd better go out and buy it."

The pure breeds of poultry are believed to have originated from the small jungle fowl which is still found in Southern Asia. These birds resemble a small Brown Leghorn and lay about two dozen eggs a year.

A strain which is not naturally prolific, but of good constitutional strength, is not likely to be impved by line breeding. A strain of poor layers, if healthy, may be improved along production lines by the use of males from a high-producing healthy flock.

"Roup in chicks is likely to be caught from mature stock, and not passed on by heredity, through the egg," says Oscar V. Brumley, of the veterinary college ,Ohio State University. He suggests giving triple sulpho carbolate tablets once a week as long as the trouble lasts. Dissolve thirty grains in a quart of water and let the chicks drink it all day.

Before putting our chicks into the brooder house, we mixed up a large bucketful of whitewash paint, made from lime and salt, equal parts, and thinned for brushing with sweet milk from the separator. Every nook and corner was brushed with this whitewash, and it is surprising how much more comfortable the interior was on a dark, gloomy day. We know the little chicks appreciated this just as much as we did when we went to attend them.—G.W.B.

When shipping baby chicks, I think the shipper should put on the box the date of hatch. I received 100 chicks and not knowing their age let them go a full day too long without feed.—E. J.S.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—United States melting pot of foreign crops!

Perhaps greater than its fame as melting pot of the world for human immigrants, is this unrecognized distinction of adopting the plants of the world for domestic growth.

Altogether 60,000 varieties of plants have been introduced, most of them in the last quarter centruy. And enough commercial success has been made from the "immigrants" to total more than $100,000,000 annual income for the farmers of this country.

Yet less than half a dozen of our imajor crops are native American. Corn s the great 100.percenter. The tomato, potato and tobacco may also be termed native, although even these might have been imported before the white man came to this country.

Explorers Out.

That is about all. The rest of our crops have been brought or sent from all corners of the earth to make the United States one of the leading farming countries in the world.

Acquiring new crops is a regular job, for which the Department of Agriculture has established the office of foreign seed and plant introduction. Explorers have been going out for the last 25 years and have brought back many new specimens from travels tinged with romantic adventure.

A small percentage of the 60,000 alien plants have been successes here, but those that have succeeded have brought fortunes to their growers.

Durum wheat, for instance, brought here from Russia 25 years ago, and now grown in the great plains region of the west, brings an annual crop worth nearly $50,000,000. Pima cotton from Egypt brongs $5,000,000 a year.

In the south-west a prosperous date industry is already producing nearly $300,000 worth of fruit annually. Bamboo is being tested in Georgia, and favourite plants of nearly all other countries are being tried out in various sections here.

Small Beginnings.

The south-west, the middle-west and the east now know Sudan grass, a wonderfully productive forage introduced in a small bag from Africa in 1909. It is a good feed for live stock, and the half-million acres now devoted to it brings Uncle Sam additional wealth of $15,000,000 annually.

Superior varieties of alfalfa from Siberia and South America bring in $5,000,000 a year.

Avocados, or alligator pears, introduced from the tropics of Central and South America, are now being grown in 1000 acres of groves in Florida and California. Two thousand farmers in the southern states are growing dasheens, a potato-like tuber from the tropics.

Hundreds of new plants are on trial on government lands. Among them are blight-proof pears, the Chinese jujube, a tree with wood like mahogany, medicinal fruits, sap that makes a cooling drink, a peach-flavored citrus fruit, and a pigweed that produced grain for the Aztecs.

A FARM REVIEW OF YEARS PAST

Steam Power Mentioned With Awe -- Cost of Growing Wheat Was $7 an Acre.

COBOURG, May 27.—In 1849 there resided in England a Rev. Mr. Huxtable, whose farm was generally considered to be almost a model one, yet the Canadian Horticulturist, in recounting a visit of Sir Robert Peel to this farm, raises the question as to whether "gentleman farming is attended with profit, the latter being in this opinion the necessary attendant of good farming. The description as given by the Horticulturist shows that the conception of a model farm was an advanced one, even back 75 years ago. It says:

"We observe from English papers of recent date that Sir Robert Peel had paid a visit to this clerical and renowned agriculturist. The secret of Mr. Huxtable's success lies in deep and perfectly clean culture, in the growth of large quantities of root crops, and in keeping great numbers of sheep and cattle. The animals are all tied up, including sheep in warm and well ventilated stables."

Steam Power For This Farm

"A steam engine is made to do the principal work of the establishment. It threshes, winnows and sacks the grain, cuts the straw for the cattle, kiln dries the corn, grinds it into meal, bruises the beans for the horses, and works a large bone mill.

"The Right Honourable Baronet is said to have been highly pleased with his visit."

The Profit Is Questioned

"Although the fact of Mr. Huxtable raising large crops and feeding a great number of animals on a soil of naturally poor quality is, we believe, undeniable, yet in fairnes to our readers we must say that the profitableness of his system has of late been called in question by several experienced and intelligent farmers."

Should Present Itemized Statement

"We think that all amateur agriculturists, who would have their farm management regarded as a sort of model, are morally bound to exhibit a correct annual balance of their accounts, for the complete satisfaction of the public. High farming, or raising large crops at a great expenditure is one thing; good farming or raising large crops with a profit is another. It is the latter only to which a farmer must look to who farms for a living."

Cost of Growing Wheat

The Horticulturist gives also an estimate of the cost of growing an acre of wheat 75 years ago as follows:

"For ploughing an acre of sod, $2; seed for one acre, $1; sowing seed, one acre, $1; harvesting, one acre, $1.25; threshing, one acre, $1,75; total, $7. This makes a total cost of $7 for each acre."

The price of wheat per bushel in 1849 is quoted at 3s. 6d. to 4s. 4d. Oats are quoted from 10d. to 1s. for 34-pound bushel. Rye, per bushel of 56 pounds, 3s.; barley, per bushel of 48 pounds, 1s. 6d. Fresh butter is 6d, and eggs 9d.; cheese, 3d. a pound; fowl, per pair, 1s. 8d.; potatoes, per bushel, 2s.; beef, per pound, 2d to 3½d; pork, 2½d.; lamb, per quarter, 2s. to 3s.

Ploughing By Steam

A further example of steam power on the farm is given by the statement:

"A steam plow has been tried on a farm near Stratford in England by stationary engines at the extremities of the field, and the experiment is said to have been satisfactory. The engine is ten feet by six in bulk, portable with a pair of horses, and may be used for plowing, threshing, or for any purpose where power of the kind is required."

This records the first experiments in using power for farm operations, and one can but wonder what one of the farmers of 75 years ago, either in England or Canada would have thought of the modern tractor.

Lord Brougham, speaking at an agricultural meeting in 1849, tells of having seen a show of valuable engines, some of them most ingenious, and very reasonable in price for churning, hoeing, threshing, etc. The most valuable experiments had been made on the application of steam on a small scale in operating threshing machines, straw cutting machines and various other engines, and he hopes to see valuable extension of the application of steam to farm labor.

Some Good Advice

He concludes his address by urging the farmers to adopt generally a better system for keeping accounts. He says: "I never hardly knew a good farmer on a considerable scale, or one on a moderate scale, who did not to a certain degree perform the office of being his own accountant, keeping a regular set of books as tradesmen are accustomed to do. It is as necessary for the farmer, the manufacturer of corn, as it is for the manufacturer of cotton twist or steel blades, to keep accounts of all of the details of his business. He cannot tell exactly what state he is in without regular and systematic bookkeeping."

Let the Farm Have Same Opportunity As City Has Had

By VERNA ELSINGER

I see into a future in which men and women will be able to look out on a world made for the country as well as for the town, a world in which the beauty and the arts, comforts and conveniences, opportunities for a full life rich in interest will be the birthright of every rural child. I believe that co-operation will not alone bring the material requisites with which these things can be purchased, but it will bring an appreciation of what they mean and how they can be attained.

Farm women should understand practical co-operation not only when their husbands and fathers buy and sell, but when both men and women of the farm meet as neighbours in the social affairs of the community.

Material prosperity on the farm is desirable in order that home life may be attained in its fullest recompense. This is the ideal of the future for the farm home. In it there is character building for humanity, safety for the nation.

SEEK REVISION FREIGHT RATES

Cattle Shipping To Old Country is Too High, Westerners Declare. Same As By Rail.

The Manitoba Free Press has been engaged in a vigorous effort to secure more reasonable rates for ocean carriage of Canadian cattle to Great Britain.

Its declaration that the present rate of $20 per head on cattle from Montreal to Glasgow is indefensible and extortionate can not well be denied by companies that carried cattle between these ports before the lifting of the embargo for half that charge.

It is pointed out that the rate now in effect is about the same as that for carrying cattle by rail from Winnipeg to Montreal, and water carriage is cheaper than land carriage the world over.

The ship combine is blamed for the new rates, but the Free Press suggests another cause, which is that powerful interests in Great Britain are bound to keep Canadian cattle out of the British Isles.

Certainly every scheme has been employed to prevent the free entry of Canadian cattle into Britain, and it may be inferred that when the Free Press asserts that British interests are influencing the ocean rate it is not speaking without some authority for the statement.

The government should do more than it has yet done to secure a fairer rate for cattle. With the American market largely closed to our animals, Canadian shippers should get all the benefit possible from the newly opened British market. The rates now being charged by the shipping combine make a profit on British shipments impossible.

WEATHER DOESN'T QUITE SATISFY BETHANY FOLK

BETHANY, May 27.—The frosts of last week did considerable damage in the village. Flower plants suffered most and in a few cases potatoes were nipped. The strawberry bloom does not seem to be damaged.

Farmers are complaining about the continued wet cold weather, and a light crop of hay is predicted. There are fields still unseeded and unless weather conditions change will have to be seeded in buckwheat later on. The fall wheat is slowly coming along but is healthy looking. Spring crops are holding their own and will rapidly develop with warm weather.

Pasture is very short and warm weather is badly needed to have it in proper condition for the herds.

POOR LITTLE DUCKLETS.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 24.—This cold, wet season is hard on hatching eggs. One man on Queen Street set a hen with twelve duck eggs and only four of the twelve hatched. The little fluffy ducklets seem strong and lively.

Keep next month's income for next month's expenses.

MILLBROOK HAS PLUM BLOSSOMS AND WET FARMS

Signs of Summer and Reminders of Winter on Farms in Cavan District Something Must Be Done About the Weather

SOME MINUS CROP

MILLBROOK, May 27.—Plo wing seeding and harrowing have been among the activities of the farmers in this neighborhood during the past week, the nature and location of the soil determining the character of the work being done upon it. As the season advances, weather probabilities become of increasing importance.

Several farmers have repeatedly prepared for sowing peas, only to find it impossible to carry out their plans because of the wet weather. The situation is growing serious, since it seems as if even the planting of the root crop will be delayed by unfavorable weather conditions; corn and mangels are usually in by June the first, and turnips by the tenth, yet with some, whose farms are heavy clay, or low-lying ground, no crop whatever is as yet in the ground. W. Armstrong and S. Pritchard, Fourth Line, Cavan, are among those who, unfortunately, find themselves in this situation.

Given some warm ,dry days that would put the fields in condition, it seems evident that neighbors, in such cases, will exemplify the community spirit and give practical aid in getting the seed into the ground in as short a time as possible.

Some find sections of their land as yet unfit for cultivation. H. A. Fallis, Fallis Line, has completed seeding, except for a small acreage where the horses would sink to the knees if put to work upon it. Others find a similar situation existing on portions of the ir farms.

Evidently deep ploughing, often advocated as a means of increasing the water-holding capacity of the soil, will not be a necessity this season in Central Ontario at least. Experimental farms report that unless local conditions are unusual there is little to be gained by deep ploughing, as the ordinary depth will serve the purpose and thereby save expense.

It is nearly three hundred years since the first furrow was turned by the first plough in Canada. The original immigrants were soldiers, tradesmen, and missionaries—Louis Hebert enjoying the distinction of being the first farmer to come to the country. With his son-in-law, Couillard, he cultivated the soil with spade and hoe until the latter, either through the fertility of his brain and the exercise of mechanical skill, or by importation, secured the first plough. Of a primitive type, to be sure, but speedier than the hand labor which preceded its use.

It was drawn by a pair of imported oxen, called by the Indians, who came in large numbers to see the unusual sight, "Frenchman's Moose." That was in April, 1628. It was 1644 before the first wheat was sown in this country, one of the Couillard family making the experiment. The opinion had all along prevailed that this grain would not grow in this climate—only the Indian crops (beans, maize, squash) having previously been cultivated. Contrary to expectations, the wheat did well, and thus began the great wheat-growing industry which has since made Canada the "granary of the Empire."

T. Robinson recently purchased three Jersey cows from E. Hinman, Colborne The latter brought the cows as far as Harwood by wagon, and from that point Mr. Robinson had them conveyed to Millbrook by motor truck. They are for dairy purposes.

A long, fine fall will be needed if garden vegetables are to mature this season. Very few have been able to do much, if anything, in this line, though many were noticed busily engaged in the work on the few fine days which the past week has provided. J. L. Byam, who had his land planted quite early, had potatoes up about two inches only to have them nipped by the frost which has occurred practically every night recently.

Plum Blossoms Out.

The wild plum blossoms have come out during the last few days, and the early apples are showing a decided trace of pink that would mature into full bloom given a day or two of warm sunshine. Intertwining weak branches in fruit trees, which seem liable to split or break down, thus making a natural brace, has been successfully done at the Experimental Farms. In three or four years they become united, giving the appearance of a single branch.

Pruning is advised for the dormant (or winter) season, since bearing apple trees can be done even in zero weather without injuring the trees. Possibly it is only during this part of the year that the average farmer has time to give to the work.

Experience shows that while unpruned trees come into bearing earlier than those that have been pruned, yet troubles in later years, such as breakages and less fruit, show the disadvantages of leaving this necessary care unattended to. A well-balanced tree, the result of proper pruning in the formative years, means a strong framework capable of carrying a heavy crop of fruit.

Obviously a reduction of the stronger branches in the early stages of the tree's life will throw more growth on the weaker side and aid in more vigorous development of well-spaced, scaffold limbs from the central trunk.

YOUNG'S POINT, May 27.—Allan Gill, of Smith, purchased a truckload of calves in the village, and vicinity, on Wednesday, paying 7c lb. live weight.

One woman in the village has tomato plants in bloom which were not touched by the recent heavy frosts, although water was frozen in the water-pails just outside the door.

SOLVING THE PLOUGH PROBLEM

By CARL H. GAMBLE.

YOU will understand that in setting down a few rules here in this small space for the care and operation of plows, I will have to be brief, and cannot go into detail on any of the subjects, any one of which, if properly explained, would fill this page.

In preparing these subheadings and this discussion I have referred to my long experience—first, as a farmer; second, as a field expert, and, third, as a correspondent dealing with farm machinery, and have made a summary of the most common complaints arising from the operation of plows and brief suggestions for overcoming them.

Walking Plow Pointers.

On walking plows, I find the most common complaints to be: (1) Does not run steady; (2) makes uneven width of furrow; (3) runs too deep or too shallow; (4) won't run level—wings up or down.

I will discuss these in the order they appear.

Does not run steady. If a walking plow does not run steady, it is due to one or more of three things: (a) Shortness of hitch; (b) condition of share; (c) difficult plowing soil.

(a) The hitch. The traces, when plowing, should always be free from the hame to the singletree. Hip straps should never be used when plowing.

(b) The share. The share must be sharp and properly set. The amount of suction and wing bearing on walking plows is most important. This bearing on a 14-inch walking plow-share is 1¼ inches at the wing, and extends down along the edge of the share about 4 or 5 inches, where it tapers out to the edge.

Uneven width of furrow. This is due to the length of the evener, or the distance the horses walk apart. Plows having different width of cut are not all beamed the same, so no exact length of evener can be recommended as always correct. The best rule to go by is to set the plow in the furrow, cutting its intended width; then measure from the point of the beam to the center of the furrow for one-half the length of the evener. If the land horse does not walk steady and has a tendency to sway in and out, it is advisable to jockey their heads, so they cannot spread too far apart.

Runs too deep or too shallow. The hitch being correct, this condition is usually due to the share having too much suction, or not enough. I want to emphasize here again that the traces must be entirely free, and a long, low hitch will give better results and a more steady-running plow than a high, short one. Sometimes a new plow is inclined to run deep on aaccount of the sharpness of the share in fairly loose soil. When this it the case, hitch lower.

Won't run level—wings up or down. All new walking plows, when they leave the factory, have the correct amount of suction and wing bearing for average soil conditions of the territory in which they are intended to work. If in extremely hard soil, the plow has a tendency to wing up, crowding the handles to the left (right-hand plows), turn plow over and, with a good file, slightly bevel the upper side of the share for 5 or 6 inches from the corner of the wing. If the plow wings down, reverse the operation, filing the bevel on the under side of the share.

Use the gauge wheel. In some localities, where the soil is not of uniform consistency and plow cannot be made to run at even depth otherwise, it is necessary to resort to the use of the gauge wheel. The gauge wheel should be set well to the point of the beam, and the hitch high or long enough to keep the wheel on the ground in the hardest places.

Rolling coulter or jointer. When a rolling coulter is used, attach it to the beam so the hub of coulter is about 3 inches back of the point of the plow, and adjust it sidewise so it cuts about ½ inch wider than the shin of the plow. If a jointer is used, set it so that the point of the jointer is about ½ inch back of the point of the plowshare, and adjust sidewise so it cuts about ½ inch wider than the shin of the plow.

Chapter Two: Wheel Plow Troubles.

CREAM DISPOSAL WORRIES FARMER

Seems That Small Value in Creamery Goes to Farmer in Cavan.

CAVAN, May 27.—One of the problems which confronts the farmer at this season of the year is the disposal of his cream on any sort of a profitable basis.

In the great majority of farm homes, there is not enough help to churn the butter, and when it is sent to the creamery it seems as if a very small portion of the value of it goes to the farmer.

Mr. R. Matchett sent a couple of cans of cream to the creamery which seemed to give very small returns. He sent 69 lbs., for which he received $4.68; at another time, 81 lbs., for which he received $6.42. The test for one can was 22 and for the other was 25. The separator was unchanged, feeding, milking conditions, &c., exactly the same.

They then churned half the amount of the second can at home and made fifteen pounds of butter; this, at the market price of thirty cents, would have been $4.50; at the same rate the whole can would have been $9.00. It seems too much, in proportion to the farmer's share, to pay for making the butter.

In a well-kept, well-fed herd it seems a very small margin to pay for pasture, chop, labour, &c.

BABY CHICKS

It is sometimes an easy matter to get rid of lice on fowls, but the poultry house is not so easily managed. During June the lice will be active and increase rapidly. It is wasted time and energy to rid the fowls of lice until the premises are thoroughly cleaned. If the houses are kept clean, the hens will, with the use of the dust bath, clean themselves. To rid the house of lice, first remove all filth from the roosts, floors, walls and nests. Scrub the roosts with coal oil, not overlooking a single spot. Take the nests outside, clean them out, and with a whitewash brush apply a thin coating of coal oil to them inside and outside. Now touch a lighted match to the nest boxes and let them burn. No damage will be done as the oil will be quickly consumed, but such work must not be done inside the house. Now make a bucket of whitewash and add to it an ounce of crude carbolic acid, stir well and apply profusely, dust the fowl with a good powder by holding the chicken by the legs, and get the powder well into the feathers.

COBOURG PRICES.

COBOURG, May 27.—There has been little fluctuation during the past few weeks in Cobourg prices. Butter is selling from 32c to 35c a pound; eggs from 22c to 24c; potatoes are $1.50; wheat, $1.00; oats, 55c; barley, 60c.

IDEAL SEASON FOR WHEAT SAYS DOURO

Farmers in That District More Fortunate Than Others--Clover is Good Also.

DOURO, May 27.—Douro farmers seem to be more fortunate than those of surrounding townships in getting the crops in the ground. Many have completed seeding some days ago, and very few have much that they cannot get on. It is an ideal season for fall wheat and most of the fields have a splendid stand of wheat. Clover, too, is looking fine and spring grains are doing well, considering the poor growing weather.

The milk drawers have started to haul to the cheese factories. Prices are lower than last year, the price obtained for April being $1.40 per hundred. Pastures are good, as the frequent rains have helped them.

The Jewish stock buyer, who is well known to most local farmers, has been on a buying tour in the township, purchasing mostly calves. He reports the Montreal market dull for milch cows just now.

Indian River is unusually high for this time of year, due to the continued rains.

Mr. Frank Leahy is planting seven or eight acres of potatoes. His farm, on the Dummer Road, is well adapted for potato growing.

ROSENEATH FARMS SHOW GOOD CROP PROSPECTS

ROSENEATH, May 27.—A heavy rainfall on Saturday last was accompanied by a high wind. It was very helpful to the grass and the grain that was up. The farmers in this vicinity have most of their seeding completed. No preparation has been made as yet for the root crop as the land is not firm enough to draw the fertilizer over the fields. There is plenty of time as yet for this work, as it has not been done before this time in the last few years and the root crop during that time has been very successful.

The hay crop is very uncertain, for although it has a good bottom, it requires some warm weather soon before the hot, dry weather which usually comes the latter part of June and either dries it up or matures it before its proper time. The frosts recently have hurt clover to a certain extent. The fruit trees are at a stage now when the crop depends on the weather for a week or so. The result of the recent heavy frosts on them has not yet made itself manifest, but it is hoped that they will come through alright as the farmers depend a lot on their fruit and the yield for the last couple of years has been nearly a failure. Apples last year were a total failure, and raspberries not much better. It is hoped that the yield of all these crops will be plentiful as the farmers for the past couple of years have been hit hard.

DOUBLE SEASON FOR FORD STARTS HERD OF PRIZE AYRSHIRES

DEARBORN, Mich., May 28.—Henry Ford has started a herd of Ayrshires on his 9000-acre farm here. It includes some of the finest stock in the country.

Beuchan Peter Pan, considered the greatest American Ayrshire bull, is one of the stock of 100 Ford bought.

Lily of Willowmoor is another prize animal. She has a record of 3362.15 pounds of fat, and 84,891 pounds of milk in five years. Her best yearly record is 955.5 pounds of fat, and 22,596 pounds of milk.

Ford is said to have chosen Ayrshires for the Ford General Hospital in Detroit because of the character of their milk.

CREED FOR FARMERS.

COBOURG, May 27.—The Canadian Horticultruist, published in Toronto, in its issue of February, 1849, gives the following extracts from "The Farmer's Creed," which are as true to-day as they were then:

"We believe in small farms and thorough cultivation."

"We believe in large crops that leave the land better than they found it."

"We believe in going to the bottom of things, and, therefore, in deep flowing."

"We believe that the best fertility of the soil lies in the spirit of industry, enterprise and intelligence: without this, lime, marl, plaster, bones, and green manure will be of little use."

FAREWELL TO REV. W. R. COURAGE

The congregational social held in the basement of St. George's Church, South Peterboro, last night, was social indeed. Young men and maidens, old men and children assembled to do honor to their rector, the Rev. W. C. Courage, and to Mrs. Courage, before they depart to their new home in the United States.

Mr. R. J. Devey was installed as chairman, and promptly opened the meeting by inviting the whole company to sing "O Canada" and "Pack Up Your Troubles," following these numbers with a short humorous address, which set up "optimism" with a big "O" as the keynote of the whole meeting.

Mr. Soden was responsible for a finely rendered programme as follows:

Piano solo—"La Chatelaine," Mr. R. J. Devey.

Song—"Sussex by the Sea," Mrs. H. Rew, Jr. Encore, "The Song that Reached My Heart."

"Ventriloginal Sketch," Mr. Ed. Cole.

Violin solo—"Hearts and Flowers," Master Gatfield.

"Vocal Medley," Mr. Chas. Cole.

Song—"It Aint Goin' to Rain," Mr. Hurt.

The chairman, in introducing the main object of the gathering, spoke of the splendid service rendered by the clergy in charge of mission parishes from actual experience with them in many of the missions of the huge and unwieldly Diocese of Toronto, having visited (either with musical programmes or on Sunday School work), Norwood, Warsaw, Lasswade, Owenbrook, St. Mark's, Otonabee and South Peterboro.

Mr. Butler, Warden, then read the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Courage,—It is with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret that we have met together for the last time as members of one congregation. Regret that we are so soon to lose the counsel and help of yourself and Mrs. Courage, but pleasure in knowing that the severance of these ties means for yourself a wider field of usefulness and greater scope for your acknowledged gifts.

A small parish like ours learns to appreciate the help of such a rector as you have proven, for in all its ups and downs, you have always been there, along with Mrs. Courage, to give to the full, your advice and counsel.

Although loth to let you go, we needs must, but could not do so without showing in some tangible way our sincere appreciation. We ask you to accept this small token in the spirit in which it is given, and trust it may be what it is intended to be, a help and reminder of our grateful appreciation, for St. George's will miss you. In the field to which you are going, we trust you may sometime give a small thought for those you are leaving behind in this parish, and we ask that God's blessing may be yours in full measure in all your undertakings.

The Members of the Parish of St. George's Church, South Peterboro

The address and purse were then presented to Mr. Courage by Mr. Arnott, Warden.

Before Mr. Courage could respond, "For they are jolly good fellows" was heartily sung and cheered to the echo.

Very quietly, but none the less effectively, did their departing rector acknowledge their kindly hearts evinced by their gifts and hearty reception of himself and Mrs. Courage. "It seems to me that at the moment of parting, one knows people better and better. A clergyman comes into close personal relations, parting is not easy, and gives me deep feelings. Of course we shall remember St. George's, and this evening will help us to remember your kindness, which will help us in our new sphere. I have tried to do my duty by speaking the plain truth, and serving the church in every way, and while having run counter to some, we have the hearty good wishes of those who know I tried to do my best, to benefit those over whom God has placed me, and we heartily appreciate the kindness of many during times of stress incidental to parish work. We shall heartily welcome any of you in our new home in the South. May the blessing of God rest upon you all."

Mr. W. R. Morris, from St. John's, expressed the interest felt in St. George's, and said they could not let Mr. and Mrs. Courage go without a word of sympathy and esteem.

Mr. W. I. Howden, a former Warden, also voiced the sincere regret they all felt at the near parting, and hoped that Mr. and Mrs. Courage would soon be back to see them all.

The Wardens moved a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman, put to the meeting by Mr. Courage, who desired to extend publicly his heartfelt thanks to Mr. Devey for very real help given to him on many occasions.

The motion carried with cheers, renewed when the ladies of the congregation were included for their splendid work, both as to the testimonial and the refreshments, which were then served and a social hour spent.

"God Save the King," "Auld Lang Syne," "Abide With Me" and the final benediction by Mr. Courage concluded another chapter in the history of the young parish of St. George's.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, Mrs. R. J. Devey and Miss Bell were present at St. George's social last night.

WARNING ISSUED AGAINST BUBBLES.

Gold Bricks Being Sold In New Industry.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Prominent radio manufacturers have joined in warning amateurs and other radio fans against losses that might be incurred by accepting any new radio proposition.

According to these leaders in the industry, it was estimated, nearly 2000 radio corporations were organized within a few months. Yet it is believed a small percentage of these will be successful.

Gold bricks are being sold almost daily, in this industry, with promises of fabulous profits. Inexperienced enthusiasts become imbued with the idea that if one set can be built for a certain price, a number can be produced for less. And so they fall.

According to the manufacturers' statistics, at least 37 per cent of the sets built must be rejected when they come to final test. Amateurs make "discoveries" already patented and find themselves in a tangle if they try to develop their idea.

SYNOD EXPRESSES ITS APPRECIATION

It is with much pleasure that we noticed in the Kingston Daily Standard among the complimentary resolutions passed at the meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario held in Kingston during last week the following congratulatory motion.

Moved by the Rev. Canon Patton and seconded by Rev. J. de Pencier Wright:

"Whereas the Rev. Canon R. S. Forneri, M.A. B.D., the Senior Priest of this Diocese has this year entered upon the 60th year of his ordination, this Synod desires to place upon record its high appreciation of his ripe scholarship, sterling integrity, and faithful discharge of the duties of his Sacred office, during the long period of his ministry, and prays that Peace and Happiness may accompany the closing years of a most useful life."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterboro, May 27, 1924.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—May I trespass on your kindness to express appreciation of a worthy citizen, the Rev. W. R. Courage, who last night was honored by St. George's congregation with a whole-hearted demonstration good to witness. Five years ago, in response to an invitation to Mrs. Devey and myself, we wended our way to Roseneath, to the Drope homestead, where many of that name, stalwart supporters of the Anglican Church, have lived and died. Thence came Mr. W. H. Drope (also present on that occasion, now Grand Master of the Masonic jurisdiction in Ontario. The occasion was a supper and entertainment in aid of the Roseneath Mission, and the Rev. W. R. Courage (then in the Hastings charge) gave an impressive address on the subjects of "The Fruits of the Earth" and "Faith in God." The language was simple, but the message was there, for W. R. Courage has a message to deliver, the truth of which he is certain. Quiet, unobstrusive as has been his three years' ministry amongst us, he has aroused a deep and sincere affection in the hearts of many, and a renewed faith in the written word, "A new commandment give I unto you, that ye love one another." It is not a subject for congratulation that this departure makes the third of our Peterboro Anglican clergymen to cross the line of a type Canada can ill afford to lose. These men are honorable in their service to God, to their people, to themselves and to any country to which it may be their lot to be called.

RICHARD J. DEVEY.

Dear Sir: May I correct your reference to General Thomas Jonathan Jackson ("Stonewall") as appeared in your issue of the 20th inst.

He was "Scotch-Irish" descent.

See Vol. 13 Brit. Ency., page 534.

The fire spread almost instantly to the entire third and fourth floors, and envelo.ped several automobile tire shops on the street floor.

GERMAN CABINET HELD A MEETING

Members of New Government Represent All Extremes.

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, May 27.—With the constitution of the next German Government, still uncertain, Germany's new Reichstag convened to-day.

The most heterogenous collection of Legislatures ever to gather in Berlin entered the closely guarded doors of the Reichstag building between files of troops, while a great throng gathered in the streets to see some of the new and distinguished members.

There were pastors, Communists, women, agitators of both sexes, who have been tried for treason, there was white-haired General Ludendorr, aged Frau Clara Zetkin, young Bismarck, tall, dark and handsome Grand of the Iron Chancellor.

Men in the rough cordurov, affected by the Reds and others with the shaven heads and monocles of the Extreme Right.

There were one Prince, three Barons, three Counts and six ordinary noblemen among the Nationalists' members.

A RECITAL

(By Jeannette.)

Declaring that Canada was twenty-five years behind the times, musically, as compared with the United States, asserting that many Canadian singers, as Edward Johnston, of Guelph, had been very successful on the other side, and contrasting also the school training in singing in the Province of Ontario, which he said was away behind the Western provinces, in its attention to musical tuition, Cyril Rice, famous boy soloist from the Church of the Transfiguration in New York City, concluded his song recital in the parish hall of St. John's church, last evening.

The young singer, who was born in England, and whose parents live in Hamilton, Ont., has a phenomenal voice. He demonstrated last evening in a pleasing programme of songs his remarkable four-octave range, from low Bass C to high Soprano C, holding the stage alone for two hours, in an exacting series of songs of diverse type. The attraction of his extraordinary voice does not lie alone in its unusual range. His lower register shows a very pleasing depth and richness, and although the high notes are necessarily of falsetto timbre, they are sweet, clear and pure. His control of his vocal organs is splendid, the music holding unexpected transitions from delicate, fibrous upper tones to low, rich music, with pianissimo cadences swelling to outbursts of sustained volume of sound. The robust, rather wide-toned vocalization of a boy's alto singing merges also at times in odd fashion into the matured finish of a high soprano voice. He gives an almost meticulous attention to enunciation and phrasing which contrasts somewhat peculiarly with a habit that many might take exception to: a mannerism that takes liberties with the musical score. This is a noticeable slur that occurred many times in his songs. In the little song "Absent," each verse held in its last line a slur that does not appear in the composition, as written, and recurring examples of the same mannerism came with surprising frequency in other songs. Possibly this is done for the purpose of effect, but it is a somewhat peculiar deviation from otherwise careful musicianship.

The youthful singer, in his Eton suit, with shining, fair hair, held the attention of his audience, numbering about two hundred people, throughout a long programme, which opened with a splendid rendition of Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," with its light encore, "Philosophy." A group of three ballads which followed included the lovely softness of "Down Here," a demonstration of sustained, sweet, powerful notes in "For You Alone,' and "Absent," followed by an encore in the song of the maiden who baked the angel cake, demonstrating very clearly one instance of an almost exclusively robust boyish treatment of the brief ballad.

The singer interspersed his vocal music with explanations of his songs, and personal reminiscences of a trip across the Dominion which is just completed last evening being the final of a series of eighty-six recitals given in Canada since January 15th of this year. Speaking of radio broadcasting experiences of his own, in Regina recently, which were followed by letters recording reception of his work in Alaska, in Hamilton, and in Southern Mexico, three songs which were so broadcasted were given, including "My Dear Soul," the "Merry, Merry Lark," bright and gay, and "Smilin' Through," the last an exceptionally pretty number, that received much applause.

Just here, the youthful vocalist, who has a pleasing manner, in a combination of sophisticated ease that alternates at times with a boy's ingenuous speech, spoke briefly about the church where he is the soloist in New York City, the Church of the Transfiguration, popularly known as "The Little Church Around the Corner," with its reputations for weddings, thousands of which take place there every year, with sometimes as many as thirty-four in one day.

This church, with a seating capacity of only between twelve and thirteen hundred, is one of the best known church edifices in New York. It receievd it popular name sixty years ago, when Joseph Jefferson was refused the privilege of burial ceremonies for a deceased actor at a church of more strict persuasion, and thereupon went to "the little church around the corner."

A third group of pretty songs included the delicate measures of the Indian love lyric, "Pale Moon," a jaunty negro spiritual, "Run on Home Nigger," and "Nightingale," the last a composition of the singer, who had "thrown it together," to use his own phrase, to refute criticism in a western paper that his high C was not used in a recital attended by the newspaper critic. Trills initative of the nightingale, demonstrated to advantage the youth's high, clear range. An encore followed, in "Old Black Joe." For this group of songs the vocalist played his own accompaniments.

Progressing to a different type of music, he sang "God Remembers when the World Forgets," with his speaking style of vocalization very apparent in the graceful song by Carrie Jacobs Bond, which was followed by an old negro plantation melody, in "A Pensacola Pickanniny" with the staccato harassment of the old manny, addressing her obstreperous "Chile," and a third unusual number in John Masefields "Cargoes," the latter, illustrative of a peculiar type of desriptive, choppy tempo, sung with ease and finish. An encore was the dainty "Lilac Time" (Perspicacity.)

The closing group of songs in a very generous programme included "Goin' Home," a setting to a negro spiritual, by Antonin Dvorak, the Bohemian composer, who adapted the words to one of his famous largos, from his symphony, "From the New World." A soft, muted rendering of this song made it very pleasing, with some lovely, soft work in a second prayerful number, followed by the dramatic "Cry of Rachael," and a very effective vibrato number, in "Abide with Me." A final encore was "I Love you Truly."

Preceding his last number, the young singer expressed his pleasure at being in Peterboro, and recorded the difficulties which he had to surmount in order to sing here. His manager, he said, who was formerly manager for a company of "The Dumbells," expressed the opinon that a trip to Peterboro would fall flat, but the singer was determined to come here and do his best, so that possibly he might be invited to return later. Next year, in October or November, he will make a tour of the British Empire, visiting the Antipodes first.

Mr. Rice paid a tribute to the work of his accompanist, who travels with him, and who made a splendid instrumental adjunct to his vocal work. Rev. Dr. Blagrave, who introduced the young singer, also spoke at the conclusion a few words in commendation of his wonderful voice and congratulated those who had heard such an unusually artistic programme, and the choir, under whose auspices the song recital was given.

MERGED.

A big merger of amusement interests makes Marcus Loew the head of 350 theatres, mostly movie houses, in all parts of the United States.

One of the chain systems has over 750 stores.

We live in an age of mergers. The period of consolidation started about 25 years ago. How long until there will be a virtual monopoly, by consolidation in every important line of business. Then finally a consolidation of consolidations. That is the trend.

GIRL'S SLAYER IS IN BRIGHTER MOOD

Has Not Been Told of Miss Beatrice Fee's Death.

LINDSAY, May 27. — Canadian Press. — Up until noon to-day McCaughney had not been told of the death of his sweetheart, although he had made frequent enquiries concerning her condition from the jailor.

Yesterday and most of last night he was in a fit of melancholy and refused to discuss the affair at all, even with relatives.

He was visited by his brother, by the brother of the young girl, by Provincial Officer Storey, and by his lawyer, Leslie G. Frost.

To-day he has been much brighter, and has at different times enquired concerning Miss Fee.

It now transpires that the shooting took place probably about seven o'clock in the evening, and followed a severe struggle in the motor car, during which Miss Fee succeeded in wresting the pistol from McGaughney, after she had been shot twice, and after two bullets had hit dashboard of the car, the gun jammed on the fifth.

McGaughney then took the girl back to her home, and according to the statement of Miss Fee, told to Miss Stuart, "dragged me into the house," and placed her on a bed.

The members of the Fee family were in town to-day in close consultation with the Crown Attorney and other officers.

If McGaughey had not been inebriated Sunday night it is very probable that arrangements would have been made for the marriage of the couple next month, for, according to those who were in the confidence of the girl she had come to Lindsay from Toronto with the sole intention of pledging her word to marry him in the near future. Because of his drunkenness Saturday and Sunday evening the couple quarreled, and the tragedy resulted.

The couple had frequently quarrelled over the date of their marriage, McGaughey holding out for an early wedding, while Beatrice declared that she would not marry until autumn, when she would be 20 years of age.

SHAWA GAMES NEXT ON CARD

eterboro's First Invasion of Motor City on Wednesday Evening With Return Game Here on Saturday.

The Peterboro Central Ontario League will invade Oshawa tomorrow for their first game away from home. It will be a twilight fixture starting at 5.30 p.m. sharp in charge of Umpires Hallinan and Benson of Toronto. Tomorrow's game is an important one, and a win for the Petes over Dainty and Company would be a big help to the Solomon crew who are going into the battle full of determination, realizing that a victory would put them in second place in the race.

The Petes will leave for Oshawa at 1 o'clock, the cars leaving the Water Street Alleys sharp at that hour. All the regular players are expected to be hand.

On Saturday the Solomon crew will entertain Oshawa at Riverside Park and the visit of the Motor town crew with Dainty and Tyson as a battery and two well known Peterboro boys, "Mickey" Murray and "Toots" Ward in the lineup will be one of the big baseball events of the season. Regardless of the result of Wednesday's game Saturday's battle will be a hectic affair that should provide the fans with a big afternoon's excitement.

A week from Saturday Belleville will be seen in action for the first time here this season.

PAUL COSTELLO REGAINS TITLE

Defeated W. E. Garrett Gilmore Before Crowd of 10,000 For the World's Amateur Sculling Championship.

PHILADELPHIA, My 27 (Canadian Press). — After a lapse of two years, Paul Costello, the Olympic doubles champion with Jack Kelly, yesterday, regained the Philadelphia Gold Challenge Cup, emblematic of the world's amateur sculling championship, when he defeated W. E. Garrett Gilmore, titleholder, by two and one-half lengths of open water, on the Schuylkill River.

More than 10,000 persons, the biggest crowd that has seen a sculling race in Philadelphia in years, saw the Penn. A. C. sculler overcome a lead of three lengths, three-quarters of a mile from the finish, then pull away from Gilmore and win comparatively fresh.

Costello covered the mile and a quarter in 7 minutes 36 seconds, while Gilmore's time was 7 minutes 43 2-5 seconds.

Two years ago when Walter M. Hoover, of Duluth, beat Costello and a field of three other scullers, the course was covered in 7 minutes 24 2-4 seconds, but the river then was much higher and water conditions decidedly better.

Last fall when Gilmore brought the Challenge Cup back to Philadelphia by beating Hoover, former Diamond Sculls champion, on Duluth Bay, the winner's time was 8 minutes 39 seconds.

There were only two starters in the race yesterday.

Billy Evans Says

A major league ball club never gets the low down on a ball player until it releases or trades him.

Such an act immediately makes said player an arch enemy of the club. It spurs him on to get in the best possible conidtion, to prove to the world he is far from through.

The Boston Red Sox of this year is largely made up of discards, players let out by other clubs.

Nothing pleases a discarded player more than causing the downfall of the club that turned him loose.

Take Pitcher Jack Quinn for example. Nothing gives him greater delight that trimming the New York Yankees, for Jack was once a member of that team.

There isn't a major league ball club but that has one or more players who revel in the defeat of their former teammates. Playing a prominent part in such a defeat is the last word in revenge.

In a sense the Boston Red Sox of this year might be classed as a "feud club." A perusal of the personnel of the team will explain why.

When the Boston Red Sox meet the Cleveland Indians there will be considerable rivalry between the two clubs.

Steve O'Neill and Bill Wambsganss, traded by Cleveland to Boston last winter, will try to show the way to their former teammates.

These two players, who have been going big for the Red Sox, will be supported by Joe Harris and Joe Connelly, former members of the tribe. Harris is playing first base and doing a good job of it.

A feud situation similar to the Cleveland case will hold good when the Red Sox play a number of other teams.

Howard Ehmke, pitching ace of the Sox; Bobby Veach, who has supplied a batting punch, and Danny Clarke, a valuable utility player, are former Tygers.

Recently Bobby Veach won a ball game for Boston when a short fly ball fell safe just back of the infield. When he reached first base he remarked to the coacher:

"That punk fly did the work as good as a real base hit. In Detroit they will probably think it was a line drive." His first though was of Detroit.

When clashing with the Yankees, Pitchers, Jack Quinn and Bill Piercy will be doing their best.

A meeting with St. Louis brings to the front Manager Lee Fohl, his assistant, "Lefty" Liebold, Dudley Lee and Homer Ezzel.

It looks as if the Boston Red Sox would be a busy aggregation this summer trying to settle a few old grudges.

MONTREAL ROYALS WIN.

EAST PETERBORO LEAGUE OPENING

Two Games Slated For Wednesday Evening — George Street Team Play at Keene.

The East Peterobro League will open up with a bang tomorrow evening with two games slated for its inaugural bow of the season. Bob Mackey's aggregation of breadmakers will cross sticks with the Cognawagas, last year's champions, at the King Edward School grounds and the George Street team will journey to Keene.

All the teams report a stronger lineup than last year. Bob Mackey claims he has signed on some hustlers who specialize in the same department as the "Bambino" and he plans to make a clean up from the start. The boys of the south end with the long name will prove no easy meat however. The Cogs have the same lineup as last year and have hopes of repeating their past performance.

The Keene-George Street set-to should be an interesting affray. George Street will trot out a much-altered lineup. "Scotty" Maudsley a "lefty" will slant them across with Grand Miller receiving and the other position have all been strengthened materially. Not a great deal of news has drifted in from Keene, but then the Keene crew were always a secretive bunch, and it is more than likely that they will have their usual strength.

Timely Tips To Amateurs

SAYS HARRY HEILMANN
Champion Batsman, American League

Never take a good ball except with the count three balls and no strikes.

The baseball axiom that you can't make base hits with your bat on your shoulder tells the story.

Hit every good ball with the exception noted above, and never fail to take advantage of the pitcher when you have him in the hole.

When you know he must come over with the next ball be set to make use of your knowledge.

Don't try to figure what the pitcher is going to throw you. If you do, you are often crossed up and placed at a decided disadvantage. Be ready to hit any offering that is thrown.

Study your pitchers. This enables you to adjust your position at the plate to their style of pitching.

A loose position at the plate is best if a batter can perfect such a style. It enables him to move around in the box and doesn't make him an easy victim for set pitching.

Yet, when all is said and done about the theory of batting, don't take any good ball except with the count three and nothing, is the big thing.

Its not so much for the safety of the public that the Wills-Madden bout has been postponed as it is for the safety of Monsieur Madden.

Thomas Williams of the Thistle F. C., has been granted a transfer to the Quaker Oats.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

Baseball Team Defeated Orland by Score of 11 to 6.

HASTINGS, May 27. — Hastings baseball team played its first game on the home grounds on Monday afternoon when they defeated the Orland nine to the tune of 11 to 6.

The first part of the game went to the visitors but in the fifth inning the locals pulled themselves together, making five runs.

In the fourth inning Orland made four runs, thus making their total.

The game was clean throughout.

Kory Zufelt, as first baseman, was the best player for the visitors. The battery, Way and Downs, played well together until the sixth inning, when Eugles, the spare pitcher for Orland, relieved Way in the box for the balance of the game.

"Gib" Herrington, the twirler for the home team, was all that could be desired, both in the box and at the bat, and after the fifth inning got better support from the rest of the players, which helped to cinch the game.

The line-ups:

Orland—Way p, Downs c, Zufelt 1b, Houlihan 2b, Mulhall 3b, Belford ss, Beatty rf, Dawson lf, Moran cf, Eugles p, E. Zufelt sub.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. What was the rule adopted to help prevent the intentional pass and was it successful?—H. L.

2. What happens when the umpire is struck by a batted ball after a play has been made on it?—T. M.

3. What happens when a baserunner is struck by a batted ball on which no play has been made?—C.M.

ANSWERS

1. The rule adopted relative to the intentional pass was that the leaving of his position by the catcher, before the ball left the pitcher's hand entitled all runners to advance one base. It was of no help.

2. The ball is considered in play if it hits the umpire after some fielder has made a play on the ball.

3. The base-runner is out, the batsman entitled to first and no runners can advance unless forced. If a play has been made on the ball before it strikes the runner it is considered in play.

ROSENEATH WON FROM BRIGHTON

Alnwick Villagers Rallied In Seventh and Eighth, Overcoming Lead of Four Runs.

ROSEEATH, May 27. — In an exciting Northumberland League fixture yesterday afternoon Roseneath defeated Brighton by 5 runs to 4, pulling the game out of the fire by a game rally in the seventh and eighth innings after the visitors had secured what looked to be a safe lead. Brighton scored two in the fifth and another brace of counters in the sixth while the home team were blanked until the seventh when they succeeded in crossing the plate twice. They were still two down when they went to bat in the eighth but an exciting rally scored three runs and won the decision. Bennett for Roseneath pitched fine ball, allowing only 7 hits and fanning ten while he gave two walks. The visitors used three pitchers, Roseneath collecting six hits off the trio.

COLBORNE WON OPENING GAME

Ten Innings and a Cricket Score Marked Campbellford's First Game

COLBORNE, May 27.—Manager C. H. Davidson's Campbellford team lost their first game of the season here yesterday afternoon by a score of 14 to 13, the contest running 10 innings. The weather was too cold for good playing, although there was some heavy hitting, sharp base running and good fielding by both teams. All the pitchers were hit freely. Scott, the left hander, and Hutton, of Campbellford, both new men this year, are promising propositions when the weather permits the limbering of their pitching arms. Richardson, the new third baseman for the visitors, was struck by Ives on the right elbow early in the game and had to quit, Hutton taking his place. The visitors had a safe lead up to the ninth, when Colborne tied the score and blanked their opponents in the tenth, McBride in Colborne's half of the extra frame scoring the winning run. Hume, Weston, Holmes and Hyland were the heavy hitters for Campbellford, each having a double to his credit. Holmes had four hits altogether, Hume and Weston three each. Hume shivered in right field throughout the game and never got a chance.

Blakely did fine work in left for Campbellford, making four hard catches and assisting in a neat double play. He also had two hits and scored one of the runs. Holmes stole four bases, one of them the home plate.

The visitors lost the game in the third inning when they let in four runs. The line-up had been changed owing to the injury to Richardson and the team appeared to go to pices. The line-up:

Campbellford — Eagleson, s.s.; Hume, r.f.; Holmes, 2b. and c.; Weston, 1b.; Hyland, c. and 2b.; Scott, p. and 3b.; Blakely, l.f.; Shillinglaw, c.f.; Richardson, 3b.; Hutton, 3b. and p.

Colborne—Hawkins, s.s.; Wilson, c.f.ffi; Barfet and Myles, 2b.; Ross, s.s.; Deloney, r.f.; S. Ives, l.f.; aMyhew, c.; E. Ives, p.; McBride, 3b.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

MINING LETTER.

The majority of the mining issues remained unchanged from last night's close. Lorraine did not gain anything from yesterday, selling from 23 to 24 3-4. Keora remained steady around 12.

Toronto and Montreal were dull and listless, the bulk of the trading being done in the paper stocks.

THE NEW YORK MARKET

The New York market was steady this morning but inclined to mark time. This is election year and the political situation as it exists to-day has never been paralleled, and it appears as though there will be no real line on the eventual candidates until the conventions. Uncertainty exists and movement of any magnitude appears very remote.

LIFT LOCK HAS BUT FEW BOATS

Only Nine Have Followed Course of Trent Canal This Year--Local Traffic Gone.

Men who observe daily the traffic on the Trent Canal are now resigned to the apparently steady diminution of the volume of traffic using the waterway, and are not surprised by the fact that up to last evening at six o'clock only nine boats had passed the Lift Lock since it opened for business on 5th May.

This includes two visiting cruisers from Toronto, and two boats that came down yesterday.

Many years ago, so the story goes as told by old-timers, over 1,000 boats a year used the Lift Lock, but since the arrival of the present lockmaster thirteen years ago, the greatest number has been 650, and local traffic, once flourishing, has dropped to almost nothing.

In fact, it seems that the only boats that sound the far between four toots that sifgnify a desire to use the world-famous hydraulic Lift Lock are pleasure boats from a distance.

The passage takes ten minutes, and with nine operations since 5th May this means that the huge lock has worked only one hour and a half in twenty-one days.

Asked whether the drop in traffic this year is solely due to the high water which prohibits the moving of some steamers, an official told The Examiner that the drop has been steady for years, and the slackness this season is not surprising.

STONEY LAKE WAS SCENE OF STORM

One of the Roughest Storms in Many Years

Holiday seekers, who left on Saturday morning for Lakefield on the 8.30 train and boarded the steamer "Empress" at Lakefield for the upper lakes, report a stormy voyage. With the boat rocking badly and huge waves washing on to the decks, the people clung to their places through the raging storm of white caps which lasted for most of the day. The captain of the Empress has sailed these waters for a number of years, and reports that he never saw Stoney Lake so rough. People in launches and smaller boats were kept busy bailing out the water and had to be very skilled sailors to keep their boats on the top of the water. The rough water was noticed at fifirst when the boat glided into Clear Lake and it kept the boat rocking and the people nervous all the way through Clear Lake to Upper Stoney Lake where the white caps were rolling as high as ever and a bad wind was blowing.

Those seeking adventure of this kind were well satisfied while the more timid ones were kept running from one side of the boat to the other to keep out of the water that was washing up on the boat. One aged lady had to be carried from the boat to her cottage, while she also had to be carried back on to the boat on the return trip on Monday. The return trip was not as rough as going up but all present were not sorry when they reached land and felt a solid footing once more.

MRS. M. McLEOD HAS PIONEER'S SPIRIT

Although Nearing Seventy Years of Age Has No Objection to Work.

Mrs. Margaret McLeod, mother of Mr. Alex. McLeod, of 168 McDonnel Street, is a member of the party of Scotch ladies who depart tomorrow for a visit to their native land. Although the other ladies will return to Canada, Mrs. McLeod will remain in Glasgow with her daughter.

The sturdy frame of the Scotswoman, and the blue eyes that so many Scotch people possess, are noticeable in Mrs. McLeod, who is sixty-nine years of age, "next September," and whose grey hair frames a cheerful, bright face. The lady has a spirit that might be owned by a woman just half her age, and she has a record behind her of half a century of labor as a weaver, here and in the Old Country.

Born in Glasgow, Mrs. McLeod learned the art of weaving in the community of fellow-workers who dwell in that big city. Working on a steam loom in Scotland, where textures of finer quality were manufactured, in silk mixtures, curtains and laces, she came out to Canada thirteen years ago, three years after her husband died, and has been weaving heavier materials on the electrically-driven looms of the Auburn Company for many years past. To rise at a quarter to five o'clock in the morning, summer and winter, was not considered hard by Mrs. McLeod, whose only regret was that she was unable, last winter, "in the cold time," to work, and was laid off for about three months.

Now she is going back to Glasgow, to live with her widowed daughter and her children, but she may come again to Canada, which she likes. "If they arena good to me, I'll come back," she asserts firmly, in the broad Scotch tongue that abounds with "Ayes" and sibilant "yeses." Mrs. McLeod is evidently more of a worker than a talker, but she has a kindly, bright eye and a warm hand-clasp. This will be her fourth voyage over the Atlantic, for she made a trip home three years after coming out here, and when she goes, she will leave behind her a son and daughter in this country, with several grandchildren, among them a tiny, smooth-faced, cunning Jean, eleven months old, with the cheerful smile and the blue eyes of her grandmother.

Where Every Attraction Gives U Satisfaction

AT THE CAPITOL

The glittering, gorgeous Gloria Swanson is very much at home in her role of a society butterfly, in "A Society Scandal," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. As an ultra-fashionable young society woman, she goes back to her earlier screen characterisations, in which she was a resplendent, vampirish type. The wonderfully-dressed Gloria is as stunning as ever, as Marjorie Colbert, wife of Hector Colbert (Allan Simpson). — It is a real drama of modern-day life. Although the thread of the story is somewhat cleverly concealed, the trend of such glittering lives has its well-liked, "movie" ending. Marjorie Colbert is supposed to be very much in love with her husband, but her fondness for him does not prevent her from flirting outrageously with Harrison Peters, a noted card sharp, nor does it prevent her from transferring her facile ardour to Daniel Farr, the lawyer. The finale shows her happy in the arms of a gentleman she has known for a week, with the ink on her divorce papers still undried.

However, in the matter of speed and entertainment, the story possibly fulfills its mission. It delineates what most people are anxious to see —the inner life of New York's society life. If the lady has a peculiar habit of vamping her admirers at sight, if her gowns and head-dress are spectacular in the extreme, still she maintains an atmosphere of innocence to the last reel, and she is a colourful, animated figure. Although the inference from such a picture may not be of the best type, it is well camouflaged, and the production is entertaining. Rod LaRoque, who, by the way, has lost some of his good looks, acts as the lady's last victim, as Daniel Farr, the lawyer, who prosecutes her with vehemence in her divorce action, then falls to the lure of her super-exotic appearance and personality. Ricardo Cortez is the consistently smiling, somewhat attractive, Harrison Peters, whose genial demeanour takes the edge off his manifest undesirability. Of the three men involved in Gloria's web, he is perhaps the most virile. The whole production illustrates the well-known adage that "the female of the species is more deadly than the male," the feminine villain of the piece being Gloria's interfering mother-in-law who drives her daughter-in-law to some mad tricks. As in so many latter-day "movie" features, the element of the fourth estate is introduced in the influence exerted by the press. Marjorie Colbert's hectic woes are added to by the publication of some of her escapades.

Lloyd Hamilton has a bucketful of laughs in his latest rapid-fire comedy, "Going East," and a very good programme is rounded out by the vaudeville team, Coudy and MacGowan, the Irish nightingales, two singers with exceptionally good voices. Their numbers are a collection of popular songs and operatic imitations that demonstrate excellent quality of voice, seldom heard on the vaudeville stage.

AT THE REGENT

CROWD THRILLED WHEN LLOYD PERFORMED CLIMB.

Wherever "Safety Last," Harold Lloyd's latest feature comedy for Pathe, is shown, it unquestionably will win the applause of the entire audience. But even the most enthusiastic applause can't compare with the cheering of the crowd that witnessed the filming of the climb in "Safety Last."

Somehow the news got about that the famous comedian was to use the Bank of Italy building at the corner of First and Spring Streets in Los Angeles to film a scene for one of his forthcoming productions. Three hours before the comedian arrived, the streets around the tall building were crowded with admirers of the star. When Harold appeared on the scene, he was noisily welcomed, and as the directors and cameramen made their preparations, the crowd settled down, expecting to see the filming of a comic street scene.

They saw, instead, one of the most daring stunts ever performed for the camera. As Harold continued his climb, the huge audience showed its appreciation by breathless interest, applauding now and then at some especially reckless performance by the star, but, on the whole, watching the comedian in tense admiration.

When the cilmb was finally completed the crowd relaxed into a veritable ovation, and the gratifying demonstration when Harold Lloyd stepped into his car to leave, surely must have been some compensation for the long hours of tedious training necessary to perform the clever feats in "Safety Last."

CLEANING BOTTLES

You can clean glass water bottles very easily if you let soapy water and coffee grounds stand in them for a while, then shake thoroughly before you wash and rinse.

JUNIOR LEAGUE STARTS AT LAST

Crescents and Lakeviews Clash Tomorrow at Riverside.

Lakeviews and Crescents open the Junior City League schedule on Wednesday afternoon at Riverside Park. Although the Lakeviews are picked by most of the fans to represent Peterboro in the finals this year, they may get a surprise when they bump into the Crescents, who will have the assistance of Abe Delahaye, the chubby little catcher of the Juvenile League, and also Chuck Bradley, of the Juveniles. These boys will do the important work for the Crescents, while they have a snappy infield to fall back on. Both teams are a bunch of fighters, who won't give in until the last ball is thrown, and the fans are assured one of the fastest Junior games seen in this city in a long time. The Lakeviews have played several exhibition games for practice and have been looming up well, while the Crescents have been practising every night, and their infield is working like a machine, with every man on the team ready to give all he has towards winning the game. The game is called for 6 o'clock sharp.

EAST PETERBORO LEAGUE TO START

Mackeys Bread Company and Cogs. Play Opening Game Tomorrow Evening at the Exhibition Grounds.

The East Peterborough Intermediate Baseball League opens to-morrow night on the new diamond at the Exhibition grounds at six o'clock when Bob Mackey's outfit will try to take a fall out of the southern Indians, known better as the Cognawagas. The Cognawagas have been practising faithfully for the past few weeks and are in tip-top form, while Mackey has the right to boast of one of the neatest teams in the East Peterborough loop. He will line up with several of last year's players and a number of new ones.

The new diamond is situated in front of the grand stand and the many fans will be able to sit comfortably and watch the boys perform. A large turnout of fans is expected.

The NUT CRACKER
BY JOE WILLIAMS

It is nothing new for a politician to froth at the mouth, yet this is not always a sure sign he is agitating a return to beer.

The rules governing knockouts in New York have been changed but the primitive practice of carrying victims out by the heels after Dempsey hits them will still prevail.

The indoor walking champion will not be able to compete in the Olympics but the outdoor walking champion, Mr. Ruth, is available.

While Mons. Carpentier apparently had no trouble ducking Gibson in New York he may find it altogether different ducking Gibbons in Indiana.

The charge that McGraw flirted with the Phillies is especially scandalous since it infers that he will flirt with anything.

It may be true that men like Siki give boxing a black eye yet it is consoling to know that men like Siki get most of 'em.

Tennis experts think Helen Wills will win on account of her unruffled poise and we hope they know exactly what they are talking about.

Not being a golfer Mr. Coolidge can hardly hope for any support down beow the Mashie and Divot line.

The amazing thing about the fist battle between American and Rumanian rugby players is that anybody could ever get worked up that much over rugby.

Jim Corbett deplores the lack of science in present-day fighting, whereas the fans merely deplore the lack of fighting.

REMOVING ICE CREAM.

When ice cream will not come out of the mold, having been frozen so hard, let a little cold water run over the outside of the container. This will melt it sufficiently to loosen it without spoiling the shape of the mold.

DAD'S TOTS RACERS TOO

Tiny Sons of Detroit Millionaire Demon Speeders On Their Own Back-Yard Saucer Track.

JOE (AT THE WHEEL) AND FRANCIS ALL SET FOR A SPIN.

DETROIT, May 22.—While automobile racing fans are wondering where the next generation of daring drivers are coming from, what with the single seat cars giving mechanics no longer an opportunity to serve an apprenticeship of speed, two youthful sons of a wealthy Detroit family are pedaling their footpower mobiles around an especially constructed track in the rear of their mansion here.

They are Joseph Boyer III, six years old, and Francis Palms Boyer, five, sons of the daring and spectacular pilot, Joe Boyer, local millionaire.

Each day they play around the speeding car of their father and then in their play mobiles stage races, wearing their daddy's goggles and helmets. They break even on results, but Francis, the younger, wins only because he is more daring than his brother, whose older legs are more powerful.

Joe Boyer, the father, plays the official starter and referee for many of the races.

But Mrs. Boyer stoutly claims that neither of the sons will be permitted to drive racing automobiles when they grow up.

The boys say they want to.

But the racing father, who drives not for money but for the thrill of speed, says nothing—showing only with his eyes that it will not displease him if the boys, "Joe and Frank" dash about the racing courses after age has sent him to the grandstands.

DADDY BOYER

FIRE DESTROYED THE HAVELOCK BAKE SHOP

HAVELOCK, May 27. — The bake shop owned and operated by O. A. Patterson at Havelock was completely destroyed by fire at 11.30 this morning. The origin of the fire is yet unknown. The good work of the chemical engine and the Canadian Pacific Rialway hose saved the surrounding buildings, otherwise they would likely have gone up in smoke with the bake shop. The fire had a good start before it was noticed and with the help of a fresh breeze it soon made short work of the factory. The fire was a total loss to Mr. Patterson as he had no insurance on the building.

AT THE ROYAL

NEW HAMILTON COMEDY FUNNY AS A CIRCUS.

The blackface comedy which caused so much furore in movie circles some time ago has been completed, and is being shown at the Royal Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

"His Darker Self," you will recall, was the picture that Al Jolson was to have done, but he didn't like the looks of himself on the silver sheet, and skipped to Europe. They borrowed Lloyd Hamilton from Educational to fill the gap. Man! that was a lucky choice. Hamilton is incomparable in this, his first feature comedy. He plays in both white and black face, and he's a scream in both.

"His Darker Self" is one of those rare comedies that are not only played by a good comedian, but which have in their plots real comedy situations. The story concerns one Claude Sappington, who has ambitions in a sleuthing direction. In order to capture a murderer, he disguises as a dinge and gets a job in a Darktown dance hall. Then the fun begins. Claude gets tangled up in various adventures, among which are a free-for-all fight, a coloured baptismal ceremony which washes off his burnt cork, and a motor boat race. In the end he gets the murderer, and wins the lady of his heart, who, by the way, is no other than beautiful Sally Long, noted Ziegfeld star.

Mrs. Anna Boyd, 74 years of age, and a pioneer of White Water Township, Mich., for 58 years, passed away Wednesday evening at 10.45 at her farm house, south east of Williamsburg, Mich. Hewett of Traverse City, Mich., Mrs. H. Claypool and James Boyd of Pontiac, Mich., Patrick Jr., of East Jordon, Mich., and John of Williamsburg, Mich. A sister Miss Elizabeth Welsch and a brother Mickel of Elk Rapids, Mich., a sister Mrs. Thos. McAvella and brother Patrick Welsch of Campbellford, Ont., Can. and a brother Edward in Texas, U.S.A. She leaves also twenty-four grand children and six great grand children and a host of friends.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at nine o'clock from St. Francis R.C. Church. Rev. Fr. Schueller officiating. Burial will be in the family lot in the Roman Catholic Cemetery, Oakwood.

DR. P. E. KIDD.

On Sunday, May 18th, Dr. P. E. Kidd, late of New York City, brother of Mrs. O. G. Williamson and Mrs. M. Kelly, of Omemee, was buried in the Port Hope Cemetery.

Rev. Mr. Anderson, of the Presbyterian Church, conducted a very impressive service at the house and also at the grave, where the remains of the late Dr. Kidd were interred in a sealed grave of brick and cement.

Commenting upon the life of the departed, Rev. F. W. Anderson based his remarks upon "A life given for others," which was especially applicable to that of Dr. Kidd, contracting his fatal illness from a patient which he restored to health, it was especially true of him that he cured others, but himself he could not cure.

A few years of illness succeeded when the kind hand of death relieved him of a burdened life, leaving his widow and four sisters: Mrs. O. G. Williamson and Mrs. M. S. Kelly, Omemee; Mrs. W. J. Campbell, Belleville; Mrs. Ferguson, Lakefield, and two brothers: Dr. D. A. Kidd of Atwood and W. J. Kidd, Woodstock, to mourn his passing.

The pall-bearers were all relatives: Dr. D. A. Kidd, W. J. Kidd, W. J. Campbell, R. N. Kidd and C. H. Williamson of Toronto and James Hawthorne, Peterboro. The body of the late Dr. Kidd rests in the grave where loving hands placed it, but the influence of a noble life, always unsparing itself, where relief could be given to the distress of others, remains.

ANK INSPECTION PLAN IS PROPOSED

Finance Department of Government Will Take Action.

OTTAWA, May 27 (Canadian Press). — The Government has decided that there should be some system of inspection of banks under the Finance Department, and will shortly submit a proposal along these lines to the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House of Commons.

This announcement was made to the committee this morning by the Hon. James A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, in answer to a question by W. F. MacLean, Conservative member for South York.

Mr. Robb said that the question of whether or not the services of the present shareholders' auditors could be utilised in such a system of inspection was under consideration.

The Government was anxious to establish a system which would permit the inspection of a bank without disturbing the confidence of the public in that institution.

A Recital

A pleasing song recital was given in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, by two of the vocal pupils of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland and Miss Mabel Gardiner, assisted by Miss Mary Harstone, pianiste, pupil of Miss Pearl Burford, and Stewart Widdess, violinist, pupil of Mr. F. Filion. Accompanists for the occasion were Mrs. M. C. MacKinnon and Miss Margaret Widdess. The work of the vocal pupils was marked by careful attention to tempo and rhythm. Mrs. McClelland's songs were delivered with her usual impressive, dramatic force and Miss Gardiner's numbers were in sweet voice, her selection "Should He Upbraid" being particularly pleasing. The instrumental solos for piano and violin made an attractive adjunct to the vocal offerings. The following is the programme:

(a) "Sing! Sing! Break Into Song!"—Mallison.
(b) "Deep River" (Old Negro Melody)—Burleigh.
(c) "Dawn in the Forest"—Landon Ronald.
(d) "Should He Upbraid"—Bishop.
Miss Mabel Gardiner.
Piano Solo—"Elegie"—Nollet.
Miss Mary Harstone.

(d) "The Cunnin' Little Thing!"—Hageman.
Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland.

(b) "Songs My Mother Taught Me"—Dvorak.
(c) "The Swing"—Liza Lehmann.
(d) "A Birthday"—Woodman.
Miss Mabel Gardiner.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I wish to state my approval of the work being done by the Board of Works in the filling of ruts and holes in the roads. The material used on Hunter Street West and Walton is excellent, and as we are so situated that our material, sand and gravel, is readily available, the Board is wise in its use and to the greater extent the better permanent roads are all right, but much quicker action can be got in this way and satisfactory service given to a larger number of citizens. A good move deserves commendation. —Yours truly,

S. H. MITCHELL.

CHURCH UNION BILL UP AGAIN

Counsel For Opposing Sides Will Endeavor to Get Together.

OTTAWA, May 27 (Canadian Press). — Discussion over the Church Union Bill crystallised in the House of Commons Private Bills Committee this morning down to the problem of the non-concurring congregations and their property rights provisions and the Federal Commission.

Two sections dealing with these provisions and Federal Commission to decide as to the equities in denominational property were allowed to stand over after a number of amendments had been put forward from both advocates and opponents of the Bill.

In the meantime, counsel for the opposing sides are to get together with a view to seeking how far they are in accord in the proposed amendments.

VOCAL COMBAT THREW OPENING OF REICHSTAG INTO COMPLETE UPROAR

Communists' Chorus of the "Red Internationale" Was Opposed By "Deutschland Uber Alles" From the Nationalist Group — Admiral Von Tirpitz Greeted By Sirens and Small Foghorns —Boisterous Opening Session.

WORST IS YET TO COME

BERLIN, May 28 (Canadian Press). — The opening session of Germany's second post-war Reichstag yesterday terminated in a typical German saengerfest, the Communists striking up the "Red Internationale,' to which the reactionaries responded with "Deutschland Uber Alles."

The final outbreak which marked the unusual parliamentary manifestations marked a fitting session thrown into confusion by boisterous obstructionist tactics, in which the Commuists had the lion's share.

With its initial session the new Reichstag scceeded in living up to expectations, the party leaders frankly admitting that conditions will grow worse once the new Parliament attempts to settle down to serious business.

The Government bench remained vacant, as there was no official calendar to be disposed of, and most of the members of the Government occupied seats with their respective parties.

Frustrated By Reds.

An attempt by the Communists to force recognition of several political motions were frustrated and the Reds thereafter reserved their sabotaging ammunition, howling down their political opponents as the names were checked off on the official roster by the House Clerk. When Prince Von Bismarck's name was called, the left responded with, "Woe unto to you, that you are his grandson."

Shrill whistling sirens and minature foghorns greeted the name of Admiral Von Tirpitz. General Ludendorff got the benefit of a stratagem employed by his party and his friends, who started up a deafening cheering chorus the moment his name was called out. This put a damper on most of the amunition the Communists had stored up for him, and they scored by sending one of their members to the Speaker's desk with a huge pair of blue spectacles—a reminder of those worn by the Quartermaster-General, when in disguise, he took secret leave for Sweden in the early days of the revolution.

Communists in Jail.

Nine Communists who were elected to the Reichstag are either serving time for political offences, or are locked up awaiting trial. Their release was loudly demanded by their comrades.

Ruth Fischer, who leads the Reds' vocal onslaughts on the floor of the Chamber, was much in evidence, while Thomas Wendelin, the longshoreman from Hamburg and one of the Communists' strong-arm men appeared clad in a sweater and persisted throughout the session in smoking a pipe, which half a dozen sergeants-at- arms failed to remove.

Just how soon the new Parliament will succeed in perfecting its technical organization and getting down to active routine is not yet determined, as the Communists demand the presence of their incarcerated members before approving further action.

Opera Glasses Used.

Opera glasses were heavily requisitioned by the gallery visitors, who alternately turned them on Lundendorff, Von Tirpitz, Von Bismarck and Ruth Fischer. General Lundendorff appeared unconcerned over the "courtesies' 'showered upon him by the Reds, Prince Von Bismarck, the Reichstag's youngest member, circulated among his party's veterans as though he were anything but a newcomer to the parliamentary arena At twenty-eight, he is exactly fifty years younger than William Bock, Socialist, who is the Reichstag's oldest member, and was yesterday temporary president.

Chairman Bock was unable to bring the session to a formal conclusion, as the Communists and the Nationalists engaged in a singing competition. After vainly tolling the bell for ten minutes, he doffed his top hat and left the chair.

Lord De Abernon, the British Ambassador, and numerous other diplomatic representatives were among the spectators. A heavy cordon of troops kept thousands at a safe distance from the building and the deputies. Von Tirpitz dispersed several photographers, who tried to snapshot him with a series of swift fencing movements of his cane.

ALLEGE GIRL IS VICTIM OF LOVER'S JEALOUSY.

Nineteen-year-old Beatrice Fee, of Omemee, who died in the Lindsay hospital, with four bullet wounds below the heart. Fred McGaughey, of Omemee, her sweetheart, is held in the County Jail, and will face a charge of murder. McGaughey attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself and drinking paris green after wounding the girl. Miss Fee, who resided with her aunt, Mrs. Mardill, at 130 Bleecker Street, Toronto, left on Saturday with a girl friend, Miss Helen Stewart, to visit her parents in Omemee. Jealousy is as signed as the motive for the shooting, which occurred on Sunday night while Miss Fee was riding in McGaughey's motor car.

Heir to Drake Millions Will Quit Locomotive Shop to Visit Castles May Take Jaunt Around World

James Henry Smith, An Employee of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Has Not Had a Day Off With Pay — Is Positive of Receiving Rich Inheritance From England But Isn't Counting Unhatched Chicks.

Descendant of Drake.

LIMA, O., May 28.—James Henry Smith, 68-year-old patternmaker at the Lima locomotive works, may take his vacation now.

He and his brother, Jefferson Smith, living in Oklahoma, are two of 13 heirs to the $66,000,000 in castles, treasures and spoils left by Sir Francis Drake, famour British admiral and buccaneer of Elizabethan days.

For 52 years Smith has not had a day off—with pay.

Now he will take weeks off—and not care about pay.

In his old-fashioned two-story home here, the grey-haired, wrinkled worker unfolded the dream of his youth, which the promise of a fortune might bring about.

Spirit of Ancestor.

"I have always wanted to travel, to see the world, to find out how the rest of the people live," he remarked, "and it looks as though I'll have the opportunity.

"The first thing we'll do when we get the money is travel," and he looked promisingly toward his 64-year-old wife. Mrs. Smith just returned a motherly smile and let him continue.

"Perhaps we shall go around the world. We do not know. But it all depends on our children."

There are eight children, with their own families. But their father has promised not to forget them in his sudden streak of good fortune.

"We shall give a share of the fortune to each of our children, so that they would never want for anything. And we won't be estranged from them.

"Of course, we shall go to Europe and see the castles. If it would be possible for all the children to take their families over there so that we could all be together, we might occupy them ourselves.

"But that's hardly likely. So we'll probably dispose of the mansions.

"I wouldn't think of living in England, anyway, with the children here. I've raised them here and I think I'll stay."

The spirit of his adventurous ancestors, however, will make little impression on Smith. Drake couldn't stay home long enough to become acquainted with his neighbors before he was out on another buccaneering expedition.

Desires Comfort.

But outside of that trip abroad and around the world, Smith wants to stay home, lead a quiet, comfortable life and share in the happiness of his wife, his children and grandchildren.

The difference between now and later will be a finer home with a cozy fireplace—and servants.

"Yes," Smith said assuredly. "Mrs. Smith will hire servants. Why shouldn't she? She has worked hard all her life and never has known what it is to take things easy.

"She has it coming to her."

He spoke in a manner certain of receiving the legacy.

"The information I have received is true, and I'm positive I shall receive the inheritance," Smith declared. "It will be impossible to say when it will come, but I understand it will not be long."

Yet Smith isn't counting his chickens before they're hatched.

Mrs. Smith still packs his dinner-box, and he still reports for work at the pattern shop at 7 every morning.

THREE BULLETS EXTRACTED FROM FEE GIRL'S BODY

Fourth Passed Through—All Traversed Vital Spots — Evidences of Struggle Found Outside Automobile By Provincial Constable Storey.

Brutally Assaulted.

LINDSAY, May 28.—Three bullets were removed from the remains of Miss Lillian Beatrice Fee, victim of Sunday night's shooting near Omemee, in the post-mortem made by Dr. Logan. Trace of a fourth bullet was found, which had passed directly through the body.

All four bullets had entered the body within a small area directly above the abdomen, one lodging near the heart.

It has now been established by Provincial Constable Storey that the shooting occurred Sunday evening in daylight, around 7 o'clock. Jos. Parrington, a farmer, who resides about a mile and a half from the McGaughey farm, has stated that about 7 o'clock on Sunday evening he saw the automobile parked on the roadway about a quarter mile from his home. He says he heard at least five shots fired from a revolver. Constable Storey located the spot where the late Miss Fee was brutally assaulted and shot, there being marks of blood on the roadway and other signs indicating that a struggle had occurred outside the automobile. A piece of the deceased girl's earring was also picked up by Constable Storey on the spot where the shooting occurred.

Nearly Two Hours.

The shooting having occurred around seven o'clock, it is apparent that McGaughey kept the deceased in his home for nearly two hours before he finally telephoned for Dr. Rich, and during that interval he had ample time to take his life had he that intention, for it was not until near nine o'clock when his brother, Lawrence, accompanied by Miss Helen Stewart of Toronto, arrived at the farm house and found Miss Fee still conscious.

Medical authorities declared that Miss Fee exhibited remarkable powers of endurance and fortitude in having wrested the gun from McGaughey and remaining conscious until an hour or so before death.

A Sad Blow.

A visit to the Fee farm near Omemee emphasises the sad side of the tragedy. A happy home has been visited by great grief and shock. Beatrice Fee was the eldest daughter of five and the eldest girl in a family of eight children. One brother Wilmot, aged 25 years, resides at home with his parents, while another boy, aged 23, lives in Trenton, Mich. The other children are all at home with their father and mother.

The parents are almost overcome with grief. Mr. Fee stated that he first heard of the affair when Lawrence had telephoned stating that there had been an automobile accident.

Mr. Fee then went to the McGaughey home but his daughter had been taken to the hospital. He came to Lindsay hospital and had a short talk with his daughter, who was very weak at the time.

"Oh, what has happened?" queried the father, and the young victim only said that Fred had shot her while in a drunken rage, "but don't hold it against him, dad," she added.

Brought Her Flowers.

Mrs. Fee, mother of the victim, said that she was with her daughter when she died. She had remained conscious until the last, and recognised her friends at her bedside.

They were Mrs. Fee, the girl's uncle, her aunt, and her friend, Miss Stuart. Carrie Stinson, her teacher, was also there, and brought her some flowers.

"She had been going with Fred for two years," said Mrs. Fee, "and they were engaged to be married. She was going to marry when she was twenty, next fall ,and intended

Boom Runner at Sarnia Drowned

SARNIA, May 28. — Louis Vansomer, an employee of the Reid Wrecking Company, was drowned in Sarnia Bay about 50 feet from the shore, about 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, when he fell off a boom log, while preparing booms for removal.

It was believed that he was seized with heart attack, as he was an excellent swimmer, and had been employed as a boom runner for nearly 20 years. He sank just a few feet behind the tug Constitution, and fellow employees said that his body did not reappear. Grappling hooks were used, and the services of Marine Diver Louis Miers, Port Huron were requisitioned, but the body was not recovered. The booms are used to hold logs for the Cleveland-Sarnia saw mills.

FOUR CHILDREN ESCAPED DEATH

Infant Forgotten In Crib Asphyxiated By Mother Obsessed With the Idea That Husband Was Unfaithful.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Isadora Goldsheig, ten-months-old, forfeited her life yesterday, because some one forgot her as she lay in her crib after her mother attempted suicide in the home at No. 1528 Minford place, the Bronx. And because of that forgetfulness the mother is charged with homicide.

The mother awoke strangely obsessed—so says the husband—with the idea that the father of her five children was untrue to her. Frank Goldsheig, hard-working man, went out to telephone an old friend, Dr. J. F. Morris, No. 208 Pulaski street, Brooklyn:

"Won't you come right over, doctor? My wife is imagining things."

Turns On Gas Jets.

While he was 'phoning, the wife, Adela, thirty-six, shut the doors and windows in their two-room apartment and turned on all gas jets. A neighbor smelled the fumes, and when Patrolman Schipp burst in the rear door the woman staggered out, faint. Behind her came four Sheig children: Bella, thirteen; Lester, ten; Julius, eight; Heiman, six.

Frank Goldsheig returned home just as the four children were being placed in a Fordham Hospital ambulance. Schipp commandeered a laundry truck and sent her to the same institution.

"Where's my baby?"

Baby Beyond Help.

That cry from the husband caused a search. Isadora was found sleeping in her crib. She never awoke.

The other four children will recover.

So will the mother. The latter was placed in Fordham's prison ward, charged with homicide.

PROCESSION IN INDIA BEFORE PRIVY COUNCIL

Curious Appeal to the Throne From Community Objecting to Magistrate's Restriction of Annual Religious Procession.

LONDON, May 28.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—India invariably is the most litigious of all the dominions as far as the privy council is concerned. There are 16 appeals for this term of the privy council, these being on questions ranging from proprietory rights in villages to the question whether a legatee is entitled to inherit property of a woman he murdered.

Their lordships of the privy council heard a curious appeal yesterday from Allahabed concerning religious ceremonies. Shia community from time immemorial has celebrated the Moharren festival yearly by taking in a procession flags, effigies, imitation coffins, etc., through the streets of Auranabad, the processionists reciting prayers and uttering lamentations at certain points in commemoration of the martyrdom of the grandsons of the high prophet. For the first time in history the procession in 1916 was interfered with by Sunni, another community, when Shia made one of the customary pauses near the Sunni mosque. The following year the magistrate ordered that there should be no Shia procession and in any case the procession, if one was held, should not halt near the Sunni mosque.

The present appeal has been brought to obtain a declaration by the privy council that the procession was legal. The appellants, however, did not assert that the magistrate was acting illegally if he prohbited the procession through fear of a breach of the peace.

In the course of the argument in the Shia appeal Lord Curson attempted to arrive briefly at the whole point of the appeal by remarking: "It really means one portion of the populace believes in this procession and another portion objects to it. I have seen the same sort of things in my own country." Lord Carson later remarked that their lordships fully realized that this procession was really a serious religious observance which afforded great consolation to the participants in it.

Canadian Cases.

The Canadian business to come before the judicial committee of the privy council at its next term will be exceptionally heavy. Included therein is the Home Bank case in which an appeal is being made in the matter of the right of the directors of the Home Bank to be tried before county judge on the charges against them under the bank act. The term probably will commence about the middle of June.

FRED McGAUGHEY
Who is in Lindsay Jail charged with the murder of Miss Beatrice Fee.

BURIED IN LINDSAY

John Mills, Born in 1851, Was Former Resident of Peterborough.

LINDSAY, May 28.—The funeral took place on Sunday of a former resident of Peterboro, in the person of John Mills. The deceased was born in Emily Township in 1851, and learned his trade in Peterboro with the firm of Lockhart & Miller, carriage builders. He resided in that city for a number of years, and afterwards lived in Millbrook, Cannington, Omemee and Janetville, being in business for himself in the two latter places for some years. For thirty-two years he had been a resident of Lindsay. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

Among those from Peterboro and district who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Robert Wilson and daughter May, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gillespie, Mrs. Humphries, Mrs. Bert Lean, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lean and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hales and daughter Mildred, of Apsley.

OMEMEE CITIZENS WERE INDIGNANT

Some So Worked Up by Fee Tragedy They Threatened to Do Bodily Harm to McGaughey

OMEMEE, May 28. — Following the death of Miss Beatrice Fee, the 19-year-old Omemee girl, who was shot by her frenzied lover on Sunday night last, there is considerable talk among the people, and it was stated that certain citizens of Omemee were so worked up over the affair that they were almost prepared to visit McGaughey in his jail cell at Lindsay with an idea of doing bodily harm. Miss Fee remained true to the last and was conscious up to her last hour. She forgave her lover, Fred McGaughey, and urged her father to forgive him, stating that "he was in a drunken rage and did not know what he was doing."

McGaughey was not informed of the young girl's death until about noon hour yesterday. Monday he made several enquiries concerning the young lady and seemed to be quite dejected and depressed. He refused to talk, not even to his brother and other relatives. Mr. W. Fee also called, as did Officer Storey but the accused was quite distant and apparently in deep meditation. He sat over in one corner of the cell and remained by himself. However, at noon hour yesterday he was again visited by his counsel, Mr. Leslie G. Frost, of the firm of Knight, Frost & Frost, and was told of the death of the young lady. He took the news quite calmly, and did not appear to be perturbed to any great extent.

It now transpires that the shooting took place about seven o'clock in the evening and followed a severe struggle in the motor car, in which Miss Fee succeeded in wrestling the pistol from McGaughey after she had been riddled with bullets, two of which hit the dashboard of the car, and the gun jamming on the fifth shot. McGaughey then took the girl back to his home and, according to the statement of Miss Fee, told to Miss Stuart, "dragged me into the house" and placed her on a bed.

It is also stated that Mr. J. Curtins, a neighbor, who had noticed the strange going on at the house earlier in the afternoon, went over in the evening and discovered the tragedy. Lawrence McGaughey also came along with Miss Stuart and it was then the doctors and police were notified. The young girl had been allowed to remain in the house for some time without medical attention. Currins, it is stated, saw the young couple earlier in the day at the homestead. They were in the car and twice Miss Fee made an attempt to leave McGaughey, running towards the gate, but was persuaded to return again to the car.

Miss Stuart, who has been so sadly touched with the whole affair, states that McGaughey was in a dangerous state of mind, especially after the ambulance bore the young girl to the hospital. He was very "drunk" and "crazy," according to her statements.

BUDGET PROPOSALS HAVE PASSED SECOND READING.

LONDON, May 28. Canadian Press —The Finance Bill embodying the Budget proposals, passed its second reading without a division in the House of Commons last night after an onslaught by Neville Chamberlain and other members of the Opposition who attacked Chancellor Snowden's budget, particularly the repeal of the McLenna duties, and the government's attitude toward the Imperial preference.

H. H. Asquith, Liberal leader, after some technical criticisms said that he fully agreed with the general line's of the budget, pointing out that Britain's floating debt had been reduced from one billion one hundred and thirty million pounds in 1921 to five hundred and ninety million pounds now.

ONE OF BANDITS WAS NOT MASKED

Constable Was To Inspect Last Night Suspects in Montreal Bank Robbery.

MANY SHOTS FIRED

MONTREAL, May 28. — One man among the bandits who rifled the Hochelaga Bank collection car of $142,288 and killed Henri Clerroux, its chauffeur on April 1, was not masked, and Constable I. Pelletier, motorycycle policeman, exchanged shots with him, the constable informed the court in evidence at the trial of Giuseppe Serafini here yesterday afternoon. Serafini is the first of eleven suspects to be tried on charges of murder and receiving stolen money in connection with the affair.

Lacked Ammunition.

Constable Pelletier in the course of his duties on the afternoon of April 1 ran right into the hold-up. Lack of ammunition prevented his continuing the fight. He fired six shots in all at the bandits.

Bank Messenger Thibedeau, cross-examined yesterday afternoon, said he had changed his car on the day of the robbery, as the spring of the regular car was broken. This had caused himself and assistants to deviate a little from the regular route. Police protection that had been given them before the hold-up had been withdrawn some time before the robbery occurred. He had been warned that the hold-up was about to occur. He asserted that all the bank employees knew that one was contemplated.

Constable a Witness.

Constable Albert Edward Hawkins testified that he was a witness of the hold-up and confirmed Constable Pelletier's evidence that one of the bandits was not masked.

Constable Levesque was also present and swore he fired several shots from his .38 calibre revolver.

The morning session was taken up by the evidence of bank messenger Thibodeau who stated that he had been hit by a bullet in the arm and was forced to throw up his hands when a rifle was thrust against his stomach.

GARBAGE MEN ARE VERY BADLY USED

Complaints About Service Are Founded on Misapprehension -- A Garbage Man's Opinion

Spring-cleaning time is nearly over, and people who cleaned their houses from garret to cellar complain in some instances that they had difficulty in getting rid of the accumulation of rubbish they unearthed in the procress. Some declare the garbage men refused to take the discarded material away, while others say that in the process of dumping the rubbish in the wagons their tins and receptacles were battered beyond service. With such a quantity of waste material to dispose of, many housewives were compelled to press into service all kinds of household utensils as containers, and some of these, they declare, were roughly handled by the garbage collectors.

There is a lot to be said for the garbage man, it appears, from a conversation with C. S. Stapleton, sanitary inspector, and one of the men. The latter indicated at the very spot where he was interviewed a barrel full of ashes. It had been rolled on edge along the owner's cement walk to within a few feet of the street line and left for the garbage man to life into his wagon—an impossible feat for one man. An epitaph on a tomb-stone not a hundred miles from Peterboro tells a story that doubtless the garbage men have in mind. It says, "He tried to lift a thousand pounds—and here he lies at length." As a matter of fact the garbage collector is not requred by the by-law to load any box weighing more than seventy-five pounds, and is quite within his rights in refusing any material weighing more.

Another complaint is that the collectors refuse to take garbage unless it is placed near the street line. This probably arises from a mistaken idea of the by-law. There was a time when garbage was placed three feet from the street-line to comply with the regulations, but the by-law now in force requires it to be placed at the street line.

Some Philosophy.

There was some philosophy in the remarks of the garbage collector when he told The Examiner that there is no job in the world without its problems and worries. "The clerks and engineers and professors," he said, "have their own worries, but they are not expected to take the dirt we get." He pointed out that many families in the city save up the furnace ashes all winter to avoid spreading dust through the house, and when the spring cleaning season starts they spread the boxes and tins along the sidewalk—enough often at one house to almost fill a wagon. Not only that, but to prevent the dust flying they pour water on the ashes and make them so heavy the collector cannot lift them.

The garbage collectors are not expected to take anything that is left lying on the roadway. Their contract calls for the removal of garbage and ashes, and old bedsteads, remains of automobiles, building material and stones do not come under either of these heads. Suppose the garbage collectors be ever so willing to cart away these things, they have no way of disposing of them. The incinerator men say they get all kinds of materials, from potato peels to defunct horses, but they have not yet found a way to burn stone and iron. Boughs of trees will be taken if broken up small and tied in bundles, but the twelve or twenty-foot lengths put out by some residents would require special wagons to accommodate them.

To sum up, garbage must be placed at the street line in boxes or containers, each lot not to weigh more than seventy-five pounds, and old bicycles, beds and scrap metal are barred. If proper service is not given when these regulations are carried out, the Sanitary Inspector should be appealed to.

REMAINDER OF BUDGET PUT THROUGH COMMONS

No Bitterness Such as Marked the Previous Day's Proceedings--Premier Asks for Specific Charges Against a Department Before Undertaking Investigation.

OTTAWA, May 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Remaining budget resolutions passed the House of Commons last night. These were resolutions reducing the sales tax from six to five per cent., increasing its list of exemptions and reducing the tax on certain articles to one-half and a further resolution increasing the income tax exemption on each child from three hundred dollars to five hundred dollars and amending the income tax in other particulars. One such is to render certain that income tax lien shall not take priority over securities validly taken prior to the time at which the lien attaches.

The discussion was detailed, but there was no repetition of the bitter attack and retort which marked the proceedings on the previous day.

In the evening W. G. Good of Brant, brought up newspaper charges that under the previous government certain firms had escaped income and business profits tax they should have paid.

Mr. Good declared that he had himself made representations to Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, replied that Mr. Fielding, acting on Mr. Good's representations had had an investigation made by reputable auditors of the particular assessment concerned and the auditors had come to the conclusion that the assessment was fair and just.

Premier King added that if any specific charges were made against any department of the government he would undertake to see that there was an investigation.

The House resumed consideration of the resolution providing for making taxable profits or income of non-resident persons selling goods in Canada through employees or agents, or receiving rentals or royalties from sources within Canada, at the evening sitting yesterday.

This was carried.

Another resolution passed gave to the Government authority to determine profits realized by corporations in Canada purchasing from associated corporations. In excess of fair prices; Canadian corporations selling to parent or subsidiary companies at less than fair prices; and non-resident persons producing goods in Canada and exporting them without sale prior to export.

The committee also approved the clause which provides that income derived from a business conducted by a husband and wife be taxed as income of one of them only.

W. C. Good (Progressive, Brant), referred to a series of articles which had appeared in the Toronto Globe last February, the first of which announced that a royal commission might be appointed to probe the collection of business profit and income taxes, especially in the case of big interests, prior to the last general election. The first article mentioned that the Meighen Government had accepted a note from the Riordan Company as part payment of business profits tax. The second article contained the allegation that cheques totalling $1,700,000 and representing income and business profits taxes of three well known concerns in Ontario were received by the finance department in March, 1921, but not deposited until Dec. 8, of that year. The third article intimated that an investigation would show that the treasury had been deprived of a very large sum through the methods of collection of income and business profits tax under the former administration.

Mr. Good said that he referred to these three articles merely as an introduction. In 1922 he had conducted some investigations of his own based on private information which he had received. In the session of that year, he had placed on the order paper a number of questions in regard to the collection of these taxes, but he received little satisfaction. At last in answer to a telephone call from R. W. Breadner, Commissioner of Taxation, he had gone down to the office of that official and had a long conversation with him. Mr. Breadner had made "certain apologies" said Mr. Good, and practically asked him to withdraw the questions. Later he had seen Mr. Fielding who had not been informed of his conversation with Mr. Breadner and was somewhat annoyed at it. Mr. Fielding had stated that he would speak to Mr. Breadner about it.

Nothing further was heard of the matter and on June 29, 1922, Mr. Good wrote to Mr. Fielding making inquiries. The letter was answered on January 2, 1923, by Mr. Fielding, after his return from Europe. Mr. Fielding stated that he had made inquiries along the line suggested by Mr. Good and Mr. Edwards who had done accounting work for the Government had investigated one of the firms mentioned at length. The report was enclosed, in the letter, and was an indorsation of the original assessment made by the Department. Mr. Good gave this report to his "informant" who was in a position to know the affairs of the administration of the tax.

Sir Henry Drayton asked who the informant was, and Mr. Good replied that he was not in a position to give the gentleman's name at present.

On February 8, 1923, Mr. Good wrote to Mr. Fielding saying that he was not satisfied with Mr. Edwards' report and he would like to see Mr. Edwards and examine the file of the department regarding the particular firm. Mr. Fielding replied on Feb. 20 that the file was not accessible to the public but that Mr. Edwards would call to see Mr. Good.

Mr. Edwards called and discussed the matter. He justified the assessment.

Mr. Robb said that it was quite within the right of a province to test out this question of taxation in the courts. As far as Mr. Brown's protest in regard to the tax was concerned, there would be further investigation of the income tax regulations before the next session. He could not accept suggestions as to altering the exemption at present. Such changes would involve a new resolution.

G. G. Coots, Progressive, MacLeod), suggested that the Government was guilty of usury in exacting ten per cent. interest on arrears of income tax. Most people in arrears could not help themselves. It was not fair to tax a merchant who perhaps had all his capital outstanding in stocks he could not sell, and other classes of citizens were handicapped in other ways.

The Acting Minister said that the experience of the department was that the tax was not collectible at all without "this axe."

Exceptional cases calling for special consideration were received in the department very week and were being given consideration.

Mr. Robb informed Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, who asked what was done about fathers who were dipping into their little capital to support and educate their sons, yet could not get exemption because such sons were over eighteen.

In reply to Sir Henry Drayton, Mr. Robb stated that the increase in the exemption for children from $300 to $500 would cost the treasury $2,000,000. He admitted that he had been surprised by the amount but when pressed by Sir Henry for an expression of opinion upon the wisdom of the change he said that it was the policy of the Government to grant a reduction in taxation and that he considered it a fair start on such a policy to make an allowance for those who had growing families which they were educating.

This resoluiton then carried and the House went out of committee while a bill embodying the sales tax changes was introduced and given a first reading. Proceedings in committee were then immediately resumed having regard to the second resolution affecting the income war tax act which is designed to make taxable profits or income of non-resident persons selling goods in Canada to employees or agents or receiving rentals or royalties from sources within Canada.

PILGRIMS TO ROME.

ROME, May 28.—More than 2,000,000 pilgrims are expected to journey to Rome in 1925, the Holy Year. Thus the Vatican and municipal and Government authorities in Rome find themselves confronted with a serious housing problem. The Vatican will do its best to meet the situation by arranging for hundreds of the poorer pilgrims to sleep in the various convents and monasteries which dot the Eternal City.

USES RANGE FOR BANK.

Woman Burns Up $120, But Gets Cash for Embers of Notes.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28. — When the warm weather set in, Mrs. Walter Jones, of Chester, stuffed a purse containing $120 in the kitchen stove. It was safe there, she knew,, for stoves had been one of her hiding places in summer for many years.

But there came a rainy day, a cool day, when Mrs. Jones' memory failed her just long enough to let her kindle a fire and warm her hands before she remembered her cache. John Black, cashier at the Chester National Bank, yesterday notified the woman that the Government had instructed him to pay her $120 in return for a sheaf of ashes. She opened her first bank account.

MISSION VETERANS

Special Gold Medal For Mrs. J. MacGillivray, of Presbyterian W.M.S.

MONTREAL, May 28.—(Canadian Press). — Frontier days in the West when Indians clad chiefly in feathers held frantic pow-wows in the main streets of newly founded settlements, and many romance-colored days since those times were recalled here Tuesday when veteran members of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church of Canada met in their diamond jubilee convention. Mrs. J. MacGillivray, president, was in the chair and in her opening address made a strong plea for the fuller recognition of women in church activities.

Following a series of reminiscences of pioneer days, gold medals were given to those who had served on the staff for 25 years, a bar being added for each additional five years and special jubilee silver medals to workers serving in fields which had been open less than 25 years. It was unanimously decided that a special gold medal should be given to Mrs. MacGillivray in recognition of her services.

BERLIN, May 28.—Germany has begun guarding her frontiers against a possible invasion of the American potato bug, reported to be overrunning parts of France. The pest is said to have been introduced in the region of Bordeaux by the American forces during the war.

As a preventive measure, the German government has prohibited the importation of potato, tomato, gooseberry and similar plants upon which the potato bug is said to feed, and peasants everywhere are being urged to look out for the first sight of the bug and to report its appearance to the police or other authorities.

The potato bug at the present time is by far the best-advertised bug in Germany. Its yellowish body with ten longitudinal stripes upon its wings, is being minutely described in all the agricultural journals, many of these publications printing illustrations showing the bug in characteristic poses.

DOG CATCHER ROBBED

Stealing dogs from the city dog catcher seems to be a favorite pastime just now. Last week he applied for new pens, since those now in use are not considered dog proof or thief proof.

The old pens were repaired, Alderman Fife told the Committee of the whole council last night but someone had stolen a dog on Monday night.

Alderman McIntyre was the only member who sympathized with the dogs, most of the Aldermen envincing a desire to assist dog catcher Gates. Alderman McIntyre's plea to give the dogs a chance was heartlessly received and some arrangements for safeguarding the canine wanderers and providing a dog's home will be made.... by Alderman Fife.

SEVEN DOLLAR ALBERTA COAL

Rate Proposed For Large Shipment to Ontario Under Federal Subsidy.

WOULD HIT MARKET

EDMONTON, Alta., May 28. — With reference to the proposal to send two trainloads of coal to Ontario at a seven dollar rate, to be paid by the Ontario government, with the Dominion government paying the additional freight (if any), Trade Commissioner Stutchbury, who has been working on a similar proposition on a larger scale, says that he has not as yet received any information as yet on the latest suggestion.

During the recent visit of Mr. Stutchbury to the East he submitted to Sir Henry Thornton and the Dominion government a proposal that a similar rate should be given on a hundred thousand tons, and if there was a deficit in the actual cost of transportation ,that this should be made good by the Dominion. It was pointed out that the advent of Alberta coal, if it served no other purpose in Ontario, would result in a lowering of the price being asked on the United States importations.

The argument was apparently well received by the president of the railway and by the Minster of Mines, Hon. Charles Stewart, to whom the representations of the government were made.

FIVE YEAR SEARCH UNEARTHS DISEASE

Pamphlets of the Story Distributed to Members of Ontario Dental Association.

TORONTO, May 28 (Canadian Press). — Within the covers of a 120-page pamphlet which will be distributed to-day among members of the Ontario Dental Association, now in session here, there is told one of the amazing stories of modern science; the story which concerns the discovery of a new disease after a five-year search, in the membrane no thicker than a human hair, which tells how mechanical laws, similar to those used by a structural engineer, are being invoked to rescue the human jawbone from the devastating results of this hitherto unknown disease, and the story which will revolutionise the dental professions' understanding of the causes, nature, and treatment of that scourge which is popularly known as pyorrhea.

This pamphlet is none other than the first authentic and scientific report on the results of the researches on pyorrhea which have been conducted by Dr. Harold K. Box, Toronto, during the past five years.

Its importance can be estimated when it is stated that in its pages Dr. Box declares without any qualification whatever, that "chronic periodontitis (most prevalent type of pyorrhea) belongs in the category of curable diseases."

In a word, he declares that he believes that dental science is on the trail of a cure for a disease which has baffled dentists for generations. He makes no definite promise of the cure which can be applied on a wholesale scale at the present stage of the investigation, but he does state that he has effected cures of the disease which, he believes, is the cause of approximately 90 per cent. of pyorrhea.

WINDSOR BOY KILLED LAST NIGHT BY A CAR.

WINDSOR, May 28. — Norman Medd, the six year old son of William Medd, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile driven by James Sheriff.

The accident occurred on Wellington avenue, near the intersection of Wyandotte street.

Sheriff told the police that the child darted across the road directly in front of his car and that there was no time to stop.

ADVERTISING THE CHURCHES.

The attitude taken by the Department of Finance of the Methodist Church in connection with the desirability of the churches using the advertising columns of the newspapers as "a direct means of reaching with the gospel many who will read messages but will not hear sermons," is a matter of interest not only to the churches and the newspapers but to the people generally.

All newspapers publish more or less church news, reports of sermons, details of church activities and other information of the same nature.

Much of this matter is prepared by the newspaper staffs; the rest is sometimes contributed by church officials.

In the first case, the complaint is sometimes heard from the churches that the newspapers have seized upon some unimportant statement in a sermon and "played it up" as a feature, while the contributor of church news, on the other hand, often writes his article in such an uninteresting manner that few readers ever wade through it.

The suggestion, therefore, that the churches should advertise unitedly and pay their way so far as publicity is concerned paves the way for a new era in the matter of church news.

IT WON'T FRIGHTEN THE RIGHT KIND.

The Examiner's contention that prospective emigrants in Great Britain should be told the exact facts in regard to conditions here should not be construed as an argument against immigration or as implying that there is not a good chance in this country for every new-comer who is willing to work.

We believe that there should be no colouring of the picture—no impression given that gold can be picked up in the street and that all that one has to do to eat is to pluck one's food off the trees.

But able-bodied men with the ambition to work and the desire to bring up their families under different living conditions than the crowded cities of the Old Land can give them, should be told as nearly as possible what they may expect to find in Canada—and the decision left to them.

The type of citizen that this country needs will come, there need be no anxiety on that score.

Only the chrome idler and the loafer will be scared off by being told that it will be necessary to work in Canada, and that there are no unemployment doles to take care of the non-worker.

Tell them the truth—and we'll get thousands of the class of citizen who will help to build up this country.

ALBERTA COAL.

The joint attempt of the Provincial Governments of Ontario and Alberta to secure a reasonable freight rate on Western coal into Ontario is the most ambitious effort that has been made to solve Ontario's fuel problem.

If it succeeds it will have done much to make this Province independent of the American coal fields, and will keep in Canada vast sums of money that hitherto have gone over the border to purchase the United States anthracite.

The whole thing hinges upon transportation—hence the significance of the proposal that is to be made to Sir Henry Thornton that two solid trainloads of the Alberta fuel be sent East as a practical test of cost per ton of transportation.

The Provincial Government proposes that after all the details have been taken into consideration and the cost has been arrived at, that it will pay the Canadian National Railways $7 per ton if the cost is less than that figure, while if the cost is more than $7 a ton the Dominion Government should pay the difference.

There is no question of the quality of Alberta fuel.

The questionaires sent out by the Examiner in connection with the limited quality of Western fuel sold here last autumn revealed almost unanimous approval.

"If I could get Alberta coal all the time I wouldn't burn anything else," was the substance, if not the actual words, of most of the replies received.

The supply in Alberta is almost exhaustless.

There are coal reserves large enough to supply Ontario indefinitely with fuel.

The whole problem depends upon the cost of transportation, and if the scheme of bringing down 250,000 tons is carried out as proposed by Premier Ferguson it should be possible to say whether or not Ontario can count as a practicable proposition on being fueled from the West.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

The possibilities before a systematic and businesslike administration of public health work along the lines of lengthening life, dissipating many of the terrors of illness and causing certain diseases to be practically wiped out are demonstrated by the records of the Board of Health in New York.

Some of the figures should be of interest to Examiner readers.

It has been frequently contended in these columns that too little attention is paid by our Federal, Provincial and municipal Governments to health work.

If any department has to get along on half rations it is almost inevitably the health department.

Not so with New York.

That city spent nearly six million dollars in looking after the health of its people last year, and had more than 3,000 employees at work.

Results are being obtained.

A statistical review of the city's health work shows that if the death rate of fifty years ago had continued to the present time the deaths last year in New York would have numbered 185,737.

The actual number was 69,542.

The child mortality figures show a still greater saving of life.

In 1877 there were 105 deaths a thousand among children under five years of age.

The rate last year was twenty a thousand.

The chief factors in this tremendous reduction have been the control of infectious diseases of childhood, especially diphtheria, the assurance of a pure milk supply and the well directed activities of officials charged with the care of children.

Money spent in the interests of public health is money well spent whether in New York or in Peterborough.

There is no department of the civic administration that should be more liberally treated or given a better chance to operate under favourable conditions.

BELIEF.

This is an age of power, derived and developed from all sources. Energy imprisoned in an atom, where it escapes the prying eye of the most observant microscope, is released to be the soul of a vast commercial undertaking, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. We may not understand the nature of a force, but we take it as a club in our hands for the conquest of space and time; and that victory means the promotion of business and the prolongation of life. Power is daily performing the dynamic miracle that transplants a mountain and divides the sea. It threads the air with a speed that rivals the passage of light and sound, which themselves are power visible aud audible.

In the contact of one human life upon another there is no power greater than the influence of a steadfast, affectionate belief. If a friend has faith in us that what we promise we shall perform, this faith is an incentive such as no dim and distant prospect of a reward provides. Having a friend, we feel that we have a reason to persevere. Therefore, to be a friend is a far greater matter than to feel a sentiment. Friendship means believing in another person, with such unwavering fidelity that the other says: "I cannot disappoint this expectation. I cannot, because of this compact, give less than my best to the whole of my duty. If I was ever tempted to surrender, I cannot haul down the flag while this one remains who believes in me."

Because human belief in human beings is a quickening force, all the machines that men can build will never displace those who made them. Persons will still count in every creative scheme, because the supreme accomplishment is never an entirely impersonal process under a soulless direction. Somewhere there is a mind in which other minds believe. We who are molded in the image of the divine are able to do many things of our own motion; but we cannot leave infinity and its imponderable purpose out of the final reckoning.

We have faith in a Power overwatching and overruling. Our faith is the stronger because, this side of God, there are human beings who believe in us, in whom we believe.

TRYING IT ON A PRESIDENT.

In the course of investigations by the scientific world, it is often essential to carry out experiments of a more or less risky character. Vivisection has its advocates as well as its opponents, and the lessons learned from the operating theatre have been of inestimable value to mankind. Medical men, however, are usually of a very cautious turn of mind when it comes to carrying out experiments upon healthy and normal people, particularly if those experiments are likely to be attended with dubious or unsatisfactory results.

All of which doubtless explains quite clearly and convincingly to the average citizen of the United States why the doctors of Washington picked on the President as a fit subject for their experiment with chlorine gas as a cure for colds. It has been known for some time that an atmosphere containing a small percentage of chlorine gas is beneficial to certain bronchial and catarrhal conditions. The doctors did not know, however, how it operated, whether its effect would be universal or whether it was confined to certain individual and highly specialied cases and types.

They needed a subject upon whom they could experiment freely and without hesitation—a subject from whom they might confidently expect a normal reaction and into whose condition they could enquire with the most minuate particularization after the experiment, providing the subject survived it. They must have pondered long and seriously over the problem involved in the selection of the subject. They had Senators, Congressmen, officials of the Treasury and of the Prohibition department, members of the general staff, ordinary soldiers, sailors, bandsmtn and White House employes. But they passed over all these. The matter was not one to be decided lightly or recklessly. Serious results might accrue.

So they finally, with unanimity and enthusiasm, selected President Coolidge, head of the nation, as the most fitting and proper subject. The President, like a dutiful citizen, submitted. He spent a time in a room with chlorine gas in the air, for he had a cold—just the sort of cold that chlorine gas is expected to cure. And the immediate result was that he felt benefited, went about his work with his old vim, vigor and spirit, and put in a real busy day. This morning his cold is worse. But what of that? The world of science knows that a certain percentage of chlorine gas in the atmosphere of a room will effect a marked improvement—marked, even if only temporary and followed by a relapse—in a genuine Presidential cold. The purpose of huaminty is served, and by no less a personage than the ruler of the nation. There is a moral in all this—beware of chlorine gas, unless you are a President of the U. S. A.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A British anatomist says the human face is growing longer. Perhaps, however, it is only the heavy taxes that make it look longer.

Five deaths occurred near Alderson, Alta., because a homesteader tried to light a fire with gasoline. Safety first is a good motto for the home as well as for the railways.

If the weather is cold the legislators at Ottawa seem to be doing their best to make it warm for each other.

The revolver peril increases daily. Would it not be possible to discover and punish those who sell death-dealing weapons to persons who have no permit to carry concealed firearms?—Toronto Globe.

We have had the gratification of reading a printed sermon on "The Higher Criticism" by the Rev. Canon Forneri (now of Peterborough) which is well worthy of attention, and we congratulate him upon the mental ability it shows in a man who is over 84 years of age. His host of friends are glad of this proof.—Kingston Standard.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 27. — There were not many heavy cattle this morning and those culled out from irregular loads sold at $7.50 and $7.75 a cwt. for the steers. Several small lots of heifers were also taken for export at a general figure of $7.59 a cwt., and some of these did not weigh much over 1,000 lbs. each. Butcher's cattle were firm up to the finish on Monday and prices were credited with an advance of 10 to 15 cents a cwt. The choicest load went to the Canadian Packing Co. at $8.40 a cwt., with an average weight of 1,140 lbs. each.

One of the nicest butcher's bulls seen on the market for a long time was taken at $6 a cwt. Other good bulls sold at $5 and $5.35. Cows were much less plentiful today and prices were quite steady with tops around $6. Handy weight butchers of quality were easily taken care of and good to choice one sold at $7.50 to $8 a cwt.

J. Darby sold one load of good feeders, just a shade below 1,000 lbs. each, at $6.75 a cwt. One coarse load of Western steers, nearly 1,200 lbs. each, only made $5.50 a cwt. for butchers, and a load of 34 Western heifers, a little over 700 lbs. each, also sold at the same price. Neil Coutts shipped a car of feeders, 90 lbs. each, to Stratford, at $6.25 a cwt. About 12 loads of mixed Western cattle were landed today. Light useful butchers $6.25 to $6.50 were badly wanted. With a good deal of today's stuff to be held over till tomorrow, sales were not as brisk as on Monday.

The calf trade was quiet with few calves good enough to make over 10 cents a pound. The bulk of the offering was selling from 7½ to 9 cents and the common calves not better than 5 cents.

Salesmen are now trying out spring lambs by weight and prices for the better ones are 17 and 18 cents a pound. Bulk sales of choice lambs are seldom much above $13.00 each and some fairly good lambs over 50 lbs. each are going at $8.50.

Sheep and yearlings were unusually inactive this morning.

Hogs are holding from $7.25 to $7.50 a cut. f.o.b. with the prevailing opinion favoring the latter price.

When Customers go to the Country

sell them by Long Distance

Grocers (and butchers) in the larger cities call up out-of-town prospects in a circle of 30, 40, or 50 miles by Long Distance once (or twice) a week on an arranged day and hour and get their orders. Deliveries are made by truck or express.

Some grocers arrange with their customers before they leave town for the Summer, to give this service, and pay for the Telephone messages. They say they can well afford to do so on a weekly order.

Customers who telephone their orders when in town readily respond, when they go to the country, to the offer of the same appreciated service.

Let us work out with you a plan for the district about your city, from which you could draw these profitable sales. You may have to offer special prices on quantity lots.

A Thought

WORTH WHILE

Some little word of kindness softly spoken,
To light the path when skies are dull and gray,
May serve to heal the heart that's well nigh broken
And bring new life and hope with ev'ry day.
Some little kindly act of self-denial,
To place a fallen brother on his feet;
The one bright spot that through long years of trial
Makes life worth while and mem'ry passing sweet.
A cheery smile to make some heart feel lighter,
And help to ease life's burdens, come what will,
Can make this dull old world seem all the brighter,
And bring Heaven we dream of nearer still.

"Did you make these biscuits, my dear?"

"Yes, darling."

"Well, I'd rather you wouldn't make any more, sweetheart."

"Why not, my love."

"Because, angel mine, you are too light for such heavy work."

Dull eyes may be due to indigestion, late hours or too much reading.

Wheat and Chaff

"I doubt if there's a better way,"
Says wise old Farmer McHorning,
"Of getting up in this old world
Than getting up in the morning."

A foreigner, just beginning to speak English, recently desired a helping of boiled tongue, so he said to the man next to him:

"Will you please be so kind as to pass me the language?"

SOVIET DRESSES UP.

MOSCOW, May 28.—Blithe Dame Fashion has come to town—trimming shaggy beards, putting creases in baggy trousers, and showering Soviet diplomacy with high collars, top hats and frock coats. The recent influx of sartorially-garbed diplomats from other European countries has made Bolshevik officials more particular in the matter of their own dress.

SEND FISHY GIFT.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Rainbow trout eggs from Oregon—5,000 potential fish—were sent to Czecho-Slovakia aboard the White Star liner Pittsburg recently. The eggs—a gift of the United States to the central European republic—will be used to stock mountain streams where natural conditions correspond to those of the trout's native habitat.

E. H. D. Hall and John Crane asked for the allocation of $21,000 debentures at par, the proceeds to be used for the upkeep of the parks in charge of the Nicholls Trust. In view of the fact that the parks are used by the citizens and of the increased costs of upkeep the committee was of the opinion that the concession should be granted. A recommendation was made that the debentures be sold to the Nicholls Trust at par.

A committee composed of Aldermen Turner, Morrison, Fife and Mayor Turner was appointed to enquire into the terms for the purchase of sections of land required by the city.

LAKEFIELD TO VOTE ON A NEW INDUSTRY

Meeting Held on Monday Evening to Discuss the Prospects of Securing a Brass Company.

LAKEFIELD, May 27.—A meeting of citizens was held in the Memorial Hall on Monday evening to hear the particulars about the Brass Company which, if the by-law passes on Monday next, will locate in the village. The meeting was fairly well attended, and J. A. Porter was elected chairman. Mr. Porter expressed his personal feelings in support of the by-law, which gives a fixed assessment of $3,000, and guarantees the company's bonds for $20,000.

W. C. Hunt, president of the company, when called on, said that when operating they would employ from twenty to sixty men, about twenty of whom would be skilled. workmen, platers, moulders, brass workers and shade makers. The ingenious electric gramophone on exhibition was one on which the company held the patents for the United States and Canada. They also had the patents for a parchment shade and for a connection which did away with the taping and soldering of electric connections, and was much cheaper. Mr. Hunt called the attention of the audience to the fine exhibit of electric fixtures which are manufactured by the company. They would employ eventually at least forty girls, whom they would get in the village.

Mr. Strong, also of the Brass Company, was the next speaker. He referred to the connection for electrical work which was invented by Mr. Hunt and was approved by the Hydro-Electric Commission. There had been several rather nasty rumors going about, one being the query why did the company need to come to Lakefield to be financed. Mr. Hunt said he had been twenty years in this business, and wanted to advance. It costs money to move. The bonds are not in any sense debenture bonds, but are merely guarantee bonds. The quick action of the council gave the opportunity to Lakefield of securing this industry as they must be in operation by the middle of August.

Another rumor was that the recent fire in the Toronto plant had damaged the machinery that would be put in the Lakefield plant. That is absurd, as the fire was a small one and the damaged machinery had been replaced and there will be at least $23,000 worth of stock and machinery in the factory. The factory turns out 70,000 electrical joints per day, and has an immense and rapidly growing business.

The fact that Lakefield is near Peterboro, which is a fair sized city, has been an inducement to locate in the village. The matter now rests with the vote of the people, and if the by-law does not pass the company will remain in Toronto another year.

Reeve J. C. Strickland endorsed the by-law heartily, and stated that in submitting it, the Council felt reasonably sure that it was a safe proposition. The plant is operating in Toronto today, and is a going concern. The effect on the taxes will not tend to raise them, as the bonds are in no sense debenture bonds but a guaranteed bond issue, payable yearly which would only effect the village in the event of the company failing. The company guarantee to purchase a lot and erect a building to cost at least $10,000 and to put in $23,000 worth of machinery all of which must be clear of debt before the bonds are guaranteed.

The village would hold a first mortgage on the land, buildings, and machinery of $33,000. The insurance would amount to the sum of the unpaid bond issue. We need industries, and while this is not a large industry, it will attract others; in fact, there is another in view at present. We have one large industry, The Canada Cement Company which is of great value to the village. Personally, Reeve Strickland said he was strongly in favor of the by-law.

Councillor E. A. Tanner referred to the prosperity of the village when ten or twelve years ago the cement business, the lumbering, the canoe business, and the summer resort business were all flourishing, and hoped that the era of prosperity would return. He had personally investigated Mr. Hunt's record and found it clear; he had always paid his way, and the business of making attractive electrical fixtures was not a new one to Mr. Hunt, as he had been in the business for years. The fixed assessment in the land for $3,000 was fair, as at present it was only assessed for a few hundreds. The building which will be erected of the by-law carries will be of brick, stone and concrete, two storeys high, and will have 12,000 square feet of floor space. In the event of there being a doubt as to the value of the machinery, the Council can appoint valuators and the company can do the same, and if they do not agree the Courts of Arbitration of the Province of Ontario will decide the matter. It will provide work for local people, especially the girls who will not, as a t present, be compelled to pack their valises and go to Toronto or other points to get a job. Mr. Tanner announced his intention of voting for the by-law.

J. F. Lillecrap, President of the Board of Trade, said a few words of commendation for the enterprise, which he feels will be a benefit to the village. He has tried to help the town in every possible way, and he gave his assurance that everything in connection with the proposed company had been carefully looked into. He urged an expression of opinion from the meeting, as this was the time and opportunity to settle all vexed questions. The fact that no one asked any question implied complete satisfaction.

Mr. Porter said that these men were not coming here for sport but for business, and haying made good in Toronto would make good here.

Mr. Strickland drew the attention of the audience to the fact that there were two ballots, one for the fixed assessment of $3,000, on which all ratepayers could vote, and the ballot for the bond issue, on which only property holders can vote, and it takes two-thirds of the vote polled to carry the by-law. There was a good deal of interest shown in the handsome display of fixtures and in the unique electric gramophone, which also held a light.

Miss Bondfield Divides Church

LONDON, May 28. — An invitation to Margaret Bondfield, Labour member of Parliament for Northampton, to address church meetings there has divided the town into two hostile camps.

Several church wardens have threatened to resign, and others are going to bring the matter before the Parish Councils if the invitation is not withdrawn.

Miss Bondfield aroused the anger of church people in Northampton recently when, speaking in a church, she advised her hearers to study the literature issued by the International Labour Office at Geneva concerning industrial conditions.

She also has been unpopular with a large section of the populace because she was one of the first persons to go to Russia to fraternise with Lenine and Trotzky.

People in the opposite camp argue that Miss Bondfield is a church woman and a communicant, and that the proposed boycott of her because of he political views is blind bigotry.

OTTAWA, May 28. — (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Government is returning smuggled stolen autos to owners in the United States wherever such ownership is proved, it was stated in reply to a question in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

It was revealed that at May 9, a total of 210 automobiles were under seizure in the Department of Customs, of which 168 were seized because they were smuggled across the border from the United States. Of the total 29 had been claimed by insurance companies as stolen cars, and their claims were under consideration.

SUGAR PRICE LOW

Quotations For Porto Rican Raw Dropped to 4.96 Tuesday.

NEW YORK, May 28. — Raw sugar prices yesterday established a new low level for the year with a sale of 41,000 bags of Porto Ricans at 4.96, but the market rallied at the close to 5.02 on purchases of 45,000 bags of Cubans and Porto Ricans by refiners and operators. The recent break in fine granulated sugar to 6.80 failed to-day to attract buyers, and the market for the refined products continued dull.

NEWS OMEMEE AND DISTRICT

Holiday Programme Shot Full of Holes by the Weatherman.

OMEMEE, May 28.—Disappointment reigned in the village of Omemee on Saturday when, owing to the heavy downpour of rain all morning the programme of unveiling service, baseball games, and all other sports was called off. Great preparation had been previously made for the occasion, such as the painting of new welcome signs, maple pole dance, etc. Special invitation cards were prepared by the O.A.A., and many visitors were expected to spend the holiday here, but with the exception of a football game in the afternoon between Lindsay and Omemee the holiday passed by quietly.

However, the concert in the evening in the Coronation Hall, under the auspices of the O.A.A., drew forth a full house. The proceeds amounted to $211.45, and the executive of the association are well pleased.

The choruses brought forth loud applause, especially that of "Spark Plug," where the eleven girls dressed in white with jockey caps, put forth every effort to speed Spark Plug on as the miniature model of the animal slowly proceeded across the stage. Messrs. M. J. Parsons and W. G. Stevenson also received a hearty welcome when they rendered "Stand Up and Sing for Your Father An Old-time Tune" and "Annie Rooney" in unison.

The following was the programme: "Rule Britannia" and "Spark Plug"—opening choruses.

"The Trumpeter," Mr. W. L. Stevenson.

"Sweet and Low," The Pigeon River Quartette.

"I'm Drifting Back to Dreamland," Miss G. Sandy and chorus.

Piano duet, Miss Helen Mackey and Miss Margaret Parsons.

"The Coon Town Club"—a one-act play, with fourteen clowns.

Intermission.

"It Ain't Goin' to Rain No Mo'," Quartette.

"Stand Up and Sing for Your Father An Old-time Tune," Male Duet.

"Pal of My Dreams," Miss Marion Dickson and chorus.

"Hey, Rube," monologue, Tom Rice.

Piano duet, Misses Race.

Box and Cox (Old English Life), Mr. J. Bent, Mr. H. Hill, and Miss Marion Rea.

Impressive Service.

A most impressive floral service, combined with children's service, was held in Christ Church on Sunday evening. The children of the Sunday School, each carrying beautiful floral tributes of wild flowers, marched up from the basement with the gowned choir singing sweetly the opening hymn. On reaching the chancel, the flowers were received on trays by several of the boys of the Sunday School, who in turn placed them at the altar.

During the service the Sunday School scholars occupied the central pews and the rector, Rev. Mr. Weir, delivered a most impressive address.

A hymn sweetly rendered by four young ladies of the Sunday Shool added much to the service.

On Monday morning, two large boxes of flowers were sent to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto as a result of the service.

THE MASONS OF MARMORA ATTEND CHURCH

Rev. P. C. Watson of St. Paul's Preaches Sermon to Visiting Craftsmen.

PERSONAL NEWS.

MARMORA, May 27.—The service at St. Paul's on Sunday evening, owing to the attendance of the local Masonic brethren, partook of a special nature. The processional was that familiar hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers." The lesson selected was the sixth chapter of Isaiah. The choir rendered the anthem, "We Give Immortal Praise." Mrs. G. B. Hartley and Mrs. C. Nichol rendered the duet part very effectively. After welcoming the members of the Masonic Order, and the singing of "Bright The Vision That Delighted," the rector delivered an appropriate sermon from Revelations 4:1, and 1-17, 18. His subject was the enshrined Christ and his remarks throughout were closely followed.

During the offertory the anthem, "Holy Father Cheer Our Way," was sung with much effect by the choir, Mrs. Hartley and Mr. W. J. Cottrell, the duet part. The Recessional hymn, "Sweet Saviour Bless Us Ere We Go," was sung with much fervour.

Patriotic Service.

A special patriotic service was held Sunday evening in the Methodist Church. Special hymns were selected and the Rev. D. R. Clare spoke on the subject, "Fear God and honour the king." He spoke of the fact that patriotism and religion are the same thing in the mind of the Jew. Many interesting facts concerning Canada itself were given by the speaker and the fact that we often underestimate the value of our fair land was commented upon.

Mother Is Frail.

The McGaughey's and the Fee's are related and it was to the Fee home that McGaughey took his aged mother, a frail, delicate woman, on the morning of the shooting. Since learning of the shooting Mrs. McGaughey has been suffering from the shock.

Visited In Jail.

Wilmot Fee, a brother of the young girl, visited McGaughey in the jail and was under the impression that McGaughey was insane. He refused to answer questions for some time and finally told Mr. Fee that he shot the girl because he loved her. He added: "I have crazy pains in my head."

Refuses to Talk.

Lawrence McGaughey has also been interviewed, but has very little to say. He also visited his brother at the jail and took him a change of clothing, the suit he had been wearing being badly stained with blood. "He refuses to talk," said Lawrence, "and to say why he did the shooting. He believed they had had several quarrels."

Got Gun In Detroit.

To Officer Storey Mr. Lawrence McGaughey stated that Fred had purchased the gun in Detroit, but he had never known that Fred was in the habit of carrying it about with him.

Miss Stuart's story is to the effect that McGaughey had been drinking heavily all day, and even on Saturday. That the two had had quarrels and that Beatrice was disgusted with the way he had been acting. That on a recent visit to Toronto McGaughey had been drinking. However, she liked McGaughey and was going to marry him if he quit drinking. She was preparing to quit her work and return home to do some sewing.

McGaughey is considered to be fairly well to do, owning his fifty acre farm near McArthur's school, and also owning a small ranch back north.

Charged With Murder.

The charge against McGaughey has been changed to one of murder. The inquest will take place on Thursday and McGaughey will get a hearing on June 2nd. It is stated that Mr. C. G. Frost will be counsel for the accused.

"HEARTS AFIRE!"

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—brilliant young inventor, who, though loving Prudence, became entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—Guest at the country home of wealthy

Mrs. Vansittart—from whom Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Virginia throws Peter Armstrong over because he has been blinded in an accident in his laboratory, and she tries to marry an old 'flame,'

Bert Traymore—who will not have her. Immediately thereafter the police arrest Virginia for her numerous thefts, and takes her off.

Prudence is sitting at Peter's bedside one night when she hears a sound as of someone moving stealthily in the laboratory. Prudence lights a candle, goes into the laboratory, and a masked man springs at her.

Armstrong rushes to her rescue, ill though he is, and in the ensuing struggle tears off the thief's mask, showing Bert Traymore, who had come to steal and patent his invention, the work of years. The shock restores Armstrong's sight again.

CHAPTER LXXX
"Can He See?"

Amazing thought, beautiful beyond the power of earthly expression! Peter . . . to see again! Peter . . . to be dragged up from the abyssmal darkness in which he had been plunged these many, many days!

And, if the astounding happening were true, she—the girl who loved him better than life itself—had been the cause of the amazing miracle!

It was to save her from disaster that he had risen from a bed of sickness and blindness, and flung himself at her assailant. It was her desperate cry that he had answered, in the very nick of time.

"If only it is true!" thought Prudence, a pulse throbbing in her throat, and her two hands clasped together. "If only it is true!"

Miracles did happen, didn't they? And, if a great shock made one blind, then wasn't it possible that a second shock of another kind might make one see again?

She had read of things like that in the daily papers. There had been lots of cases of it in the war. Men who had been blown up by shell explosion and had lost their power of vision had later had their sight restored through some unexpected happening, such as a motor accident or fire, or a concussion of some sort.

Had this same thing, then, occurred in Peter Armstrong's case?

The doctor came, and Will Ogilvie sat with Prudence in the little parlor of Pear Tree Cottage, while the medico and nurse attended to the patient.

"Don't you believe what that Brown woman says, about this excitement and effort being the death of Armstrong!" volunteered Will bluntly. "Maybe it's just what was needed, to put him on his feet again!"

Prudence told him of the glad hope that was turning in her mind.

"He recognized Traymore. So he must have seen him. Isn't it wonderful?"

Will's rather sombre face lit up.

"Great! But I've heard of such things before. If a great shock deprives you of your sight, sometimes by a great shock of some sort, it will be restored again. Not always, of course," he added, afraid to bolster up her hopes too high, for the fall would be all the greater if such hopes did not materialize.

Then Will added, with a grin:

"I don't blame him for rushing to the scene. He had everything at stake, hadn't he? The girl he loved . . . and these papers which you say are the record of his new invention."

He produced Pete's loose-leaf notebooks, and a couple of torn documents of some sort.

"This is all I could find. I don't imagine the chap got away with anything at all. Even if he did, the thing would have to be complete before it would be any use to him, I guess."

Prudence and he examined the jottings underneath the lamp.

"I used to be keen on lab. work as a boy." Will peered at the papers. "These look to me as though they were more or less in order."

Prudence drew a deep breath of relief. And then she said:

"It seems incredible to think that Traymore would try to do such a mean, caddish thing!"

Will's sardonic grin widened.

"Worse than stealing pennies out of a blind man's hat, eh? But he didn't reckon that the blind man would have the strength of a Samson, did he? I'll bet our pretty gentleman got the shock of his life when the invalid hurled himself into the fray! And it seems you weren't behind hand, either, Miss Prudence. I've got to admit you were plucky. Till lately—"—he flushed a little under his sallow skin—"till lately, I didn't think much of women, if you don't mind my saying so? But you and Janet have made me alter my opinion a bit. I've got to hand it to you both—for nerve—and for sticking by a fellow!"

This gracefully worded tribute would have made Prudence laugh, at any other time.

But her ears and heart were keyed to the doctor's fobtsteps coming from the patient's room.

"He's such a big, strong fellow," she said, once or twice, rather piteously to Will. "It would be like giving him back the earth again, if he can see—"

"And if he can't? What then?" supplemented the other.

Prudence's face was like the countenance of some exquitie Madonna, as she answered, quickly:

"Then I want nothing better than be allowed to look after him, and be a pair of eyes to him, all the rest of his life and mine!"

A lump rose in Ogilvie's throat, and at the same time a shamed feeling took him where he remembered his past jealousy of this man. How wonderful women were! How truly capable of self-sacrifice! Take this girl Prudence and her unselfish love! Take Janet and her work and her forgiveness of himself!

Prudence sprang up as the doctor emerged from Peter's room.

"His eyes? His eyes?" she whispered.

The doctor patted her upon the shoulder.

"The best news in the world my dear! Young Armstrong's yearning for a sight of you, so go to him."

"You mean . . . he can see?" Prudence clutched him by the arm.

The old doctor nodded, cleared his throat a couple of times, and then said brusquely to hide his own emotion:

"When a chap's got such a pretty girl as you, you didn't expect him to do without his eyesight, did you?"

The Speed of Radio Still Disputed Over

From both ends of the United Stated come sounds of a clash over the spee of the radio wave.

It started with the announcement from San Francisco that radio waves are slower that light waves. It was made by Captain T. J. See, professor of mathematics in the U.S. navy, government astronomer at the Mare Island navy yard and authority on the ether theory.

Almost immediately comes the denial by John V. L. Hogan, one of the foremost radio authorities in the country. From his office in New York he sends out the declaration that to think of radio waves traveling at a lower speed than that of light is absurd.

Captain See concluded that the speed of radio was 164,000 miles a second, after he had conducted some positive tests.

But, says Hogan, "the speed of light was determined accurately by several scientific investigators many years ago and the speed of longer electro-magnetic waves, in which category the radio waves fall, has been conceded by leading authorities to be the same. In fact, light waves are generally understood to be nothing more nor less than exceedingly high-frequency electrical vibrations in space, and all electro-magnetic waves, whether of high or low frequency, have been shown by analysis and experiment to have the same speed."

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

There are three main duties that every man owes to his family.

1. To provide for current needs during the productive years of his life.

2. To accumulate an estate that will insure a sufficient income for old age.

3. To acquire at once, if possible, an estate that will supply current needs of his family in case of his death.

One of the best things a man has is the satisfaction of being a producer.

Part of an income should be saved to create an estate.

It is also the duty of every man to acquire an estate at once, if possible, to supply the current family needs in case of death. This can only be done through life insurance, which should be considered an excellent form of investment rather than a necessary form of expense.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Earton

THE TWINS VISIT MR. GUELIVER

"I soon discovered that I was tied down."

"We have seen so many people in Once-Upon-a-Time Land that there are not many left to visit," said Mister Muggs as he stopped his magic automobile beside the place where the Twins were playing.

"Where are we going to-day?" cried Nick as he and Nancy climbed in, and the fairyman shut the door and started the thingamajig.

"How would you like to go and call on Mister Gulliver?" asked Mister Muggs. "Like Alice in Wonderland, and Sinbad, he is a good story teller and can tell you all sorts of interesting things that happened to him."

"Hooray! That will be fine!" cried Nick. "Let's hurry."

So away they whizzed over the Fairyland Road till they came to Once-Upon-a-Time Land, and at last reached the house of L. Gulliver, Esq.

"I rather thought you'd be along to see me," said Mister Gulliver kindly after he had shaken hands all around and told one of his men to look after the car. "You have been to see so many of my neighbours. Come and sit down and I'll give you a drink of fruit juice that I learned to make from the Lilliputians."

"Who are they?" asked Nancy.

"They are the people upon whose shores I landed the first time I was shipwrecked," said Mister Gulliver. "I'll tell you all about them.

"When I swam to shore in this strange land, I was tired out, so I lay down on the grass to sleep.

"How long I slept I do not know, but when I wakened, I couldn't move. I thought at first that it was just stiffness from being in the water, but I soon discovered that I was tied down to tiny stakes by thousands of little cords.

"Next, little creatures began to crawl all over me, and I soon saw that they were people, but they were only six inches high.

"Whenever I moved they shot arrows at me no larger than pins, but when I was quiet they were kind and let me alone.

"After a while they cut the cords that held my head and brought me food. A hundred tiny people with a hundred tiny baskets fed me. I ate three legs of lamb (no bigger than peas) at one mouthful, and three loaves of bread and three of their tiny hams I swallowed without as much as chewing. They thought I never would get filled, I know.

"Everything that I did seemed to astonish them.

"Then they gave me something to drink which put me to sleep.

"While I was asleep, fifteen hundred of their horses carried me to the king's palace.

"The king ordered nine hundred towns to feed me, three hundred tailors to make me a suit of clothes, and it took six hundred of their beds to make one for me.

"One day they had a parade of a hundred thousand men and ten thousand horses. I stood up and my legs made a great archway under which they passed."

"Is that all?" asked Nick.

"Not quite," said Mister Gulliver. "They went to war with their enemies, the Blefuscans, over the right way to open an egg. I went out into the ocean and picked up all the enemy ships for them, so they won. After that the king and I had a quarrel and I had to leave the Land of the Lilliputians."

ALIENS ARE HARD TO KEEP OUT U.S.

Immigration Officers on the Other Side Admit They Are Practically Powerless to Halt the Flow.

EL PASO, Tex., May 28.—Aliens and liquor! They are being smuggled in together here at Uncle Sam's "back door."

Rum runners are making it easy for foreigners denied legal entry to steal across the border without going through the passport formalities.

But the foreigners must pay for the privilege. They have to pack the bootleggers' hootch along with them.

Every night scores of aliens, staggering under the weight of sacks laden with tequila, whisky and beer, can be seen wading across the Rio Grande.

And the immigration officers on this side admit they are practically powerless to halt the steady flow.

Some of the aliens, of course, are caught and sent back to Mexico. But the most of them slip in unnoticed. There are not enough immigration and customs men to keep them out.

In the last ten months 1,300 have been apprehended and deported.

Yet for the "hundreds who are caught there are thousands who escape detection," officially reports George J. Harris, director for this district.

Harris and the handful of inspectors have 900 miles of the border to patrol. Only part of it can be covered by automobile. And on horseback the agents cannot hope to travel any great distance.

The new immigration act is making conditions worse. Hundreds of Europeans, barred at the seaports, find it convenient to sneak in the "back way."

They can wade the river any place along the line. Once on the American side they can dodge through the hills and shrubbery. There are plenty of railroads inland, and unknowing motorists willingly give them lifts.

Knocking is too much trouble. The law says they must stay in Mexico two years before they can rap for admittance. So they just walk in without knocking.

Under the Japanese exclusion law, the immigration officials are lookingfor still further trouble.

El Paso formerly was the centre of the Chinese immigrant difficulties. There were two schools in Juarez that did nothing but coach Chinese in answering questions inquisitive government agents might ask.

Hundreds of their pupils stole into the United States. Four hundred and fifty were deported in a single month. One day alone, 100 were arrested.

This year there has been little worry about the Chinese. But the Japs have been bothering the immigration men quite a bit. Six or seven Japanese already have been deported.

In the "Island District," a stretch of land in Mexican territory, one needs only walk across an imaginary line into a city street before he is in the United States. Now Uncle Sam is putting up a hog wire fence along this line.

Every now and then a guard is killed. Skirmishes between the agents and the smugglers are quite common—so much so, in fact, they are mentioned only briefly in the official reports.

Director Harris readily confesses he and his men are up against it.

They are doing what they can. But the job is too big. Passage of the Hudspeth appropriation bill, now pending in Congress, providing for more guards, is their only hope.

SLEEPING SICKNESS IS ON THE INCREASE.

LONDON, May 28 (Canadian Press). — Health Minister John John Wheatley, replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday regading encephalitis lethagrica, or sleeping sickness, stated that in the quarter ending 31st of March, 229 persons in England and Wales had died from this disease, as compared with 86 in the previous quarter.

In the seven weeks ended 17th May, 1,715 cases were officially reported, compared with 753 cases in the previous thirteen weeks.

FATHER OF FIVE KILLED BY SHOT

Dying, Accuses Woman Police Find In Room Calmly Smoking.

Family Long Neglected.

A Garage Manager Spent Wife's $1,500 Saved to Cure Crippled Son.

NEW YORK, May 27.—A clandestine romance snuffed out another life yesterday—the life of a father of five young children.

On the edge of a bed in a room on the fourth floor of the Broadway Central Hotel, No. 673 Broadway, in the early hours of yesterday, a pretty young woman sat, calmly smoking a cigarette.

On the floor near her lay a dying man. He was Samuel Brown, a garage manager. His home is at No. 374 Madison Street. Beside him, on the floor, was a revolver, from which two bullets had been fired.

Police Hear Shots.

This was what detectives saw when they came in answer to shots heard a few minutes previously. Even before they reached the hotel, which is close to a police station, two men came running up to them. One of them shouted:

"For God's sake hurry up. Someone's been killed over there. There was an awful row, and two shots were fired."

Patrolman Gatewood was the first to reach the room on the fourth floor. He looked at the young woman:

"Who did this?"

Without taking her cigarette from her mouth, the woman casually answered:

"He shot himself."

The man was dying. Barely conscious, he managed to raise himself on one arm. Pointing to the woman he told the policeman:

"She shot me."

Again the defiant answer:

"Well, if I did, it was accidental."

Wife in Ignorance.

He died shortly after being taken to St. Vincent's Hospital. His death was caused by a gunshot wound in the chest, the doctor said.

Brown and the young woman had been known at the hotel as husband and wife. She told the police that she was Mrs. Dorothy Brown. Further than that she was not identified. Brown's wife, Ida, who lives with her five children in the Madison Street apartment, had never heard of the other woman.

Still puffing a cigarette and appearing not particularly interested, the young woman was taken to the man. Brown was able to say:

"Yes, she shot——"

He said no more. And Fate then marked a cross in her little notebook, to show that punishment had again been meted out to one who violated the conventions.

The woman gave her name as Mrs. Dorothy Brown, said she was twenty-four, and refused to talk further. Later she was arraigned before Magistrate McKiniry, in Tombs Court, and held without bail for examination tomorrow. She will remain in Jefferson Market prison. The police believe that Brown and the young woman quarrelled when he told her that he would return to his family. The woman said they had a dispute over possession of the pistol.

The couple had registered at the hotel as Mr. and Mrs. Brown and lived there about five weeks.

Fate had followed Brown rather closely for those five weeks. He was manager of the Grand Street Garage, No. 3 Broome Street. Five weeks ago he told his wife, Ida, that he would be busy nights for a time because he had bills to collect. This would have to be done outside his working hours.

Family Neglected.

According to his wife, he commenced to neglect her and the children. He never actually left home, she said, but was away every night. Two nights ago he came home. He told his wife:

"This is the last time I shall have to collect."

But this last time he was the debtor and Fate the collector.

Yesterday, in front of the neat, well-kept little apartment at No. 274 Madison Street, a pretty little child, with golden locks, was playing. Did she know where the Brown family lived? She looked up smiling.

"I'm Brown. My mamma lives up there. On the first floor. Come on, I'll show you." No thought of tragedy.

Mother Overcome.

The mother, too overcome to talk much, had been hysterical. Her eyes were red and staring. Other members of the family were there, red-eyed and sombre, and all the while little children played through the halls and in the street.

Mrs. Brown had not very much to say. But her voice was firm as she declared:

"If this is true about my husband, this other woman, I mean, he got what he deserved.

"I told him to give up his job if he couldn't stay home nights. He would always tell me he wouldn't have to collect bills long. Only last night he told me he was finished and would be home with me after this. Well, he is finished, but he'll never more be home.

Father Warned Her.

"I did my best. The best I knew how to make a home for him and our children. My father told me to keep an eye on him, but I didn't take any stock of it."

The revolver with which Brown was killed was his own. Another sinister working of the hand of Fate. The quarrel came, it is thought by the police, when Brown said he wanted to go back to his wife and family.

The reason for this belief is based on Brown's statement to his wife night before last that only once more would he have to collect his bills.

Brown had been steadily taking money which his wife had saved for the care of their oldest boy, Murray, who is ill in the country his wife said. She had saved $1,500, and had no thought that her husband was using it himself.

Brown leaves five little children. They are: Murray (10), Beatrice (7), Barney (5), Anne (3), and Mildred (1).

Justice Superior To Law In Wild Arkansas

HARRISON, Ark., May 28.—Out of the Boston mountains of Newton, Arkansas' single county not touched by railroads, sometimes drift strange tales concerning the unbroken faith of pioneer ancestors and of the swift justice dealt out by the mountaineers, whose knowledge of things "outside" is small and whose curiosity of such is even smaller.

Several weeks ago Lark Shaffer, United States deputy marshal, traveled far into the hills with a warrant for the arrest of Joe Farmer upon a whisky-making charge, only to find that mountain justice administered by the boy's father had cheated the warrant. Crazed by whisky, Joe Farmer threatened to shoot his mother and was shot down by his father.

A few weeks later, Shaffer again entered the section with warrants for the arrest of four brothers of the dead man, upon charges of liquor manufacture.

Miles inland, and widely separated from his car when he rounded up his four prisoners, all men with families, Shaffer was faced with the task of securing night lodgings for himself and prisoners. He led the party to the only farm house in the neighborhood, despite the information that it was the home of Tom Farmer, father of the prisoners.

The tiny house would not accommodate the five men, so the senior Farmer suggested that the marshal allow the four men to return to their homes and spend the night, pledging his word of honor that all would return the following morning. Shaffer spent the night in the home of the father of the four prisoners, who returned before sunrise to accompany the "law" to Harrison for arraignment.

IS RELIGION NEWS? METHODIST QUERIES

First Manual of Publicity Takes Strong Ground Advocating Constructive and Co-operative Advertising and Urging Frank Relationships With Press of Dominion.

TORONTO, May 28.—In a manual with the arresting title, "Is Religion News?" just issued by the department of finance of the Methodist Church, the churches are urged to advertise unitedly, to pay their way and to demand fair treatment from the press.

"Your church is under the practical necessity of giving to the press its own viewpoint about itself," says the production, which is intended for the guidance of ministers and lay leaders throughout Canada. "Having insisted on that right, let the publicity man try to put himself in the editor's place and think of their common constituency from the editor's angle."

This advice is tersely reinforced in the following:

"Over the final form in which the news of your church appears before the reading public you do not have control. Publication is something technical, the job of another group of men. You may suggest or criticize; such is your right. They decide, and that is their business."

Attempts to suppress news are denounced and a policy of letting all manuscripts take their chance is advocated.

The manual, which is of forty-eight pages, devoted mainly to technical matters, goes on to compare competitive advertising of Sunday "attractions" with the Chicago wheat pit "where all shout and none is heard." As an alternative the placing of a common appeal at the head of individual church notices on Saturday religious pages is described.

It is understood that every Methodist pastor will shortly receive a copy of this compendium of the simpler technique of news-gathering and advertising. Its leading recommendation is that every circuit select some young man or woman to act as interpreter between church and local paper.

For this new official's direction principles are laid down:

"Organized religion has a technique and vocabulary of its own, and these need constantly to be interpreted and translated into less professional terms, or even restated in the somewhat restricted modes of the modern newspaper.

"Shall this task be left to the casual and occasional effort of the uninformed and unsympathetic?

"Take it for granted that the editor or reporter is trying to see straight, but do not be afraid to point out, as man to man, just wherein the particular slant given an item was confusing or unfair.

"Always study the difficulties of time and space under which even a weekly paper is issued. Learn how newspapermen live and work. Respect them as persons entrusted with great power over the reputations of men and organizations, and yet slaves of the clock.

"News is a problem in human relationships as well as in technique."

A number of stock objections to church publicity are handled vigorously. The allegation that it is not workable in the country churches is answered by saying "it is being done" and then citing examples. The shrinking violet attitude is countered by the reminder that church quarrels and scandals always get space "without the church having given the story of its normal activities as a corrective, to enable a community to strike a just estimate of the church."

Finally, advertising is urged as a direct means of reaching with the gospel many who will read messages but will not hear sermons.

This is said to be the first time that a Canadian church has come out with any definiteness for a conservative policy of frank relationships with the press.

WOMEN MORE FEMININE

French Writer Says They Work Because Husbands Are Scarce.

PARIS, May 28.—"Women are becoming more feminine," declares Marcel Prevost, famous feminist writer.

"When women work on terms of equality with men, it is because they have to and not because they like it," he says. "If there were enough husbands to go around in France there would not be 500 women in the whole of France who would prefer working."

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is beter than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

THREE VICTIMS OF ELECTRICITY

One Montreal Man Killed Trying to Help Companion Electrocuted By the Current of Coal-Loading Machine.

MONTREAL, May 28.—(Canadian Press).—Four sudden deaths occurred in this city and district yesterday afternoon, three of them by electrocution.

A double electrocution occurred in the Andrew Baille coal yards on Wellington street. One man was killed by the current of a coal-loading machine that had apparently been out of order and a second victim was killed in trying to help the first. The two are Edward Warren, 36, and Dudger Gagnon, 43, both of this city.

A third man, Oscar Magee, was twice violently shocked in trying to aid Warren and was thrown to the ground. He as not seriously injured.

An hour earlier Mallette Niligeane, 14, climbed to the top of a metal pole on the Canal bank at Ville St. Pierre, a suburb of Montreal, touched a high voltage wire and was instantly killed. The fourth fatality was that of George Schuit, 32, of Verdun, in charge of the elevator cage on the new grain elevator at the Harbor front. He had taken a party up to the top of the elevator and had climbed on top of the cage in order to operate it as a temporary switch was being used on the top of the cage. He was crushed to death between the cage and the roof. It is supposed he operated the wrong switch in moving the cage.

Giant Power Plant To Supply Eastern Japan

TOKIO, May 27.— (Associated Press). — An electric generating plant, to cost $23,000,000, will be completed on the Shinano river, in the mountainous district 100 miles northwest of Tokio, according to an announcement by the department of railways.

This plant is to furnish power for distribution over all the east-central portion of Japan, feeding the electrical services of Tokio and also supplying power for the Tokaido railway, which connects the capital with Osaka and Kobe, and which is to be electrified within the next few years.

FIND BRAYING BIRD.

NEW YORK, May 28.—A penguin that brays like a jackass and lives in a dense jungle with parrots, humming birds and woodpeckers, is among the interesting birds discovered by Dr. Frank M. Chapman, curator of ornithology, in a four-month cruise through the Andes in a steamer. He recently returned to the American Museum of Natural History with many specimens of rare birds.

MUSSOLINI PROTECTED.

ROME, May 28.—An old servant from Mussolini's native province watches jealously over the Italian Premier's health and safety. Whenever a stranger brings a present to the house, the servant feels it, smells it and tries to imagine what it can be.

Nebraska Reported To Have a Whiskey Well

HASTINGS, Neb., May 27. — (United Press).—Deep in the cool waters of an old well here is a barrel of real ante-Volsteadian whiskey —so say old residents who recall that the barrel was thrown into the well during the frontier days, when Indians were attacking Spring ranch.

A. J. Orendorff, Benedict, Kan., vouches for the whiskey barrel episode.

It happened during one of the last raids of the Sioux Indians upon the lonely outpost at Spring ranch, Orendorff said. Fearing an attack, James Painter, owner of the ranch, dispatched a message to Fort Kearney, asking that soldiers be sent to help resist the Indians. Befor aid could arrive, the attack started.

As the Sioux started circling around the ranch houses, a "prairie schooner" pulled up at the ranch. In the wagon was a barrel of whiskey.

Fearing that the threatened attack would be impossible to stop should the Indians get the whiskey, Painter and other men of the ranch dumped the barrel into the large well there.

After the attack had been repulsed, no one bothered about the whiskey. It was common then.

Questioning of all owners of the ranch since that time revealed that the well had never been robbed of its relic.

DESERT AND JUNGLE.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—In the driest and hotest region in the United States—southwestern Arizona—there is a combined desert and jungle, according to the report of a survey of the Gila River region. The region is called an "arboreal" desert by Clyde P. Ross, Interior Department engineer. Underground water enables an abundant flora to survive under the burning desert sunshine.

EXPLODE MELINITE.

PARIS, May 28.—For the purpose of studying sound transmission, a group of prominent French scientists are preparing to explode 10 tons of melinite on the plateau near Limoges in the near future.

Day by Day

On Saturday a man will rise and eat; then rush away. He's really glad to hie himself to work. No wonder, when you realize that coming is his pay upon the day he's never known to shirk.

On Sunday morn a man will wake; with Father Time he'll jest—the day when work and office are no worry. In rising, lots of time he'll take for 'tis his day of rest; there isn't any rush or run or hurry.

On Monday morn, alas, alack, 'tis hard to rise from bed. A man must force himself to make the grade. It's just a case of have to, though, when all is done and said, 'cause showing up for work is why he's paid.

The other days the week brings 'round are mentioned all in one, 'cause every one is patterned after Monday. It's work away, with little pay, until the work is done. But, best of all, they're leading up to Sunday.

With life, it seems, we always will the same old story sing. For man considers every day by what that day will bring.

GOES UP IN THE AIR.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28. — Mr. and Mrs. We Sella are always up in the air. They go around with their heads in the clouds and look down on their neighbors. The We Sellas are steeplejack and steeplejill, and there isn't a smokestack or spire that's too high for Mrs. Golda We Sella herself to climb. She recently finished painting a 150-foot smokestack at Emeryville, Calif.

Seeking Black Gold In Michigan's Sands

MANISTEE, Mich., May 27.—(Uniter Press).—Eagerly Manistee watches a hole in the mud at Eastlake, for signs of "black gold."

Hoping that oil will be found in large quantities, interest is centered in the oil test well of the Michigan Oil development company. At the 1,100-foot level high-grade petroleum was struck, but it was not in sufficient quantities. The giant drills were sent downward still farther in search of a real gusher.

Should further tests prove successful, additional wells will be sunk and Manistee may become the center of a new oil field, rivaling that of the great southwest, where cities sprang up over night in the wake of each new successful project.

"It's oil! It's a gusher!" the novice cried a few days ago when, at the 1,100-foot level, the tremendous gas pressure shot 30 feet into the air a column of oily, smurky water. In the rush that followed the first test, scores of curious spectators took sample bottles of the heavy, black fluid, and some of the more enthusiastic fed it to their automobiles.

But the pressure, loosened, spent its force quickly. The test was not successful. The drills were again set in motion and boring is now being continued through the heavy oil sand in search of greater quantities of petroleum.

The attempt to bring in oil here is the first to be made in the state of Michigan. If it is successful, boomtimes will be revived in Manistee and may rival the great prosperity that swept this district during the heyday of the "big timber."

Editors See Big Sham Battle At Fort Sill

FORT SILL, Okla., May 27.—(United Press).—Visiting delegates of the National Editorial Association closed their stay in Oklahoma today with a close-up view of modern military tactics revolving around the capture of a theoretical enemy entrenched on a mountain on the military reservation here.

From a hill, safely out of the line of fire, yet near enough to observe the effect of dropping shells, the editors saw three hundred pieces of artillery of various caliber lay a barrage over the heights.

Preceding the infantry attack, the air-fleet again dropped a new type of bomb, invested since the world war and used for the first time in the maneuvers today, to drive the smoke screen upward and out of the way of advancing troops.

As the smoke billowed upward, hundreds of infantrymen advanced against the "enemy", preceded by a rolling artillery barrage. The "capture" followed short dashing attacks and wave formation rushes up the steep slope of the thousand-foot mountain.

Luncheon from the army field kitchens upon regulation "chow" shortly after noon closed the display, classed by army officers as the greatest staged in America during peace times. Hundreds of high army officials from all parts of the United States witnessed the maneuvers.

The editors leave here today for San Antonio.

PRODUCTION OF GOOD COMBS

A good stock of drawn combs is the most valuable asset that a bee-keeper can have, especially if one is a producer of extracted honey. They are of particular value in a season when the honey crop is light, because they enable the bees to store what little nectar is available instead of using it for the building of new comb. Every beekeeper should endeavour to have a number of new combs drawn during a good season to replace any that may become damaged or broken.

A good comb is one that is straight and containing as few drone cells as possible. It must also be firmly attached to the frame on all four sides and strongly supported in the frame by means of wire. To produce such combs, the frames must first be tightly wired; No. 28 tinned wire is most commonly used. Full depth Langstroth frames should have at least four horizontal wires, larger frames will need more. It is important that a full sheet of foundation be used for every frame; this must be fastened to the top bars and the wires firmly embedded into the wax by means of an electric or spur wire embedder. The foundation may require trimming, as it must not touch the end or bottom bars of the frame by at least one-eighth of an inch or it will buckle after giving it to the bees. Foundation well fastened in the frame will not melt down or sag and the finished comb will not have distorted cells and will not break in the extractor if carefully handled. Bees will not work on foundation unless there is a plentiful supply of nectar coming in, therefore, it should only be given during a good flow. To get the combs well attached to the frames, the foundation should be drawn out in extracting supers, as bees seldom attached the combs to the bottom bars in a brood chamber.

When extracting the honey from new combs, first take only part of the honey from one side, reverse the comb and empty the other side, again turn the comb and finish the extracting; this will prevent breakage. If all the honey is extracted from one side without removing any from the other, the weight of honey on the inner surface of the comb will crack or even break out the whole centre.

Phillipe Brison For 18 Years Member of Montreal Force, Gives Tanlac Credit For Restoring Health.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

ORCHID

Adventure lurks in the most unexpected places. You'd never imagine it, but lion hunting is a tame sport compared with hunting orchids in the jungle, says John E. Lager, veteran florist.

These beautiful flowers are defenseless, so they make their homes in virtually inaccessible regions infested by poisonous snakes, alligators and diseases-bearing insects.

Even the jungle flower is as intent on attaining old age as the scientist experimenting with monkey glands.

OPPORTUNITY

All orchids used to be imported from the jungles. This was stopped by law five years ago.

Americans now grow their own orchids by artificially duplicating the tropical climate in which orchids thrive. Man has superb intelligence—where money is the goal.

In the whole country are not more than 100 orchid growers. The supply is never equal the demand. That's what keeps the prices high. Here, possibly, in the opportunity you seek.

DRIFTERS.

"Labor turnover" is a big item of expense in industry. Some coroprations find, by their cost systems, that it costs them a muchs as $150 every time a skilled employe leaves and a new one has to be broken in. Why not keep employes on the job by giving them this $150 apiece periodically instead of spending it in labor turnover? This is already being done by the Anaconda Copper Co. in Chile, which pays "attendance bonuses."

Some one has said that an organization is as hard to get together and keep together as a church choir.

LIGHTNING.

Lightning causes only 12 million dollars of fire losses a year. So estimates the Weather Bureau. For some mysterious reason, Illinois has more losses than any other state in the United States.

Man-caused fires destroy about 50 times as much property as lightning. Yet all people fear lightning. And few fear matches, cigaret stubs and other causes of fires. Teach your children that there is more danger in a match than in a lightning bolt.

PAR

Consols, Italian government securities, sold as low as 68 in 1919. Recently they went above par, 100, which is face value.

The reason? Italy still has her enormous war debt. But, under Mussolini's wise financial leadership she is economizing, paring expenses. That looks good for the future, so consols advanced.

The real danger and problem in Europe is government spending rather than debts already incurred. A government's credit is exactly like an individual's. And when a man—however heavily in debt from foolish spending—shows signs of coming to his senses, his standing rises.

Popular Colors For Summer

By HEDDA HOYT
Fashion Editor of the United Press.
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, May 27.—(United). "Red and yellow means 'catch a fellow.'"
So the childish saying goes;
And if there's any truth in this, girls,
We'll have just loads and loads beaux!

Red and yellow are the most conspicuous colors used this season. Every window on Fifth avenue is displaying these colors and every woman one sees has a bit of red or yellow or a mixture of the two colors adorning her Spring costume.

The largest department store on Fifth Avenue has every window displaying red costumes, which vary from sports frocks, afternoon gowns, evening gowns, hats, etc., to bathing suits and accessories. There is not one other color in their windows, just one mass of flaming red! A block further up the Avenue we find another shop with every window sponsoring yellow; yellow undergarments, yellow evening frocks, yellow shoes, gloves, stockings—everything yellow!

Each Spring some new shade is introduced to become the rage. This Spring, however, we find ourselves settling out tastes on plain yellow or red.

Of course, by this time almost everyone owns a scarf consisting of red or yellow tones, so we will not discuss the scarf. Among the accessories which accompany these scarfs, however, are envelope-shaped handbags of red or yellow which add chic to the Spring tailleur.

As to evening gowns nothing is newer than the frock of chiffon with slender bodice and full-ruffled or flounced skirt, made in scarlet or a lovely shade of yellow. These are very simple to make at home, although they cost as much in the shops as the more ornate beaded gowns. Ostrich banding comes in the most beautiful shades of red and yellow and trims many of our latest evening frocks.

Hats in Yellow Horsehair.

Summery hats of horsehair will be popular as warm weather advances. Shops are showing these in yellow horsehair with wide brims and the single flower trimming at one side of the brim. If one is careful not to choose too deep a yellow, a hat of this sort can be worn with almost any frock, regardless of its color.

Yellow lingerie is becoming quite as popular as flesh or pink lingerie this Spring. Vests, step-ins, costume slips, brassieres and hosiery are shown in this shade. Ecru lace makes an attractive finish for the yellow undergarment, although many simpler garments use lavenderd hemstitching as a finish.

As we have mentioned before, the latest hosiery shade is a pinkish yellow tone rather than the nude one. Gloves, likewise, follow the yellowish tones when worn with yellow-toned hosiery. Yellow handkerchiefs also adhere to the Summer color vogue.

Linen and organdy frocks of yellow are shown in every shop in New York. Even yellow and white-checked gingham is being stressed for summer wear. Except for evening wear the red frock is not as conspicuous as the yellow one, as red is rather a trying color to wear, being most becoming on very dark brunette or ash blondes.

Yellow, on the other hand, can be worn by almost everyone. The golden blond is more lovely in yellowish or golden tones than in any other color. The brunette usually wears yellow beautifully and the titian-haired woman is often painted by the artists surrounded by a yellow background. The sallow person is the only one who finds yellow unbecoming, but in these days of cosmetics there are few sallow women, indeed.

FASHION NOTES.

Colored satin slippers are introduced for Spring wear. These come in red, green, orange and yellow satin, and are worn mostly for evening wear.

Chokers made of very large pearl beads are worn with boyish tailored costumes. Many times the pearls are as large as marbles. Natural pearl shades are those most frequently seen, although pearls of pinkish and greenish tones and pearls of gunmetal tones are also in vogue.

For evening wear the bandeau and the rhinestone ornament is being discarded in favor of the real or imitation flower. At a theatre the other night almost every young woman who wore an evening gown had a real rose tucked in her hair. They wore them fastened at one side of the forehead pinned in the bobbed hair. Red and pink roses are the favorite shades.

BETTER

Freight handled by the railroads continues climbing steadily. Recovering from the slump early in April.

So far this year, the roads have loaded almost exactly as many loaded freight cars as in the corresponding period a year ago.

This sort of news in fundamental, shows the way the wind is blowing. It neutralizes temporary slumps in some industries, for it indicates that recovery lies ahead. Business men don't but what comes in freight cars unless they expect to have customers for it.

MAGIC

Photographs are now sent successfully over telephone wires. It means that pictures will come over the wires along with news stories, showing you what's happening afar off.

This is real magic, more so than the chimerical elixir of life or philosopher's stone sought by ancient alchemists. You pay your money to see the stage magician pull rabbits from a plug hat or make Princess WaWa disappear. Yet you yourself use greater magic whenever you tune in the radio or turn on electricity.

SCIENTISTS SEEK MAN'S BIRTHPLACE

Next Fall They Will Invade the Graveyard of Mastodons in Search of Garden of Eden.

NEW YORK, May 28. — Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the American Museum of Natural History expedition which discovered the known fossils of dinosaur eggs, will sail to-morrow for Mongolia to prepare for the reception of a party of scientistst who next fall will invade that desert, in search of the "Garden of Eden."

The 1924 expedition expects to remain afield for five years and will exhaust every effort toward excavating the bones of the earliest man in support of the theory that he first trod earth in what now is the desolate Gobi desert, a verdent paradise 10 to 25 million years ago.

Headed by Mr. Andrews, the party will include 15 scientists who are acknowledged leaders in their respective fields. There will be Walter Granger, chief paleontologist; Charles P. Berkey, chief geologist; James P. Chapin, chief ornithologist; L. B. Roberts, chief topographer; N. C. Nelson, chief archaelogist, Ralph Chaney, chief botanist; J. B. Shackleford, chief cinematographer, S. Baynard Colgate, chief of motor transport, each with their assistants.

Five of the party were members of the three-year expedition which emerged from Mongolia laden with the most valuable collection of prehistoric bones and fossils known to paleontologic history. They helped find the famous dinosaur eggs, and it was upon their unearthings that scientists since have builded the theory that Homo Sapiens first lived millions of years prior to the "dawn of history" heretofore variously ascribed to the time of the Piltdown Man, the Pithecanthropos Erectus, the Neanderthal Man, or the Californian human whose bones, recently discovered have aroused a new controversy among scientists.

Mr. Andrews is confident that the true birthplace of man, the spot on earth where a human first was evolved from an animal, will be found in the Gobi desert. Perhaps not by this expedition, he says, but sometime soon, surely.

"We can't be definite," Mr. Andrews declared. "We can only say that the evidence we have convinces us we are seeking in the right place. We are specializing on man. We never have organized to hunt his bones before. We have been more concerned with the history of rocks than of humanity.

"Now we are going on the rocks where human remains are most likely to exist. We think the prospects justify gambling, although some students say we are hunting a needle in a haystack."

The Gobi desert proved a veritable treasure trove for the last expedition. A few prehistoric bones, exposed to view by a chance shifting of the hot, dry sands led to the discovery of a huge natural cache of fossilized relics.

Everything was in a marvelous state of preservation after having been insulated from the elements for millions of years by the fine desert dust. Even the shells of the much-prized dinosaur eggs were found intact, with the embryos of the monsters in various stages of development preserved for this age to study.

The discoverers' theory is that the Gobi Desert was at one time a tropical plain, threaded with watering places and covered with verdure on which the mastodons of the times fed. Then some catastrophe an earthquake or an inundation, exterminated thousands of them in a moment, leaving their remains, and perhaps those of men of that day, to be miraculously preserved through the ages.

But the 1924 expedition is not going to restrict itself to the past, any more than have its predecessors. And it is recorded that the last expedition of the American Museum of Natural History brought back, in addition to the priceless paleontological specimens, thousands of skins of mammals, birds, fish and reptiles of living types, for preservation and study, as well as tons of geologically important rocks, sheaves of maps of newly explored regions, and specimens of flora and fauna that never had been classified before.

CHILDREN AND HOGS

There's an old story about a man who was driving down a country road and stopped to talk with a farmer.

"Hum—those are mighty fine hogs you have over there," comments the stranger.

"You bet," said the farmer pridefully, "I raise the best hogs in this country. I've got some of the highest priced cattle, too. Sell 'em for breeding all over."

"And your corn—" marveled the traveler.

"Yep, it's the best in the country. Takes lots of care though."

Just then two scrawny youngsters, quite sickly in appearance, came running out to get a look at the visitor who noted them with astonishment. They were a sad contrast to the healthy cattle and grain.

"Those aren't your youngsters—!" he started.

"Yep," said the farmer sadly. "Ain't very well. Don't know just what to do about 'em."

Tye moral of the tale is quite obvious, and the condition is more prevalent than most people realize.

Many a man can build a fortune from a few dollars and a fine herd of cattle from a small farm, but he doesn't give his children one-half the attention and care he gives the other matters.

If your business and your cattle are worth feeding and care of the finest type—your children are worth ten times as much.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LOCAL Y.W.C.A. WAS HELD LAST NIGHT

Seventy Thousand Meals Served at the Institution During the Year—Portion of Debt Cleared Off.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association took place last evening, with a good attendance for the meeting, which was held in the gymnasium of the 'Y.' The president, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, occupied the chair, and devotional exercises were led by Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints' Anglican church. Reports of various activities of the year were given by officers of the Y and of the Board of Management.

Rev. Mr. Paterson spoke briefly of the good work being done by such institutions as the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A. He said that religion, which in the past had often been regarded as a sort of sentimentalism, unconnected with the real living of life, had come to be looked on recently, as not so much the building up of a denominational church, as the building of an ideal manhood and womanhood, and in this the function of the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. existed.

The preisdent, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, also spoke a few words, in her usual concise, humorous fashion, speaking of the good work done by the Association during the past year, and of the exceptional ability of the personnel of the staff.. She alluded also with regret to the passing during the year of an earnest worker, in Mrs. James Wood.

Mrs. G. E. Porter, secretary of the Board, gave her report, which was a brief summary of the general character of the work throughout the year. The financial report, given by Miss E. Morrow, followed, showing receipts during the twelve months of $24,088.34, and expenditure of $24,087.74, leaving a balance on hand at present of sixty cents. Included in the disbursements of the year was a payment of $1,400 on the mortgage account, the ladies feeling that, although their present balance is small, this has been one of the most successful financial years in the history of the institution.

The report of the Residence Department was given by Mrs. E. Morrison, who recorded in pleasing manner the home side of the 'Y's' work during the year. The house harbored during this period 250 girls and provided accommodation also for over 450 transients, besides daily dinners for others.

The residence, with a capacity of 70, has been filled during the year at most times, with auxiliary cots in use during several months of the year. The department was 125 p. c. self-supporting throughout the year. Approximately 70,000 meals were served, and 1,700 quarts of preserves put up. The social side of the residence life is also looked after at all times.

Miss C. F. Littlefield, physical directress, gave the report for the gymnasium and swimming pool. During the summer of 1923 over 240 girls learned to swim at the 'Y.' Class enrolment in the 'gym' is 511, with an aggregate attendance during the year of 12,228. Fees at the gymansium for the season totalled $1,220.00, with a total from the pageant at the Grand Opera House of $1,205.84, a grand total of $2,327.84.

Miss Leta Brownscombe, general secretary, gave a comprehensive report, covering the various departments of the institution during the past year. The membership amounted to 627. Miss Brownscombe gave an idea of the several departments and their work, regretting that, owing to available quarters not being available no 'Y' camp would be held this year.

Miss Brownscombe also referred to the splendid response made to the recent financial appeal, when $1,500 was asked for, and the sum of $1,900 realized. With $900 of this amount, and a portion of a bequest from Miss Lundy, it was possible to write off the sum of $1,400 from the mortgage, leaving a balance of only $1,000 to clear next year. Miss Brownscombe alluded to the splendid spirit of co-operation manifest among members, the Board and volunteer workers.

Mrs. A. W. Cressman reported for the nominating committee, as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. Walsh; Members: Mesdames T. Cruikshank, W. D. Scott, A. W. Cressman, R. Neill, B. Gardiner, V. Eastwood, R. H. Turner, D. Carmichael, H. R. H. Kenner, T. N. Greer, Geo. Macdonald, E. E. Harvey, W. R. Widdess, E. E. Ingall, R. Cormack, N. D. Buchanan, R. Denne, A. Moir, T. Brown, G. E. Porter, Gerald Wood, J. D. Richardson, and the Misses M. Dickson, E. Morrow, A. Walton, E. MacVannel, Annie Wood, L. Hamilton and A. Halliday.

A very interesting feature of the occasion last evening was the presence and speech of Kato San (the San in Japanese feminine names corresponds to Miss in English) who is general secretary of the Tokyo Association, and a delegate to the recent World's Conference of Y.W.C.A.'s at Washington, and also to the Canadian conference at Preston Springs. Kato San, who has been absent from Japan for a year, during which time she has visited Y.W.C.A. branches in most of the European countries, is an interesting little person, with bright ways, a soft, musical voice, and a dimple that is very noticeable by reason of her frequent smiles. The only Occidetnal things about her were her dark-rimmed spectacles and her wrist wtach, for she wore a very dainty Oriental outfit that included a lovely indigo blue crepe kimona, its front embroidered with the pale pink cherry blossoms of her country, its broad obi, or sash, ornamented with Japanese figures. On her feet were the peculiar shoes of the Flowery Kingdom, with white kid foot casings, a separate compartment for the big toe, thrust into a small sandal-like frame.

Kato San gave a brief, interesting review of the work of the Y in Japan, taking her hearers on a miniature journey to the various cities where the Y is located, starting at Kobe, and progressing in turn to Osaka, the "city of industry and commerce," the Pittsburgh of the Orient, to Koyto, to Yokohama, and then to Tokyo, the Chicago of the Eastern empire, with a bird's eye glimpse of the ravages of the earthquake.

Mrs. Crutkshank voiced the appreciation of the audience for the smiling little lady's pleasing address.

Adoption of the various reports heard was moved by their readers, and seconded by Mrs. Reg. Turner. Miss Ethel Nichol seconded the adoption of the report of the nominating committee. During the evening several pleasing musical and dancing numbers were given. A tiny tot, Marion Dryland, gave a cunning little recitation; the Singing Club, led by Mrs. Geo. H. King, gave a jolly number, marching about the hall, Miss Lois Garrett played very beautifully, from memory, Paderewski's famous Minuet, and exercises by Miss Littlefield's dancing classes, with musical accompaniments by Margaret Widdess at the piano and Stewart Widdess, playing the violin, included three pretty dances, in costumes; "Tulip Time in Holland," by Intermediate members, "The Spirit of Russia," by the senior dancing class, and "Playtime," a Greek classical number by the juniors. At the conclusion of the programme, Miss Lois Garrett played the Japanese National Anthem, in honor of the guest, Kato San. Piano accompaniments were provided during the evening by Mrs. G. E. Porter.

The company then adjourned to the swimming pool, where exhibitions of fancy swimming were given by several members of the classes, and then to the green room, where dainty refreshments were served, in charge of the Social committee. Miss E. MacVannel acted as convenor. Mrs. R. Neill and Miss A. Walton poured coffee, assisted by Mrs. R. Denne, Mrs. A. Moir, and the Misses McIntosh, B. Latimer and Mary Elliott. The table was beautifully decorated wtih a large bowl of tulips, which also decorated the big hall.

CLOSING MEETING OF ST. LUKE'S WAS HELD

The closing meeting for the season of the W. A. of St. Luke's Church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. J. J. Turner, Water Street, with an attendance of about 50 members. Rev. G. J. Bousfield opened the meeting with prayer, which was followed by the report of the delegates to the recent W. A. convention in Toronto, Mrs. Moore giving the report for the senior department, Miss Audrey Heap that of the juniors. Two life members were added to the roll yesterday, in Mrs. John Heap and Mrs. T. H. Adams, and seven juniors were given awards for missionary exercises, in six certificates and one silver pin.

NEW YORK WILL NEVER SUPPLANT LONDON, ENG.

LONDON, May 28. — (Canadian Press).—Sir John Aird, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, on a visit here, told the Financial Times that New York will never supplant London as the monetary and financial centre of the world. He said he though the Government inspection of banks in Canada would prove unsatisfactory and expensive, and he would like to see the Canadian Finance Act of 1914 made permanent.

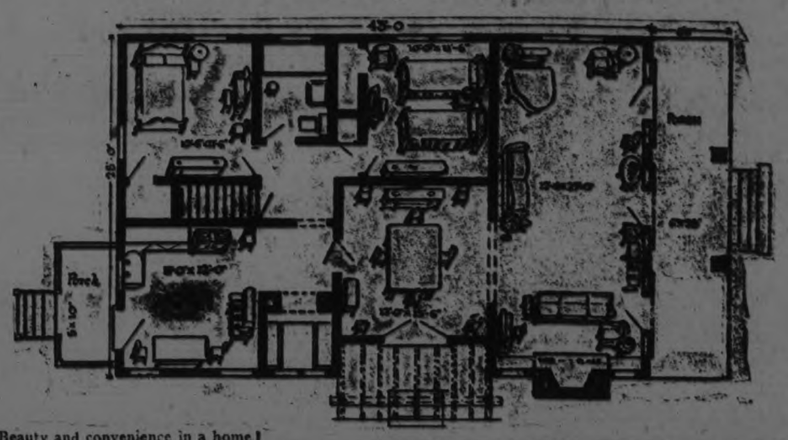
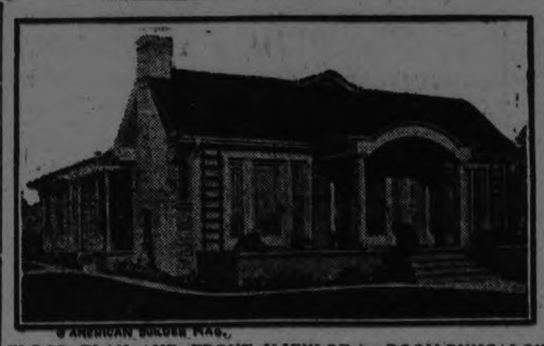
WELL-BALANCED BUNGALOW





© AMERICAN BUILDER MAG.

FLOOR PLAN AND FRONT VIEW OF A 5-ROOM BUNGALOW

Beauty and convenience in a home are in no way dependent upon the size of the house.

The quiet charm of the home illustrated here, its dignity without ostentation, is an example. The interesting curve of the porch roof, the French doors with side lights in front, the pergola porch opening from the dining room and the pleasingly plain treatment of the fireplace and chimney combine to make the exterior of this home one of character.

The long living room, across the front of the home, has a wealth of light admitted by the doors, sidelight and windows. The fireplace on one end of the room and the uninterrupted wall space at the other end suggest interesting groupings of furniture.

The dining room is conveniently situated, of adequate size and is well lighted by French doors.

The bedroom group is efficient, with the bath between, well segregated from the rest of the house.

The house is suitable for a narrow lot, the width being 28 feet, with a length of 43 feet without the porches.

The approximate cost of this home is $6000. This figure is subject to as many variations as there are separate communities where it may be built.

"BRITISH EMPIRE AND JERUSALEM"

It is not a novel theory, but it is one of which many are ignorant, that there is a considerable number of writers and students who hold that the Anglo-Saxon people are the lost ten tribes of Israel. The grounds for believing that this is so are certain interpretations which are given to many of the Old Testament prophecies. We all know that the ten Northern tribes of Israel were taken into captivity by the Assyrians, and that the other two, Judah and Levi, many years later, were taken captive by Babylon. What became of the tribes of Israel? Most people will answer that they were merged in the nation unto which they were taken captive by Babylon. What taken captive, and so lost their identity. But this is not so if the Anglo-Israel theory is right. Josephus, writing in A.D. 70, said: "The entire body of the ten tribes are still beyond the River Euphrates, an immense multitude, not to be estimated by numbers."

Apart from any indications of prophecy it is obvious that the ten lost tribes must be in existence somewhere in the world to-day. They belong to the same stock as the Jews, who in spite of 1,900 years of the most ruthless persecution are not only in existence, but number some 12,000,000. The Jews are the descendants of only two tribes, hence we may expect that the descendants of the ten tribes are far more numerous than the Jews. This consideration shows the obvious futility of seeking for the lost tribes among the smaller peoples of Asia, such as the Afghans, as so many have done.

Prophecy alone can give the clue to the identity of the ancient kingdom of Israel. It was foretold that she would be swallowed up among the nations and lose her identity as Israel and become Gentile—"not my people"—and yet at the same time to multiply as fishes increase and become as "numberless as the sands of the seashore." After the exile had taken place prophecy continued to be given through the prophets of God concerning the future, and many marks by which these apparently Gentile people could be recognised in the Christian age as Israelites were given. We append a few, and leave every fair-minded reader to judge for himself which Empire these marks fit:

They were not to be known in the Christian age as Israel (Isa. lxv., 15).

They were to be under "the New Covenant," i.e., redeemed (Isa. xlix., 6-8; Jer. xxxi., 31-34; Heb. viii., 6-8).

They were to become high above all nations (Deut. xxvi., 19).

They were to become wealthy and prosperous (Deut. xxviii., 12).

They were to inherit the blessing of Joseph (material wealth). (Gen. xlix., 22-26; Deut. xxxiii., 13-17.)

They were to become "a nation and company of nations." (Gen. xxxv., 11, xlviii, 19.)

They were to become a great missionary empire. (Isa. xliii., 44, lviii, 6, 7, lxi., 6; Micah v., 7.)

They were to become a strong nation. (Micah iv., 7, vi., 8.)

They would have a reigning family descended from David and in perpetual succession to the throne. (2 Samuel, vii., 16; Jer. xxxiii., 17, 25, 26.)

The British Empire, and our Empire alone, fills in this picture, and our gracious King can trace his lineal descent from David.

Those who are interested in this view of prophecy will have an opportunity to hear more of it next Sunday when Professor Odlum of Vancouver will occupy St. Paul's pulpit at both services. Professor Odlum has recently conducted a series of meetings in Canon Cody's Church in Toronto, and also in Cooke's Presbyterian Church, Toronto.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE MOVIES AND THE CHURCH.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: In reading the papers some one has lately suggested, and did, having the picture shows and movies in the churches. They are all right in their place—but not in the church.

Business men and the people generally, want some suitable place where they can feel at home, to spend an evening.

There is no comparison between the churches' grand work and glorious misson and the theatre of to-day.

It is always safe and wise to let well enough alone.

They thought it would bring a crowd and improve the singing.

The young men and women that are interested in and workers in all our leading Canadian churches, are the leading men and women in our Dominion to-day.

Men of character are Empire builders.

We have many very fine good singers and musicians in all our churches who are doing very good service.

A wildcat, noisy wordless song with no expression or life is no good.

The family altar is on the wane, and the old time Friendship is a thing of the past. But listen, there is one thing sure: If we do not come to the Bible the Bible will come to us some time.

There never was very much real good in some churches. A multitude followed our Saviour, but they had some one to listen to, for He was the world's greatest Teacher, whose aim was service. Yours truly,

BENJ. WHITE,
Zion, R.R. No. 8 City.

POTATO SUPPLY LOW AT APSLEY

Local Stock Exhausted, But is Replenished From Lakefield at $2.25 a Bag.

HOLIDAY CELEBRATED

APSLEY, May 27.—There is still a lot of seeding to be done, the continual wet weather delaying operations. Seed oats are $2.60 a bag. Potatoes are very scarce and cost $2.25 a bag, most of them coming from Lakefield, the local supply having run out. Butter is 30 cents a pound, and eggs are plentiful at 20 cents a dozen. There is very little business being done in the butcher trade. Choice milk-fed calves only fetch 10c a lb. dressed. Robt. Tanner, one of the oldest settlers here, declares that "all one gets out of stock raising in this settlement is the manure, but even that is quite an asset, and not at all to be despised."

Empire Day Concert.

Empire Day was celebrated in Apsley by an entertainment at the Parish Hall under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A., with the object of raising money to improve the war memorial, by enclosing it with an ornamental fence, planting flowers, and painting the war trophies. A fair sized audience was present at the entertainment which consisted of motion pictures and a concert by the Community Choral Society, together with the first public appearance of Miss Marjorie Spence's string orchestra. The proceeds amounted to $16.45, about half of which will be available for the purpose mentioned above.

The pictures were interspersed with the following numbers: Glee, "Awake With the Lark," Choral Society; Instrumental, "Old Black Joe," String Orchestra; Song, "For You Alone," Rev. C. Spence; "Come Where the Lilie Bloom," Choral Society; Song, "I A'loving' You," Miss M. Spence; C... "Dame Durden," Choral Society; Violin Duet, John Coones and Marjorie Spence; Chorus, "Hail The Morning," Choral Society.

The number by the string orchestra met with a very favorable reception and had to be repeated. The perfomers and their teacher, Miss Spence, certainly deserve a word of praise for their ability, especially considering the short time they have been receiving tuition. The Choral Society, though small in number, made up for this by the quality of the singing, all the voices being above the average. It is a pity more of the young men do not take advantage of the training by joining up.

Two weddings of local interest took place in Madoc on Wednesday week, the happy couples being Roy Woodbeck and Nellie Wright, of Coe Hill, and Hiram Woodbeck of Lasswade and Eva Rosebush of Owenbrook. The newly married couples went to Toronto for a short honeymoon.

MONK ADOPTS HOGS.

REPUBLIC, Kas., May 28.—Jock, a diminutive monkey, has been a regular inhabitant of a pigsty on the farm of W. H. McClure, near here, for three years. In that time numerous families of pigs have grown to hoghood under Jock's guiding care and have become expert "saddle hogs," with the monkey as chief jockey.

ORDER 2,000 FLIES.

DALLAS, Tex., May 28. — Two thousand common house flies have been shipped from Dallas to a private business concern in Boston. The flies were sent by express by F. C. Bishop, chief entomologist of the Department of Agriculture in Dallas. Bishop said the Boston firm did not explain for what purpose the flies were intended.

VANCOUVER SUGAR $8.35.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 28. — (Canadian Press).—An overnight drop of 25 cents a hundred pounds brought the wholesale price of granulated sugar yesterday down to $8.35.

NO ACTION TAKEN IN HARNETT CASE

Legal Committee Decides Man Wrongly Arrested Has No Recourse Against City.

The case of Ray Harnett, wrongly arrested in February on a charge of passing false cheques was discussed at a meeting of the Legal Committee last night.

Alderman Maher said a lot of complaints had been received about harsh treatment in the police station, prisoners not being allowed to use the telephone.

Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, also commented on this in a report saying he considered it a serious matter that Harnett was kept in the jail from Saturday until Monday without being allowed to communicate with anybody.

Alderman Stocker said prisoners are treated like dogs.

Mayor Turner moved that the complaint from Harnett be received and filed.

Chief Newhall's explanation was read, in which he denied that Harnett made any request to communicate with his parents.

Alderman Fife: "Could we send the report back and ask that the complaint be sent to the commission?

Others remarked that the only recourse is against the man who laid the information and there is no claim against the municipality.

Alderman Phelan said the fingerprints should be destroyed.

The letter was received without action and the city clerk was instructed to advise Mr. Harnett senior to this effect.

Alderman Crowe desired to express the decision more sympathetically, but no change was made in the motion.

UTILITIES BOARD PRESENT EXPENSES

Word Done With Approval of City Engineer Must Be Re-done With Paving

At a meeting of the Utilities Commission yesterday Mr. Fiske reported applications for service in several sections, nearly all outside the city. The total cost for new material would be $703, and the revenue $232, while the usage would be off-peak hours.

Utilities work in connection with the paving of Water street will cost $236, Mr. Fiske reported. Some of the commissioners challenged the system whereby new work done by the commission within a few years with the approval of the city engineer must be torn down. Mr. Bradburn suggested notifying the city council that the charge must be met as paving costs.

Mr. Hicks suggested a meeting to arrange a method of cooperation to avoid wastage of labor and material, and a memorandum will be sent the Board of Works asking for an interview.

A notification was received from the council that persons proposing to break the paving on a street must obtain a permit from the city engineer.

Superintendent Ross Dobbin said the Waterworks always writes the council.

Mr. Hicks: "That's alright for new work but what will we do if a big main breaks? All we can do is accept the order and leave the responsibility with them."

This also will be discussed on meeting the council.

CHANCELLOR MARX TO TAKE THE JOB

Will Make an Effort to Reorganize the German Cabinet.

(By Carl D. Groat, Unted Press Staff Corresvondent.)

BERLIN, May 28. — Chancellor Marx has accepted the commission to reorganize the German cabinet, offered him at 5 p.m., yesterday, by President Ebert, it was officially announced to-day.

The new cabinet may contain nationalists. Unless present plans miscarry, the latter are to accept a share in the government on the basis of approval of the experts' report. The Nationalists have asked the interior, food and economic posts.

The next session of the Reichstag was expected to find many Communists rejected unless the left wing ceased its obstruction tactics, which finally caused the opening session to break up in tumult and disorder.

With the crowds in the galleries joining in until pandemonium became deafening, the Reds howled down all attempt at parliamentary procedure.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of the returns made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Three nights of frost during the past week have done injury to fruit and early vegetables in many parts of the Province, but the results have not yet been fully estimated. Early blossoming strawberries suffered considerably, and such tender plants as tomatoes, tobacco, etc. Orchard bloom does not appear to have been so seriously affected.

Kent—Heavy frosts at nights have done considerable damage to the early tomatoes. A number of market gardeners had already set out all their early tomatoes, which were a total loss. Plants in cold frames and tobacco plants in some instances were destroyed by the frosts. Considerable injury was also done to early cherries and other orchard fruits.

Spring sowing has been much delayed owing to frequent rains, and the cool weather has also helped to make the growth of the grain crops very tardy. The consequence is that most of the fields are about two weeks behind in appearance. A number of fields were "mudded in," which is not likely to improve conditions. Some grain remains to be sown, and most of the roots. A good deal of land earlier intended for grain will likely be put into corn, potatoes or buckwheat.

Fall wheat and clover continue to show a more or less promising appearance, except where drowned out in low lying places by the frequent rains. The cold weather has somewhat delayed growth, but taken all together these crops are likely to be among the best of the year.

The pasturing of live stock has been made difficult by the inclement weather prevailing during the past month. The soft condition of the ground has resulted in many fields being nearly ruined by the cattle trampling the land. A number of farmers have kept their dairy cattle in the stable, and many of the live stock now feeding in the fields are driven into the barn for the night owing to the chilly weather.

It is encouraging to observe from reports of representatives that the demand for spraying material has been greatly increased this season, compared with that of preceding years.

Fort William—Young fruit trees are looking quite good, and there is an increase in the number set out this year.

Milk ranges in price from $1.00 to $2.00 a cwt. on the basis of 3 per cent. butter fat, the average price running about $1.40.

Peterborough — Cheese factories and creameries are receiving a fairly heavy supply. Cheese quoted at around 14c a pound, and butter fat at from 28c to 30c.

Frontenac — Factories and creameries are working to capacity, indicating that the flow of milk is good. Prices have not changed to any extent. Creamery paid 31c per pound for butter fat for the first two weeks in May. An American buyer has been in the district and has offered a few of the good factories from 18c to 19c per pound for cheese on board the cars.

Leeds — Eight pure-bred Jerseys, sold recently near Lansdowne for $1,100, shipped to a farm near Toronto.

Grade cows due to freshen are selling in Fort William for $62.00. In Lanark the prices for milch cows range from $50.00 to $75.00.

Young cattle in Lanark are quoted at from 3c to 7c a pound, according to condition and quality.

Good spring lambs in North Simcoe are bringing $13.00.

Little pigs are selling for $5.00 a pair in Brant.

South Simcoe — There was an average shipment of stock from the county this week. Hogs brought $7.25 a cwt. on the flat rate. A few choice calves at 10c a pound, and some extra nice fat carry enough finish to demand a high price.

Kent — Large shipments of hogs have been made from the county during the past wek at 7c. Five cars of cattle were shipped out yesterday, the highest price realised being 8½c. Next week will clean up all the feeder cattle which are not being put out to pasture.

Peterborough — Marketing this week was made up entirely of hogs and calves. There was a very heavy run of calves, which sold for from 4c to 7c, depending on quality.

CANADA HAS REFUSED TO ACCEPT LAUSANNE

LONDON, May 28. — (Canadian Press).—Canada's refusal to accept the Lausanne Treaty because she had not a representation at the conference is not in itself a disaster, says the Manchester Guardian.

"The incident of Canada's refusal bids us to consider where we are," declares the paper. "Clearly what is becoming essential is that the Dominions should be asked on the occasion of every important internation conference whether they would consider their interests demanded separate representation or whether they would be content to accept for themselves representation by the home government."

France defeated Latvia 7 to 0, and Holland won from Rumania 6 to 0. The results had been generally anticipated. The interviewer describes Mlle. Lenglen as having fresh color and an alert mien, and he adds, if somewhat thinner, her features are not drawn and her physical condition is as good as before her illness. He was unable to induce her to give an opinion of Miss Helen Wills, United States champion, whom Mlle. Lenglen has never seen play, and who will take part in the Olympic contests.

C.G.E. LOST TO LOCKWORKS

Lockworks Defeat C.G.E. 12 to 0 in Mercantile League Game Last Night.

The Lockworks won an easy victory from the C.G.E. in a Mercantile League game at Riverside Park last night when they handed the Electric crew a 12 to 0 beating.

The Lockmakers, who were last year's Mercantile champions, trotted out a far stronger team than the one with which they won the championship with. The C.G.E. team, are a new entry in the Mercantile League, and they have a pretty fair team, and with a little practice should soon enter the winning column.

The Lockmakers trotted out "Chuck" Bradley and Lambert Collins as their battery. Bradley was in great shape, and he held the C.G.E. to two hits and fanned ten. He was a trifle wild, but this did not get him any trouble.

McDonough started for the C.G.E. but only lasted three innings. He was touched for six hits in the innings he worked. Williams replaced him in the fourth and got by a little better being only touched for 4 hits. The C.G.E. players did not give their heavers very good support and continual misplays on their part made it hard work for the pitchers. With better fielding the score would have been decidedly smaller.

The Lockworks possess one of the best teams in the league. The have a good bunch of players lined up, most of whom are playing in other leagues.

The Lockworks got the drop at the start of the game and aided by Chuck Bradley's good pitching were never headed. Bradley was given air-tight support by his teammates, not an error being chalked up against them. The C.G.E. team on the other hand gave their pitchers wretched support.

"Scotty" McPherson had the feature play of the evening when he tore back of third base and picked off a high foul fly. McLeish at first also played a great game.

Lambert Collins was the star for the Lockworks with the willow, getting three hits in as many appearances at the plate. Bradley came through with three hits in four times up.

Williams and Killenbeck got the Electric team's only hits. Barrie at second base for the C.G.E. turned in a nice fielding game, having five chances without a slip.

FIRST GAMES IN CENTRAL LEAGUE PROMISE FIGHT

All Four Teams Have Defeats Registered Against Them In Early Games.

RESULT A TOSS UP

Peterborough in Oshawa Today —Here On Saturday.

The first few games in the Central Ontario League race demonstrate that there will be a hectic campaign in the Big Four loop this season and anyone who attempts to pick the ultimate winner of the race is entitled to retirement to one of the institutions the government maintains for the accomodation of those deficient in the region beneath the hair. The campaign is only a week old and not one of the four teams has escaped defeat. There will be no soft games for anyone of the quartette as Belleville's victory over Kingston shows. Kingston beat Oshawa 1 to 0, Oshawa swamped Belleville 19 to 9 and Belleville turns round and beat Kingston all in five days.

The Petes play in Oshawa today and on Saturday Duke Dainty and his teammates will be the attraction at Riverside Park. The Oshawa crew are well known here and their visit is being looked forward to as likely to produce a lot of exciting baseball in the park across the river. The Duke himself will be on the mound and he would rather beat Peterboro any day than eat a meal. Our old fellow townsmen Murray and Ward will do their best to help him make good.

The game should be one of the best of the season and the fans are hoping for good weather in order that it may be seen under the most favourable conditions.

VETS DEFEATE THE WOOLLENS

With Ten Players In a Fast and Clean Game By Three Clear Goals, at the Oval, Last Evening.

A good crowd of spectators witnessed the Vets gain two points at the Woollens expense in a senior league game by three goals to nothing, at Nicholls Oval, last evening. The Vets played throughout the game with only ten men. Chambers, Woollens, missed a penalty.

Woollens — Hillman, goal; Read and Perry, backs; Warde, Quinn and Sawyers, half-backs; Mitchell, Gaskill, Chambers, Wyllie and Roberts, forwards.

Vets—Griffine, goal; Crow and Wasson, backs; Frost, Mann and Blowers, half-backs; Clarke, Chambers, Burrows, Bestard and Sharman, forwards.

Play was very keen from the start. Each end was visited in rotation with Wyllie missing the upright with left foot drive, then Blowers accomplished the same at the other end. The Vets worried the Woollens' defense to make it interesting around the goal mouth. Sharman tested Hillman, then Burrows hit the cross-bar. Hillman fisted clear when the Vets forwards had hard luck at goal. A foul taken by Blowers was sent at a rocket rate into Hillman's arms who just touched it and no more. Warde transferred the ball to Vets' area to compel Griffine to handle smartly. Exchanges were very even until a timely pass by Clark into goal ended through Burrows heading for the opening goal. The Woollens went right back into Vets territory and peppered their goal. Chambers had two unsuccessful tries, but the latter shot was stopped only at Mann's expense who required attention to recovery. The Woollens tried hard to equalize before half-time but the Vets half-backs were right on their game. Half-time—Vets 1, Woollens 0.

Half-Time.

The Vets started the second half with still ten players. Chambers had to retire 15 minutes after the opening through an old injury troubling him. There was nothing important in the spasmodic raids, although a well-placed corner by Roberts gave Griffine a fright when he fisted clear in mid-air. Quick as a flash the Vets forwards were upon Warde and Perry. A faulty clearance gave Bestard the opportunity to increase the score. Chambers was brought down inside the penalty area. He took the kick himself but failed to convert. From a corner kick taken by Clark, Griffine scored the third goal. Darkness was creeping in as the final whistle blew. Full-time—Vets 3, Woollens 0.

Goal scorers—Burrows, Bestard and Griffine.

ANOTHER SOCCER TIE.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 28 (Canadian Press). — Canada's All-Star soccer team played Maitland to a 1-1 draw here in the Canadians' fifth game in the Antipodes.

The game was closely fought, and was featured by the fine playing of the Canadian forwards and the goal-keeping of Mosher.

Thus far the Canadians have played three draws, won one, and lost one. They play again on Saturday.

A LEAP AND A LURCH, AND HARVARD HAD WON

This remarkable action picture shows the strenuous finishing style of Bob Allen, Harvard sprinter, as he crashed across the line, victorious in the 440-yard run in a recent intercol legiate duel at Cambridge.

BANKERS AND EXAMINER MEET

Bankers and Examiner Meet Tomorrow Night in Game Which Should Prove A Thriller

Tomorrow night at 6.00 o'clock the Examiner and the Bankers will meet in a scheduled Mercantile League game at Riverside Park. Both teams are in good shape and should dish up a snappy game for the fans.

The Bankers have a strong aggregation, and although they lost their first start they will be back in there Thursday night with a determination to get in the win column. The Examiner, however, cannot see it that way. They won their first start and will be right back to-morrow night after a second victory.

The Bankers will use either "Jeff" Hardill of Frank Whitehouse on the mound although it is likely that Hardill will get the assignment. They will make a couple of changes in their team strengthening up the infield a bit. Poor work by the fielders was the cause of the Bankers first defeat.

The Examiner have added two new men to their list and will likely use them in tomorrow game. They are Ralph Holyman and Wes Clarke. They will help strengthen the outfield which was a little weak in the Examiners first game. Either Dorrington or Scates will do the pitching for the newspaper aggregation.

Good crowds have been attending the Mercantile games and they have been treated to some snappy ball. Thursday night a good crowd is expected out to see the Examiner-Bankers clash.

FIGHT FRIDAY NIGHT.

NEW YORK, May 27. — The Weather Man and the law conspired to halt the Pancho-Villa-Frankie Ash flyweight title match in the big open air arena of the Nostrand A. C., in Brooklyn to-night. The bout was postponed because of rain until Friday night when it will be staged unless legal steps taken to obtain an injunction against the club as a public nuisance, are upheld by the Supreme Court.

LACROSSE APPEAL

Team Needs Some Assistance To Keep the Game Going.

Lacrosse is at a critical stage of its history at the present time as far as the game locally is concerned. It has always been uphill work against adverse circumstances to get the game on a foundation here. However, there was always hopes held out for it. But right now it looks as if it will become a back number and remain on the ash heap for good unless some of the fans come to its succor.

Some of the players got together and sent in the Petes entry in the Junior lists of the O.A.L.A. Their entry was accepted and the locals were grouped with Havelock, Hastings, and Campbellford with a bye offered them, which has been accepted willingly. But the local players have no financial backing and have not the necessary funds to pay the entry fee. They intend to set about raising the necessary sum and the sporting fans of the city will have their opportunity to come to the support of lacrosse.

The boys have good material for a real team and are practicing regularly. The bye should give them extra time to perfect their play and increase their numbers. If their entry is supported the city will be well represented in lacrosse circles.

CARPENTIER ON EDGE

Suspends Training For Saturday's Ten-Round Engagement With Gibbons.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 28. —Francis Descamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, ordered the French light heavyweight to cancel this afternoon's boxing programme to avoid the danger of overtraining for his ten-round match here with Tom Gibbons next Saturday.

Descamps considers Carpentier is on edge as a result of six weeks' training before coming to America.

Carpentier grabbed a fish pole and set out to try his luck in Lake Michigan.

Gibbons boxed from four to six rounds this afternoon. He has not missed a day's training since he arrived from St. Paul three weeks ago.

GOLFERS COME BACK

Freddie McLeod, Star of 20 Years Ago, Setting Pace at Worcester.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 28 (Canadian Press).—Freddie McLeod, grizzled little veteran of many a hard campaign, and wearer of the premier crown of American golfdom nearly two decades ago, set the pace yesterday for a field of 150 players in the first 18-hole round of the two-day 36-hole eastern qualifying test for the 1924 national open golf championship.

McLeod, open titleholder in 1908, and no wprofessional at the Columbia Club, Washington, D.C., who failed to qualify two years ago at Skokie, came back to his own and led the pick of the East's linksmen impressively. His card of 72 was one over par for the difficult Worcester Country Club course, but it represented remarkably good golf in the face of a biting gale and occasional rain squalls that swept the links most of the day and rent majority of the scores skyrocketing.

The little Scots veteran led by a stroke his nearest rival, Johnny Farrell, young homebred of hte Quaker Ridge Club, Tuckaoe, N.Y., who lost a chance for a tie when he missed a two-foot putt on the 18th green.

There is pleasure in building up a poor farm—and much hard work. There is pleasure in putting the profits in the bank. The better farm a man can start with, the more profits he can put in the bank instead of into the farm. Think it over.

Y.W.C.A.'S FILRST DEFEAT

Bumped Into C.G.E. Swatters And Lost By 13 to 7 in Softball League.

The Y.W.C.A. met their first defeat last evening when they lost by a 13 to 7 score to the hard hitting C.G.E. team in a game in the Girls' Softball League. The game was closer than the score indicates for the game was close all the way.

Both Dorothy Hayes for the winners and "Gertie" Gimblett for the "Y" team pitched fine ball, but many of their offerings were hit for extra bases at that. Both teams fielded nicely but Miss Brown's work for the Y girls stood out.

The teams lined up as follows:

C.G.E.—Hayes, p; Mortimer, c; Taylor, 1b; McCarthy, 2b; McClaren, 3b; Bolan, ss; Blondin, ss; White, rf; Burns, lf; White, cf.

Y.W.C.A.—Gimblett, p; D. Cooper, c; I. Cooper, 1b; Dodds, 2b; Evans, 3b; J. Meredith ss; Kirp ss; Meredith, rf; Brown, lf; Wheeler, cf.

RAYBESTOS MEET COBOURG OUTFIT

C.N.R. Team From Cobourg, Winners of the Town League Last Year Play Here Tomorrow Night.

A fast game is expected at the Exhibition Grounds to-morrow night when Raybestos of Peterborough meet Cobourg C.N.R. in a Midland League fixture.

Manager Miller has gathered together many well-known local players, several of them having had senior experience.

Nothing is known of the Cobourg team, but as they won the Cobourg Town League last year and were eliminated by Oshawa Motors only after three strenuous games in the O.B.A.A. semi-finals, they should put up a real argument.

The park is in fine shape, and the game will be played right in front of the grand stand, thus providing comfortable seating accommodation for all who attend.

Umpire Kay will start the games away sharp at 6 o'clock.

BOARD OF WORKS TEAM PROUD OF JOHN MURPHY

The Board of Works tug-of-war team is proud of its anchor man, John Murphy, who went to Campbellford on Friday for the field day there and held three men of the local team. Mr. Murphy was invited by the Campbellford field day committee to represent the champion Peterboro team, that was unable to attend in a body. Right well he did it, and he earned the applause of the spectators, and the thanks of the entertainment committee.

ROGER MATCHETT HAS PASSED DENTAL EXAMS

Amongst the names of successful students wh., have passed their final examinations at the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Toronto, appears the name of Roger W. Matchett, son of Mr. M. W. Matchett, of Hamilton, formerly of Peterborough.

Dr. Matchett has been accepted by the Mayo Brothers, Foundation of the University of Minnesota (Rochester, Minnesota) for Fellowship in Dental Surgery, and begins his duties there on 1st July.

Dr. Matchett was a former student at the East Ward School in this city.

AMBASSADOR HANIHARA MAY LODGE A PROTEST

TOKIO, May 28. — United Press. The Cabinet to-day decided to instruct Ambassador Hanihara, in Washington, to lodge a "solemn protest" with the Unted States government, because of the adoption of the immigration law with the Japanese exclusion clause.

Simultaneously the foreign office issued a statement reviewing the provisions of the exclusion clause, and deeply regretting its passage, "despite Japans protestations."

CANADA'S MORTALITY RATE AMONG THE MOTHERS IS HIGH

MONTREAL, May 28. (Canadian Press). — Canada's mortality rate among the mothers and infants is far too high, Dr. Helen McMurchy, Chief of Child Welfare Division of Department of Health of Canada, declared here last night.

Out of every thousand children born she said 101 were lost before they were a year old and for the same number five mother died.

"We look to you to make Canada safe for the mother and she will make Canada safe for the baby."

Peterborough Has No Contagious Diseases

There are no contagious diseases in the city to-day, Sanitary Inspector C. S. Stapleton told the Examiner.

This is by no means a record, since most of the year there are only a few houses placarded, and for many weeks every year not a single notice is to be seen.

With pure air in the open, tree-shaded city, and the best of filtered water, the city of Peterboro is one of the healthiest in the country.

KINGS AND QUEENS VISIT EXHIBITION

Canadian Exhibits Drew Great Interest From the Royal Visitors and Thousands of Others

LONDON, May 28. — (Canadian Press Cable).—"Capital, Capital, is it not," exclaimed King George to Queen Mary to-day when he was suddenly confronted with the model of the Prince of Wales in butter, while paying a visit to the Dominion Pavilion at the British Empire Exhibition with the King and Queen of Italy and Princess Mafalda. The King roared with laughter when he glimpsed the butter exhibit in front of the model of Princes' Alberta home, Princess, his horse, ranch and landscape. Tens of thousands of people visited the exhibition when it was announced that two kings and two queens would be present. Great interest was taken by the party in the Canadian exhibits where they were received by Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner, Mr. Larkin introduced J. B. Dalrymple, vice president of Canadian National Railways, to the Royal visitors.

Billy Evans Says

It is baseball tradition that every club has its jinx pitcher.

Often some pitcher rated just ordinary, always works like a star when pitted against a club figured as a pennant contender.

There is no way of explaining it, it just happens.

"All that pitcher needs is his glove to beat us," is an oft heard remark when a club faces a pitcher regarded as a jinx.

Unquestionably psychology plays a part in the situation. Once a pitcher meets with unusual success against a certain club the members of that team start to give up the moment he is anounced as the pitcher.

That of course is a big advantage on the side of the pitcher. A team that figures it has only a slim chance to win prior to the start of the game is 50 per cent beaten before the contest gets under way.

The work of Pitcher Howard Ehmke of the Boston Red Sox is a fine example of the jinx pitcher. He has seven successive victories to his credit over the Athletics in a little over one season.

Last season Ehmke was traded by Detroit to Boston. He had a big year with a tail-end club, was one of the pitching stars of the American League.

The Philadelphia Athletics were Ehmke's one best bet. During the 1923 campaign he beat Mack's team five times. In one game he shut the Athletics out without a run or hit.

The big fellow was certainly poison to the Mackmen in every game that he faced them. The announcement that Ehmke was going to pitch for Boston caused no rejoicing among the Athletics.

That the old hoodoo is still doing business, was made manifest in the first game Ehmke pitched against Mack's team this year, Boston won, 12 to 0.

A week or so later Ehmke was again sent against the Mackmen. I happened to be umpiring the game.

Sitting on the Athletics' bench prior to the start of the contest I heard such comments as these from the Athletic players:

"There's the old jinx getting ready."

"Wonder if we will ever beat that long string?"

I haven't hit a ball hard off him since I have been in the league."

It was apparent that the players felt Ehmke held the edge.

Jinx pitchers are a tradition in baseball. It is hard to explain, but every ball club has one.

KINGSTON COUNTY JAIL IS FREE OF PRISONERS

KINGSTON, May 28 (Canadian Press). — For the first time in many years the County Jail is free of prisoners, and there are no men to cut the grass on the Court House lawn. The jailer had one prisoner, but he is confined to the General Hospital.

The suggestion has been made that the Court House officials hold a bee to cut the lawn, and do other necessary work around the jail and the Court House.

FOUR YEARS OF CHESS.

LONDON, May 28.—An international chess match, played by correspondence between members of the New York and London bars, has just ended in a draw. The first move was made four years ago.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, May 28.—Very seldom has a circumstance which has occurred locally been attended with so much sorrowful interest as that of the shooting at the Crossen fish preserve at Baltimore early Sunday morning, May 18, and which resulted in the death in Toronto of Mr. Byron McCroydon. The deceased has a number of personal friends here, and Mrs. McCroydon also. The heartfelt sympathy of the community goes out to her and also to the other members of the family so sadly bereaved.

But the sympathy of the community does not rest there, for a large measure of it goes out also to others associated with the tragedy, either directly or indirectly, for all have many friends and are locally well-known.

Mr. Edward Rowe is still confined to his bed, but is reported to be improving slowly, and it is hoped that his injured foot may shortly be fully recovered.

The gamekeeper of the Crossen fish preserve, Mr. William John Crossen, will come up for preliminary hearing on June 4. Yesterday afternoon he was charged with murder, and was remanded. The whole affair has occasioned widespread regret.

Gardens Still Unploughed.

The town of Cobourg, which has been rather noted for its number of pretty gardens, presents the rather unusual spectacle at this season of the year of a number of these being still unploughed. The rainfall has been the most excessive ever known for the month of May, and gardeners, both amateur and professional, have had a disappointing season so far.

Jacobs—McNaughton.

The marriage took place last Wednesday, at Craik, Sask., of Mr. Orrin S. Jacobs, of Kyleville, Sask., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jacobs, of Cobourg, to Miss Lillie McNaughton, of Craik. The young couple will reside at Kyleville.

Pierson—Nelson.

The marriage took place at Wellington on May 21 of Miss Nina Olive Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nelson, to Mr. Harry Pierson, of Pleasant Bay.

Shaw—Ough.

The marriage took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ough, Port Hope, of their eldest daughter, Miss Ethel Ough, and Mr. Thomas Shaw, second son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shaw, Cobourg. The bride wore brown canton crepe and was attended by Mrs. James K. Shaw, who was wearing blue crepe. Mr. James K. Shaw was groomsman for his brother. Only immediate relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw left for a trip to Toronto before taking up residence in Cobourg.

Hall—Cornish.

At the Methodist Church at Orono on Wednesday, May 21st, Viola Cornish, eldest daughter of Mr. William Cornish, was married to Mr. William Joseph Hall. Rev. A. K. Edmison, M.A., pastor of Orono Methodist Church, conducted the ceremony.

Minister Retires.

Rev. W. A. Banner, of Pickering, a well-known minister of Bay of Quinte Conference, who has been in the work now for thirty-five years, has asked for superannuation at the coming conference on account of ill-health.

BOYS' WORKERS IN CONFERENCE

A Number of Members of the Boys' Work Board Spent Last Week-end at Rice Lake.

The Peterborough Boys' Work Board held a very successful week-end camp or retreat at Dr. Neal's cottage near Rice Lake from Saturday, May 24th to Monday morning. It was attended by representatives of the following churches: St. James, Park street Baptist, Knox, Trinity, Murray Street Baptist, St. Paul's and George street Methodist.

The aim of the camp was to train leaders in the C.S.E.T. work which includes the Trail Ranger and Tuxis programmes, and to discuss some of the boy problems of this community. Most of the meeting took the form of informal discussions before the fireplace, but two very fine addresses on essentials for leadership were given, one by Mr. C. Plewman, secretary of the Provincial Boys' Work Board, the other by Mr. Fred McNeely, of the Y.M.C.A.

From the discussions it is evident that many leaders are not making the best use of their opportunities as a result of the following:

1. The teachers or mentors of the clubs are trying to do all the work themselves instead of having the boys take charge of the programme.
2. The mid-week programme was not planned long enough in advance to have its greatest value.
3. Many had not set any objectives, such as the winning of badges, so that very little was accomplished during the year.

The camp committee, consisting of Messrs. F. McNeely, N. Porter and Trevor Miller wish to thank all those who helped to make the camp so successful, particularly Dr. and Mrs. Neal for the use of their cottage and the following for the use of motors: Messrs. Tom Dutton, Bob Fowler and C. B. Adair.

CLERKS APPEAR IN COURT TODAY

Committed for Trial on Charge of Theft From Province.

TORONTO, May 28.—(Canadian Press).—E. V. Donnelly and H. R. Thomas, clerks in the Provincial Secretary's Department, appeared before Magistrate Edmund Jones on a charge of theft of $8,128 belonging to the Province of Ontario during the years 1921 to 1924. It was also charged that in their capacity as officers and clerks they did "destroy, alter, mutilate book papers, writing and valuable securities," and that "with intent to defraud," they did make or concur in making false entries in cash books, writings, valuable securities and documents.

A representative of the Department stated that Donnelly would handle approximately $125,000 annually. Part of his duties was to open letters to the Department. There was nothing to prevent other employes in the office handling money.

He said that any entries Thomas might make as clerk would be made under Donnelly's supervision.

They were committed for trial.

Young Candler has a stable of sixty racers, many of which rank with the stars of the sport. One of his outstanding stars is Bogalousa, which he intends to send after major honors in Grant Circuit events this summer.

WILLIAMS MISSED

Oshawa Telegram Regards Belleville as Weak Sister of League.

The Oshawa Telegram says:

The once proud and haughty Grand Trunks have apparently fallen on evil days, and judging by their performance on Saturday they are the weak sister in the Duff-Nott circuit this year.

The red-skinned Jack Williams left a mighty big gap in the Belleville team when he was promoted to higher company, and up to the present time no one has been found who can satisfactorily take the Indian's place.

Introducing Mr. Keon.

One of Manager Gerow's supposed finds, the young Mr. Keon, was given an opportunity to show his wares on Saturday, after Ouelett had wobbled along for six frames, and the Oshawa sharpshooters fell on the youngster's offerings with gusto.

In the two innings that he worked Keon was nicked for nine healthy blows, and seven runs crossed the plate in the eighth.

The general opinion of those who saw Mr. Keon in action was that he will not be able to fill Williams' place.

That Oshawa fans are out to support the local Central Ontario League entry this year was evidenced by the large crowd that attended Saturday's game with Belleville. The weather conditions were far from being ideal, but the rooters were out in force.

Visitors to Alexandra Park on Saturday afternoon were loud in their praise for the new grand stand. A fine view of the game can be seen from any part of the new structure, and no amateur grounds in the Province is better equipped now than is Oshawa.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

By BILLY EVANS

If you want the final decision on any baseball dispute, write Billy Evans, NEA Service, 1200 W. Third St., Cleveland.

QUESTIONS

1. If a base runner who tries to advance on a hit to the infielder stops in front of a fielder making a play long enough to obscure that fielder's vision and cause him to lose the play, what happens?—R. C.

2. If a pitcher after getting on the rubber delays the game longer than 20 seconds what penalty can be inflicted?—T. K.

3. At the start of each inning what are the rights of the pitcher as to warming up?—F. J. P.

ANSWERS

1. The runner has no such right to stop, and if in the opinion of the umpire his actions were responsible for the loss of the play, he should be declared out.

2. The pitcher for such a delay can be penalized by having the umpire call ball for such an offense.

3. The pitcher has the right to throw five balls to the catcher or an infielder.

JOE JACKSON LOSES

Claim of $16,000 Against Chicago White Sox Dismissed.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 28. — (Canadian Press)—John J. Gregory, trial judge in the case of Joe Jackson, against the Chicago Club of the American League, in which the jury awarded Jackson $16,000 damages, yesterday set aside the verdict and dismissed the case, on the ground that Jackson and Oscar ("Happy") Felsch, a witness, had committed perjury during the trial. Jackson sued for alleged breach of contract.

Katherine MacDonald Displays New and Fetching Wardrobe in Her Latest Drama

Travelling "The Lonely Road," as B. P. Schulberg pictures it, has been made a particularly cheerful pilgrimage by the beautiful Katherine MacDonald. For the star, who is famous for her beautiful gowns, has provided a surprisingly fetching wardrobe for this latest Preferred Picture, a new First National attraction.

Luxurious velvets and almost equally chic ginghams alternate with one another in the telling of the quaint story by Charles Logue. Even the usually plain "prints" that recall backyard activities, are lent a peculiar beauty by the deft touch of Miss MacDonald, who has personally supervised the making of all of them.

Probably the most interesting of these creations, from the feminine standpoint, is a black velvet gown with short kimono sleeves, bateau neck and loose hanging panels falling below the hem. This effect is set off at the neck and girdle with a conventional design embroidered in metal threads of silver and gold, which, quite naturally, greatly adds to the loveliness of the star.

After seeing Miss MacDonald in formal dress, one wonders how she can look any prettier; but to see her stately beauty clothed in plebian gingham is indeed a treat to the most particular eye. As the wife of a moderately comfortable man, Miss MacDonald acts several scenes in the kitchen of her bungalow, where she proves that looking pretty near a stove is not a lost art.

RURAL ROMANCE IN VERNON COMEDY

"Love among the cows" will be the theme of Bobby Vernon's latest Christie Comedy, scheduled to appear on the bill of the Royal Theatre to-morrow. It is called "Cornfed," and Bobby will play the part of a love-sick "hick," and he proves that the love affairs of a little country boy can cause as much trouble as the alleged hectic romances of the hectic "city feller."

Bobby Vernon and his rustic rival, Victor Rodman, have created many long and lingering laughs in their bucolic chase for the dainty hand of Duane Thompson, and they indicate that even if the old homestead is plastered with mortgages, it is also smeared with violent humor.

AT THE CAPITOL

UNIT VAUDEVILLE AT CAPITOL WILL DELIGHT THEATRE GOERS.

The announcement made by the management of the Capitol Theatre, that they have secured the Thompson unit vaudeville troop for a three-day engagement, commencing next Thursday. This company, which offers over one hour's entertainment in five different acts, is composed of specially selected entertainers with a broad variety of vaudeville ranging from a splendid dancing act to a "rube" comedy team, that brings roars of laughter. Harry Thompson, remembered as one of the hits of the "Dumbells," and who was with the popular "Maple Leaf Trio" that played at the Capitol here last summer, is one of the featured members. Edward J. Zaday's novelty offering, "A Vaudeville Cocktail," is a musical offering that is bound to please. Julia Varady, popular in Vienna as a noted operatic prima donna, will be heard in popular song successes. The Romano Sisters, another new European importation, will offer their latest dance creation. Addill and Maie, in their comedy, songs and dances, are a snappy duo who will be well liked by Capitol patrons, while Felix Rush and Tucker Nelson, in the uproarious comedy skit, "Two Old Bats," will provide plenty of big laughs. The vaudeville programme will take over an hour to show, but despite this lengthy programme the regular picture programme will be offered, with Mae Murray in her latest and most gorgeous production, "The French Doll," as the feature. The Capitol Review and a Felix the Cat cartoon will round out one of the finest programmes ever offered to Capitol patrons. In view of the unusual length of the show, patrons are requested to remember that shows will start promptly at 2.30 in the afternoons and at 8 o'clock in the evening to-morrow, Friday and Saturday.

MISS MURRAY, HIGH DANCE PRIESTESS

Offered Fabulous Sums To Become Dancing Instructor.

Mae Murray, vivacious Metro star, whose latest photoplay, "The French Doll," is coming to the Capitol Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is a "Consulting Engineer in Dancing" as well as the chief screen exponent of the terpsichorean art. Miss Murray has been offered fabulous sums for personal instruction in dancing, but she will undertake nothing that might interfere with her screen work. However, she dispenses gratis millions of dollars worth of advice to her legion of followers throughout the country.

"Hardly a day passes that I do not receive several letters from mothers with talented daughters, seeking information regarding the possibilities of dancing as a career," Miss Murray explains.

"I enjoy these letters not only because I know that they are sincere, but because I like to feel that they are a tribute to the dancing revealed in the terpsichorean sequences which I interpret in many of my pictures.

"I always reply to such letters personally and offer the writers as much help as I can suggesting instructors whom I know are among the best in the country."

Miss Murray has created and staged every dance that has been photographed in all of her pictures and has several decided novelties in "The French Doll."

"The French Doll" was written by two French authors and brought from Paris to a sensational year on the New York stage, with Irene Bordoni in Miss Murray's film role. It was adapted by Frances Marion from A. E. Thomas' chacteristic English adaptation from the French. It is a Robert Z. Leonard presentation through Metro and is sponsored by Tiffany Productions, of which Mr. Leonard is director general and M. H. Hoffman general manger.

ADVERTISE CITY FOR INDUSTRIES

Peterborough Has Unsurpassed Advantages to Manufacturer Looking For Site.

A splendid four page advertisement of Peterborough as an industrial centre appears in Canadian Machinery with several good illustrations of factories and attractive features in the city.

This city, situated midway between the great industrial centres of Ontario and Quebec, should commend itself to any manufacturer considering the location of a factory in Canada, and the advertisement is couched in terms to attract such persons. It is pointed out that the existing methods of reaching a continent-wide market and the overseas ports by water, rail and road are developed to a high standard in and around Peterborough, and the supply of power and labor for production are adequate to the most exacting demands. The already highly diversified industries show what the city is capable of.

As evidence of the attraction Peterborough has for United States firms branching out in Canada, it is pointed out that there are now in the city nine branches of United States' factories.

As well as the advertisements circulated in the regular way in the magazine, extra copies have been supplied in leaflet form and these are being used to good advantage.

OBITUARY

EDWARD D. ENGLISH.

(Contributed).

The funeral of the late Edward D. English, whose death occurred on Wednesday, May 14th, took place on Friday morning, Requiem Mass being held in St. Paul's Church of Norwood by the pastor, Rev. Father J. J. McCarthy.

A large concourse of friends, including those of other denominations, attended to pay their tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased, who was very highly regarded. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Michael O'Donoghue, Robt. O'Donoghue, James Sweeney, W. J. Crough, Patrick Crowley and Michael English. Interment was made in the Asphodel R. C. Cemetery.

Deceased was ill only a few days from appendicitis, and in spite of his removal to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was operated upon, he failed to rally. His sudden death not only brought deepest sorrow to his home, but cast a shadow over the whole community.

Being a man of fifty years of age, he was still in the middle years of life, and his death was indeed untimely. He lived all his life on the farm on which he resided, his father having lived there before him.

He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind husband and loving father, his wife, Ellen O'Donoghue, of Ennismore, their marriage having taken place fourteen years ago, and three sons, Emmett, Mark and Robert. There also survive three sisters: Mrs. Crough, Mrs. Sweeney and Mrs. Hickson, and three brothers: Patrick, John and Michael. — The Norwood Register.

MRS. J. C. SULLIVAN.

One of Peterboro's oldest and most esteemed citizens, Mrs. John C. Sullivan, died this morning at the family residence, after a brief illness. Mrs. Sullivan was an earnest church worker at St. Peter's Cathedral and the Immaculate Conception church, and her endeavors were characterized by unusual ability and charity.

Peterboro citizens will sympathize with Mr. John C. Sullivan and family, on this sad occasion.

The funeral, which will be private, will be held from the family residence, 83 Robinson street, Ashburnham, on Friday morning, at 9 o'clock, to the Immaculate Conception Church, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

MISS ELLEN FITZGERALD.

The death occurred last evening of Miss Ellen Fitzgerald, aged 77 years and 6 months. Deceased had been ill but a few days, and died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Desautels, 40 George street. One brother also survives, namely, Michael Fitzgerald of Rochester. The funeral will take place on Friday morning at nine o'clock, from the above address to the Sacred Heart Church, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

FEAR GOLDEN EAGLES.

HIT BEAUTY DISPLAYS.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 28.—A blow was struck at the heart of bathing girl parades and beauty reveues when the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, in convention here, adopted a resolution calling on the women of the United States to wage a campaign against such "promiscuous displaying of beauty."

CHARGES AGAINST J. MURDOCK WERE OPENED IN HOUSE

Charge is That Two Days Before the Failure of the Home Bank He Withdrew His Deposits

OTTAWA, May 28. Canadian Press. — Inestigation into charges against Hon. James Murdock opened before the Committee on Privileges and elections of the House of Commons this morning, with a sharp tussle over the oath taken by the privy councillor.

The charge preferred against Mr. Murdock by Gus. Porter, Conservative, West Hastings, is that two days before the failure of the Home bank he withdrew his deposits on information he had received as Minister.

Mr. Porter submitted a list of witnesses he wished to have called which included R. P. Gough, J. F. M. Stewart and S. Casey Wood, who were directors of the bank; Hon. James Robb, Hon. George Graham, Premier King and Hon. T. A. Lowe. The committee agreed to call them.

W. M. German, Liberal, Welland, raised the question of the oath of office taken by Mr. Murdock, and said he could not see why witnesses should be called to establish what already had been admitted.

He added that from statements made in the house it had been made to appear almost criminal offense for a cabinet minister to use any information he had received in Privy Council. The oath showed nothing of the kind. He doubted if any many with money in the Home bank who had heard it was likely to fail, would not have withdrawn it.

Canadian Stock Exchange and Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

TO-DAY'S QUOTATIONS AND OPINION AND REVIEWS OF THE MARKETS.

MINING LETTER.

The bulk of the trading this morning was done in Lorraine Consolidated which was selling at 24½. Castle was up to 62; tough Oakes 64. The market gives every appearance of moving out of its narrow range and with the turn of the month it would not be surprising to see the whole list up. Trading was not heavy this morning but the whole list showed a better undertone. The pressure was not so noticeable for the last month and one can now purchase the better mining issues with every confidence.

Toronto and Montreal markets were quiet. There is some demand noted for Dominion Canners but there is not much stock of this issue available under 30.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

The New York market was dull this morning. Price changes were small and the trend was downward. The market is purely professional and nothing developed over night to base one's committments on. Some serious declines are noted in the operating incomes of some of the railroads; on the other hand some of the roads are showing remarkably good returns. They are no doubt a reflection of the slowing up of business in certain quarters.

JAPANESE APPROVE ARMS CONFERENCE

Japanese Papers Pay a High Tribute to the Courage With Which America Works For Peace.

By MOTO TAKATA.

OSAKA, Japan, May 28. — Commenting on the proposals for the convocation of a second international disarmament conference, proposed in the American senate and house of representatives, Japanese papers pay a high tribute to the courage with which America works for the cause of peace. The "Tokio Nichi-nichi" says:

"If other powers inwardly desire to take lead in proposing such an assembly they lack either preparation or the courage to do so. It may well be said in these circumstances that no country in the world is more courageous than America in trying to realize lofty ideals.

"The Washington Conference achieved a great deal in stopping the needless race in naval construction, thereby laying the foundation of international peace, but it stopped short of the mark. It failed to put an effective end to naval rivalry and to the mutual jealousies of naval powers.

"What causes grave concern to the thinking public of the world is that by taking advantage of the defects of the naval treaty, the naval powers which are signatory to the pact are secretly planning naval expansion. They are deliberately trampling underfoot the fundamental spirit of the treaty. This state of things make it of paramount importance that steps should be taken to widen the scope of the application of the Washington treaty and to stop all schemes such as can be constructed in any way as attempts to expand naval strength.

"An international disarmament conference would be of little avail, however, if the powers concerned do not show greater sincerity in taking up the cause of armament reduction. Indeed, if they had been sincere enough, the Washington treaty, standing alone, would serve the desired purpose. It is true that the pact is for the limitation of the construction of capital ships exclusively, but there can be no doubt that its true spirit is to put a stop to naval competition generally.

"It is, of course, important that a second disarmament conference should be convened, but it must be preceded by the improved political and economical situation of the world, particularly of Europe. It is urgent to revise the covenant of the League of Nations so as to make that body a safeguard of international peace in fact, as well as in name. International disarmament can best be attained by developing the League of Nations."

1923.	1922.	Decrease.
$52,779,350	$58,696,911	$ 5,917,561

Of last year's deficit of $52,779,350, the sum of $48,978,595 was attributable to Canadian lines and $3,800,755 to American lines.

Marine Deficit Less.

The Canadian Government Merchant Marine had a deficit last year, after all charges, including depreciation and interest, of $9,368,670. This is an improvement of 280,808 over the previous year.

Mr. Graham drew attention to the point that as a result of the year's operations, the railways themselves had been able to provide $13,364,875 (an improvement in round figures over the previous year, of twelve millions) towards fixed charges due the public.

He predicted that were Sir Henry Thornton able to maintain the same rate of improvement he had achieved during the first year of his presidency, the railways ought to be able within a few years to meet all interest charges due the public—"which would be a wonderful achievement."

Minister's Proposals.

Sir Henry Thornton, Mr. Graham said, had made it clear that restriction of maintenance had played no part in the improvement of last year. And Mr. Graham suggested for the consideration by the House:

1—Increase in the board of directors to have a strong executive of business men close at hand who could be called together by telephone over night.

2—Whether the Government should be asked to guarantee equipment securities.

He did not go in detail into the purchase of the Hotel Scribe, but intimated that the Government would have no objection to the appointment of a special committee to investigate if desired.

Protect C.N.R. Interests.

Mr. Graham concluded with an appeal to members to forego their right in pressing for information and details, publication of which the management of the lines said would be detrimental. All that was asked was that the Government-owned system should approximate in its operation the privileges accorded a private company. Sir Henry Thornton had made mistakes—and to the work of Sir Henry, Mr. Graham paid high tribute — but who that was worth anything did not make mistakes. The most exasperating individuals in the world were the creatures who sat down, did nothing, and gloried in their goodness.

Support for Thornton.

'Bless their souls," added Mr. Graham, they are pious because they have not sufficient energy to be anything else." He urged fair play for Sir Henry Thornton.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the leader of the Opposition, said the late Government had stood against questions which would embarrass or prejudice the management of the railways, and, as a result, had been arraigned on a charge of attempting to conceal facts. The present Government should have laid down a similar rule. But Mr. Meighen could not see why past actions should not be subject to review, and suggested the appointment of a committee to consider such statements as that presented by the Minister of Railways.

Merchant Marine.

Mr. Graham began by reading the report of Sir Henry Thornton covering the operations of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine and subsidiary companies for the year ending 31st December, 1923. This showed gross revenue of $8,992,308, as compared with $9,705,786 for 1922, being a decrease of $713,478. Operating expenses during 1923 amounted to $10,856,601, as compared with $12,089,976, or a decrease of $1,233,374. The operating deficit in 1923 was $1,864,293, as compared with $2,364,189 in 1922.

The deficit after all charges, including depreciation and interest had been made, totalled $9,368,670, as compared with $9,649,478 last year, or a decrease of $280,808.

Sir Henry, in his report, stated that the main reasons for the decrease in operating deficit were the cancellation of South American, Mediterranean, and certain other unremunerative services, as well as the curtailment of general expenses. As a result of the strikes which occurred at Cardiff, Swansea, London, Antwerp, and Vancouver, sailings were considerably interfered with, and gross receipts and net earnings were in each case diminished.

Generally speaking full cargoes on outward trips were secured, but satisfactory cargoes were not obtainable for homeward trips.

Fleet of Sixty Vessels.

The fleet, according to Sir Henry's report, consists of sixty vessels. The remaining four vessels previously included in the fleet, the Canadian Settler, Thomas J. Drummond, J. A. McKee, and the Sheba, were sold at satisfactory prices. Offers received for certain others were not sufficiently attractive to make acceptance advisable.

Since 1st April, 1923, insurance was provided out of the company's own insurance fund, the result being a credit balance of approximately $318,795, all of which is invested in Dominion of Canada bonds.

Sir Henry states that the vessels, whether in active service or not, have been kept in a high state of efficiency and repair. No total losses occurred during the year, and the number of minor accidents was small. In November, 1923, a new monthly service was inaugurated between Vancouver and the United Kingdom. Eight of the smaller vessels have been utilised in the grain trade on the Great Lakes. Four of the vessels trading to United Kingdom ports were fitted in the spring for the carriage of cattle.

Report on Railways.

Turning to the Canadian National Railways, Mr. Graham pointed out that the present management had not become wholly effective until 1st May, 1923. The changes had tended to unsettlement, but had resulted in an improvement in the service.

"The Canadian National Railway System," according to the report, "is the property of the people of Canada, and it is for the people through their duly elected parliamentary representatives and the Board of Railway Commissioners to determine what the freight and passenger rate policy of the Dominion in its relations to the Canadian National Railway System shall be; but there is no way by which freight and passenger rates can be continually reduced and net earnings at the same time increased, and moreover, restricted net earnings must inevitably mean additional taxes to provide for the annual deficits. The administration of the Canadian National System is the trustee of the people's property. That administration cannot and has no desire to dictate policies, but it would be lacking in the fulfillment of its public duties if it did not make these facts clear to the people of Canada."

"The total deficit for the year, after all charges, was $52,779,350 compared with $58,696,911 for 1922, as recast for purposes of comparison. Of last year's deficit of $52,779,350, $48,978,596 is attributable to Canadian lines, and $3,800,754 to American mileage.

The Canadian deficit of $48,978,595 was apportioned as follows:

Canadian National Railways, including the Grand Trunk in Canada, $985,016.

Canadian Northern System, $35,956,906.

Canadian Government Railways, $215,943.

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway,

SERAFINI SEEN PARKING AUTO

Witness in Montreal Bank Hold-up Murder Identifies First Suspect on Trial.

ALMOST RUN OVER

MONTREAL, May 29.—On the morning of April 1 before the hold-up of the Hochelaga Bank collection car and the murder of its chaffeur, Henri Cleroux, charged with which Giusseppi Serafini, one of the eleven suspects, is now standing trial, Desire, Berthiaume stated in evidence here yesterday afternoon that he had seen Serafini park a car on the road near his home. He had gone over to the car to enquire what was wrong and had been told to mind his own business. He identified Serafini as the man with the car. Later in the morning he had seen a big touring car come up and he saw Serafini get into it and drive off. At about 2.20 on the afternoon of the hold-up he had been nearly run over by what appeared to be the same touring car. The men in it had sworn at him as they passed. The last time the big touring car passed him it had, said the witness what seemed like a dead body on board.

Cross-examined by Alban Germain, K.C., for the defence, Berthiaume said he had picked up some cartridges which had been dropped by the men in the car. He admitted that one man whom he said resembled the man in the first car had been arrested on his identification and had been shown not to be Serafini. In further examination by R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, the witness agreed that he had stated on oath that Serafini was the man he first saw in the car.

Evidence by detectives and constables took up the rest of the afternoon. They spoke of arrests subsequent to the hold-up and revealed nothing that is not already known in the case. The court then adjourned to Friday, to-morrow being Ascension Day and a legal holiday.

Prior to the court opening the morning session, the jurors petitioned the court to prevent further publication of sketches or photographs or any other unnecessary information regarding them and their families, as they considered their lives in danger and those of their families. Mr. Justice Wilson asked that the pressmen take their request into careful consideration.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 28.—Harvey Dunn, alias Cartwright, Coursel, Damon and several more, waived extradition in the police court to-day and announced his readiness to be taken to Detroit to answer a charge of false pretenses. Dunn was arrested at the instance of the Montreal police on a charge of perjury. He had formerly given his address as Edmonton and Winnipeg.

Former Mayor Dying, Facing Robber Trial

Only a few months ago Al Morford was mayor of St. Joseph, Mich., cashier in a bank and a leader in his city's fraternal and club life. Today he is facing trial for a $3000 bank robbery in San Diego, Calif. Ill health and the knowledge he had only a few months to live prompted him to take the chance, he says. Picture at top was taken when he was Mayor of St. Joseph, the lower one in his cell, showing how his personal appearance has changed in a short time.

PROBE GERMAN WAR READINESS

Britain's Proposal For the Scrutiny of Austria May Be Directed Also to Germany--League of Nations Approached.

GENEVA, May 29.—(Canadian Press).—An investigation of the military situation in Germany by the Council of the League of Nations is believed to be a possibility by reason of Great Britain's move in asking that the Council determine its prerogatives with respect to examining military conditions in Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria.

By another step Wednesday Great Britain added a further important item to the agenda of the June session of the Council when it formally gave notice that it would request the Council to approve the British treaty with Mesopotamia. This may bring Mesopotamian problem into discussion, including the Mosul boundary dispute, which British and Turkish plenipotentiaries are now seeking to settle.

Concerning the German question, it was pointed out last night that although the British Government has not requested an examination of the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, Article 213 of that treaty is identical in wording with the articles in the Treaties of Saint Germain, Trianon and Neuilly, on which Great Britain seeks further light. It reads:

"So long as the present treaty remains in force Germany undertakes to give every facility for any investigation which the Council of the League of Nations, acting if need be by a majority vote, may consider necessary."

McGAUGHEY'S DIAMOND RING ON SWEETHEART'S FINGER FOR ETERNITY

Accusing Pledge of Love Buried With Lillian Beatrice Fee in the Silence of Emily Cemetery—Funeral Was One of Largest Ever Witnessed in the District of Omemee.

FLOWERS HID GRAVE.

(By Staff Reporter)

OMEMEE, May 29. — With her fingers clasping a pink rose, the diamond ring on her hand of the man who had loved her, "not wisely, but too well," and his pearls around her throat, Beatrice Fee lay in her coffin yesterday. Bright sunshine beat on the drawn blinds of the little front parlor, where a breeze from the open hall door stole in to lighten the stuffy atmosphere, and the scent of many flowers that surrounded her hung heavily on the air. Before the casket closed over her someone removed the string of pearls, but the ring went with her to the grave. Perhaps not by her own wish. It was said that the wrist watch which Fred McGaughey gave her on her last birthday in October, "was the only thing she valued," and this she gave to her friend, Helen Stuart, before she died. The crystal had been shattered, another mute evidence, like the wrists where pale pink roses hid the black marks of the struggle on the lonely road last Sunday night.

A May Queen's Day

The sunshine of a perfect May day brightened the red brick house on the little slope that fronts the Pigeon River, placidly flowing to the Kawarthas before the home of Beatrice and her parents and brothers and sisters, about two and one half miles south east of Omemee. In the narrow hallway, with its steep stair leading to the upper floors, was the black heater. Off the small front parlor was the little room where her mother sat in almost stoical silence, her black horsehair rocker guarded by a bevy of sympathetic women. On the piano rested a picture of the girl, resplendent with youth and prettiness, her black bobbed hair framing a piquant face, whose cheeks were said to be ever glowing with color, her sequined bodice with its slender shoulder-straps cut low, dangling ear-rings from little ears. The nineteen years that had passed over Beatrice Fee's head possibly had left slight imprint upon her, but the agony of the hours when she slowly bled to death, with four bullets puncturing her body, was written plain in a face that might have seen twice its years of life. Pain was etched under the dark eyelids, in the distended nostrils and the pale, blood less lips. In the black velvet gown that had been her 'best dress' a year ago, and had probably accompanied its wearer to many a gay party, for Beatrice was a jolly girl and liked good times, she lay quietly yesterday

Throng of Mourners

People came from far and near yesterday to attend the funeral of the murdered girl. The house was packed and outside was a crowd of mourners that joined in the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Women wept bitterly as the song went on, and Samuel Fee, her big stalwart father, almost collapsed. Roy Fee, her brother, who arived from his home in Trenton, Michigan, a suburb of Detroit, just half an hour before the funeral, which was delayed for his coming, looked down at his sister with tear-filled eyes. The minister, Rev. A. T. Weir, rector of Christ Church (Anglican) in Omemee, went on with the services, which included a reading of the 39th Psalm and excerpts from the 37th Psalm and the first Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians. Speaking on the peace which passeth understanding, the minister defined real peace as a harmonious working out of the laws of God in the physical, and moral and spiritual order. Any deviation from these laws brought disaster in its wake. "The wages of sin is death. This tragedy one of the greatest ever experienced in this community, would not have occurred unless some how and somewhere the laws of the Great Architect had been disregarded and flouted. There are many men and women who are giving scarcely a thought to the great laws of God. I ask you to take heed of the ways in which you walk, for many are walking carelessly in these days, women just as well as men. 'Keep innocency and take heed of the things that are right, that shall bring a man peace at the last.' "

BIG WOLF PELTS

One Measured Seven Feet—Five Brought Bounty of $75.

SAULT STE. MARIE, May 29. —Five timber wolf skins, calling for a bounty of $75, were brought into the office of Magistrate J. T. Mackay at the court house yesterday morning by Edward D. Thompson, a trapper and bushman, who shot the timber prowlers during April in the vicinity of the Chippewa river, back of Mile 68, on the Algoma Central Railway.

One of the pelts measured over seven feet long from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail, and the smallest pelt measured over five feet. The others measured well over the six foot mark.

HOTEL SCRIBE COST DETAILS

Purchase of Office Building In Paris For C.N.R. Headquarters Reported to Parliament.

OTTAWA, May 29. Canadian Press —Purchase of the Scribe Hotel in Paris by the Canadian National Railways involved the expenditure by the government of 40,380,576 francs, of which 1,720,000 is cash in hand with the holding company. Complete details of the acquisition of the property are contained in a return tabled by the Minister of Railways yesterday.

A minute of the cabinet meeting held in Ottawa on December 17, 1923, shows that the Canadian National Railways was desirous of obtaining adequate premises in Sarnia. Property on the corner of Rue Scribe and Boulevard des Capucines, known as the Hotel Scribe, had been brought to the notice of the directors. Arnold Aronovici held an option on the building. The railways were not ready to purchase outright, but wished to obtain control. Arrangements therefore were made whereby the Bank of Toronto advanced Aronovici $2,608,320 with which to negotiate the purchase.

A subsidiary company of the Canadian National Railways, known as the Canadian Northern Realty Company was formed and empowered to borrow 700,000 pounds in London to reimburse the bank and pay certain additional expenses involved. The Canadian National Railway guarantees leader's repayment of the loan at 5½ per cent. interest, interest being paid at $233,152 per annum, which will amortize the principal in 30 years.

Aronovici transferred by way of "Apport" the whole property free of encumbrances to the Canadian Northern Realty Company, was released by the Canadian National Railways and by the Bank of Toronto from all liability on the mortgage, and received his notes for $2,600,000 from the bank

Negro Waiters Not Preferred

OTTAWA, May 29 (Canadian Press). — Returned men and other Canadian citizens are not being discharged by the dining-car department of the Canadian National Railways in order that "coloured American citizens" may be taken on at lower wages.

This answer was given by the Minister of Railways in the House of Commons yesterday in answer to a question by T. L. Church (Conservative, North Toronto).

Mr. Church asked regarding both Canadian National and Canadian Pacific lines.

The Minister's answer deals only with the Government lines, which are not "constantly employing help from Chicago," he says.

MACDONALD AND POINCARE WERE IN FULL ACCORD

Warm Tone of Correspondence Between Premiers In Discussion of the Report of the Experts on German Reparations and Issues Involved In Occupation of the Ruhr.

Agreement Expected.

LONDON, May 29. — (Canadian Press).—The Foreign Office yesterday made public the correspondence between Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Poincare of France, following the latter's decision to resign on the opening of the new Chamber.

The most important letter from M. Poincare, dated May 14, gives an exposition of the French policy as conceived by the Premier; the remaining letters which are all couched in very intimate terms, relate mainly to the possibility of keeping the conversations going informally, pending the time when it would be possible for Mr. MacDonald to resume pourparlers officially with the new French Government.

The Prime Minister approached this delicate question very tactfully, remarking to M. Poincare:

"We political leaders, I suppose, have to cultivate the habit of regarding no office as an abiding place, and we must be prepared for 'ups and downs' just as they come."

The upshot of this exchange of letters is that M. Poincare consented to a continuance of the conversations so happily begun, at least in a preliminary form, while both Premiers expressed mutual regrets at being deprived of the opportunity of becoming personally acquainted.

No Change of Policy.

The important points issuing from the correspondence are that Premier Poincare expresses his conviction that nothing will be changed in the French foreign policy and that, with Mr. MacDonald's permission, Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Hymans of Belgium had given M. Poincare a full report of their conversations with the British Prime Minister at Chequers Court.

The French Premier's letter on May 14 says that the accounts he received from Mm. Hymans and Theunis of the Chequers' meeting led him to expect the best results from the projected meeting with Mr. MacDonald and that he is still convinced that an eventual agreement will be satisfactorily reached.

He then reiterates that his Government had accepted without reservations the conclusions of the experts' report, as ratified by the Reparation Commission, and had declared its readiness to re-establish the economic unity of the Reich as soon as Germany applied the program laid down by that Commission.

In Entire Accord.

"We are therefore entirely in accord with you on this point," M. Poincare says, "since you explained to Mm. Theunis and Hymans that the economic hold ought to cease on the very day on which the experts' plan enters into force, but that that would not of course be until the German Government had carried out the suggestions of the experts in their entirety and obeyed their directions.

"The experts did not give it to

BRITAIN WILLING TO CHECK FLOW OF RUM INTO U.S.

Sir Broderick Hartwell Invites By Advertisement Investments in His Venture of Smuggling Rum In the United States—Export Tax May Be Increased.

"DISGRACEFUL BLOT"

LONDON, May 29.— Rum-running into the United States from British Empire ports and ports of British possessions, evoked a hurricane of questions in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. Prime Minister MacDonald answered the bulk of the suggestions and criticisms by saying he would communicate with officials of the Colonial and Treasury Offices, and "see if we can do anything to remove this disgraceful blot."

The questions came up after a discussion of the advertisements and activities of Lieut.-Col. Sir Broderick Hartwell, who, it was said, has been inviting contributions to a business run by him for the purpose of smuggling alcoholics into the United States, guaranteeing to investors a profit of twenty-five per cent.

Breach of U. S. Law.

Commander Joseph M. Kenworthy suggested to the Premier that steps be taken to prevent "this breach of the laws of a friendly State." Henry Graham White advocated persuading underwriters to give up insuring rum cargoes. Robert Nichol suggested the possibility of applying the "esprit de corps we have in the services to prevent this scandal."

Leifchild Stratton Jones, referring to the practice of trans-shipment at sea, advocated strict enforcement of the Spirits Act, which declares that duty exempt cargoes must be delivered to the port to which they are consigned.

MacDonald Acquiescent.

Thomas Johnson wanted to know if the export liquor business still was to be subsidized to the extent of three-pence per gallon from the public funds. Mr. MacDonald said he expected it was, although he would like to assure the members that he would be glad to do anything possible to stop "this sort of affair." He asked for suggestions and the members let him have them fast and furiously.

Lady Astor suggested the possibility of putting a large export tax on spirits. Another speaker asked Mr. MacDonald to make inquiries whether the Nassau Assembly had considered a project to reduce the import duty on whiskey in order to be able to compete in the rum-running traffic with St. Pierre.

As to Sir Roderick, the suggestion was again made that if possible his knighthood honors should be taken away fgrom him in view of the use he had been making of them.

COMMITTEE CHANGED.

OTTAWA, May 28. — Another change in membership in the parliamentary committee on privileges and elections, which will hear the charge against the Hon. James Murdock, was announced to-day by the Prime Minister.

R. S. Hanson (Conservative York-Sunbury), and W. A. Stewart (Conservative, Leeds) replace Hon. J. B. M. Baxter (Conservative, St. John) and George Black (Conservative, Yukon) who were regular standing members of the committee.

MINERS ACCEPT OWNERS' OFFER

Dispute Over Coal Miners' Wages Was Definitely Settled This Morning.

LONDON, May 29. Canadian Press —The prolonged dispute over the question of coal miners wages was definitely settled to-day when a full conference of the miners' delegates voted 473 to 311 to accept the terms of the agreement reached by the Miners' Federation representatives, with the owners on May 15th.

The agreement provides that the standard of profits in the industry shall consist of a sum equal to 15 per cent. of the standard wages. The surplus remaining after deducting from the proceeds the cost of the standard wages, costs other than wages and standard profits, is to be divided between wages and profits in the proportion of 88 per cent to the wages and 12 per cent. to profits.

No cause is known for his act.

He is survived by his widow, his two sons, Edgar at home and Earl at New Liskeard, and two brothers, Joseph and Alfred, of Alnwick Township.

The deceased had been in the best of health, a prominent farmer and a highly respected citizen and neighbour in the community.

LABOR GOVERNMENT WILL HAVE A TEST

Vote Tonight Will Decide Whether Britain Will Have Midsummer Election.

LONDON, May 29. (By Lloyd Allen.)—A vote of the House of Commons to-night will determine whether the Labor government is to remain or the country be plunged into a mid summer general election.

The House votes on a Conservative motion to reduce the salary of the Minister of Labor, Tom Shaw, by 100 pounds annually.

If the motion is carried it will be regarded as a serious government defeat.

It is generally expected that Lloyd George and the Liberals who follow him, will vote against the government, while ex-Premier Asquith and his Liberals will support MacDonald, as they do not want a general election at this time.

The best forecasts indicate that the government will win the confidence by a narrow margin—probably between 15 and 30 votes.

SIR ADAM BECK REPEATS PLEAS FOR EXTENSION

Reports Balance of $345,588 on Last Year's Operations of Hydro Returned to Municipalities to Decrease Power Bills.

SHORTAGE THREATENS

TORONTO, May 29.—(Canadian Press).—After reserving $2,270,865 for sinking fund, renewal of plant and equipment and for future contingencies, out of a total revenue from municipalities of $15,742,831, Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Provincial Hydro Commission, is able to report to the Government a net balance of $345,588 on last year's operations, "which was returned to the municipalities and applied in the reduction of their power bills for the year." In a preface to his annual report to the Government on the past year, Sir Adam sets out in detail the results of operations with respect to 13 systems to which are connected 356 municipalities, and makes the statement: "This year has been the most successful in the history of the Commission."

Sir Adam takes occasion in his personal statement to the Government to reiterate his previous warning of an approaching power shortage. Notwithstanding the slackening off of industry throughout the province during the year, says Sir Adam, there has been an increase of 120,000 horsepower in the demand for power on all systems, some of which are operating up to capacity.

"It is therefore necessary for the Commission, on practically all systems," he says, "to make arrangements to secure additional power developments to meet the ever-increasing demand."

The report sets forth the huge sum of $241,853,201 as the total investment of Ontario citizens in Hydro enterprises through the Commission and their respective municipalities.

After the regular programme of St. Andrew's Guild was gone through with Miss Hume, who was presiding, gave way for Mr. Lindsay Meiklejohn, who called Messrs. Howard Ashley and Peter Fargey to the platform. Mr. Ashley stated it was Mr. Fargey—who is the oldest member of West Huntingdon congregation—that first thought of the presentation to the minister, and they agreed it a good idea for all to meet in Stirling church. Miss Jessie Dougan was then called upon to make the presentation of a substantial purse.

Mrs. Harper Rollins spoke on behalf of Stirling congregation and Miss Florence Marshall made the presentation.

Mr. Simpson replied at some length, after which the ladies of the two congregations served refreshments.

Mr. Simpson left on this morning's train and will sail from Quebec on Thursday on the steamship Carmania.

DR. CRAIG LAUDS BOX'S FINDINGS

Peterboro Dentist Describes Discoveries as Epoch-Marking-Others Attack Principle.

TORONTO, May 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Comment on the results of Dr. Harold K. Box's researches in the field of periodontology,, at yesterday afternoon's session of the Ontario Dental Association ranged all the way from such emphatic endorsation as "epoch-making in the history of dentistry," to a point blank denial of the truth of the assertion that he has discovered a new disease and proved that pyorrhea is curable.

Following a series of more or less technical comments by several speakers, Dr. A. J. McDonagh, Toronto periodonist, launched an attack on the findings of Dr. Box. Mr. McDonagh's was the only direct criticism and it evoked a pointed response from Dr. Sutton, who declared that Dr. McDonagh had been unfair in his methods of attack, and that "anyone who could view these sildes and not believe what he sees is in need of some education."

"I believe that the discoveries of Dr. Box are epoch-making in the history of dentistry," said Dr. Craig, of Peterborough. "I think his work is one of the greatest advances that we have made in the field of preventive medicine. He has conferred a wonderful boon on humanity."

Large crowds of Italians gathered in the precincts of the Palace. Supper was served to the Royal party and the Ambassadors in the supper room of the Palace. The famous gold plate was used. During the evening many presentations were made to the Italian King and Queen.

LECTURE TO CAVAN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Miss Esther Slicter Outlined Labor - Saving Methods In Housework.

CAVAN, May 29.—The opening meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute, which was held at Mrs. J. D. Hunter's, on Tuesday afternoon, proved to be very interesting and profitable.

The speaker, Miss Esther Slicter, is really a domestic science demonstrator, but she gave an address on things pertaining to the home and kitchen in general, also on Institute work.

She urged the members of the Institute not to sbirk taking office, as there is education in it as well as helping the Institute.

She enumerated ways by which strength may be saved in household tasks, also ways in which they may be made easier, such as having tables and sinks the proper height. If a table is too low it is quite easy for a person to slip a small box under the dish pan, or the potato pan, so as to avoid stooping while working.

Miss Slicter spoke from three till five, using no notes. Her talk was full of useful information, and was much appreciated by the ladies present. There were about fifty in attendance. Afternoon tea was served and a delightful social time enjoyed.

Mrs. J. E. Eakins and Mrs. Robert McKnight drove out from Millbrook with Miss Slicter to the meeting. They also accompanied her to the evening meeting which Miss Slicter was to address in Bethany.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lock and children spent the holiday week-end visiting Mr. Lock's sisters, Mrs. H. Lang and Mrs. J. Perrin.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hunter attended the funeral of the late Miss Beatrice Fee, Omemee, on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. W. Hall, South Monaghan, is spending a couple of weeks with her sister, Mrs. Staples, Lifford.

Mr. John McNeil, Miss Bertha and Mrs. L. Smith and the children motored to Newcastle on Sunday and spent the day with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Keegan were visitors to Peterboro on Tuesday.

The Cavan Women's Institute intend having a bazaar at the home of Mrs. Loyd Sutton on Thursday afternoon, June 5th.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church intend holding a social evening at the home of Mr. W. H. Lough, Ida, on Friday evening.

But the child must be disciplined," insisted Mr. Mann.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION.

The intimation given by Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, that the Federal Government has decided that there should be some system of inspection of banks under the Finance Department and will shortly submit a proposal along this line to the Banking and Commerce Department of the House of Commons, will be, the Examiner is sure, generally welcome.

The collapse of the Home Bank and the revelations of how that institution was conducted have shocked the people of Canada.

They want some assurance that there is no danger of a repetition of that kind of financing, and they believe that a system of Government inspection would be a safeguard against such conditions as existed in connection with the Home Bank.

The restoration of public confidence in the banking system of Canada is to some extent at least conditional upon the establishment of more adequate protection for the depositors—such protection as there is reason to believe would be afforded if the Finance Department of the Government were brought into close touch with the banks by means of an adequate system of inspection.

No details of the Government's plan have been given out.

They will be eagerly awaited by the public, glad to know that the Government is grasping the problem firmly.

NO SENTIMENT IN BUSINESS.

Referring to the desirability of keeping green the memory of our soldiers who gave up their lives in the Great War, the Examiner in an article not long ago pointed out that the public memory was short, offering as proof the large importation into this country of toys and other German-made goods.

It is surprising in this connection to find that Canada is being flooded with German shotguns, which, according to the dealers, are in demand.

And it is still more surprising to learn that these weapons are actually converted German military rifles.

The war not over six years yet and Canadians are buying firearms that may have been used against our soldiers.

Official figures show that the importation of these weapons has increased by leaps and bounds.

For the year ending March 31, 1923, the value of such importations was only $2,691; the total for the last fiscal year had risen to $78,069.

Evidently for the present year the volume of this business will be even greater.

The trade in converted German military rifles is surely proof of the old assertion that there is no sentiment in business.

The Examiner wonders, however, if Canadians who buy these shotguns really know that a few years ago these weapons were military rifles?

MORE PLAYGROUNDS.

It's pathetic, how city people struggle to beautify their yards with grass, shrubbery and trees even where the soil is hopeless.

All this expresses their inner revolt against the hideous combinations of brick, asphalt, concrete and lumber which are used in various forms and combinations in the building of the penitentiaries known as cities, and in expressing that savage system known as "property rights."

We were born into this system. Many hate it. Some tolerate it resignedly. A few like it.

But there's a definite reaction these recent years. The growing craze for backyard gardens, for instance. Also the tree-planting campaigns. And now the tremendous national interest in extending the parks that serve as public playgrounds.

Twenty-six States across the line have their own State park systems, and others are falling in line. "A State park every 100 miles" is the slogan of the organizations backing the movement.

We haven't a hundredth as many outdoor playgrounds and recreational camping sites as we should have. They're needed by grown-ups as well as children, to help us relax from the nerve-strain of modern speed in industry and living.

Give us more parks.. And get them fast, before the land hogs and corporate exploiters finish the gobbling and defacing of nature that already have progressed dangerously far.

The country is building up fast. If we don't stake out our public playgrounds fast, and fight doggedly against invasion by private profit, we'll waken to find the jail-like system of the city in effect in the country, with admission charged to see the sights.

The national swing back to nature began with the invention of the auto, which brings the open country to our doors. This return to nature is steadily attracting more and more recruits.

It's high time. Industry and city congestion increasingly take us farther from nature. Living in a labyrinth of steel and brick and lumber and concrete, we lose contact with natural laws. The obvious result is that we are bewildered about the complicated problems of civilization—all of which result from violations of natural laws.

Get the people back to nature and they'll think straight and clearly.

WHY NOT SAVE HUMAN BEINGS?

In a strong address to a body of social workers last December, a noted jurist, scholar and philanthropist said: "Canada, like every other land, must depend largely upon her own resources. And she must take care of her resources. Mineral resources being turned to some useful purpose cannot be replaced, but the forest losing the grown trees may be replaced, the seedling, the small tree taking the place of the one removed. Great care is now being taken—more may yet be taken—of our timber resources. So with horses, cattle, sheep, hogs—all of which are valuable resources; let an epidemic strike any of these and there is immediate alarm; all known means are taken to check it—and wisely and properly so.

But the greatest of all natural resources is human beings. It cannot be said that in the past every Government has been on the alert to save men from disease, but the day of dilletantism has gone by. Most Governments are now awake to the importance of its man power and take measures to conserve it. "It is a matter of just pride to those of my Province that no diabetic need now die because he cannot afford to pay for insulin; and in many Provinces there is ample provision for the identification and cure of venereal diseases.

"I am indeed glad to have lived to see the day when it can truthfully be said that Governments pay as much attention to men as to pigs."

Since this speech was made a great cry for national economy has arisen, and a proposal has been made to cut the public health grants at Ottawa.

A storm of protest has been the result.

Labor organizations, medical societies, nursing associations, the National Council of Women, Rotarians, Public Health Journals or officials, hospital boards, actuarial ocieties, insurance companies, juvenile court judges, social workers and hygienists from coast to coast have protested vigorously against any reductions in our national expenditures on public health.

Attention has been drawn to the revelations made during the war where a large percentage of our Canadian manhood was found to be suffering from destructive social disease; to the consequent development of preventive, educative and curative measures; the setting up of a Federal Health Department; to the joint Dominion and Provincial grants of $400,000 devoted to the control of venereal diseases and the remarkably effective machinery made possiblbe through these grants; to the fact that Dr. George Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation recently referred to Canada as a nation second to none in her public health activities, and to the enormous economic wastage which will inevitably follow any stoppage or lessening of present efforts to improve the human stock in Canada.

In the last issue of "Social Health" startling figures from the United States are presented to show the costs of the enormous human wastage due to the social plagues.

Figures for Canada are not available, but the Examiner gives the following history of a stricken family from the records of the Ontario Department of Health:

"A man applied to the city for relief. He thought he was suffering from rheumatism, but on being examined at the hospital he was found to be syphilitic. His family was investigated and it was found that his wife had had several miscarriages, one child had died, seven were living, and the mother was also syphilitic. Of the living children the eldest was partially blind and deaf, the second and third were deaf and dumb, the fourth has a long bone syphilitic infection, the fifth child is an idiot, the sixth mentally defective and the sexenth, a babe of eighteen months, gave a positive Wasserman reaction. This entire family is today receiving relief, medical care, supervision, institutional treatment or other expensive attention from the community and will probably be the recipients of it for the balance of their lives," and the editorial concludes: "This is just one case." The preventable social scourges are expensive luxuries. Can we, as intelligent citizens, remain ignorant, indifferent, inactive with regard to them? As we have to foot the bills for the economic losses they entail, hadn't we better spend more thought and more money on prevention, rather than pay the piper for such terrific social ravages?

AN AMERICAN VIEW.

Whether the Irish Free State is to have a Minister at Washington is still a rather obscure question. Negotiations on the subject between Dublin and London are reported to have reached an impasse, but it is not known upon what lines they are proceeding.

Superficially, the issue does not seem a capital one. Ireland, like Canada, expects to have special relations with the United States which need not involve the whole of the British Empire, and the Free State Government wishes to discuss them directly, instead of indirectly, through the London Foreign Office.

Fundamentally, however, the problem at issue is of vast importance; it involves the future relations of the British Dominions to the Motherland and to the rest of the world; upon its solution depends the survival of the British Empire as such. The inherent possibilities no Britisher likes to contemplate.

Four years ago Canada was authorized to appoint a Minister to Washington, upon conditions as yet not made public; but it is certain that conditions were imposed. Undoubtedly the Irish Free State could obtain similar authorization—with similar conditions. The Canadian Minister has never been appointed, and the question has been allowed to drop for the time being.

But if the rulers of Britain do not like to contemplate a move that would loosen the ties of empire, neither does the Washington Government care to enter into relations with a British dominion which are not buttressed and guaranteed by the empire as a whole. The United States Senate made this fact clear when, recently, the Canadian Fisheries Convention was negotiated. The final instrument was made to apply to all subjects of the British Empire.

The process of decentralization has been going on in the British Empire for half a century. Though retarded during the war, it has plainly been accelerated since. Great Britain just at present seems powerless to stem the various forces at work.

It need not be taken for granted that effective consolidation is impossible. But to solve the problem will require the best political brains the empire can produce at a time when the whole world seems bent upon drawing upon the lowest brackets for its statesmanship.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There is something in a name after all. A horse called "Sure To Win" won a race at Connaught Park on Tuesday.

Straw hats are still confined to the store windows.

It would be difficult to convince the enthusiastic anglers who are busy these days in getting big catches of pickerel from the Otonabee that the extension of the closed season until June 15th would be in the general interest. Yet the popularity of the pickerel fishing is making it difficult to protect the maskimonge and the bass.

You WOULDN'T!

NO indeed, you wouldn't stand for this! even your own privileged children would feel the weight of the parental hand if they indulged in this sort of play.

But, man, there are other imps doing greater damage than this to homes every day. You cannot scold them or whip them nor even catch them at it. The ringleaders are called Rot, Rust, Decay, Neglect. They are the imps of destruction.

Paint and Varnish alone will keep them away. Now is the time to take precautions. Now is the time to protect your home if you would preserve it.

Warsaw Correspondence

WARSAW, May 28.—The amateur play "Clubbing a Hisband" given by twelve of the U.F.O. Ladies last Friday evening was a success in every way. The receipts were seevnty-four dollars. The play went splendidy. The only trouble was that Warsaw Town Hall proved inadequate. All the seats were taken and many had to stand, and a good y number were turned away.

Mrs. Harold Darling as Mrs. Ashton, suffragist from Boston, was leading lady. Husband were nowhere and deserved much "clubbing" or tongue-threshing. Miss Alberta Darling was Mrs. Ashton's newly-married sister whose husband traveled and was often away. She too, was quite independent of the man. Miss Gwendolyn McQuigg was Mrs. Ashton's daughter, Maud. Mr. Rufus Payne was a black cook. Mrs. Wallace Anderson, Mrs. O'Flannagan, the Irish washer-woman. Mrs. McQuigg, a lady doctor. Each of these ladies had a lot to say and did it well. Six others, who had minor parts did well and probably had their parts been as long as the others they would have dones as well.

Mrs. Aitken as Mrs. Ottaway, a grandmother did not approve of this club, she believed in the old fashioned home. After a few meetings and a good deal of fuss the women all decided the club was no good and they went back to their husbands. They play ended with "Home Sweet Home." The orchestra made a special effort and supplied good music. Mrs. E. R. Hamilton was coach.

Church Services

In the morning at Warsaw, and the evening at Cottesloe, Rev. Mr. Atkinson spoke on Sunday School work. Rev. F. G. Weir gave the last of his discourses on Hebrews, from the text "There remaineth therefore rest for the people of God."

Next Sunday evening, June 1, Mr. Weir will conduct a Union service in the Presbyterian Church. On June 8 Mr. Weir will be at conference and Mr. Atkinson will preach at Zion in the morning, Cottesloe in the afternoon, and conduct a union service in the Methodist church in the evening.

The annual Methodist Congregational meeting was held last Wednesday evening the reports were read. They plan to hold a lawn social towards the end of June.

Two Fold Object.

The following is the annual report of the Methodist W.M.S. read by Mrs. Wallace Anderson:

"The objects of this report are two-fold, 1st, That you may know something of the work of this branch of the church is doing; 2nd, With the hope that we might interest you, and thereby gain new members, thus encouraging the president and members to better work.

For the past year we had fourteen paid members and ten life members. With an average attendance at the eleven meetings of eight. One of the meetings was in the form of a picnic. During the year we lost, by removal, one of our most active workers, Mrs. Wassonj. Her loss has been felt most keenly, as she knew every branch of the work thoroughly. The study book was taken up during the year, and the meetings were bright and instructive.

Two quilts were pieced and quilted and each member contributed several articles toward the bazaar held in November.

Considering that we are four members short this year, our finances have been very satisfactory. By earnest effort we have raised the following: Membership fees, $14; collections $8.87; social and bazaar, $51.50; quilts sold, $8.50; dollar day, $9; Easter thank-offering and loose collection that day, with small donation, $21.16. Total, $113.03. Expenses were $13.03, leaving a balance of $100 sent away for missions.

The Trustee Board kindly gave the loose collection on the evening of the Easter thank-offering.

The $16.04 earned by Mission Band was sent specifically to aid in education and christainization of foreign children in Canada.

DISEASE GERMS FLOURISH IN GERMAN PAPER MONEY

BERLIN, May 29.—Disease germs are much more prevalent among post-war bank notes in Germany than they were in the paper money in use before the war, investigators have found, because of the fact that the currency is handled much more frequently than prior to 1914. This because there is less of it.

Investigators in Berlin found that coined money is virtually innocuous, owing to the self-disinfecting action of the metal itself, and because its small, smooth surface prevents development of the germs. "The dirtiest piece of copper or silver is, from the standpoint of a bacteriologist, better than newly-issued paper money," says the report.

A machine perfected recently will measure the 500,000,000th part of an inch.

The Man We Forget

Many a man who cashes in a life insurance policy

—admits to himself that he could have saved twice as much,

—wonders what he did with the money that would have paid for more, and —thinks he was wise in doing what he he did, because he hasn't saved much besides.

It does not always occur to him to thank the life insurance man for having induced him to save money.

Yet, if it were not for the life insurance man, the Canadian people would have very little of the $3,500,000,000 of insurance now in force.

Is it not about time we recognized the good work the Life Insurance Man is doing for the community?

THE hardest part of wash-day, rubbing, rubbing, rubbing, has given way to the new method of soaking the clothes clean with Rinso. This wonderful new soap gently loosens the dirt and a thorough rinsing leaves things white and glistening as you never could get them before.

Only spots where the dirt is ground-in, such as neck bands, cuff edges, and the like need a light rubbing, and a little dry Rinso rubbed on these spots quickly makes the dirt disappear.

FIRE DESTROYED BOAT HOUSE NEAR BURLEIGH

Interesting Budget of News From Chemong and District—Automobiles And Horses Run Away.

BRIDGENORTH, May 29.—Mr. J. K. Fraser at Burleigh Falls suffered a heavy loss last week by fire. A large boat house on the Island was burned to the ground. It contained a lifeboat canoe, and a number of articles which were stored for the winter. The ice-house was attached to this boat house and all that was saved was the ice. The building was insured but the contents were not. The only clue Mr. Fraser has as to how the fire originated was that he was burning paper in the fireplace in his cottage and a piece of lighted paper may have gone out the chimney and set fire to the dry leaves, or perhaps lit on the roof as the wind was blowing a gale just at that time.

Horses Escape.

Two horses made their escape from a pasture field on Sunday. They were owned by Gordon Mann, who lives two miles east of the village. They were rounded up somewhere around Bridgenorth. Mr. Mann attempted to lead them home behind a horse and buggy which he was driving. In some way the horse took fright and ran away. Mr. Mann made his escape from the buggy. There was a general mixup. The horse and rig landed in a wire fence near Garbut Mann's farm.

Cow Lacked Teeth.

A man who bought a cow last year not far from Bridgenorth was seen leading her on a rope a few days ago, and when asked if he had sold it, stated he had. He said the cow had no teeth, and was taking her out to the country to fatten her on the grass.

Painters Busy

Mr. Clayton Telford is treating his house to a coat of paint. Two expert painters have charge of the work. They mix their own paint on the premises and drive home to their meals in a motor car which makes work somewhat of a pleasure.

Mr. Telford has built a sun parlor on the east side of his residence and when the painting is completed will be quite up-to-date.

School Inspection.

Mr. Walker, of the Normal School, Peterborough, paid a visit to S.S. No. 3, Smith Township, on Monday afternoon, where Miss Helen Grieve is teacher. Miss Grieve is a strong advocate of the system of having the pupils of the Normal School receive part of their training in the rural schools, and claims her own pupils will make better progress under this system.

A New Boat House.

A new club and boat house is being erected at the bathing beach directly below the old pavilion. It is to be hoped this will not interfere in any way with the hundreds of bathers who frequent the bathing beach during the summer season. This building was partly built last summer, but through some misunderstanding, work was stopped, however, a petition was circulated this spring, after which building operations went on. It is a fine two-story frame, and is beautifully situated.

Trouble At Bridge.

The high winds during the past week has been mixing things up down at the floating bridge and the lake has been so rough and the high waves continually pounding it. There has been no chance to make the necessary repairs. A number of the floats on the west side have become loose, and some have washed up on the roadway. Some 50 yards of the railing was broken off by the heavy timbers pounding against it. Traffic was shut off for a short time on Saturday, however. Father McAuley from Ennismore happened along, and after making a return trip to the village, secured some help which rolled the heavy timbers aside and traffic was resumed as usual, but required careful driving while making the trip across.

Road Not Wide Enough.

Chemong Road is not wide enough for two cars to pass as was demonstrated on Sunday evening, when Mr. Jack Brown was driving into the city from the park a coupe gave him the horn to take his own side of the road just at the Baptist Church. He evidently didn't move fast enough and when the car came up alongside he nosed in front of Brown's car, struck his front wheel and steered him for the fence. He missed a telephone pole by inches and jumped a two-foot ditch while the coupe disappeared in a cloud of dust, and has not been heard of since. Mr. Brown's car did not seem to be damaged to any great extent but some of ladies were badly scared.

Collided With Wagon.

While the excitement was at its height a farmer with a team on a lumber wagon was going quietly along towards the bridge when a truck with a load of furniture came along behind down the grade at Mr. Thomas Black's house. The driver seemed to lose control of his car and bunted into the wagon and struck it so hard that the neckyoke broke; also the reach. The tongue dropped and the hind wheels came out from under the box and the driver turned a somersault backwards into the box. The horses made a dash for liberty but were captured by the men who were in the truck. The radiator of the truck was in worse condition than the farmer's wagon.

A New Method

While a resident of Bridgenorth was driving through the country the other day he noticed a farmer along a wire fence standing in a buggy driving the posts down with a beetle. It seems the frost has a tendency to lift the posts as it is going out in the spring, and this was his idea, taking the buggy from post to post in order to be the right height to drive them down with comfort, and as long as he stood on the spring cushion there would be little danger of the jar loosening the trees on the buggy.

Mr. Redmond came from Montreal on Friday. Mrs. Redmond and family came from Toronto to Peterborough They motored out to their cottage where they spent the holiday planting flowers and cleaning up. Everything was found in good condition after the long winter.

KINGSTON, May 29.—(Canadian Press).—Mr. E. Thompson, a former teacher in the public school staff at Ottawa was appointed principal of Frontenac Public School, at a salary of $2000 per year, duties to commence at the opening of the fall term the recommendation of the management committee asking for his appointment being carried by the Board of Education after one of the stormiest meeting ever held by the Board.

Three lady trustees moved for the appointment of a lady principal stating that the board was ignoring the ability of lady teachers on the staff, who they claimed were well fitted to fill the position. Inspector Stuart recommended the appointment of a male principal and on the matter going to a vote, the lady trustees had the support of only one of the male trustees and their motion was lost.

POSTAL SALARIES NOT YET SETTLED

Conference Between Civil Service Commission and Audit Board Failed of Agreement.

OTTAWA, May 28.—Conferences between the civil service commission and the audit board on the matter of postal workers salaries, have failed of agreement, the Journal states this afternoon, and there are to be no more conferences. "It will be for the cabinet to do the best it can in the situation," the newspaper adds.

The civil service commission refused to accept suggestions from the audit board for revision of its report on the postal workers salaries. The audit board has been working for two weeks on the matter, but it is doubtful, the Journal says, if what it has done will bear any fruit. Instead of a joint report going to the cabinet from the audit board and the commission, "both sides are determined to follow their separate paths," the newspaper asserts.

The civil service commission is the body charged with dealing with matters of salaries, and its original report, said to have recommended an increase of 15 per cent. in salaries, is expected to go back to the cabinet. New legislation will have to be introduced if the cabinet wants to adopt a report from the audit board instead.

ECHO BAY CHANNEL

Six Feet Deep and Fifty Wide, Dredged by Federal Department.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 28.—(Canadian Press).—The public works department has just completed dredging a channel fifty feet wide and six feet deep at the entrance to Echo Bay, 15 miles east of here.

The work was undertaken by the department because of complaints from those operating in that neighborhood that there was only one foot of water in places across the entrance.

This condition was attributed to low water and the action of the waves and shore currents.

MRS. H. J. KEITH FEARS A SPLIT

Wife of Former Peterboro Minister Would Interest Elders in Teaching Young.

MONTREAL, May 29. —It was suggested at yesterday afternoon's session of the Womens' Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, in convention here, that men should take more interest in missions, also that they might look with favor on the womens' desire for official representation in the church courts. A suggestion come from Ontario that the privilege of life membership might be extended to men. Mrs. H. J. Keith of Winnipeg, thought that not enough was being done to interest boys in missionary work.

Mature men and women to show boys the way were not coming forward in anything like the numbers necessary to keep proper pace with their progress said Mrs. Keith. The Sunday Schools were crying out for teachers. Nearly every Sunday School to-day was manned by young people and that should not be. C.G.I.T. groups were being formed faster than leaders could be found for them. Unless a change was made the speaker foresaw the older people being left behind in the march, and that it was probable that some day soon there would be a junior and a senior church. She urged greater co-operation between the women's auxiliaries and the junior branches and a concentration of attention upon the needs of the young people. On the other hand, Mrs. J. H. Purdy, of Toronto, declared the growth of work among the young people of the church ad been amazing during the past year. Again, Miss E. Mitchell, field secretary, stated that in one place in Southern Saskatchewan she had recently visited there had been no church service held for eighteen months.

Would-Be Rescuers of Missionaries in China Are Marched to the Hills.

PEKING, May 29.—A relief party including American proceeding from Wuchow to Kweilin to learn the fate of missionaries reported killed in recent fighting, fell into the hands of bandits and all the would-be rescuers were captured, according to a report from the Consulate at Canton to the American Legation here to-day.

The captives include Rex P. Ray, a Baptist, of Richmond Va., and Dr. H. Z. Miller of New York.

YOUNG MAN SHOT DEAD BY A GIRL

Did Not Know Revolver Was Loaded and Playfully Pointed It at His Head.

Auto Sense WHEN THE ENGINE SPITS By Williamson

This advice is not intended for the veteran driver, for in time he makes this discovery himself. However, every driver should learn to interpret the appeals made by his engine. It talks very plainly if you will only try to understand it.

After your car has been standing for a while it is a little difficult to get the air properly adjusted when you pull away from the curb. If there is a spitting, clicking noise in the vicinity of the carburetor and the engine acts like it is hitting on two or three cylinders, enrich the mixture a little, cutting it to lean as it begins to warm up.

If all the cylinders seem to be hitting, but you have no power and there is a "spat, spat" and an occasional backfire in the muffler, your engine is begging for more air and less gas. The mixture is too rich.

To get the best results from your engine after you settle down to a steady run and the engine has warmed up, experiment with the choke rod or mixture adjustment until you find the point where the engine develops the most pep. Try this while running and notice what a difference it will make in the power of your engine.

MILLBROOK METHODIST ANNUAL MEETING HELD

Encouraging Reports From Various Organizations Indicate Work Accomplished — The Church Treasurer Presented a Statement of Financial Standing.

MILLBROOK, May 29.—The annual congregational meeting in connection with the Millbrook circuit of the Methodist Church was held in the Sunday School room on Tuesday evening, the pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, occupying the chair.

Encouraging reports from the various organizations were received, giving a comprehensive view of the work which is being accomplished. Cornet duets by Messrs. G. E. and Ernest Burnham, congregational singing, and a song, "Yes, Jesus Loves Them," with the verses by Jean Stinson, while four little girls, Mary Burnham, Bryer Edmunds, Gertie Richards, and Dorothy Raper, joined in the chorus, gave a pleasing variety to the programme.

Fallis Line Figures.

The financial standing and obligations were clearly set forth in the report given by the church treasurer, G. E. Burnham, Mr. T. H. Aiken giving the figures for the Fallis Line appointment. The superintendent of the Sunday School, W. Fred Fallis, gave an outline of the activities of the year showing an average attendance of 120, and average offering of $4.44, while over 4000 verses had been memorized through the latter was not considered as good a record as might be if the parents would see that the children were not allowed to neglect so important a part of their religious training. The responsibility does not rest wholly upon the teachers. The use of lantern slides through the year for illustrating the lessons, and in other ways, had been a new feature which was helpful. All special days had been observed, and the total receipts were nearly $500.00.

Primary Department

The primary department was reported by the superintendent, Miss P. Burnham, and showed 72 names on the roll, including 25 babies on the Cradle Roll, of which Mrs. (Rev.) S. T. Tucker is superintendent, 27 beginners, Miss Florence Fallis, teacher, and 20 primary pupils. Ten new scholars have been enrolled since January, and five were graduated to the junior department at the New Year. Miss Phyllis Richards is organist, and also assists with the beginners' class, teaching whenever Miss Fallis is absent.

Rev. Joseph Wilks spoke for the home department, and gave an encouraging address on the outlook for the whole church with special reference to the faithfulness of the workers in charge of the different branches.

Women's Auxiliary

Mrs. C. W. Richards spoke for the Women's Auxiliary which this year sent away the largest amount in history, raising $415.21, and having three new life members, and ten new annual members. Mrs. A. J. Brown gave the facts for the Ladies' Aid Society, stating that the objective for the next year is $600.00. The mission band has had more than reached the required amount of $30.00 for the upkeep of the "Millbrook Sunshine Cot" in the Women's Hospital, Chentu, West China, its work during the twelve months being sketched by the superintendent, Mrs. B. R. Raper.

Report From China.

Miss Stella Hetherington, president of the Young People's League, in giving her report read a letter from the missionary supported by the Peterborough district, Rev. E. Hibbart, of West China, which contained a very interesting account of the journey to attend the annual Mission Council at Loo-Chow. The dangers and inconvenience suffered by the missionaries because of the unsettled state of the country, robber bands, and warring troops, making travelling unsafe and the carrying out of the work difficult, were among the points touched upon vividly by Mr. Hibbart.

Other organizations which reported progress were Carmel Sunday School, Mr. F. Hard, superintendent, the "Wide Awakes" group, Canadian-Girls-in-Training, the choir and the cemetery board. Mr. P. Fallis, treasurer of the latter, stated that the effort to establish a trust fund and have the care of the graves on the perpetuity plan is meeting with success.

Society representatives were elected as follows: Millbrook, A. J. Brown, P. Stinson, Irwin Hatherly, H. A. Earle, and W. G. Rowland, Fallis Line, Wilfrid Fallis; Zion, Mr. J. W. Hamilton.

Church Union Discussed.

The matter of church union was brought up by the pastor and an opportunity given for any questions to be asked, and in conclusion Mr. Tucker urged his people not to be unduly disturbed by the apparently growing spirit of indifference to the church and evangelism in this period of world transition following the war. Rather should Christian workers press forward in the power of God and the onward march of the church will be assured.

Music and refreshments made the social hour at the close most enjoyable before the gathering was dismissed.

Pontypool Anniversary.

Rev. S. W. Dean, of Toronto, will preach anniversary sermons in the Pontypool Methodist Church on Sunday, June 1, morning and evening. Music will be furnished by the choir of the Methodist Church, Miss Ethel Richardson being in charge.

The dramatic club of the Methodist Church, Millbrook, will provide the programme for the annual entertainment on Monday evening, repeating their play, "The Plot That Failed."

MR. H. BOWLES

NEVER FELT BETTER

Toronto Man Thanks Famous Herbal Remedy for Relief It Brought Him—General Health Much Improved and Suffering Relieved.

"At last, a summer spent without continual suffering," says Mr. H. Bowles, of 23 Pryor Avenue, Toronto. "For the past two years I have been a constant sufferer from rheumatism, the pains shooting through my hips, ankles, and shoulders so bad that I could hardly get around at times. Dizzy spells often came over me, and everything would turn black before my eyes.

"Pains through my whole body would often double me up when walking about, and it seemed that I could never straighten up with comfort. Sick headaches also caused me hours of suffering. Life was a continual misery to me, and nothing I took in the way of medicine or treatments gave me any noticeable benefit; that is, until I started taking Dreco, which proved to be just the remedy my system needed, and readily responded to its corrective influence.

"The rheumatic pains are rapidly disappearing, and my entire system is far stronger. I am able to get out and enjoy the summer in comfort, free from suffering, and I gladly state that Dreco is the cause of my great improvement. I am continuing to take it as a tonic and system builder, and know that further improvement will be mine."

Dreco is specially prepared from herbs, roots, bark and leaves, and acts on the kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels, and purifies the blood. It cleanses the whole system and affords wonderful relief from rheumatic pains, gastritis, dyspepsia, and all other forms of indigestion, arouses a sluggish liver and relieves constipation. Let it make your life a comfort by putting your system in the shape that Nature intended it to be in. Dreco contains no mercury, potash, or habit-forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold as follows:
Lakefield—E. H. Northey
Campbellford—J. E. Birks
And by a good druggist everywhere.

CANADIAN PEOPLES' RAILWAY

$11,820,729.

The American deficit of $3,800,775 was made up as follows:

Grand Trunk New England lines $2,562,968.

Grand Trunk western lines, a surplus of $38,153.

Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific Railway, $192,264.

Central Vermont Railway, $1,081,675.

Operating Surplus.

"I have indicated a net operating surplus of $21,187,462 for 1923. Of that sum $11,656,462 was earned by Canadian lines, and $9,530,999 by American lines, including the Central Vermont. But after non-operating adjustments and fixed charges, the final result of the American operation was the net deficit of $3,800,775 above referred to. An operating surplus of $8,791,808 on Grand Trunk western lines, was reduced finally to $36,153. The decrease in non-operating incomes referred to by Sir Henry Thornton, due to the final settlement with the United States' government being less than anticipated, affected principally the Grand Trunk western lines. Notwithstanding this, however, the Grand Trunk western lines converted a net deficit of $1,388,529 in 1922 into the net surplus of $36,153 referred to. These Grand Trunk western lines are most important feeders of the Canadian National system, and may be counteedon to demonstrate thir usefulness as such. Unfortunately both the New England lines and the Central Vermont materially increased their net deficits, the former by $1,174,438 and the latter by $344,861.

G. T. R. Debentures.

"There will be general interest," said Mr. Graham, "as to how the Grand Trunk Pacific perpetual debenture holders will fare as a result of the operations of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, which, it will be remembered, guaranteed these debentures insofar as there might be net surplus earnings available to pay the same. I am advised by the management that there will be available $322,803 for partial payment of last year's interest on these Grand Trunk Pacific securities. This is not a big sum in view of the fact that the interest amounts to $1,395,170 a year, but it is, I hope, an augury for the future."

Estimates Compared.

Dealing with the estimates, Mr. Graham said that last year the total vote on railway account was $75,,3255,,432. This year the appropriation asked for amounted to $56,187,125. He compared last year's appropriation for operating deficits with actual results. The Canadian Northern Railway System appropriation had amounted to $2,500,000 and the actual deficit totalled $2,609,354. The appropriation for the Grand Trunk Pacific was $4,500,000 and the actual deficit $3,2338,126. The Canadian Government Railways appropriation totalled $3,000,000 and the actual deficit was but $170,639.

Business Increased.

Referring to this marked improvement in the operation of the former Canadian Government system, Mr. Graham said that he was informed that the improvement was directly attributable to increased business.

Last year the operating revenues of the Canadian Government railways increased by $3,897,000. Operating expenses showed an increase of $1,561,000. Of the increase in revenue freight traffic accounted for $2,224,000 an passenger traffic $1,669,000.

"This year the only provision for operating deficit is $1,467,138 on Grand Trunk Pacific account," said the Minister. "Four years ago, in 1920, the combined operating deficit of the three above mentioned roads was $36,842,970; in 1921, $16,092,901; 1922, $9,736,318, and last year $6,018,119.

It is the long view that brings out clearly the gradual improvement in our railway situation and offers encouragement to every friend of Government operation and control. This improvement is very clealy seen by a backward glance over our railway requirements of recent years. M. Gaham showed that in 1920-21, the sum of $106,708,827 had been voted. In 1921-22 appropriation amounted to $179,117,165; in 1922-23, it was $111,069,493, and last year it was $75,325,432.

Advantages of C.N.R.

In closin g the Minister referred to a statement recently made by President Beatty of the C.P.R. that the Government railways had an advantage in that location of Canadian National branch lines might be approved by the Minister of Railways, while the C.P.R. had to go before the Railway Commission for that purpose. Possibly the Canadian National had another advantage in that it had the credit of Canada to fall back upon. Still taking these things for granted, he submitted that the disadvantages of the C.P.R. might be multiplied by one hundred and still not equal those of the Canadian National.

What would the management of a private company say if their shareholders met five days a week for four months in the year—not a few of these shareholders being disbelievers in the company and its management—and if these shareholders, as they would have a perfect right to do insisted on the disclosure of the private business of the company. The minister did not question the right of parliament to have all the information but he appealed to the members to realize that unless the Canadian National was to be throwa to the wolves, the management must be allowed to function under conditions comparable to those under which private companies operated.

Thornton's Task.

"Sir Henry Thornton," said the minister, "is engaged in the greatest transportation task that ever fell to the lot of any man, and on the whole he is making good almost beyond expectations. As he has stated many times, his only ambition is to make a success of the Canadian National Railways. I again appeal to parliament, representing the people of this country, to give Sir Henry Thornton a square deal, and an opportunity to accomplish that object."

Mr. Meighen's Comment.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen (leader of the Oppositon) referring to the "long and detailed" statement made by the minister, said that it was not easily absorbed by listeners because of the technical and financial language. The sentences were buried under railway termnology. Mr. Meighen declared himself a friend of the National Railways. He believed the right machine had been launched to assure the success of the enterprise. In her responsibility in regard to the ownership of the national lines Canada stood alone in the world. No nation five times her size had a parallel responsibility. The Dawes Reparations Commission had recommended a change in the German railway system, putting it under a directorate almost exactly the same as the Canadian National Railways directorate.

Those who initiated the National Railway scheme had feared the imposition that might arise through the pressing of questions in Parliament. The late Government was subjected to it but that government laid down a rule and stood between questions that would embarrass or prejudice the management and refused to answer them. As a result the government was arraigned for attempting to conceal the facts.

The present Government should have laid down similar rules and declined to answer questions that would prejudice the management. "Let the Government take its stand," said Mr. Meighen, "and refuse to answer such questions."

Should Have Committee.

Mr. Meighen advocated a standing committee of the House to which such matters as the statement just presented should be submitted for review. While the House debated over estimates, hundreds of millions of dollars were being expended on the Canadian National Railways and the House was blindfolded as to what was going on.

Mr. Meighen said there was no reason why all the past actions of the management of the railways should be a sealed book. Transactions which were past and done should be subject to review by Parliament, such as the purchase of the Hotel Scribe.

Doubts Betterment.

Mr. Meighen proceeded to analyze the figures in the Minister's speech. He again cast doubt on the extent to which the road had bettered its condition, following for the most part the lines he took in his Budget speech. At the rate of betterment shown last year as compared with the previous year, it would take six years for the road to overtake its deficit sufficiently to pay the amount of interest due the public. The Minister of Railways had said that if the present rate of improvement was maintained, the road could pay its interest due the public in three years. Mr. Meighen did not hope for such a happy state of affairs.

Speaking of the management, Mr. Meighen said he had always had a measure of sympathy with Sir Henry Thornton, who, in the matter of his railway board was "struggling under the impediments the Government had foisted upon him." When this Government had opened its attack on the former Canadian National Board it had set a "fatal precedent" and dealt a blow to the railway's management which would be felt for years.

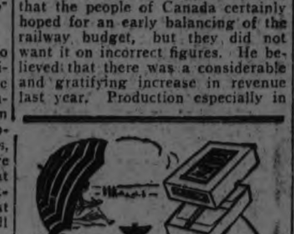
Gratifying Revenue Gain.

The leader of the Opposition said that the people of Canada certainly hoped for an early balancing of the railway budget, but they did not want it on incorrect figures. He believed that there was a considerable and gratifying increase in revenue last year. Production especially in Western Canada had been very much in excess of 1922. He noted that expenditures on maintenance of equipment for 1923 were approximately $4,000,000 less than in the previous year. This seemed strange in view of the fact that there had been increased traffic and presumably greater wear and tear on equipment. In the matter of transportation costs which largely revealed the nature of the management there was an increase of approximately $7,000,000 in 1923.

A. R. McMaster (Liberal, Brome) interjected the remark that increased expenditures on maintenance in 1922 were possibly due to the fact that some of the roads were in a run-down condition. Therefore it might be expected that the expenditure under this head would be less in 1923 than in 1922. Mr. Graham stated that reports showed that the cars of the system were kept up to standard in 1923.

Mr. Meighen, however, insisted that when traffic increased the cost of maintenance should increase. He thought that a person might well be excused for not being optimistic as to the likelihood of getting a balanced budget at an early date. It should be the duty of the House to examine the returns placed before it very carefully. He thought a committee should be established to go into the statements laid before the House by the Minister.

Sir Henry Drayton (Conservative, West York) moved the adjournment of the debate, and the House adjourned until Friday.



MACDONALD

be understood in their report that re-establishment of economic unity implied abandonment of the military occupation of the Ruhr."

Here M. Poincare admits that no British Government had approved the occupation, although the French regarded it as not an end in itself, but only as a means. He repudiates the desire to resuscitate misunderstandings and declares himself much touched with the delicacy with which Mr. MacDonald discussed this point with Premier Theunis.

Remain Allies Still.

"You were good enough to tell Mm. Theunis and Hymans that in the event of a breakoff in the undertakings contracted by her, Germany would find herself confronted by England, Belgium and France inflexibly united as they were during the war," M. Poincare continues. "It seemed to you difficult, however, to foresee at the present moment the nature of the guarantees which in such an eventuality we might take by common agreement."

The French Premier then explains that France only contemplates resuming exploitation of the existing pledges in the event—"which I am anxious to believe is impossible"—of the Allies failing to agree upon guarantees at the necessary moment.

Among the matters he had contemplated discussing with Mr. MacDonald, the French Premier mentions first the district administered by the Franco-Belgian regime and he expresses the belief that this is not a question likely to divide the Governments of France and Britain. The second matter is the fact that in his view Germany is deliberately violating the stipulations of the Versailles Treaty and reconstituting her war material and military formations, on which matter he would have been glad to consult Mr. MacDonald in regard to measures to be taken, the absence of which "might be fatal to the peace of the world when the Allied armies come to evacuate the occupied territories."

The French Premier concluded with warm thanks for the cordial manner in which Premier MacDonald had previously offered to discuss the various matters.

M'GAUGHEY'S DIAMOND RING

vices inside the house, the casket was brought out to the front dooryard, open, for those who wished to view the girl for the last time. The crowd parted and made a little lane for a quartette that came down the cement steps together; the two brothers of the girl's slayer, Lawrence and Clarence McGaughey, his sister, Mrs. Wilbert Fee, and her husband, a cousin of her father. It was Wilbert Fee that went to see Fred McGaughey in Lindsay jail and asked him why he committed the crime. It was from Wilbert Fee's house that the two set out on the ill-fated ride that led the girl to the doors of death and the man to the shadow of the noose.

At the grave too, in the cemetery of Emily, about two and a half miles from her home, on the hill where Beatrice Fee was laid in a long last sleep, while a mournful wind sighed through the balsam trees, Lawrence and Clarence McGaughy stood with pale faces. Samuel Fee and her brothers and small sisters watched in silence as an automatic contrivance lowered the dark-blue coffin of their sister slowly down into the dust from which she had come, and stood watching the undertaker, Mr. A. J. Birchard, of Lindsay, adjust the pine slab that bore a wealth of flowers, in the forefront the pillow from the family, with "Beatrice" emblazoned on it. The dull thud of descending earth on the coffin lid was spared the mourners, who departed with a memory of bright flowers and soft sunshine on the grave of the young girl.

It was a big funeral, one of the biggest in the district in years. Beatrice Fee was laid to rest in the six feet of earth that constitutes man's only inheritance, and the flowers were resting over her, and the last prayer said, before the final automobile in the slow line that numbered hundred and more, had crawled over the brow of the hill to the cemetery.

resents being considered the home of Fred McGaughey, pointing to Lindsay as his place of nearest call, and the township of Ops as his residence, seethes with ugly rumours. There is talk of boot-legging operations on the lonely road which fronts Fred McGaughey's fifty-acre farm; bottles of whisky, it is said, were in his car on the holiday proceeding the fateful Sunday, the Saturday evening when he took Miss Fee and her friend, Helen Stuart, into Omemee, ostensibly to attend a concert, and then became peeved at the other girl's presence and refused to go to the affair; there are whisperings of torn garments worn by the young girl, discovered after the struggle and rumours of a chase of Helen Stuart and locking of Fred in a room by his brother Lawrence, after the latter couple had come to Fred's home and found him on verandah, a gun pointed to his head, while the girl lay moaning within.

Events of Sunday

The four young people, so it is said, were bidden to Kelly Mitchell's house for Sunday tea. They had spent a portion of the afternoon at the home of Wilbert Fee, near Miss Fee's house, where Fred McGaughy's sister lived with her husband, Wilbert Fee, a cousin of Beatrice's father, Samuel. Here Fred McGaughey, the same afternoon, brought his mother, a frail woman who has been livnig alternately with him at his farm, about three miles from Lindsay, and with her daughter, Mrs. Wilbert Fee. Lawrence McGaughey, who is a traveller for a Toronto sheet metal firm, and is quite well known in Omemee, and Miss Stuart, Miss Fee's chum ,who was making her first visit, it is said, to the country, never having been far from the city before, started out in Lawrences' runabout for the Mitchell home. Fred McGaughey and Beatrice Fee accompanied them part of the way in Fred's car, but he changed his mind and decided to take a spin instead of keeping their supper appointment. Driving to his home, he went in. A few minutes later, near his own house, the fatal shots were fired, and Miss Fee carried into the place, which she possibly had thought of as her future home, for her father, Samuel Fee, has said that, although Beatrice did not wish to marry until she was twenty-one years of age, it was possible that they might have been married this fall. Beatrice would have been twenty in October. Fred McGaughley is thirty-three years of age. To friends, Mr. Fee has spoken of the feeling of revenge which he harbors against his daughters' slayer, but the family of the girl bear no ill-will to his brothers or mother, the latter lying prostrated with grief at the home of Mrs. Wilbert Fee. "My boy couldn't do such a thing," is the frenzied mother's constant cry.

Not Childhood Sweethearts

An assumption that the Omemee people characterize as untrue is the one which considers Beatrice Fee and Fred McGaughey as being child hood sweethearts. Many people in the village did not know that the young girl was engaged to McGaughey, who, by reason of living thirteen or more miles away, near Lindsay, was not well known in Omemee itself. The two met, it is said after Fred McGaughey's sister, had married Wilbert Fee, and went to live in the house near the home of Beatrice.

Fred McGaughey, whose mother is a widow, is said to have another brother somewhere in Canada, and a married sister. His brother Lawrence figures largely in the tragedy, along with Beatrice's friend, Helen Stuart, whose convulsive sorrow was conspicuous beside the coffin and in the cemetery. Another brother, eighteen year old Clarence McGaughey, who also attended the funeral, is a clever student at Lindsay Collegiate Institute.

Misfortune, in varying phases, has before this visited the home of Samuel Fee. Some years ago, his little daughter, using a fork to dislodge a tautened shoe-lace, blinded herself, and only last year, his big barns were burned to the ground. But there was no outcry yesterday at the funeral. A dazed sort of restraint seemed to have descended upon the family. At the grave, the only cry was that of a tiny baby in its mothers' arms that sobbed in some childish whim as the coffin sank slowly out of sight, while the big father watched it helplessly, and women wept behind him.

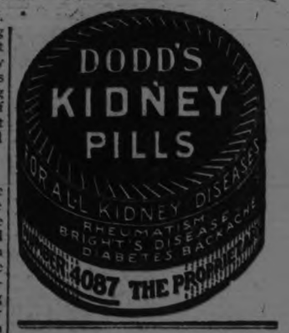
Many Floral Tokens

There were many beautiful floral tributes, among them three from the T. Eaton Company of Toronto, where Beatrice was employed, in the Mail Order Department. One of the last of the huge wreaths from her fellow-employees came on a late train, and sped out to reach her home shortly before the casket closed on her forever. An enormous pillow of roses come from the family, and others sending flowers were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fee of Toronto Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Fee, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Deyell, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Faux, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McBain of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Madill of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wylie of Toronto, C. Mitchell, Melville McBrien, the Misses Irene and Annie Clement, the Welfare Department of the T. Eaton Company, Department No. 772, and the Mail Order Department, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Stan. Sluggett, Freda and George Moncrief, Lawrence McGaughey, (brother of Fred McGaughey), the Anglican Young People's Association of Omemee, Helen Stuart, her girl chum, Gladys Fee, her friends Alice and Gordon and six chums; Ida and Harry, Alta and Melville, Essie and Clifford.

Pall-bearers for Beatrice Fee were six of her school friends: Melville and George Moncrief, Clifford Fee, (the two latter being cousins), Jas. Woods, Roy Windrem and Leslie Burgess.

Hundreds of Visitors

Among the hundreds of visitors from the district, including many from Lindsay, the list of relatives and friends who attended the funeral of Beatrice Fee yesterday includes the following: Mr. H. S. Fee and Beatha Fee of Toronto, Alice Wrigler of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. W. Madill of Toronto (the latter the aunt with whom the girl made her home), T. Scott of Toronto, Mrs. J. A. Wylie of Toronto, Roy Fee of Trenton, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard T. Faux of St. Catharines, Mrs. J. McBain of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. T. Magee of Peterboro, the former a blind mourner at the funeral of the daughter of Samuel Fee, the man at whose wedding he was a sighted, joyous "best man," many years ago. Of the eight children born to Mr. and Mrs. Fee, seven still remain; Roy, aged 23, in Trenton, Michigan; Vincent, 25, married, and living in a portion of the Fee home; and the younger children, all under the parental roof; Victor, 16; Gertrude, 12; Mary 11; Irene, 8; and Helen, 6 years of age.



NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

A Trouble Which Leaves People Depressed and Unhappy.

Nervous exhaustion is often the cause of great unhappiness, because the sufferer and his friends do not recognize it as an ailment. To them, and even to himself, he seems to be merely ill-tempered, crotchy and irritable.

The peevishness for which women and girls are often blamed is not their fault—it is their misfortune. Their nerves are "all on edge." The least shock, a sudden noise, or even being spoken to unawares causes real suffering, and no one ought to be surprised if hasty words are the result. But this dose not mean bad temper; it means starved, exhausted nerves.

Headaches, low spirits, poor appetite, weariness and lack of energy follow nerve exhaustion, and relief is easy to obtain. What the starved nerves need is richer, better blood, and this can be obtained through a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By their blood enriching qualities these pills do wonders; nervous men and women become calm, steady and energetic under their influence. New blood is what does the work. To obtain it give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—brilliant young inventor, who, though loving Prudence, became entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—Guest at the country home of wealthy

Mrs. Vansittart—from whom Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Virginia throws Peter Armstrong over because he has been blinded in an accident in his laboratory, and she tries to marry an old 'flame,'

Bert Traymore—who will not have her. Immediately thereafter the police arrest Virginia for her numerous thefts, and takes her off.

Prudence is sitting at Peter's bedside one night when she hears a sound as of someone moving stealthily in the laboratory. Prudence lights a candle, goes into the laboratory, and a masked man springs at her.

Armstrong rushes to her rescue, ill though he is, and in the ensuing struggle tears off the thief's mask, showing Bert Traymore, who had come to steal and patent his invention, the work of years. The shock restores Armstrong's sight again.

Janet Mercer, who nursed Armstrong and is in love with Will Ogilvie, is a great friend of Mrs. Vansittart's.

CHAPTER LXXXI

Mrs. Vansittart and Janet

Mrs. Vansittart sat in the great drawing room of Winston Towers, with Janet Mercer opposite her, and little Lucia playing happily on a big bear-skin rug.

"They say?" said Mrs. Vansittart, her white, much-beringed fingers moving leisurely among the tea-things, "they say that nothing ever happens in the country, and that life is dull here. But, after the past week or two, never again will I believe it!"

Janet gave a sympathetic smile.

The lady rambled on:

"It would almost make a story, wouldn't it? Peter Armstrong's accident, and the cold-blooded way that creature, Virginia, flung him over, while the little Page girl stuck to him, through thick and thin. He always did care for her, you know." This was delivered with the air of having made a remarkable discovery.

"He was well out of the Virginia business," said Janet grimly. "I always loathed that girl, and it's amazing to me how you didn't see through her sooner."

Mrs. Vansittart shrugged her shoulders.

"Oh, I'm no judge of character. And I can get along with anyone who will amuse me, and amuse my guests. But what came out in the police court about Virginia simply flabbergasted me!"

"Me, too," said Janet, sipping her tea, and keeping an eye on little Lucia, who was doing some extraordinary gymnastics on the rug.

The mother's eye followed the trained nurse's.

"You've worked wonders for that child. Her back's heaps stronger. Look, she couldn't have done that head-over-heels a month ago. You're a marvel, Janet, and I don't intend to forget it on your wedding day."

The other flushed with pride, but demurred about the intended gift.

"It's pleased me as much as it's pleased you. The doctors think that in a year or two, thanks to the massage and treatment, she'll quite outgrow any weakness of the back. But any masseuse would have done the same for her."

"Rubbish! It isn't anybody that Lucia would have allowed to touch her. The child's sensitive to 'atmosphere', and she recognizes the mother instinct in you."

Janet glowed. Despite the weird occurrences of late, her own particular cup of blessing was running over. Will loved her. They were reconciled, and were to be married some day in the future. She—plain featured, blunt-tongued Janet Mercer—was going to have a home and husband of her own, and maybe . . . children!

"I'd like to give the little Page girl a splendid wedding present, to make up for what she's suffered in the past," went on the hostess. "I hate myself for suspecting her in the matter of those stolen earrings and the money. Of course, all the countryside knows now that it was Virginia, but just the same, the memory must still be painful to Prudence. I've written, and apologized, and called."

Janet loved Prudence, and she said, quickly:

"Oh, the child never did bear you any malice. She's got a remarkably sweet nature. D'you know, when the report of Virginia's police court trial came out in the local paper, and I showed it to Prudence, instead of being delighted at the public downfall of a woman who'd injured her, and insulted her, many's the time, the child's eyes filled with tears, and her voice was quite shaky when she said how sorry she felt for her, and she wished there was something she could do!"

"Then she needn't waste her pity," retorted Mrs. Vansittart, helping herself, to another cup of tea, and sipping it daintily. "Virginia's got a hide like a rhinoceros, though she did make such a scene in court, fainting dead away, and all that sort of thing, to get on the judge's soft side. When the prosecuting attorney, or whatever you call the man, read aloud her past record, it was I who nearly fainted, to think I'd been tricked so long, and in so many ways!"

The good lady stirred her tea so violently that some of it splashed over on the carpet.

"But you were awfully kind to her even after she was arrested," sympathized Janet. "You withdrew the charges, and said you would forgive her, and let her have a new start in life. You even offered to pay her passage to Australia, where she says she's got a sister living."

"But the local trades-people, and the woman whose pearl necklace she stole at the Cumbermeres' ball, weren't such simpletons," snapped Mrs. Vansittart. "They wouldn't let her off. It's true I wanted to drop the case, but it seems the police had been on the scent of Virginia's other thefts long before I got the detective to come here as my butler. That rather relieves my mind. Detestable as Virginia is, I wouldn't like to have been the direct cause of her arrest, you know."

Janet looked thoughtfully out of the window.

"I suppose she has a moral kink."

"Several of them, I should say. She wasn't content with stealing, but she plotted the ruin of others. Take, for instance, her little trick of slipping those diamonds and the stolen money into Prudence's sash, the night of the dinner party here."

Janet looked dubious.

"She'd worn the dress before, and maybe left them in her sash, through sheer forgetfulness?"

"Nonsense! Miss Jinny wasn't that sort at all. She had her eye on Peter Armstrong, and wanted to remove Prudence from her path. And she did drive the girl to run away to New York, if you'll remember?"

"Yes," Janet nodded.

"And then," went on Mrs. Vansittart, warming to her story, "what does Jinny do but boldly go to Peter's cottage, quite late in the evening, and when the thunderstorm came on, stay there till all hours of the morning, and then browbeat the poor, chivalrous fellow into an engagement, making out that otherwise her reputation would be ruined! Her 'reputation'? Bah! What fools we've been!"

"She certainly has had a past." The whole thing seemed to Janet rather like a peculiar sort of dream.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance. Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Usually it is not the best policy for a man to have his income from investments and his salary coming from the same industry.

The average salaried man is only familiar with a very small part of the industry in which he works. Yet he is apt to invest solely in that industry, believing that he is an expert in that field.

If a slump occurs in that particular industry he may lose his income from both investments and salary.

In most cases it is probable that the advantage of having investments in another type of business would be greater than any advantage the salaried man may think he has from his contact with the business he is working in.

It is a wise policy to invest in one type of business and draw your salary from another.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

MORE OF MR. GUELIVER

"I was a treat curiosity."

Mister Gulliver was telling about his adventures once upon a time when he was shipwrecked.

"Where did you go after you left the Country of Lilliputians?" asked Nick.

"I went to the Land of the Giants," said Mister Gulliver. "It was really called the Land of Brobdingnag, a queer name, indeed, but then it was a queer place."

"Wasn't it the same as Beanstalk Land?" said Nancy.

"No, indeedie, nor the place Jack the Giant Killer went to, either," said Mister Gulliver. "This was still another giant country. Everybody was kind, most of them were farmers, and they treated me handsomely.

"When I was washed ashore after my ship was wrecked, I walked about until I came to a field. It was then I first beheld these huge men, reaping Whe grain with reapers so great I cou not see to the top of them.

"I was afraid the great blades would cut me into pieces, so I shouted as loudly as I could. One of the men stopped just in time, and seeing me picked me up in his hand. I was terrified for fear I should fall as I was a hundred feet above the ground.

"I was a great curiousity and the others came crowding around. I was far from comfortable as the giant held me between his thumb and forefinger, much as you might pick up a cettle, and his huge fingers hurt m ribs.

"He took me home for a pet and I was treated as well or even better than the house cat. Finally my master sold me to the queen. I was kept in a cage in the garden as a curiosity, and crowds of people came to see me every day.

"But one day a bird came along, and, picking up my cage in his huge bill, he flew off, and although the queen and all her servants shouted and did everything possible to scare the bird and make him drop me, I was very thankful that he held on.

"As I was a thousand feet up in the air, I would surely have been dashed to pieces had he done so."

"What happened then?" asked Nick.

"The bird flew out to sea and coming down out of the air, began to swim on top of the water to hunt for fish. He let go of my cage and I floated for some time and was picked up finally by a ship and taken to my own country, where I lived happily ever after."

"Did you have any other adventures?" asked Nancy.

"Many," said Mister Gulliver.

"Once I visited the Land of Horses, and another time the Yahoos. But I see Mister Muggs looking at his watch, so I suppose I won't have time to tell you any more."

"Not to-day, thank you, Mister ulliver," said Mister Muggs. "You have made these children very happy with your stories, and I'll tell the airy Queen She will do something for you, I know. Perhaps, if you are not married, she will dance at your wedding. And if you invite us, all of us will."

"Too late," laughed Mister Gulliver. "But come back anyway."

The Twins waved good-bye, and the little car sped back home, leaving Once-Upon-a-Time Land far behind.

Remember! Some Cities use Daylight Saving!

Some cities are using Daylight Saving Time.

In calling Toronto or Montreal by Long Distance, you are likely to find, if you call around 12 o'clock noon, that your friend has gone to lunch. It is one o'clock with him. When he returns at 2 (by his own watch) and learns that Peterboro has been calling him, he will possibly try to reach you at once!

But it will be only one o'clock here and quite likely YOU are then at lunch.

Thus, at least two hours are often lost from the short business day.

The same difficulty is often encountered toward the close of the day.

We suggest that in making appointments for Long Distance calls you keep in mind the variations in time used.

Even and Velvety in Texture— A Cake Made in 10 Minutes

GREEN'S Sponge Mixture enables you to have — in 10 minutes — as delicious a layer cake or jelly roll as you now spend three times as long in baking. Light, even and velvety in texture — a cake which will stay fresh for days. One which you can always count on, too, for the finest cake-making ingredients have been embodied in Green's in the proportions we have found best.

And it's as simple as it's certain. Simply whisk two eggs together in a bowl, beat in the contents of a package of Green's Sponge Mixture, bake for about 8 minutes in a medium-sized tin and your cake is finished. The tedious job of cake baking easily accomplished in 10 minutes. Economical — because waste and failures are eliminated.

Green's Sponge Mixture has had a wide sale in England for years, where it has long been recognized as a high-grade product, meeting most acceptably the need for a quicker and easier method of baking. Millions of packets are used annually.

Ask for Green's Sponge Mixture at any grocery store. 20c a packet. Choose your favourite flavour —Plain, Vanilla, Orange, Lemon, Almond or Maderia—learn at once how greatly your baking duties will be simplified. Recipes are given on the back of every packet.

HERE'S ANOTHER RECIPE: MADGE BUNS

1 packet Green's Sponge Mixture, 6 ozs. Pastry Flour, 3 ozs. Butter, 1 oz. Lard, 1 small Egg, a little Raspberry Jam.

Mix well together the Green's Sponge Mixture and Pastry Flour. Rub in the butter and lard. Add the well-beaten egg, which will provide sufficient moisture to make a rather stiff paste. Take small pieces of paste and roll into a ball and place on a baking tin. Make a hole in the centre of each and drop in a small quantity of Raspberry Jam, close up, and bake in a fairly hot oven. The above ingredients will make at least 20 Madge Buns.

ASK PART OF PARK AS BOWLING GREEN

Bowling Club Would Fence Section of Central Park for Green and Club House.

A deputation of eight lawn bowlers asked the Parks Committee last night for permission to use part of Central Park to form a bowling green.

Mr. Elliott said the plan is general over the country.

Mr. Dick suggested the south-west corner of the park, 130 feet square. This would necessitate the moving of four trees, but the club would plant two for every one they destroyed.

Alderman Turner asked whether the clubhouse would be built ornamentally in keeping with the remainder of the buildings—Murray Street Church, the Armouries, the Collegiate, and the Library.

Mr. Dick said the proposed clubhouse would be more ornamental than the dressing-rooms erected at the skating rink there in winter. The club would be satisfied with 130 feet by 100 feet.

Riverside Park could not be made a bowling green without a retaining wall and other expensive work. On the other hand, the bowling green in Central Park would be an attraction that would bring people to the park.

Mr. Moore said any park would be improved by a bowling green, fenced with a nice fence, with lights symetrically arranged, and benches for spectators. It would not be possible to keep the lawn without fencing.

Alderman Turner's question elicited the information from Mr. Armstrong that the only way in which the lot could be given to the use of the bowlers would be by lease confirmed by the Municipal Board.

Mayor Turner remarked that he favored finding a favorable place for the bowlers, but he did not approve cutting down trees in the park and erecting a clubhouse in front of Murray Street Church. He suggested using a lot near the Library, on the land south of the Y.M.C.A.

Both were objected to by the delegation.

The Parks Committee will visit the park with the deputation on Saturday to mark out and view the proposed site, and the proposal will be discussed later.

Tender Let.

Tenders for roofing property owned by the city in Riverside Park were opened and the Committee recommended the acceptance of Alex. McLeod's tender for $340, provided he gives the usual guarantee.

Dressing-Room.

The purchasing of a dressing-tent for Inverlea bathing beach was discussed and tenders read from J. J. Tent and Awning Co. had been asked for a tender but did not respond.

Mayor Turner suggested the erection of a metal building since this would be more durable, and moved that the Nicholls Park Trust be asked as to the availability of the little-used pavilion in Jackson Park. In the meantime prices on various sized buildings will be asked for.

Park Lighting.

Two plans, presented by the Utilities Commission, covering alternative schemes of lighting Central Park, were discussed, but a decision was deferred until the bowling green project is decided.

Guard River Front.

Safety plans for the river front were discussed, and Mayor Turner suggested an alarm system at each bathing place be connected with the fire hall. A complete outfit would be supplied the fire department according to one plan, but Mayor Turner suggested that, with a little extra equipment at some points, the fire department would only carry the pulmotor.

Alderman Jones suggested that a telephone would be cheaper, and the chairman was instructed to ask regarding the possibility of obtaining a short season service.

Mayor Turner moved that grappling irons and a pike-pole be supplied to each of the beaches.

The sale of foreign newspapers and books, it is said, has been forbidden at Serbian railway stations.

ANNUAL MEETING OF W.C.T.U. YESTERDAY

The annual general meeting of the W.C.T.U. took place yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. with a good attendance. Election of officers took place for the new year, resulting in a new appointment for every office, with the exception of that of treasurer, to which Mrs. E. Manning was re-elected, and reports of various departments of the society were heard. The election resulted as follows: President, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. A. E. Micks; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. M. A. Morrison; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. F. Hagerman; Recording Secretary, Mrs. J. F. Allin; Treasurer, Mrs. Ed. Manning.

Cunningham reporting for the department of scientific temperance, Mrs. G. W. Powell for the soap wrapper fund, which has collected over 3,000 wrappers during the year, Mrs. B. Manning for the Indian work, and Mrs. A. J. Throop for the travellers' aid department, in which much co-operation is given by the churches and the Y.W.C.A.

Hearty votes of thanks were passed to the retiring officers of the society, and to the local press.

QUEBEC TOWN HAD ALL NIGHT BLAZE

Several Families Rendered Homeless as a Result

OTTAWA, May 29.—With three hotels burned, town hall destroyed and a dozen families homeless, the village of Gracefield, fifty miles from here, is to-day recovering from the strain of an all night fight against a fire which destroyed a large portion of the town before it was brought under control at five o'clock this morning. United efforts of Hull and the local fire department succeeded in checking the conflagration after it had done damage estimated at $90,000.

TRUSTEES WILL NOT STOP PEACE MEETING

TORONTO, May 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Trustees of Massey Hall decided to-day not to interfere with permit granted Women's International League for Peace and Freedom who intend holding a meeting in the auditorium on June 4th for the promotion of peace.

At a meeting of the Board of Control yesterday, Mayor W. W. Hiltz was instructed to take the matter up with the trustees as many protests against holding of the gathering had been received. Trustees pointed out at a meeting this morning that the proposed meeting was favoured not only by members of organization itself but by many citizens of good standing, including Sir Robert Falconer, of the University of Toronto. Under the circumstances they thought that if holding of such a meeting is considered dangerous to society the responsibility for its prohibition rests elsewhere than with the trustees.

HAMILTON POLICE SHOOT FOREIGNER

Trio Who Emerged From Dark Alley Drew Guns on Police and Started Free-For-All Fight.

HAMILTON, May 29.—(Canadian Press).—An unidentified armed man, supposed to have been a foreigner, was shot to death by the police in a revolver battle at one o'clock this morning. He, with others, was seen to emerge from an alley on Duke Street, and when pursued by the police the trio drew revolvers. One of them ran up another alley and was hemmed in by the police. While a constable was scaling a fence the gunman fired at him, but missed. The police returned the fire and he dropped out of sight. At daybreak his body was found on the back verandah of a house on Robinson Street. He had an automatic revolver, and in one of his pockets was found a piece of paper on which was scrawled a hieroglyphic which looked like "Well—and."

The victim of the police bullet was about 35 years old, dark, large and well dressed. His hands were not soiled with toil. He carried a card bearing a Port Weller address, and also had some Toronto street car tickets in his pocket.

A LARGE CROWD HEARD LECTURE

Striking Address on New Aspect of Holy Land

A large gathering of Jewish people thronged the Foresters' Hall on George street last night when Mr. H. E. Wilder, vice-president of the Zionist organization of Canada gave a striking address on "The New Aspect of the Holy Land." Mr. M. Fine presided.

Mr. Wilder's talk was based on the past and present conditions of the Holy Land. He said that the Holy Land was one of the greatest countries in the world to-day and that the people of that land expected to make it a greater country in the near future. A large sum of money which will be sent to the people of that land was raised yesterday in this city among the Jewish people.

Following the meeting, at which Mr. Wilder spoke for about two hours, the speaker was taken to the home of Mr. M. Fine, where a social evening was spent. Mr. Wilder left on the noon train to-day for Ottawa, where he will make his next address.

A NEW CAMP FOR GIRLS

Miss H. F. Gillender, formerly Manager of the Canadian National Railways' log cabin "Nominigan", at Algonquin Park, and Miss Annie L. Krantz, formery Assistant Manager, of the same camp, have servered their connection with the Canadian National Railways and have established a new girls' camp, known as "Gil-Kra," on Smoke Lake, one of the most beautiful lakes in Algonquin Park. These ladies are well known by a very large number of residents from the United States and Canada, who have, during the past few years, been guests at Nominigan Camp, and the new camp which they have organized will, no doubt, be a very successful one from the start. Camp "Gil-Kra" will be equipped with a competent personnel who will give instructions in woodcraft, nature study and astronomy, while special arrangements have been made for the tutoring of backward pupils in Latin, French and mathematics. The chief purpose of the camp is to develop physical fitness and endurance to a higher degree, through swimming, paddling, rowing, hiking and other outdoor sports. For further information apply to any Canadian National Ticket Agent.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterborough, May 29th.

Dear Sir,—Allow me to publish, through your columns, the result of milk samples of the parties that supply me with milk, namely,, Mr. Albert Garbutt and Mr. Arthur Franks. Tests of which I sent to the Eastern Dairy School, Kingston. Following the publication of the report of tests given by the Board of Health recently through your colmn.

Tests received from Kingston as follows:

Sample No. 1, (Garbutt), butter fat 3.9; Sp. Gr. 1.032.

Sample No. 2 (Franks), butter fat 4.1; Sp. Gr. 1.033.

Signed by L. A. Zufelt, Supt., Kingston.

I remain,

Yours truly,
ERNEST C. HARPER,
Milk Vendor.

543 Harvey street, Peterborough.

This is to certify that I packed the samples of the foregoing tests and numbered them and expressed them to L. A. Zufelt, Supt. of the Eastern Dairy School, Kingston, and have examined his report and find that the butter fat and lactometer reading for specific gravity correspond and that the samples were normal and away above the average. I also personally know the parties supplying the milk from which the tests were taken and they are both absolutely honorable.

W. H. MERRILL.

Peterboro, May 29.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me a little space in your valuable paper to voice a complaint re stealing of money and tickets from milk bottles. I live in the west end part of the city, and within the last week I have had money and tickets taken from the bottles three times. This morning my ticket was taken out and bottle removed from door and found lying along the verandah. This I think it a very mean trick, and it is most annoying to go for the milk and find none, to say nothing of the "grousing" at breakfast about "no milk."

TRIALS OF C.P.R. COMPANY IN 80'S

Grant Hall, Vice-President of the Company Delivered Striking Address to Montefier Club Last Night.

MONTREAL, Que., May 29th. — Something of the trials of the early days of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, notably as regards financing in the "80's," was told by Grant Hall, the Vice-President of the Company at the monthly luncheon of the Business Men's Council of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies at the Montefier Club last night.

The chairman was Harry Rother, who introduced the speaker.

Mr. Hall, in talking of the lack of confidence in the financial success of Canada's first transcontinental, and the conditions imposed by the government in return for assistance said that if it had not been for the energy of men like the late Sir William Van Horne and the late Lord Shaughnessy, it would have been impossible that the conditions sould have been fulfilled.

Since the road had been running for some little time, it might be well, said Mr. Hall, to cast an eye on the system as it existed to-day, and to do so was to find that the mileage owned, controlled and leased, was 20,000 miles, with 2500 locomotives, and nearly 3000 passenger cars, and fleets crossing the lakes and oceans.

The C. P. R. represented a billion dollars of capitalization and that had to be paid for, and the officers and all the employees of the company realized that while the public must pay, it was also true that the only justification for the existence of the system as the service it was giving. Unless there was the service, nothing could be asked, but if there was service the company was entitled to the support of the business community.

During his long experience as a railwayman, said Mr. Hall, he had never known of an employee on any railway who did not make the safety of the passenger the first consideration; the second consideration was the company's property, and the last himself.

WOULDN'T JUSTIFY HIGH TARIFFS HOLUS BOLUS

Woolen Men Support Protection Only When it Helps the Many

TORONTO, May 29. — The woollen industries believe in a measure of protection, but the Association of Woollen Manufacturers are convinced that high tariffs are not justifiable when they exist only for the protection of a few industries, said W. Humphries, national secretary of the National Association of Woollen Manufacturers before the Canadian Woollen Manufacturers' Association. Tariffs were justifiable only when the country as a whole prospered, he said.

"Tariffs here date back to the time of the 18th century. Then in 6 or the 12 colonies the principles of protection were set forth but in New Jersey there was free trade which was not altogether successful. The first council in 1790 encouraged the protection of those small industries which were necessary for the provision of the consumer.

The wool industry was not one of the first to be protected but at the time of the civil war it too was given protection. The doctrine of the National Association of Woollen Manufacturers, is that a high protective tariff cannot be justified if only a few industries, and not the whole country is benefited. But a diversity of interest is promoted by protection.

The free traders direct their shafts at the wrong target. They do not realize that protecton is needed in the incipient stages o industry. Before the war foreign manufacturers were underselling American manufacturers and when those manufacturers ceased the price of the foreign article at once went up.

The woollen industry is not in its infancy, so its claim for protection is based upon the greater cost of production and labor here than abroad. Woollen manufacturers cannot be compared with machine made products, because there has not been a similar progress in the woollen industry.

Success fell to the allies and America not only because America was a great producer of woollens but because she was united with an empire that had a world wide woollen industry within its limits.

The two departures in 1894 and 1913 in the tariff that withdrew protection from the woollen industry, were marked failures, he said.

In recent years of protection the woollen manufacturers have been more ambitious to produce the finer article. The protective tariff has been largely responsible, he said but it should be remembered that a technical improvement counted for a good deal. The value of labor in the textile industries in the United States surpasses that of any other foreign textile industry.

If you attempt to lower the wages to those of the European countries it means a revolution, although the Americans do not object to an increase in the value of foreign wage labor.

Frequently even the Democrats speak in favor of protection when they consider the needs of their constituents. They admit in their platform, he said, that American industries should not be deprived of the power to compete successfully with foreign manufacturers.

USE YOUR TOOLS THE PROPER WAY

If You Want To Have Joy Puttering Around Your Auto Use the Proper Tools Properly.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

Motorists, generally, are addicted to the plier habit.

It is the most misused and most harmful part in the automobile tool kit, for this season.

Yet no more effort is requqired for the use of proper tools—in fact less.

Loosen a bolt with a pair of pliers and you'll have trouble. Use a wrench that fits and meddling around an automobile will become a joy.

Every motorists should know what tools to use in emergencies and how to use them properly, if his cars is to remain in good condition. Pliers, for instance, should never be employed for loosening or tightening nuts. Wrenches should be picked that fits snugly against the sides of the nuts, rather than into the corners.

Screw Driver.

Improper use of screw drivers, especially, has caused many a motorist to swear over broken edges and torn screw heads. This tool should be chosen to fit the slot it is supposed to, rather than do an all-round job for large and small screws.

When a schew driver slips out of the screw slot it is either ground down to a sharp edge, or the screw slot isn't square. A square screw slot and a square-edged screw driver makes the work of tightening or loosening screws easy.

Where the screw driver is properly shaped and there still is difficulty in loosening the screw, the monkey wrench is a handy help. By gripping the screw driver tightly just above the screw head and turning it with the screw driver the tight screw can be loosened.

Use of Wrench.

A pipe wrench, even though its edges are square, should not be used to loosen a nut. Its saw teeth, used ordinarily to hold a pipe in place, work havoc with the edges of the nut, making it so much more difficult to tighten it later.

Even the proper kind of wrench for tightening or loosening nuts may be harmful, if it isn't strong enough. Its jaws might spread apart or break. A good wrench might not work where the nut is too tight. But the cause of this might be that the wrench is not applied properly.

For tightening or loosening a nut the wrench should be applied with the mouth facing the direction in which te nut is to be turned. Tus the leverage of the wrench arm is against the nut, rather than away from it, and is much more effective.

If the wrench is used properly and the nut still sticks, two wrenches might be used, one at each end of the nut, and worked toward each other. This gives double leverage against the recalcitrant nut.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

PETES SHOWED METTLE BY DEFEATING OSHAWA IN FAST, SNAPPY GAME

Timely Hitting Turned the First Road Engagement of Season Into Grateful Victory — Dainty and Heckman Used as Relief Pitchers Shut Off the Scoring.

SCORE WAS 7 TO 6.

Thanks to some timely hitting and the remarkable effectiveness of Al. Heckman as a relief pitcher the Petes won a very welcome victory in the Central Ontario League fixture at Oshawa last evening beating the motor town crew 7 runs to 6, after an exciting battle.

When the game opened it was a fight between a right handed and a left handed pitcher and it wound up that way with the difference that Oshawa who began with a starboard flinger finished with their southpaw ace Duke Dainty on the hill top while the Petes started with their portsider Serth and hit harbour with their right handed seige gun Heckman in action.

Both Auxiliaries Good

Neither of the relief pitchers were scored upon so that Manager Solomon won the argument over Pilot Schultz when his crew was in front.

Both Webster, a big right hander from Brantford, and Serth were scored on freely in the first few innings and the leadership alternated several times until at the end of the fourth Oshawa were leading 6 to 4.

The Petes almost knocked Webster out of his shoes in the fifth and after they had hamemred three runs in and taken the lead Dainty had to be called in the rescue. The crack left hander stopped the carnival of runs and held the Petes scoreless thereafter but the damage had been done for Heckman stopped the motor gang completely when he went to the mound in the fifth. He had plenty of zip on his fast ball and some of the Oshawa crew looked as if they were satisfied to get up there, take three swings and get back to the bench as soon as possible. Ten of them were retired by the strikeout route and the last five innings were hitless so far as Oshawa were concerned. In the last frame the Petes right hander fanned Rowden, Ward and Murray in a row, and he also fanned the side in the seventh.

Renew Duel Saturday

There wil be a great pitching duel here Saturday for Dainty will start for Oshawa and "Heck" is called to open the battle for the Petes. Judging by the last five innings last night the fans have something to look forward to.

There were some nice fielding stunts in last night's fixture. The Petes had two fast double plays, Holyman, Johnston and Harrison executing one with smoothness and despatch while Collins started the other. He misjudged Dainty's hard smash to right but leaped high in the air and grabbed the ball, doubling Tyson off first base. Hall made a fine running catch in the eighth and Harrison's work at first base was of stellar calibre.

Petes Start Early.

The Petes went to work in businesslike fashion to manufacture the first run. Legon drew a pass, moved to second on Johnston's neat sacrifice and scored when Swanston poked a fast one between short and third for two bases. Helson rolled to Webster and Harrison drove a high one to Roddick in left.

The motor crew got that one back and another with it in their half. Murray got a cheap hit to start with when Helson fell in fielding his slow roller. Walter Fair struck out but Roddick rolled a single over second. Murray was caught off the middle station by Holyman and Serth and was out when he tried to reach third, Roddick going to second. Tyson walked and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Dainty's single scored the pair. Wilson was thrown out by Serth.

Serth Scored Two.

In the second Holyman was safe on Fair's fumble of his roller and Collins and Hall walked, filling the bases. Serth cracked a single to left scoring Holyman and Collins. Legon bunted a fly to Tyson. Johnston's drive to centre nestled in R. Fairs' hands and Wilson made a nice stop of Swanston's smash.

For Oshawa R. Fair got a life on Serths' fumble but was promptly extinguished when Rowden rolled one to Holyman who pegged Fair out at second while Johnston completed a fast double play by shooting the ball to Harrison in time to get the batter. Webster fanned.

In the Petes third Helson and Harrison fanned. Murray dropped Holyman's high fly but the runner was nipped in an attempted steal.

Oshawa Push Ahead

The motor town gang flashed in the lead again in their half of the frame. Murray was hit to start with and although nipped off first reached second when Swanston threw the ball to Harrison. He went to third while Holyman was tossing out W. Fair. Roddick tripled to centre scoring Murray. Tyson hit to Helson and was out at first, Roddick being held at third. He scored, however, a moment later on Dainty's single to right. Wilson singled to centre, Hall making a diving stop of a hard hit ball. On a double steal Wilson was out at second, Dainty scoring before the out was registered.

The Petes got one back in the fourth. Collins' vicious liner was right at Rowden who clutched the ball. Hall singled to right, however, and went to second on Serth's sacrifice. Legon walked. Johnston singled to left scoring Hall and on the throw to the plate Legon reached third and Johnston second. Murray was knocked out in the play at third and there was a short delay before he resumed. Swanston was passed purposely, filling the bases, and the dope was good for Helson fanned.

In Oshawa's half Reg. Fair flied to Legon. Rowden singled to left and Webster cut a single through short on which Rowden reached third. Webster going to second on the throw to Helson. Murray flied to Collins whose accurate throw to the plate held Rowden at third. He scored immediately after on a passed ball after which W. Fair fanned.

Settled in Fifth.

The Solomon aggregation won the verdict in the first half of the fifth. Harrison walked and crossed the home station when Holyman boomed a long double to left. Collins flied to Rowden but Jimmy Hall supplied transportation for the tieing run when he shot a single between Murray and Fair, Holyman scoring. Hall went to second on the throw in and kept on to third when Webster threw over second. Serth promptly pasted a single past Rowden sending Hall in with what ultimately proved to be the winning counter. Exit Mr. Webster and enter Mr. Dainty. Ward the other Peterboro boy on the Oshawa lineup going to right field.

Moundsmen Changed

The jaunty Duke walked Legon and moved the runners around a peg with a wild pitch but stopped the rally by fanning Johnston and Swanston.

The scoring was over for the night for the motor crew found Heckman on the rubber when their end of the inning began. Roddick fanned. Tyson was passed but Collins dragged down Dainty's hard smash to right and doubled Tyson off first.

In the sixth for the Petes Helson fanned, Harrison rolled to Rowden and Dainty tossed out Holyman.

The opposition did no better. Wilson grounded to Helson, Harrison making a fine play on a low throw. Reg. Fair fanned and Holyman threw out Rowden.

Collins fanned to open the seventh. Hall flied to right. Heckman singled past Rowden, the only hit off Dainty and Legon flied to Roddick.

Heckman fanned Ward, Murray and Webster in quick succession in Oshawa's half.

The Petes got nowhere in the eighth. Johnston struck out, Swanston tapped to Dainty and Helson missed three.

Oshawa made their last bid to pull the game out in their half. Roddick and Tyson whipped but Dainty got a life on a roller that got away from Holyman and Wilson was passed. Reg. Fair shot a dangerous looking fly to centre but Hall coming in fast made a beautiful catch to retire the side.

The ninth was soon over. Harrison fanned. Holyman flied to Ward in right and Collins to Reg. Fair in centre.

As for Oshawa Rowden, Ward and Murray were struck out in rapid fire order and the battle was over.

CRESCENTS TRIM THE LAKEVIEWS

South End Boys Played Smart Ball—Milloy's Hit Drove in Winning Runs.

FITZGERALD STARRED

The small crowd at Riverside Park last night got the surprise of their lives when the Crescent Juniors trimmed the Lakeviews, Ontario champions of 1923, by the score of 4 to 2 in one of the most exciting games of junior baseball played in this city in a long time.

Chuck Bradley, first string heaver, of the Maple Leaf juvenile staff, did the twirling for the Crescents, and turned in a first-class game, while his team mates, among whom Abe Delahaye was seen in unifom, gave Bradley sterling support, and came to his rescue like a rich uncle whenever he was in trouble.

He fanned eight and allowed six scattered hits in seven innings, while his opponent. Frank Whitehouse, another port sider, netted eleven strike-outs, and was touched for eight hits which, when mingled with the five errors his team mates made behind him, proved very costly.

The Lakeviews did not show the form that they did last year, and appeared to be rather stiff in going after ground balls.

Even to the Sixth.

The Cresients got away to a good start in the first innings when Delahaye singled and stole second and Jack McDonough came through with a double that sent Delahaye over the plate for the first run.

The Lakeviews went out in order in their half of the first, but came back in the second and evened up the count when Whitlow drew a pass, went to second on a wild pitch, stole third, and scored on Whitehouse's single.

Both teams battled along on even terms until the sixth innings, when Lebarr put his team one run ahead when he scored on Delahaye's wild throw over first base.

Decided in Last.

The Crescents came back strong in the seventh, and walloped Whitehouse for three runs that gave them a two-run lead to get into the next half of the innings with.

Bradley started the rally when he rapped a hot grounder at Lebarr on first, who fumbled it, Bradley eaching the bag in safety.

Rody came through with a clean single over second that advanced Bradley to third, who evened up the game when he scored on Delahaye's hit to second, which Halliday fumbled.

Fitzgerald filled the bases when he was hit in the ankle by a pitched ball and Rody and Delahaye scored on Pete Milloy's single that did the trick for the Crescents.

The Lakeviews came back in the seventh full of confidence. Things brightened up a little for the Lakeviews when Harry Cheu landed a clean single over second base, but he froze at first as Halliday missed three, and Fitzgerald at third for the Crescents ended the game in great style when he tore in fast on a pop fly from Cameron's bat, and scooped it off in full stride.

Fitzgerald at third for the Crescents was their star performer, having five chances without a slip, while Frank Whitehouse netted two hits out of three trips to the plate, and led his team in batting.

The feature play of the game was the double play pulled off by Milloy to McDonough to Fitzgerald.

"PEENY" MILLS' BATTING FEATURED BELLEVILLE VICTORY AT KINGSTON

Grand Trunks Take Two In Row From the Ponies —Gallagher and Oulette Touched For Seven Hits Apiece But Belleville's Were Bunched.

MILLS HITS HOME RUN

KINGSTON, May 29.—Belleville seems to be a hoodoo for Kingston. The Trunks walked into the Limestone City yesterday evening or motored in and went out again two hours later with a 3-1 victory hanging at their belts, the second over Joe Daley's crew in two successive games.

More timely hitting, closer and faster fielding, those are the reasons. The pitchers were evenly matched. Their hits were equal and where Gallagher was banged for four extra bases Oulette evened up with three free tickets. There were a few bad errors but the majority of the bad cases resulted from poor judgment and lack of practice.

Belleville's Runs.

Belleville started in the very first when Weir, the star of the game, walloped a triple. He went home when Mills' grounder to Evans was poorly handled. Two hits and two nice scarifices sent Weir over again in the third and in the eighth "Peeny" Mills collected a homer into left field to make the total.

The only Kingston run came in the second. Cherry singled, Daley got on but forced Cherry at second and Purvis sent Daley home with a two bagger to which the finishing touches were added by a wild throw.

The diamond was in fine condition, the weather good and the crowd was a large one. Compeau, sensational new short stop for Kingston, continued to star and his hitting, fielding and base running was a feature. Batstone worked one pass but failed to connect for a safe one.

"Peeny" Mills Starred.

"Peeny" Mills was the walloper for Belleville, gathering in three out of four appearances and one of them for the four cushions.

Kingston failed to show as much punch as in the first game here, while Belleville seems to have settled into its regular steady going pace. On yesterday's showing the Trunks are as strong as last year, and if Keon can fill the shoes vacated by Williams, should be hard on top.

RAY

Light, supposed to travel always in lines almost exactly straight, can be made to turn corners and even travel in a circle.

This queer thing is done by scientists of General Electric Co. Does the discovery seem useless? Not so. It enables doctors to send the ultra-violet rays of sunlight down the throat, possibly into the lungs.

And this ultra-violet ray is the best agency so far discovered for battling tuberculosis. You will read more of this later, when the discovery is put to practical use.

CAMPBELLFORD DROPPED GAME

Brighton Handed Out Second Defeat of Season to Big Team--13 to 10.

BRIGHTON, May 29. — Campbellford lost their second League game here yesterday afternoon when they were defeated by the Brighton team by a score of 13 to 10. Of the visitors there were only five in the line-up who were with the team last year when they were going strong—Eagleson, Hume, Holmes, Weston, and Blakely, and every one of these with the exception of Weston was playing out of his regular position. Hutton, who started in the box, had a sore arm, and at the end of the third inning gave way to Eagleson, the shortstop, and this change meant another re-arrangement of the infield. Archie Wood, who went with the team as umpire, was called on to don a uniform and play in the infield, as so many of the regular men were missing. He kept up his end with the best of them, getting four safe hits in five times up, and accepting every fielding chance without an error. He also has a run to his credit.

Blakely was shifted from left field to centre and accepted his two chances. The batting honours for the visitors were his, as he got four safeties in five times at bat, and in the second inning got on first when Moore made a low throw to McKee. Blakely is responsible for two of the runs.

If the Campbellfords lacked some of the best of their players of last year, the Brightons were in no better case. It was only the ghost of the snappy nine of 1923 that took the diamond in the game yesterday.

Solomon, Walt. McKee, and Halliday are the only old players left. Shannon the pitcher, and Strong, the catcher, a battery second to none in the League last year, are no longer with the group, and finding men to take their places is likely to be a slow process. Roblin and Frise in the points yesterday did fairly well, but it will be some time before they can hope to perform as did their predecessors.

McKee plays fast this year, and appears as much at home here as he was holding down the third sack last year. Walt in left field is as nimble as ever, and gets everything that comes his way.

Halliday has not lost his batting eye, his record yesterday in five times at the plate being a double and three singles. The ony other extra base hits in the game were made by Moose in the fourth, and Frise in the seventh. Archer, right fielder last year, is lame, but he got into the game in the sixth.

The line-up of the teams at the opening of the game was as follows:

Campbellford — Eagleson, s.s.; Hume, r.f.; Holmes, 3b.; Weston, 1b.; Hyland, c.; Rannie, c.f.; Blakely, l.f.; Hutton, p.; Wood, 2b.

Brighton— Solomon, s.s.; Walt, l.f.; Frise, c.; McKee, 1b.; Moore, 3b.; Halliday, 2b.; Hughes, c.f.; Brown, r.f.; Robblin, p.

GEORGE STREET LOST TO KEENE

Score Was 5 to 4 in Opening Game of the East Peterboro League.

ERRORS WERE COSTLY

Darkness and a few costly errors lost George Street the game by a 5 to 4 count when they invaded Keene in the opening game of the East Peterborough League.

George Street took a lead of one run in the first innings on a long hit by Elliot. The teams played nice ball and no more runs crossed the plate until Keene chased across two in the fourth on an error in the outfield and an overthrow to second. George Street came back strong in the fifth and squeezed across three runs. Mahood's timely bunt and Elliot's lofty clout crossed up the Keene nine. In the fifth for Keene C. Robertson got a safety on Bates, stole second and advanced to third on A. Fletcher's neat hit and came in on an overthrow to third by G. Miller. A. Fletcher scored on his brother's long hit who was out trying to stretch it into a triple. The gathering gloom was against the Peterborough outfit for they failed to score in their half of the sixth and Keene squeezed across the winning run with two out and the game was then called.

"Scottie" Maudsley pitched steady although not brilliant for George Street. His support was good but overthrows accounted for three tallies against him. A couple of errors in the outfield completed his jinx.

George Street has lined up a good team and with a few more workouts ought to prove no easy adversary.

"Mike" McCarthy starred at short for the winners and M. Robertson had all his old speed.

Lineups:

TUXIS TEAM WON

Cavan Boys Defeated Scott's Corners By 13-3 In Five Innings.

CAVAN, May 29.—The Cavan Tuxis Baseball Team played their first game, May 27, against Scott's Corners.

Cavanville won 13 to 3 in five innings. Up to the end of the third innings the game was tied at three all.

Batteries: For Scott's Corners, H. Seymour, Ed. Johnson; for Cavan, G. Staples and W. Reynolds. Umpire: F. Russell, Millbrook.

Neither of the teams had much practice, but it was easily seen that they had seen a game or two somewhere, some time. A very good crowd was out to see the game, including three carloads from Millbrook.

The Millbrook cars were filled with Juvenile players from that town, who having won their first game from Pontypool at Bethany on the 24th, have ever since been raring to go.

They are constantly on the lookout for more victims, or brave-hearted teams, who can muster enough courage to meet them.

They extended a hearty invitation to Cavanville, Scott's Corners and any other place represented, to gather the best players from all these teams so that the pick-up team may be strong enough to at least play Millbrook a close game, and go to Millbrook, Friday, May 30, to play the game.

On June 6 the Tuxis team will motor to Fairmount for a return game.

Cavan and Scott's Corner teams are not in any league. They have been formed merely to afford community sport.

ANOTHER QUIET HOUR.

American amateurs have agreed to extend their period of quiet another hour during the summer months, for the benefit of broadcast listeners. The news hours of quiet are from 7 to 10.30 in the evening, eastern standard time.

INDIGESTION GAS ON STOMACH PAINS AFTER MEALS

Many people suffer terribly from gas and pains in the stomach after every meal, and are kept in constant misery.

For the past 44 years Burdock Blood Bitters has been bringing hope and joy to thousands suffering from various forms of stomach trouble, helping them to eat three square meals a day; helping them to eat anything they wish, without having to suffer for it after.

Mr. Fred. Nielson, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "All last summer I was troubled with stomach trouble and indigestion, and also gas on the stomach. I could not eat anything except some light food and even then I would be bothered with pains after each meal. I could not work a whole day without being done out. I had tried everything; doctors, medicines and pills, until I read about Burdock Blood Bitters. I have taken four bottles and it has nearly, if not completely, restored me to health again."

GIRLS TO PLAY AT SPORTS DAY

C.G.E. And Thistles Softball Teams Precedes Midland League Game.

RACES MAPPED OUT

C.G.E. and Thistles Girls' Softball teams will play their postponed game at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday afternoon, June 7th at 3 o'clock.

This game has been promised by Mr. F. J. Gandy, President of the Girls' Softball League as part of the programme in connection with the Amalgamated Sports Committee Field Day.

The girls will play on the bantam's diamond while the Kiwanians and Rotarians are holding forth on the large diamond in front of the grand stand. They should have their game finished in time to see the C.G.E. and Cobourg Dye Works, Midland League game which will be at 4 o'clock.

Thistles and C.G.E. are two of the best teams in the local Softball League and each has a large following. They should provide an interesting game.

The Committe in charge of the track events which will be held between 2 and 3 o'clock and immediately after the cycle races, expect to have their arrangements completed this week and an announcement will be made on Saturday which will be of interest.

Mr. J. E. Munroe has the Public and Separate Schools well lined up as to the part they will take.

A feature will be a relay race between picked teams from the P.C.I. and St. Peter's High School. There is always keen rivalry between the students in Central Park and St. Peter's in athletics and the prospect of a relay race is being received with great enthusiasm.

There will also likely be a relay race between teams from the different Public and Separate Schools besides other events.

Messrs. Doug Loomis and Charlie Thorpe are on this committee with Mr. Munroe. Splendid prizes have been selected by those in charge, a list of which will appear later. It is expected that the prizes will be displayed in an uptown store window some time next week.

COGNAWAGAS COP OPENING FIXTURE

Mackeys' Bread Makers Showed Lots of Class but Were Nosed Out of Win Column by One Run.

In the opening game of the East Peterboro League at the Exhibition Grounds last evening, the Cognawagas (last year's champions) defeated Mackey's colorful aggregation of players by 8 to 7 in a seven-inning contest. Vannest, for the Cogs, pitched steady ball, allowing seven hits, walked four and struck out 11, while Henry, who pitched the first four innings for Mackey's, allowed five hits, walked two and struck out five, and Clark, who finished the game, allowed two hits and struck out four.

The Cogs had practically last year's team, with the addition of Williams at third and Wilson in left eld. Both players added strength to the team. Mackey's present a nice team, Hardill at first being a big help to the bread-makers, getting four hits in four times at bat. Taylor had a good batting average, getting three hits in four times up. All of Mackey's other players went hitless.

PITCHING DUEL ON CARDS FOR SATURDAY

Duke Dainty and Al Heckman Will Hook Up at Riverside Park in Biggest Battle of Season

Peterborough fans should see one of the tiniest pitching battles of the season on Saturday when Duke Dainty, Oshawa's left-handed ace, and Al. Heckman, the Petes' seige gun, hook up at Riverside park, resuming the duel that commenced in the fifth inning of last night's game at Oshawa. Dainty went with one out in the fifth and a runner on the sacks, and held the Petes to one hit and no runs for the balance of the game, while "Heck" hurled the last five innings for the Solomon crew without allowing a run or a hit and fanning ten men. The two cracks will likely start Saturday's battle and the result should be a struggle that will keep the fans talking for many moons.

The loss of last night's game hurt the Oshawa crew, who were counting on it as already in the bat bag. The defeat shot them down into the cellar and they realize that they have to win here on Saturday to keep themselves in the running. The Petes, on the other hand, know they can be tied for first place on Saturday night by a second win over the automotive gang and they are determined to grab off the verdict. Both teams will be at full strength and the game is looked upon as one of the high lights of the season. Outside fans are coming in flocks to see the League's two best pitchers fight it out on Saturday.

The Kingston Standard may have noticed that Belleville and Peterborough, the two teams not conceded a chance in the stove league dope, did very nicely, thank you, yesterday.

The attention of Manager Schultz of the Oshawa club is directed to Section 5 of Rule 14, which clearly sets forth the fact that the ball last in play becomes the property of the winning club. When Swanston caught the last strike in the ninth last evening, Schultz demanded the ball and howled so much about it that it was given to him.

Tommy Holyman was used at shortstop last night and pulled off some great stops, one of them starting a fast double play.

The Petes worked so fast and accurately in their infield practice before the game that they got a round of applause from the crowd. Manager Solomon worked Holyman and Batten at short and Johnston and Moore at second during the practice and the four, with Harrison and Helson and Swanston at the plate, performed very smoothly.

Mickey Murray had a tough night. He took one of Serth's slants in the back to start with and then was jolted badly when Legon piled into third on a close play. To make matters worse he was caught off second, dropped a high fly and struck out to wind up the game.

Collins' grab of Dainty's smash in the fifth was a circus play. The right fielder started to run in, checked himself and leaped high in the air to pull down the ball. Tyson, who was on first, left with the crack of the bat and was easily doubled. Had the drive got away it would have been a circuit clout.

Red Legon must be a candidate for a position on Canada's Olympic team as a walker. He has reached first five times in the two games on complimentaries.

Serth, who gets credit for last night's win, as his team was ahead when he left the game, helped materially to win the verdict by driving in three runs. His single in the second with the bases full scored two runs and in the fifth his second safety sent Hall home with the million dollars counter. As Heckman got a hit on his only appearance at the plate, the Petes' pitchers batted at a 1000 clip last evening.

5.30 o'clock is a late hour to start a ball game, and it was pretty dark when the last out was registered. In fact the umps could have called it at the end of the eighth.

Manager Solomon had the edge on Chuck Schultz, the Oshawa leader, by sending in pitching reinforcements when his team was in front. Schultz did not call for help until the visitors were leading and he was too late for Heckman nursed the one run lead for the rest of the game.

YANKS ELIMINATED

British Amateur Golf Title Will Not Go to United States.

ST. ANDDEW'S, Scotland, May 29—The British amateur golf championship this year will remain in the hands of a British subject. The only two United States golfers competing were eliminated yesterday.

Francis Brown of Honolulu, whose spectacular play had won his high commendation from the experts was defeated in the second round yesterday by J. Birnie, Jr., Inverness, 2 up and one to play, while Cyril Tolley, former champion, put out Douglas Grant, a citizen of the United States, who resides in England, by a similar score.

Roger Wethered, the present British champion, survived the second round, and he and Tolley are expected by the experts to give good accounts of themselves during the remander of the tournament.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 29. — (Canadian Press). — Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, has called a special meeting of the International League owners to be held at Buffalo next Saturday afternoon, the Baltimore News says. NEW DIAMOND IN FINE SHAPE

Baseball Teams Now Have "Polo Grounds" of Their Own at Exhibition Park.

With the opening of the new baseball playing field at Exhibition Park last evening the numerous of the local baseball teams are now ready for the season's play. The diamond lined up to all expectations and will improve as the season advances. From the spectators' standpoint, the diamond and the seating accommodation are highly satisfactory. The wire screen protection will be installed immediately. Last evening, when Cognawagas and Mackey's opened the East Peterboro League, the attendance of fans was very satisfactory, and when "the hat" was passed along, a liberal collection was received.

In the opening ceremonies, 'Billy' McLaren, of the Cognawaga Club, pitched the first ball, and "Tom" Brown, of the Exhibition directorate, wielded the bat. Bob Ross, who was umpire-in-chief for the game, undertook to handle the shoots of the new pitcher.

This evening, Raybestos and Cobourg play a Midland League contest at the grounds at six o'clock.

AT THE CAPITOL

MAE MURRAY IN "THE FRENCH DOLL" IS CAPITOL'S FEATURE

Never before have motion picture fans had the opportunity to see the inimitably charming Mae Murray in a photoplay so dazzling, so fascinating, so gorgeous and so entertaining as "The French Doll," her newest Metro picture, which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday. It was produced in the elaborate style characteristic of her former screen plays, but it is more elaborate than anything which has gone before. And in it Miss Murray known as the best dressed star on the screen, wears the most luxurious gowns ever seen on stage or screen.

This photoplay combines every element that goes to make up a delightful evening's entertainment. The star is an actress of the first rank, and her's is a distinctive charm. Equally well she pictures scenes of merriment and dramatic power, and in this photoplay she has a fine opportunity to portray both elements. "The French Doll" is a film version of the famous play of the same name, in which Irene Bordoni achieved her greatest success.

In the photoplay, Miss Murray portrays a fiery little French girl of many love affairs, who helps her parents sell antiques of modern manufacture. The family comes to America, New York, and Palm Beach, where they move in high social circles, while beautiful Georgine is the magnet to draw more customers for their "heirlooms." In America, Georgine finds romance.

AT THE ROYAL

MANY PROBLEMS FACE WIFE IN "LONELY ROAD"

Katherine MacDonald Reveals Inside Story of Home-Breaking and Home-Making—Excellent Supporting Cast.

Suppose you were a young and beautiful girl—perhaps you are—and a handsome six-footer, a successful young business man, proposed marriage to you.

Would you give him the cold shoulder?

Ah! We thought not.

Then suppose he took you out in his car and surprised you with a handsome bungalow he had built without your knowledge.

Would you be mad? Well, not exactly.

Then suppose that just about the time you were figuring to yoursel just where you'd place the baby grand piano you had planned to get, what sort of a dining room set you wanted and all the fun you'd have picking out the rest of the things, he threw in an added surprise by announcing that he and his mother had saved you all this bother and that the furniture was already on the way

How would you feel about it? Sort of disappointed, eh, that you didn't have a hand in the affairs of your own home?

Then, suppose that after you had "settled down" your husband did most of the ordering for the house, paid the bills himself and gave you little or no financial independence, and was ashamed to let the wife earn any money.

What would you do. You'd probably do just exactly what Katherine MacDonald does in her latest First National picture produced by B. P. Schulberg, "The Lonely Road," which shows at the Royal Theatre to-night.

She leaves him, but he follows her, and learns an interesting lesson.

AT THE REGENT

LIFE BROUGHT TO SCREEN IN NEW FOX PRODUCTION

"You Can't Get Away With It" Tells Story of Girl Who Defied Conventions.

Few if any of us have failed to try something only to learn that "You Can't Get Away With It." Disregard the conventions secretly and eventually the world finds out about it. Defy them openly and the world condemns.

Taking this general theme as its basis, a picture has been produced by William Fox, from the story of Gouvernuer Morris, under the vernacular title, "You Can't Get Away With It." Opening at the Regent theatre the picture will be shown for three days.

Percy Marmont, who played so well as Mark Sabre in "If Winter Comes," has the leading male role in the new picture and by odd coincidence, his part is similar to the one that made his name known throughout the country. As Mark Sabre, he appeared as the unhappy husband, hungry for love, who finds the girl he actually does love. The same thing occurs in the new offering, "You Can't Get Away With It."

Lending strong support in the cast are Malcolm McGregor, Barbara Tennant, Grace Morse, Clarissa Selwyn and Charles Cruz. The picture was directed by Rowland V. Lee from a scenario by Robert N. Lee.

The story concerns a wealthy girl who suddenly finds herself cast adrift on her own. She takes a department store job and finds it beyond her ability. The inevitable offer comes from her employer, luxury, love and idleness, in exchange for the world's respect. She accepts. But "You Can't Get Away With It." She couldn't, nor could he. It 's a corking good story, advance notices say and the producers promise that it has been given every element at their command to make it as nearly perfect as a play on life can be.

Simpler food and more raw fruit would be of immense benefit to the teeth, says an official of the British Dental Association,

The latest hair-pins have clips in the center.

FABLES ON HEALTH

CHOOSING RIGHT FOODS.

Like a great many fathers, Mr. Mann was too indulgent with the children.

He did not realize that in the few hours that he was at home he could undo a great deal of training undertaken by Mrs. Mann during the long hours of the day when they were under her direct control. Mrs. Mann tried her best to educate the children to enjoy a normal, nutritious diet.

It has been pointed out that nature overlooked the human family when it was distributing the instinct for food selection. It is perhaps unfortunate that children, unlike the young of lower animals, were not given the instinct of choosing the right foods. This obligation falls upon the parents. The judgment of a good many parents in matters of child diet is sadly limited.

The need of nourishing food is a paramount one during the pre-school period, which is one of rapid growth and great activity. Protein foods are fine body builders and should be high in the list— including milk, eggs, green vegetables and cereals.

Some meat should be included for their animal proteins, which some physicians declare to be of higher grade than vegetable proteins. Minerals and salts are necessary for the development of the young bones.

LONDON, May 29.— (Associated Press.)—There is soon to be organized an International Health Society, as a result of the recent interchange of public health officers who have visited this country to study English public health methods.

Duke Says Kind Word For the Other Dukes.

LONDON, May 29. — (United Press.)—Even a Duke will turn. There has been a good deal of criticism of dukes lately. Some persons have gone so far as to ask what good dukes do the world, anyway, and to inquire why a duke should have a fancy income and nothing to do—and all that sort of thing. Perhaps it's terrible "Bolshie" propaganda, but folks have actually been talking that way.

The Duke of Atholl heard about it, and proceeded to make a speech. He was opening an exhibition of mediaeval art at Glasgow, but he talked about modern criticism of the titled wealthy.

"I can't say anything about other dukes," he observed. "I am so busy myself that I do not bother about them. But I'll say this: 'If there is anybody who can make more use of my land than I do he is at perfect liberty to try'."

The Duke's address is Blair Castle, Perthshire, and he owns 202,000 acres.

In view of this finding will you be kind enough to have our names deleted when submitted to you for publication.

Thanking you for this favour.

Yours sincerely,

THE YEAR 1925 IS TO BE A HOLY YEAR

ROME, May 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Pope Pious to-day issued a proclamation declaring 1925 a holy year. The ceremony took place in the Throne room, where His Holiness was seconded by the prelates of the Apostolic Chamber.

Monsignor Wilpert then descended to the portico of St. Peter's church, where he read the proclamation in the presence of the public.

The party of Scotch ladies who left Peterboro last evening for a trip to the Old Land had a very jolly send-off. They went away with the skirl of the pipes ringing in their ears, and the echo of "Will Ye No' Come Back Again?" to assure them of a hearty welcome when they return. Piper Alex. Milne, a member of the Caledonian Pipe Band, played the "Beggar's Organ" for the departing ladies, and Mrs. Margaret McLeod, the old Scotch lady who will make her home with her daughter in Glasgow, and who probably bade a last farewell to Peterboro when she went away this time, danced an old-time schottische and took part in the eight-some reel that the ladies and their friends performed on the platform of the C.P.R. station before their train pulled out at midnight. Fifty or more of their friends assembled to see them off, and sang as they departed, "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot," "Will Ye No' Come Back Again?" and "Rolling Home to Bonnie Scotland."

In the party were Mrs. James F. Reid, wife of Inspector Reid, and her small daughter Isabella, Mrs. Margaret McLeod and Mrs. Alfred Black, Mrs. Wm. Walker, Mrs. Tengel and son Graeme. To-day, they embark on the C. P. R. liner "Metagama" from Montreal, for a three months' holiday in Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bills and son Eric, of Pontiac, Michigan, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lane, 27 Brown street. Mr. and Mrs. Bills and son leave to-night at 12 o'clock for a thee months' vacation in England.

Perry, Brock street, with an attendance of nearly one hundred people. Twenty-three tables of cards were played, nine of bridge, eight of euchre and six of five hundred. Prizes were won as follows: Bridge: Mrs. H. Darcy and Mr. C. Cook; consolation to Mrs. F. Bennett; euchre: Mrs. Melville Morgan and Mr. J. T. C. Lang; consolation to Mrs. R. L. Hamilton of Cleveland, Ohio; Five hundred: Mrs. C. F. McLean and Mr. K. Robertson; consolation to Mrs. K. Robertson. Decorations were carried out in beautiful Dawin tulips of various shades. TECHNICAL ATTACK ON MACDONALD DEFEATED WITH AID OF LIBERALS

Motion to Reduce Labor Minister's Salary Interpreted By Labor Premier As Want of Confidence—One Hundred Liberals Lined Up Under Asquith With Government Party.

MAJORITY WAS 48.

LONDON, May 30.—(Canadian Press).—By what may under the circumstances be regarded as the quite comfortable majority of 48, the Labor Government last night in the House of Commons again succeeded in resisting attack on its existence, when Sir William Joynson Hicks' motion to reduce the salary of the Labor Minister, Tom Shaw, by £100, was rejected after a long debate.

The motion was merely a technical way of expressing disapproval of the Government's policy respecting unemployment, and a similar motion was talked out in the House recently. Prior to the recording of the vote, Premier MacDonald declared that in the event of a Government defeat, Labor would go before the country in a general election.

Help From Liberals.

On division the vote stood 300 to 252 in the Government's favor. E. H. Asquith, the Liberal leader, having announced that his party would not vote against the Government.

There were lively scenes of jubilation and counter-demonstrations when the vote became known, and shouts of "where is Lloyd George?"

Mr. Lloyd George attended the Liberal meeting to decide upon what action should be taken on the vote, but had not returned to the House when Mr. Asquith announced the decision of his party and his absence provoked gossip of a spilt among the Liberals.

The figures of the division showed that 100 Liberals voted with the Government and 30 abstained from voting. The final speakers were Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative leader, and John R. Clynes, Deputy Labor leader. Mr. Clynes, like the Prime Minister, expressed perfect confidence and readiness to fight out the question on election platforms.

Air of Unreality.

The peculiar situation and the unusual constitution of the House of Commons lends an air of unreality to the repeated attacks on the Labor Government in Parliament, in the opinion of well-informed political observers.

No doubt exists among these observers that the Conservative wings of the Opposition is quite ready to vote the Government out of office at any moment. This, however, is not the state of affairs in the Liberal wing, because in the recent bye-election the Liberal candidates fared so badly that the party does not dare to take the risk of an appeal to the country at the present moment.

This situation explains the proceedings in the House Thursday.

Premier's Defense.

Prime Minister McDonald, in defending his Labor Minstry, contented himself with making debating points against his opponents and did not trouble to outline any real program of reforms in any greater detail than he has already done in previous speeches. He pointed out that although the Conservatives when they were in office had promised to spend between £50,000,000 and £100,000,000 on unemployment relief last Winter, their actual expenditure under this head was only £250,000.

Mr. MacDonald asserted that the Conservatives only wanted another general election. He reiterated that it was impossible for any govern-

Count Loses All At Gaming Table

BERLIN, May 30.—A wave of gambling is sweeping Hungary, according to advices received here, with Government concessions and gambling hells being opened all over the country.

The turnover of the green tables in the Budapest gambling casinos alone aggregated fifty-three billion crowns in January and increased to sixty billion in April, and will probably reach seventy-five in May.

Count Emmerich Degenfeld, one of the oldest and best known Hungarian aristocrats holding vast estates, is the latest victim of the racing tables. He lost his entire wealth gambling and was confined in an insane asylum this week.

CANDIDATES TO BE NAMED TODAY

Nominations Received To-Day For the British Columbia Provincial Elections — Forty-Eight Seats to Be Filled.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 30 (Canadian Press). — Forty returning officers throughout the Province will receive to-day nominations for the forty-eight seats in the Legislative Assembly.

The Liberals will have candidates in forty-six seats, twenty-one members of the late House being candidates for election.

The Conservatives will have candidates in every riding, and will submit for re-election ten members of the old House.

The Provincial Party has forty-two candidates in the field, and its local representatives have also endorsed the Farmer-Labour candidate in Nelson. It is expected they will have nominations in the remaining five ridings.

They have only one retiring member of the old House, J. F. Duncan, whose adhesion to the party has come since prorogation. One-third of their candidates are farmers, the largest representation of rural interests of any of the three parties.

Of professional men they have two doctors and two lawyers.

The Labour Party is re-submitting for election its three retiring members of the late House, and altogether has nineteen candidates in the field. They represent the federated labour, the Socialist, and the newly-formed Canadian Labour Party.

There are two Independent members of the late House seeking re-election, and six others are in the field.

BUSINESS BETTER

Britain In Better Condition Than At Any Time Since War.

NEW YORK, May 30.—"British business is actually better to-day than at any time since the war," H. B. Allin-Smith, United States Trade Commissioner at London, said yesterday in an address at the United States' Department of Commerce Office. "Coal output and export trade to-day are approximately at pre-war levels," he asserted. "Iron and steel production is exceedingly high, considering the unresponsive state of important foreign markets. "Price indices generally have undergone a remarkable deflation and the cost of living there shows a reasonable stability. The unemployed in insured trades, at about 1,050,000, is little over one-half what it was in the worst post-war period. Finally, and very significantly, the British alone among leading European nations are balancing their budget."

WEST'S WEATHER MUCH IMPROVED HELPS FARMERS

Rain and Higher Temperature Have Contributed Greatly to Rapid Growth of Crops That Were Delayed In Seeding — Alberta Prospects Ideal.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 30 (Canadian Press).—Marked improvement in weather conditions throughout the Prairie Provinces has proved a welcome boon to the Western farmer generally.

Despite the lateness of the seeding operations and the unusually cold weather during the past month, recent rains and rise in temperature have contributed greatly to rapid growth.

Wheat seeding is completed in the three Provinces with the exception of a few isolated districts, while good progress is reported in the seeding of coarse grains.

Farmers in the Regina district report that crops are slightly ahead of last year, and in some districts wheat has reached the height of three inches.

In the Prince Albert district lack of precipitation has somewhat retarded growth, but rain is forecast.

The seasons crop prospects in Alberta are regarded as the most ideal in many years. A steady but gentle downpour of last week-end over a wide area proved very beneficial.

In Manitoba the crop is not much later than in former years, although the lateness of the seeding season materially reduced the acreage sown to wheat.

"There is ample time yet for the development of a good crop, and notwithstanding unfavourable weather conditions during the early spring no fear need be entertained concerning the crop," declared Premier John Bracen, Minister of Agriculture for Manitoba, following a visit through the Neepawa district.

HOSPITALS WIN THE CONFIDENCE OF UKRAINIANS

Only Way of Reaching Them Without Exciting Their Distrust, Says a Western Presbyterian Medical Missionary at Convention.

300,000 IN CANADA.

MONTREAL, May 30.—Inimical to all ideals of Canadian unity and promising to become in the future a serious menace are the strong nationalistic tendencies which are being kept alive and deliberately fostered among the hundreds of thousands of Ukrainians now settled in Western Canada, declared Dr. A. J. Hunter, for over 20 years a medical missionary to new Canadians who addressed the Women's missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in session here yesterday afternoon. In his opinion it was the chief problem with which Canada was faced. He asserted that Ukrainians were obbsessed by the idea that the Anglo-Saxons wished to "swallow them up." There was at present a bitter war being waged between the Greek Catholic and Ukrainian Orthodox churches, both of which united to point a finger at the evangelicals. To such they said "You follow the English, you are untrue to your people."

Dr. Hunter declared that Seventh Day Adventists and Russeliites were taking advantage of the existing confusion among the Ukrainians and were making tremendous headway. They were strongly armed with a profusion of literature in the Ukrainian language, something which the orthodox Protestant churches were sadly in need of.

"There are at least 300,000 Ukrainians in Canada and they are coming in rapidly still," said the speaker. "It is not an easy situation to deal with for their great fear is that the Anglo-Saxons are trying to obliterate them as a people."

The only way of reaching Ukrainians without exciting distrusts and hostility, was, said Dr. Hunter, by way of the hospital. Of that work at Teulon, Manitoba, where he is superintendent of the hospital, founded by the W.M.S. Dr. Hunter said it had cared for over 3,000 inpatients, while the numberof cases treated ran into the tens of thousands.

Immigrants Fill Jails on Border

MONTREAL, May 30.—(Canadian Press). — Immigrants smuggled by automobile across the Quebec border into the United States are filling northern New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine jails, organized "bootlegging" in aliens has been uncovered, stiff penitentiary terms are being handed out by United States courts to those caught and the United States immigration service is strengthening its frontier patrol.

Such is the situation today, as outlined by J. R. Clark, United States immigration commissioner for this district, who terms the problem facing his organization as "gigantic."

Mr. Clark pointed out that wartime passport regulations are still in force in the United States and that judges have the power to impose sentences for this offence of ten years in the penitentiary and a fine of $1,000.

MARX CABINET NOT COMPLETE

Chancellor's Negotiations With Nationalist Leaders Have Not Secured Agreement on Salient Questions

BERLIN, May 30 (Canadian Press). — A resolution of the Cabinet crisis is not looked for before Saturday, as Chancellor Marx has not yet constituted his negotiations with Dr. Hergt and other leaders of the German Nationalist Party.

Upon the acceptance by this party of the programme of internal and foreign politics to be drafted by the Middle parties depends the ultimate consummation of a coalition government comprising all the non-Socialistic parties except Ludendorff's so-called "Freedom Party."

The German Nationalists have tentatively agreed to enter a Cabinet headed by Dr. Marx, but no concurrence on outstanding issues, such as the Dawes report and questions of internal reforms, has yet been reached. These constitute the basis of the present inter-party negotiations in the course of which all discussion regarding the allotment of Cabinet posts is being avoided.

As Ascension Day is a legal holiday throughout Germany, the various Reichstag parties involved in the present negotiations deferred their caucuses until to-day.

The Nationalists are reported as showing less recalcitrance toward some of the conditions prescribed by the Middle parties as a pre-condition of their acceptance into the Government. Their party organs also reveal less open hostility to the Dawes report than during the early stages of the crisis.

CONCESSIONS REFUSED

Canadians Applied For Ten From Bolsheviki And Got None.

MOSCOW, May 30 (Canadian Press). — Canadians seeking concession in Soviet Russia will derive little encouragement from the declarations of M. Zinovieff before the Communist Party convention on Wednesday.

The chairman of the Communist International, told the delegates that Canada has six bids in for concessions, and that none had been granted.

Great Britain was granted 7 out of 141 applications, the United States 10 out of 101, and Italy with 25 bids, had none accepted.

Lindsay Town Hall Crowded With Citizens and People From Victoria Townships—Helen Stuart, Toronto Friend of Beatrice Fee, Too Nervous to Give Evidence—Will Be Called at Preliminary Trial of Prisoner — Declared Himself Insane After Brutal Crime.

JURY OUT HALF AN HOUR.

"We, the jury, empanelled to inquire into the death of Lillian Beatrice Fee, find that Fred McGaughey, of the Township of Ops, in the County of Victoria, on Sunday, 25th May, 1924, in the Township of Ops, in the County of Victoria, shot, killed, and murdered Lillian Beatrice Fee, against the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity."

LIDSAY, May 30. — The above was the verdict of the coroner's jury at the inquest here yesterday into the death of Lillian Beatrice Fee, the victim of one of the most sensational crimes in the history of Central Ontario.

The whole countryside sent its quota to add to the crowds that gathered in front of the Town Hall and clamoured for admission to the Council Chamber where the inquest was held.

Long before the hour of two o'clock, the Chamber was crowded, and among the auditors was a good-sized sprinkling of women. Dr. Logan, coroner, presided, and the hearing of the evidence was concluded shortly after five o'clock.

Shuddered at Blood Stains.

The relatives of the dead girl, as well as those of Fred McGaughey, were present in the Court, and a number of them were called to give evidence.

Nothing of a sensational nature, other than that already given publicity, was produced in the evidence.

A shudder went over the large gathering, however, when the blood-stained garments of the dead girl and those of Fred McGaughey, as well as the blood-stained cushions from the automobile were produced in Court.

Miss Stuart Not Called

County Crown Attorney Anderson conducted the examination of the witnesses while Messrs. Frost & Frost, solicitors, were present in the interests of Fred McGaughey.

Miss Helen Stuart of Toronto, the girl friend, of the late Beatrice Fee was not called upon yesterday to give evidence. Her nervous condition is such that it was deemed advisable not to call her, but it is understood that she will be present at the preliminary hearing next Wednesday.

A clash took place between Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson and Barrister Leslie C. Frost, representing the accused, when the latter objected to the method in which the inquest was being conducted and to the questions interposed relative to the sanity of the accused.

Many Exhibits

Many exhibits were produced by Provincial Officer Storey. The officer stated that the coat, trousers and under-drawers of McGaughey bore stains of blood, the clothes of Beatrice Fee were saturated with blood, and various parts of the car were spattered with blood. Bullet indentures were found in the body of the car, empty shells were found in the car, and on the ground where the struggle took place, five bullets were found in the magazine of McCaughey's gun and one in the barrel, three of which were blood-stained showing that he had reloaded the gun, paris green packages, a carbolic acid bottle, and a six ounce whiskey bottle, filled, were all exhibited. Officer Storey also told of the struggle made by McCaughey to take the paris green and that he repeatedly stated that he was crazy, knew he was crazy and wondered why others did not know it.

The jury was composed of B. L. McLean, foreman; Sam Howe, W. McWatters, A. F. Phalen, R. Lamb, Sandiland, J. W. Mitchell, W. Calvert.

Dr. Rich's Evidence

Dr. Rich, sworn, said: —"I have been practising in Lindsay for twelve years. I did not know Beatrice Fee previous to Sunday night, when I was called to the McGaughey home about 8.15 or 8.30 o'clock by Fred McGaughey. He told me it was urgent and to hurry. I received another 'phone call from McGaughey ten minutes later, telling me to hurry, so I went. —I went alone. I was met at the rear door of the house by Fred McGaughey, who said, "Come in, doctor, I believe I have shot a girl."

"He led me into the front room downstairs, and there lay Beatrice Fee. The only light was in this room. She was lying on the bed deathly pale. Her waist was torn from her side and the clothing was saturated. There was but a thin underyest separating her clothes from her wounds. She told me not to bother with her. On lifting the undervest I saw four bullet wounds. They were powder burned. I saw the wounds were not bleeding externally and I covered them. I 'phoned for the ambulance, gave her a hypo and told her to be as quiet as possible. Then Lawrence McGaughey came in, and seeing the excitement, asked what was wrong. He went into the room, followed by Fred. He asked me if she would recover, and I said: "Fred, she is serious." He pulled a revolver and said "I might as well end my life too." I said: "Don't do that," and Lawrence wrested the weapon from him. He could not walk straight and seemed to be in a repentant mood and was crying.

Five Bullet Wounds

Miss Stuart went into the bedroom and Lawrence and I talked of notifying the police. Fred was excitable. Just when I was leaving the house I saw Fred in the pantry, and told Lawrence to watch him, as he might be up to self destruction. I discovered four bullet wounds in the chest and one lower down, also an abrasion on the right knee. Fred McGaughey had a laceration on right hand. I noticed no blood stains on her clothing. Miss Fee may have made a statement as to what caused her injuries, but my mind was concentrated on the wounds, and did not recollect any statement. I remained in the ambulance with her on the way to Lindsay. At the hospital we examined her and found certain air in the tissues, due to wounds in the lung. There were a couple of wounds in the back where one bullet had passed through the body, and the other only made an abrasion. I called Dr. Logan in consultation and we kept her quiet and endeavored to relieve the hemorrhage as much as possible.

Dr. Moir Called

Monday morning I called Dr. Moir of Peterboro, at Mrs. Fee's request, and after I had advised the parents that I would like to have further medical consultation. She made a statement to Officer Storey Sunday evening late, but I do not recall it. To the Crown Attorney she said she thought she was going to die, that she had been out driving with Fred McGaughey and that he said "you have broken my heart and you won't break another man's." Death was caused from internal hemorrhage and nervous shock, caused by bullet wounds. She was an exceptionally well developed and good nourished body, excellent health and extraordinary vitality."

To Mr. Frost—"I arrived at the farm house about a quarter to nine o'clock." The postmortem statement will bring out the measurement of the wounds."

Dr. Moirs' Statement

Dr. Moir of Peterboro, sworn said: —"I never saw Beatrice Fee to my knowledge until I saw her in the

EXPLOSIONS CONTINUE IN BUCHAREST DUMPS

ATHENS, May 30 — (United Press). — Scattered explosions continued last night in Bucharest as a result of the fire in the munitions dumps on Wednesday, unconfirmed dispatches said to-day.

The fires are still smouldering in the devastated part of the city.

"Some reliable reports says the Communists are responsible for the disaster," the dispatches added, "and there has been a recruidescence of fears of a Russian invasion of Bessarabia."

ITALIANS GIVEN WARM FAREWELL

Heads of the Royal Houses of Windsor and Savoy Centre of Great Demonstration at Victoria Station, London.

LONDON, May 30 (Canadian Press). — The departure of the Italian sovereigns for Rome last evening was the occasion for great demonstrations not only by the Italian colony, but by the general public.

Large crowds gathered to cheer King Victor Emmanuel, Queen Helena, the Prine of Piedmont, and Princess Mafalda as they left Buckingham Palace, and at Victoria Station, where members of the British Royal Family gathered to bid them farewell.

The British party at the station included King George Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, Prince Henry, Prince George, Princess Beatrice, and Princess Louise.

The platform from which the Italian sovereigns departed was carpeted and decorated with red and white roses, and the national flags of Italy and Great Britain.

A detachment of 100 uniformed Fascisti was drawn up in double rank on the platform as a guard of honor.

The formal farewells were bidden in the waiting-room of the station, which was charmingly decorated for the occasion.

Queen Helena wore a long cloak and hat to match, both pale claret-coloured. Princess Mafalda wore white with a red hat. King George stood chatting with King Victor Emmanuel at the window of the royal railway car until the train started amid loud cheering and a Roman salute from the Fascisti.

CHICAGO, May 30 (Canadian Press). — Twenty-six persons were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury yesterday in connection with the removal from the Sibley bonded warehouse several months ago of 8,000 cases of liquor valued at more than $1,000,000 on forged Government permits.

Those indicted include Walter and Sheridan Clinnin, stock and bond dealers, and brothers of Col. John V. Clinnin, former U.S. Distict Attorney; Lieut. Michael Grady of the Chicago Detective Bureau ,and Chas. King, John Gibbons, William Smith, and Thomas Martin, all members of Grady's squad.

'BLUENOSE' MATE MAY LOSE BOND FOR RUM CARGO

Captain Amnon Zinck Undertook to Deliver Rum Shipment Under U. S. Seal to the Island of Miquelon But Has Re-appeared in Rum Row Off Boston.

COURTS TO DECIDE.

BOSTON, May 30 (Canadian Press). — "The Federal Courts will be asked to declare forfeited bond of $7,000 given in New Bedford by Captain Ammon Zinck, of Lunenburg, N.S., for safe delivery at St. Pierre, Miquelon, of a cargo of seized alcohol, it was announced yesterday at the Boston Customs.

Customs officers who returned here yesterday from New London, said they had visited the Canadian schooner Richard B. Silver, of which Zinck is skipper, on a rum row 14 1-2 miles south-east of Block Island, that the alcohol was still on board the vessel, and that Captain Zinck wanted to know what the United States Government was going to do about it.

Zinck sailed as mate on the Canadian schooner Bluenose in the International races at Halifax last year.

Cargo in Wreck.

The Silver cargo has been through adventures. When the Spanish schooner Expreso, Havana to St. Pierre, grounded on a shoal off the Cape Cod coast in April, some of her alcohol freight was washed ashore and gathered in by bottle fishermen and coastguardsmen, but the greater part remained on the wreck.

The coastguard cutter Acushnet later floated the schooner and towed it to New Bedford, where the liquor was stored.

Captain Zinck was chartered to take the alcohol out of the country. He gave a bond of $7,000, the hatches of his schooner were sealed, and the vessel was given clearance for St. Pierre.

Back on Rum Row.

Some days ago the Coastguard service reported the Silver on Rum Row near Block Island. Customs men from Boston went out from New London on the cutter Acushnet and verified the report. But Captain Zinck refused to let the visitors on board his vessel. He pointed to the position of the schooner, and said he was within his rights.

THORNTON NOT YET APPRISED

Of Plans to Test Cost of Hauling Alberta Coal to Ontario.

DISCUSSED MONDAY

MONTREAL, May 30.—(Canadian Press).—No overtures have yet been made to him by the Ontario Government in connection with a proposal for testing the cost of hauling coal from Alberta to Ontario, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, stated here yesterday afternoon, when asked to comment on the newspaper report of a scheme said to have been formulated at a conference held in Toronto on Monday last. If Premier Ferguson wished to discuss the matter, Sir Henry said he would be very glad to see him and re-open the entire question.

The subject was discussed at a meeting on Monday of Premier Ferguson, Earl Lawson, G. H. Kilmer, K.C., and Col. Gordon, the Ontario Government's representatives in connection with the investigation going on into the Alberta coal rates. It is announced that Ontario and Alberta are jointly about to submit to Sir Henry Thornton a new scheme in order to get a reasonable freight rate on Canadian coal. The proposal is that two solid train-loads of Alberta coal be sent east and made the basis of a test for transportation costs. If the cost works out at less than $7 per ton the Ontario Government will pay this sum to the Canadian National Railways. If the cost works out at more than $7 per ton it is proposed to have the Dominion Government work out the difference.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE TO VISIT MACDONALD

LONDON, May 30. — (Canadian Press).—Premier MacDonald has invited President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State and Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, to spend the week-end at Chequers Court for further discussion of the Ulster boundary question, according to the Daily Mail, which adds that it believes both will accept.

It is probable that Dominion judges will be asked to co-operate with British judges in deciding the powers of the British Government in the matter.

MEMORIAL DAY IS NATIONAL HOLIDAY

NEW YORK, May 30.—(Canadian Press).—To-day—Memorial Day in honor of soldiers who died in the Great War—was observed as a national holiday throughout the United States. In all cities parades of veterans and ceremonies in which soldiers' graves were decorated, held first place. Flags were flown at half-mast throughout the country.

While the morning was given over to a large extent to memorial services, the afternoon, as has become the custom, was given over to sports. In the eastern states the day officially opens the summery season, and summer resorts reported an influx of visitors from the cities.

MRS. JOHN RUSSELL WINS APPEAL CASE

LONDON, May 30. — (Canadian Press). — House of Lords to-day granted the appeal of Hon. Mrs. John Russell from divorcee decree awarded after jury trial in March, 1923 to her husband, son and heir of Lord Ampthill. House adopted Lord Birkenhead's motion to effect that court findings that she was guilty of misconduct with an unknown, alleged to be father of her youngest child, and consequently decree of divorce could not stand. Mrs. Russell's claim that her husband was a somnambulist was novel feature of case that has caused it to be widely followed.

THE GUMPS—COME AND GET ME

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, May 29.—The Cobourg Methodist Church, under the pastorate and leadership of Rev. R. F. Stillman, formerly of Omemee, has had a year of outstanding usefulness and success, as reports at the annual congregational meeting, just held, abundantly show. The total receipts for the year were over $13,000. There is also an increase in membership of over fifty.

Mr. J. E. Skidmore, treasurer, presented the financial statement, showing a gratifying result in this way for the year just past.

Dr. Garland reported for the weekly offering and connexional funds, which have been well supported, Mr. John Morrow reported for the Sunday School showing a decided increase in the attendances and in the offerings for missions. Miss Joy Nichols reported for the Young People's League, which raised $235 for the support of Dr. W. E. Smith in the foreign field. Mrs. E. Guillet reported for the Women's Missionary Society, showing there also an increase in membership and in givings. The report of the Ladies' Aid, as submitted to the Quarterly Board, was presented by Mr. W. H. Hopper, and showed this society to be among the most active in the church. Mrs. M. E. Hall reported for the Mothers' Department, showing that it is doing a good and much-needed work. Mrs. W. H. Hopper reported for the Home Department of the Sunday School how progressive work is being carried on. Miss Edith Kerr reported for the Mission Circle, which has an increase in membership and in its missionary offering. Miss Athinson reported for the Mission Band, where excellent work has been done. Mr. M. E. Hall reported for the choir, which is in a highly satisfactory condition, and Mr. A. Jewell for the Sunday School orchestra, an organization of which every one is proud Reports were not given, but reference was made to the good work that is being carried on among the girls and boys, the latter in connection with the Tuxis Square and the Trail Rangers. Mr. A. J. Gould, pew steward, reported also for his department. The recording steward, Mr. W. H. Hopper, who was also the secretary of the evening, summed up the different reports, showing how highly satisfactory and encouraging they were when put into concrete form. Other officials spoke in a congratulatory way of the year's progress.

Church Attendance.

The special committee appointed to report on church attendance gave their finding and conclusions as follows:—

"That each pastor and his official members at the next regular meeting of the several official boards devote some time to a prayerful and careful consideration of the matter of attendance at our Sunday services, seeking to discover the causes of non-attendance on the part of many, and then make an honest effort to remove these causes.

"That non-churchgoers be approached either by personal contact or by letter to secure from them a statement if possible why they do not attend church, and to offer suggestions as to how in their estimation the services of the Sabbath may be made more attractive and helpfu

"That each pastor consider the importance of organizing a 'Junior Congregation' or a 'League of Young Worshippers' as a means of increasing church attendance.

"That in churches where pew rents are taken, we strongly urge the advisability of considering the adoption of free pews, and making other provision for the revenue now derived from such rents.

"That we urge upon our members the duty of cultivating a spirit of christian sociability in all the services, and that men and women be appointed to stand in turn at the entrances to welcome strangers and casual worshippers.

"That a copy of these suggestions be forwarded to each pastor and recording steward in this Cobourg district."

The officers of the Cobourg District are:—

Chairman: Rev. F. W. White.
Financial Secretary: Rev. R. F. Stillman.
Journal Secretary: Rev. J. G. McKee.

ALIENS SMUGGLE INTO THE STATES

Ring Operates on the Canadian Side It Is Claimed.

(By Roy J. Gibbons.)

DETROIT, May 30. — Hundreds of aliens, denied admission to the United States through legal channels are "bootlegged" across the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers every night, declares P. L. Prentis, in charge of the 11th immigration district.

He does not attempt to estimate the number smuggled across the line ... near Detroit, which is believed to be one of the principal ... for such activities.

... methods are used to "... g" aliens into the United ...

... own ring on the Canadian side ... orts aliens at from $10 to $25 ... across the river in small ...

These smugglers have recently become so bold that they carry on ... operations in broad daylight.

Other aliens effect an entrance by posing as American citizens when they arrive on the numerous ferry boats plying between Detroit and Canada.

These ferries carry monthly 500,000 passengers.

Great numbers of other foreigners are hidden in box cars on the Canadian side, and after passing through the Michigan Central Railway tunnel under the Detroit River, make good their escape hundreds of miles from the border.

Dr. Prentis says that he is powerless to check this "back door" entrance.

He has but 54 employees to help him. Most of this force is detailed to clerical duty.

Inspectors, hard to find, because of the inadequate salaries paid, are all needed at the ferry slips to examine passengers dumped upon the American side at five minute intervals.

Immigration inspectors stationed at the ferry docks are faced with a tremendous task.

Playing at the game of "guess who I am if you are able" these agents must make pretense of sorting the multitude.

Oftentimes there is nothing in the appearance of mixed English stock arriving from Canada to differentiate them from typical American citizens who have crossed for a holiday and are permitted to return without a passport.

That is why inspectors resort to canny tricks to aid them in their trade.

Canadians trying to pass the gates for other purpose than to work in Detroit factories are spotted, the inspectors say, by mail order house variety of clothing and ruddy complexions.

Canadians also wear their hats straight while Americans nearly always pull theirs down with some degree of rakish tilt.

With an actual coast line of almost 300 miles, extending from Sheboygan, Mich., to Port Clinton, O., for which he is held responsible, Dr. Prentis has only two inspectors for patrol duty at night. He has no boats or armed forces.

Deportations are few because hardly any of the smuggled aliens are caught.

The law permits any foreigner who has lived across the border for five years to come to the United States.

Many aliens who have lived in Canada but a few months try to get by under this provision with forged credentials and affidavits testifying to their longer residence.

Canadian hotel keepers have told Prentis that numerous smuggling rings in Canada were ruining their business by openly soliciting aliens arriving from Canadian seaports and herd them into concentration camps until an opportunity presented for ferreting them across to the American side.

"The situation is grievous and has been so for years," Dr. Prentis informs.

"I have no doubt but that smuggling operations will be redoubled during the present year due to the recent Congressional action cutting down the number of aliens permitted to enter through legal channels.

"Canadian officials, however, are rendering every sort of assistance and co-operation to help us check the traffic.

"They are handicapped, though, because they cannot prevent any person leaving their country who has gained legal entrance.

"There is scarcely any sort of adequate patrol to prevent crossing.

"Just now, the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers seem to be the hunting ground of the numerous smuggling rings which we know are thriving from a prosperous business in contraband aliens."

ADMIRALTY TO REQUIRE YACHT

"Enchantress" To Be Recommissioned For July Review Of The Fleet.

HOUSE OBJECTIONS

LONDON, May 30 (Canadian Press Cable). — A statement made in the House of Commons yesterday by Charles Ammon, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, in reply to a question that the Admiralty yacht Enchantress was to be put in commission again in ten days in order to allow the Board of Admiralty officially to attend the review of the Fleet in July, and to inspect the ships, led to a torrent of questions being asked.

George Lansbury, Labour member, wanted to know why the Labour Government required a yacht which the Coalition Government had laid up.

Secretary Ammon replied that it was not the Government, but the Admiralty that required the yacht. He mentioned that the cost involved in recommissioning the Enchantress would be £700.

Neil MacLean, Labour, asked whether this money could not be put to better use in other ways.

Mr. Ammon said it would be very much cheaper to use the Enchantress for the purpose mentioned than if the members of the Admiralty Board attended the review by other means.

This explanation was greeted with laughter.

McCrimmon, who is 70 years old, is being held by the police pending the coroner's verdict.

VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY

hospital Monday afternoon. She was straining a great deal to vomit, and looked very much collapsed. Her circulation was poor, her face pinched, and she looked etxremely ill. Her pulse was running at 150. The wounds, four in the front of the body, one five inches below the right nipple, two over the lower part of the breast bone, and one three and a half inches below the left breast. One bullet escaped through the back, another bullet being in the back, but not through the skin. There were bruises on the left arm and a flesh wound on the index finger of the right hand. She looked as if she was going to die, and an operation would have been certain. I was there for two hours. Her pulse was going to 160. I heard her make her statement to the Crown Attorney. Her general physical condition, I would say, was good previous to her injuries. She said Sunday afternoon she was at Wilburt Fee's and Fred McGaughey called on her and she went for a ride. She said they did not agree very much in the afternoon, for he had not kept a promise to her. He wanted her to marry him, but she said she would return on July 1st. He did not believe her, and said she had broken his heart and would not live to break another. He fired one shot at her and she snatched the gun away, but he got it again and fired another.

Provincial Officer Storey

Officer H. Storey:—"I was called about ten o'clock Sunday night by Lawrence McGaughey, who said there had been an accident and I had better come at once. I got there at 10.30. Lawrence McGaughey and Miss Stuart were there. I met the ambulance on the way out. Fred McGaughey was there. Lawrence told me he took the gun from Fred. Fred was walking about kitchen in a very nervous state. He said there had been a hold-up, but later he had said he had shot her. Fred took me to the car were I had found blood stains on the front seat and three empty bullet shells. These were found in the front part of the car. I found another bullet on the left foot board of the car. It was unexploded, but was hit by the hammer. I found two marks on the instrument board, apparently bullet marks. The blood stains on the cushions were on the right side. Blood stains were found on the steering wheel, on the running board and on the curtains. The curtains were all around the car. Lawrence McGaughey went to the wood pile and brought me the gun. It was loaded with six live cartridges It is a 25 automatic pistol, Italian make. Five bullets were in the magazine and one in the barrel. The cartridge in the barrel had been struck by the hammer, but had not exploded.

Shouted He was Crazy

Fred admitted that it was his gun, and that he had it for two years and said he carried it because he carried lots of money. He began shouting that he was crazy and was excited. I said he had to come with me and he walked to the car. I saw him fumbling in his pocket, and becoming suspicious, I grabbed him and he fought and said: "I want to die— I want to die." I got a package of Paris Green from him. On the way to Lindsay he kept saying he was crazy, always knew he was, but people did not seem to think he was. At the jail I searched him and found another bullet in his vest pocket. There was also a six ounce bottle of liquor in his hip pocket. He was under the influence of liquor when I got to the house. He did not stagger but he smelt strongly of liquor. I returned to the McGaughey home that same night, and found blood stains on the floor. Mrs. Fee and her brother Clarence McGaughey arrived then. Next day I went to the McGaughey home and found blood stains from the car through the house to the bedroom. The telephone book was also blood stained at the page where Dr. Rich's number is located.

Found Carbolic Acid

I also found a small bottle of carbolic acid at the gate, and Clarence said the bottle had been in the barn and had been full when he last saw it. I found in a drawer in the accused's room another cartridge box, empty. A lady's hat was found in the rear seat of the car. Afterwards I went south of the McGaughey home, and a mile and a quarter away on the west side of the road, I found stains on a rock and car marks there An ear-ring was found by Mr. Walden and handed ot me. I found a lady's brooch at the same place and another exploded shell, blood-stained The track of the car could be seen off the beaten path. The markings compared with those on the McGaughey car."

The clothing of the deceased girl was exhibited in the court and identified by the witness. The same was badly blood-stained. The clothing of Fred McGaughey was also exhibited showing blood stains on the coat, the trousers and the underwear. A letter adressed to Mr. F. W. McGaughey from 130 Bleeker street, Toronto, was found in the clothing of the girl.

Performed Autopsy

Dr. Mulligan, sworn, said he performed the postmortem examination on Beatrice Fee in the presence of the corner, Dr. Rich and Mr. A. J. Birchard. The general condition of health showed good development and a healthy individual.

Mr. Frost—"Was there much burning around the bullet wounds, especially the one near where the crescent shaped scar was? Answer—Yes.

Lawrence McGaughey.

Lawrence McGaughey, sworn, said: I consider either Lindsay, Wilbur Fee's house at Omemee, or my old farm home, as my home. I have known Beatrice Fee or some time, a passing acquaintance for nine or ten years. I did not know that Fred and Beatrice were engaged until a short time ago, when Fred told me. Fred is 32 years of age. He has been living on the homestead of 50 acres He has lived there all his life, and has been running the farm since father died. My brother Clarence has been with him. Mother was there part of the time and part of the time they were "batching." I stopped there occasionally. Fred was right-handed.

Did you ever known him to be not right in his head

No; although sometimes he would pick up things as quietly as the rest of us. I never saw any trace of insanity in him.

Did he act strangely? Answer — No.

Likely he has been addicted to the use of liquor more so than usual?

I don't know.

On May 25th he came to my brother-in-law's, Wilbur Fee's. He was accompanied by my mother. I was not talking to him at the time. Beatrice Fee was there before he arrived, with Miss Stuart of Toronto. Fred and Beatrice left about 2:45 o'clock. The four of us (Beatrice, Miss Stuart, Fred and myself) were to meet for supper at Vincent Fee's.

Didn't Notice Liquor.

What condition was Fred in at the time?

Answer — Just ordinary; he seemed to be all right. I noticed no liquor. I never saw him again till the next afternoon. Miss Stuart and myself went to Vincent Fee's for supper, and the others did not come. After supper I went to the old homestead for mail, and Miss Stuart was with me. We got there about 8:30 o'clock. That is a guess at the time. I drove up, turned the car ready to go back, went to the house and left Miss Stuart in the car. I saw the light in the front room, but it did not seem unusual, and I picked up my mail, and then went into the room, and saw Dr. Rich with Beatrice. I was dazed, but the doctor told me. Miss Fee asked me if Helen was there, and I brought her in.

What did Fred say?

He kept saying, "I'm crazy; I'm crazy!"

I then telephoned Miss Fee's father and also my brother-in-law, telling him to bring Mr. Fee along. When I went back to the room Helen and Beatrice were talking. Dr. Rich advised me not to say any more to her. I saw Fred with the gun. He was looking at it, and I jumped and caught his arm, twisted his fingers, and when it fell I picked it up. Fred said: "I might as well shoot myself." I then hid the gun, and then phoned Mr. Storey. I recollect Miss Fee calling "Helen! Helen!" and I went south of the McGaughey home, and a mile and a quarter away on the west side of the road, I found stains on a rock and car marks there An ear-ring was found by Mr. Walden and handed ot me. I found a lady's brooch at the same place and another exploded shell, blood-stained The track of the car could be seen off the beaten path. The markings compared with those on the McGaughey car."

Do you remember Miss Fee giving Helen her wrist watch. Answer — No.

Did you hear Miss Fee say to Fred, "Look what you have done," when she showed her wounds Answer—No, sir.

After Miss Fee had been taken away in the ambulance, what did Fred say when you asked him what he had done? Answer—"I shot her, and I'm crazy."

Did Fred say, "I cannot tell the police I shot her—I'll say it was a hold-up?" Answer—I didn't hear him say that then, but when Mr. Storey arrived Fred repeatedly said he wanted to die.

How long has he had a gun? Answer—Perhaps three or four years. I did not think that he ever carried it. I saw blood stains on the seat of the car, on the cushion, the steering wheel, curtains and the running board.

Counsel's Objection.

Thomas Currins said he lived directly across the road from the McGaughey farm. He had known Fred 15 or 16 years.

When witness was asked by Crown Attorney Anderson if he saw anything strange in McGaughey's actions, Mr. I. Frost registered an objection, claiming that the Crown or solicitor for Fred McGaughey had no status at the inquest. Matters concerning McGaughey's sanity were out of order, he claimed. The inquest was for the purpose of inquiring into the cause of death of Beatrice Fee.

Crown Attorney Andeson held that a crime was committed and it was necessary to ascertain whether the crime was manslaughter or murder. It was necessay to get all the facts. It is not a question of sanity.

Mr. Frost — The duty of the coroner's jury is to find out how Beatrice Fee came to her death. The procedure introduced by the County Crown Attorney should be followed at the preliminary hearing of the accused and not at the inquest. It was ridiculous, he declared, to ask the witness (Currins) if McGaughey was sane or otherwise. He was not an expert.

Mr. Anderson — Mr. Currins, have you ever seen Fred McGaughey acting in an abnormal way? Answer—No. I never saw Fred on May 25th. The report in the paper that I did see him was an error.

Saw Signs of Liquor.

Clarence McGaughey, sworn, said —I will be 21 next December. I have no knowledge of the relationship existing between Fred and Miss Fee. I left home on May 25th about 6.30 o'clock. Before I left home I saw Miss Fee when she came into the house.

What was Fred's condition at the time?

He appeared all right to me.

Had he been drinking?

I could tell he had by the look in his eyes. He was walking and talking all right. I have never seen anything strange or abnormal about him. They were outside the house when I left, getting the car.

Was there any quarreling while you were there?

Yes, I was coming from the barn and heard some loud talking as they were in the car in the garage. I thought something was wrong. I thought there was no danger in leaving Fred with Miss Fee. I returned about 11 o'clock, when they were taking Fred away. I saw blood stains on the car; also in the house. I knew he had the gun for two years. He carried it once or twice. I have seen him practicing with the gun—shooting at cans.

Neighbor Heard Shots.

I live a mile south from where Fred McGaughey resides. I never saw him on Sunday, May 25th. I heard a few shots that evening—four or five shots. This was about 7:15 or 7.45 o'clock. I heard two or three shots at one time, and later on three more, ten or fifteen minutes later. The sound came from the road. I could see the back of the car on the road. It was stationary. I was down there where the car was on Monday night and found earring; also some drops of blood there. Mr. Waldon and my brother, Farquhar Parrington were with me. I have known Fred McGaughey for three years.

What do you consider his condition?

Mr. Frost again objected to the question, which the coroner allowed.

Witness—I have never seen Fred in any condition that would mean he was mentally unsound.

Also Heard Firing.

Thomas Walden, sworn—I live about 50 rods from Fred McGaughey's home. I did not see him on May 25th. I heard two rifle shots about 8 o'clock. The firing seemed to be close. Monday night I went down with Mr. Parrington where he saw the car. We saw some blood and Mr. Parrington picked up an earring on the grond. I gave it to Officer Storey. Also a piece of a button.

Coroner Logan gave a short resume of the evidence and the jury retired, returning in half an hour with the verdict.

CANADA'S RAILWAYS.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham's statement on the Canadian National Railways, indicating that in spite of strong competition and many drawbacks it is on the road to success, will be gratifying to the people of Canada.

The net earnings of the people's own system on the lines in Canada and on the Grand Trunk Western last year amounted to $20,236,563.09, an increase of $17,349,851.54, while the net earnings on the whole system were $21,187,462.70, as compared with $3,-993,237.12 in 1922.

The result is that Parliament will be asked to vote $65,000,000 to meet fixed charges, while the last fiscal year saw $96,000,000 voted for the same purpose.

Sir Henry Thornton is making good on one of the most difficult propositions in the history of railway management.

The figures quoted by the Minister of Railways prove this beyond a doubt, and there is every reason for Canadians to be optomistic in regard to the future of their immense railway system.

The National Railways are not out of the woods yet by any means, but the end of the trees is in sight.

If the President is given a fair chance the worst is over, and a continual procession of favourable annual statements can be anticipated.

WAS HE TRAPPED?

If the facts in connection with the alleged trapping of a young Otonabee man into a breach of the Fisheries Act are as represented to the Examiner, the officials who are responsible should hear something from the men higher up.

The Examiner firmly believes in a rigid enforcement of the game and fishery laws.

The natural resources of the district in this respect should be protected and conserved, for many tourists are attracted by prospects of good fishing, and everybody knows that a brisk tourist traffic has a stimulating effect upon trade and upon general conditions.

But if the young man in the incident referred to, the particulars of which are given in another column, was virtually coaxed by an inspector to break the law under a plea of return for a friendly turn done him some time before, there is every justification for suggesting that there are enough law-breakers at work in the waters of the district to keep the officials busy without addfng to their numbers by having inspectors beguile boys into committing infractions of the Act.

The victim in this case, it is claimed, is not a fisherman, but because he thought he was returning a favour he did commit a breach of the Act and was caught.

The activity of the officials might better be directed toward the capture of habitual and systematic offenders than devoted toward laying traps for those who have hitherto been above suspicion, as it is declared happened in the case under review.

It is claimed that fish illegally caught are being sold every day in Peterborough.

Where do the fish come from and who are the men who are making money out of the transactions?

Some action in these cases would do much to protect the fishing resources.

THE ORIENTAL INVASION.

The greatest difficulty that confronts a Federal Government in a country of such a vast expanse as Canada is the diversity of sectional problems that arise, problems that are of the greatest significance in one section of the Dominion but of no moment to people elsewhere.

Take the Oriental problem in British Columbia, for example.

Down here in Ontario we hear little or nothing of the grievance—and we know few of the facts in regard to the Oriental invasion of the coast.

Yet it is a real live issue in British Columbia, to such an extent that we find all three parties, the Liberals, the Conservatives and the new Provincial Party, all pledging themselves to take steps to see that the coast Province is made a "white man's country."

Some of the figures offered are interesting.

They show that of a total of 16,060 Japanese in Canada 15,868 are resident in British Columbia.

The Chinese population of Canada in 1921 numbered 39,587, and 23,533 were domiciled on the Pacific Coast.

The birth rate among the Orientals is high, the Japanese births for the first three months of this year numbering 242, and Oriental births registered last year amounted to 1,226, or over ten per cent. of all births recorded in British Columbia.

Two thousand, two hundred and seventy-five industrial firms in the Province employ 5,691 Chinese, 3,288 Japanese, 784 Hindus and 70 Japanese women. In the logging industry, for example, 7 1-2 per cent. of the employees are Orientals; in the saw-mill industry, 39 per cent.; in the shingle industry, 54 per cent.; in the fish canning industry, 39 per cent.

White farmers are facing increased competition from the Orientals, and the Attorney-General of British Columbia is authority for the statement that Oriental farmers produce 55 per cent. of the agricultural crop of the Province.

The figures show some good ground for the complaint of the people of British Columbia.

DENTISTS' SERVICES.

The meeting of the Ontario Dental Association this year is of special interest to the general public, says the Hamilton Spectator. Yesterday particulars of the new treatment for pyorrhea, for which Dr. Box is responsible, were announced, and it is definitely stated that it belongs "in the category of curable diseases." If that is so, the Toronto dentist has earned the unfeigned gratitude of his fellow-men. Few people are exempt from the ravages of this disease, especially those who hafe attained middle life, and if a cure has really been discovered, it will mean the salvation of innumerable teeth, and consequently improved digestion and health, to say nothing of appearance.

Only this week, however, at this same gathering of dentists, considerable criticism was made by one of the speakers of the practice of extracting sound teeth because of their possible connection with symptoms of ill-health. It was said that in many cases such extraction was absolutely unnecessary, and that wrong diagnoses were frequent. Reading such frank statements as these, the public is naturally apt to lose confidence. A tooth gone is gone forever, and it is certainly disconcerting to be told by the experts that it ought never to have been sacrificed. Mistakes are made, of course; dentists and physicians are not infallible; but when one comes to reckon up the gains and losses; it will be generally agreed that the debt owing to these skilled practitioners is inestimable. New boons are being continually conferred through their patient researches, and disease is being steadily subdued. This the public realizes full well, though now and again an authority may arise to disturb us with his diatribes against the use of the toothbrush or his condemnation of needless extraction.

CENTRAL PARK.

The Examiner has always taken a sympathetic attitude towards healthful recreation, believing that it is good business from a civic viewpoint to encourage the development of athletics in various forms and to provide as far as possible facilities for the devotees of the different sports to indulge in their favourite pastime.

There should be more recreation grounds and athletic fields at the service of the community than there are at present.

At the same time, however, the application of the lawn bowlers to be given the use of a section of Central Park, which they propose to fence off and on which they would erect a club-house, should be very carefully examined by the city fathers.

Friendly as is the Examiner toward the general question of recreation facilities, there is very grave doubt as to the wisdom of allowing such use as is proposed by the bowlers to be made of Central Park.

That park should be one of the beauty spots of the city, surrounded as it is by a number of the largest public buildings in Peterborough.

It is worthy of much more attention in this respect than it has been accorded, and the plan of fencing off a portion of it for the purpose of enclosing a bowling green does not fit in very well with what should be the general scheme of beautification of this property.

Were the bowlers to be allowed to carry out their plans the next move would be an application from tennis devotees for permission to establish courts in Central Park, and this square, which should be taken in hand and made a real beauty spot, would eventually develop into an athletic ground.

Recreation facilities should be provided, and the lawn bowlers have as much right to consideration as the followers of any sport.

But Central Park is not the logical site for these facilities—there are surely other locations that would not mean sacrificing a park that could easily be made a show-place.

CANADA'S STATUS.

Of course it is impossible in this Lausanne business for Mr. King to cause half as much perturbation in London as Mr. Meighen did over the Japanese Treaty. The issues at stake are not as vital. When Mr. Meighen went to London, the British Government was anxiously peparing for the Washington Disarmament Conference; and the only article of value it had in its hands with which to bargain in Washington was the Japanese Alliance which the Americans feared and distrusted. The British Government, we may safely assume from subsequent events, had no intention of keeping that alliance permanently, but it planned to "sell" it to the Americans for coveted naval concessions.

Then Mr. Meighen, the Canadian Premier, arrived and sought to strike it out of their hands. It was generally understood that the time for its renewal was near; but Mr. Meighen declared vociferously that Canada did not want it to be renewed. He aligned Canada with the United States. Obviously Great Britain could not threaten to renew a treaty with a Pacific power which Canada vigorously opposed. So it was killed for trading purposes at Washington. Or it would have been if the ingenious Lord Birkenhead had not discovered that it really had another year to run.

Canada is certainly "a great help to Mother" in international politics.

* * * *

There is just one other point which is perhaps worth the making. It is, of course, utter nonsense for any one to talk as if Canada could decde for herself whether or not she is bound by the Lausanne Treaties.

This will be clearly seen if we substitute the United States for Turkey as "the party of the other part"—simply for purposes of illustration and not at all worth the remotest notion that such a condition could arise. Let us then suppose that Canada declared that a treaty between the United States and the British Empire did not bind Canada. Let us further suppose that this Anglo-American Treaty led to war—as the Lausanne Treaties may.

Does any one imagine that Canada could say: "This treaty never did bind me. Therefore I am not at war with the United States. But I shall, of course, remain within the British Empire."

What would the Americans say? We fancy they would say: "You Canadians can leave the British Empire. We will even send an army up to help you leave it. But you cannot remain British and be at peace at the same time. If you are still a part of the British Empire after the war, we must in self-defence try to occupy your territory with an army and try to keep you as a spoil of the victory we expect to win."

In two words, Canada can go out of the British Empire; but Canada cannot stay in the Empire, pocket all the profits of that connection, and then blandly refuse to be bound by British Empire obligations.—Montreal Star.

The Key To Prosperity

An Advertisement to Young Men

Carnegie, Rockefeller, Hill—financiers who have succeeded in a marked degree—say that the key to prosperity is the ability to save in youth.

John Wanamaker laid the foundation of his colossal fortune with the proceeds of his endowment insurance policies.

No other method of saving has been found superior to the endowment policy. It involves almost compulsory saving, yet if taken out in The Mutual Life with the splendid annual dividends applied to reduce the premiums, the policy is not difficult to carry. Certainly not too difficult for a young man who is determined to succeed.

At the end of the term of the policy—say 10 years, 15 years, or 20 years—the principal is available for re-investment. It becomes a partner to toil night and day for you and to help you to success.

You Can Eat Anything You Like And Not Have HEARTBURN

In all cases of heartburn there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by a disturbed appetite, as when too much food is taken into the stomach it is liable to ferment and become extremely sour, vomiting occurs, and what is thrown up is generally sour and bitter. When you are in this condition you will find that Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will give you relief right away.

Mr. Joseph H. MacDonald, Christmas Island, N.S., writes:—"Two years ago I suffered all the time from heartburn. I took one vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and have never been troubled since.

It is very nice to be able to eat anything you like and not have heart burn any more."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ment in the brief space of four months to have carried out large productive schemes of electrification, afforestation and so on, but said he would test the sincerity of the Opposition by introducing a bill to take compulsory powers for afforestation. Finally, the Prime Minister declared he would treat the vote as a question of confidence and would be quite ready to meet his opponents on the platforms of the country.

"Time To Turn Around"

No sooner had the Prime Minister spoken than the Liberals all left the House to hold a consultative meeting, with the result that former Premier Asquith, the Liberal Leader, came back, and amid ironical cheers from the Conservatives, made a speech in which he said he found additional knowledge of the Government's intentions from Mr. MacDonald's speech. He declared his willingness to give the Government "more time to turn around."

In the courses of a long and argumentative speech, Mr. Asquith said that although he had no reason to love the Labor Party, he was not anxious to pay off old scores or to indulge in rancor. Rather, he desired to give them fair play and an opportunity to contribute whatever they could to the settlement of the national problem.

Lady Astor contended that the Government had made a mess and ought to clear it up. She added that if she thought the vote would overthrow the Government, she would support the Government.

Captain Frederick Guest, who, although a Liberal, is a determined opponent of the Labor Government, warned the House that if it allowed the Labor Party to go to the country at its own time, the House ran the risk of having Labor returned with an independent majority.

Electric railways demand a density of population of 1,500 per mile of track for profitable operation, but one-sixth of this is ample for motor 'buses.

OTONABEE SCHOOLS HAD A CONVENTION

Sunday School Annual Meeting Elected Rev. F. J. Chorley President.

The Otonabee Township Sunday School Association held its annual convention last Friday at the Sixth Line School House, with Mr. S. Matchett of River Road School, presiding, and Mr. W. D. Edwards, of Keene Methodist, as secretary. Sessions were held at 2.30 and 7.30 between which the ladies of Sixth Line Union School provided a splendid outdoor supper, which the weather fortunately made thoroughly enjoyable. Delegations were present from all the Sunday Schools in the Township, and their reports were highly satisfactory, as was revealed by the chart. Short addresses were given at both sessions by the various superintendents, and music by the Misses and Mrs. Dr. Harrison in the afternoon, and the mixed quartette and Messrs. Millar at night.

The special speaker of the day was Rev. Manson Doyle, B.A., Young People secretary for the Methodist Church and also for the O.R.E.C., who explained admirably the interrelationship between the co-operating bodies, and reported that a largely attended gathering in Chicago, when experts examined all schemes of religious education, the verdict was given to the Canadian as being most workable and in accordance with best psychological and pedagogical principles.

His evening address on "Re-centreing the Life," will be long remembered, as also his happy faculty of using apt illustrations.

The convention will meet next year at River Road School, with the following officers elected for the year:—

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

JAPS ALLEGE KOREAN PLOT

To Bomb British And United Consulates. Seoul.

SPECIAL GUARDS

TOKIO, May 30. —Discovery of an alleged Korean plot to bomb the British and United States' Consulates in Seoul, (Korea), is causing some uneasiness there, press despatches indicate.

Semi-official confirmation has been made to a report that special guards have been posted at the United States Consulate.

It is said that the guard will be kept there for the present. It is learned that the United States Consul has been advised directly as well as by the Japanese police of the alleged plot.

The bombing plan is believed by officials to have originated with the Korean "provisional government," which was formed in 1919 in Shanghai by Koreans opposed to Japanese rule in the native country.

Every effort is being made by officials to prevent any outrage against the United States Consulate at Seoul, fearing any such incident would be particularly troublesome at the present time, due to the exchanges between the two governments resulting from passage of the United States' immigration law.

President Beatty Of C.P.R. Says Western Route Will Grow In Importance.

CALGARY, Alta., May 30.—President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who passed through Calgary on Thursday afternoon on his return from the coast, remarked that the western route was bound to become increasingly important. If the requisite ocean tonnage was steadily available, he said, and the facilities at Vancouver would get considerable European business especially in grain, in addition to that which would naturally go through it to the Orient and South America.

Conditions at the coast, he said, were excellent, although the lumbering business had fallen off.

WOMAN'S MOTOR HOST PAY FOR RUINED SMILE

PARIS, May 29.—If by careless driving when out with a perfect lady you get her into an accident that robs of her of her smile, you'll pay for it, and if the lady in question is a professional smiler, it comes pretty high here in France.

Twenty thousand francs is what Mme. Jane Lugau, a musical comedy actress, has just received as damages from her motoring escort of a year ago. The smashup she figured in left her with scars on the right ear, the forehead and the lips. In sewing up the last-named wounds, the face was so contorted as to make Mme. Lugau's famed footlight smile a thing of the past. Hence the lawsuit.

France Worries Over Its Falling Birthrate

PARIS, May 30 (United Press).—"Born in 1922, 760,000 French against 1,450,000 German children."

This is not only statistical, but it is a catch-line employed by the National Alliance for the Increase of the French population, on circulars distributed about the country. The Alliance has organised a vigorous campaign for laws encouraging natality and the propagation of large families.

Nearly 100,000 placards have been printed and distributer by the Alliance, which is an organisation inspired solely to combat the decrease in the birth-rate of France. One represents a Frenhc child cunningly guarding a small cake in its tiny arms, while beside him is a chubby German child, twice his size, coveting the cake.

The placards point out that in 1922 France was behind Italy in registered births, the latter claiming 1,600,000 and also Japan, which registered 1,900,000.

In discussing the situation the Matin says:

"The position of France in regard to natality becomes more and more critical, while the Germans declare every day that they will take their revenge when our population becomes sufficiently weakened."

Window shades may be cleaned by leaving them on the roll and gradually unwinding as one wipes carefully on both sides. If this is done occasionally there will be no need for special cleaning.

SCENES OF ANGER AT INQUEST ON BUNGALOW VICTIM

Surging Mass of Passionate Women Shout at Accused

WILD RUSH

Faces Distorted as They Hiss Furiously at Patrick Mahon

Rarely have such scenes of passionate anger towards an accused person been witnessed in England as at the inquest at Eastbourne on Miss Emily Beilby Kaye, the victim of the Eastbourne bungalow tragedy.

Picture Mahon, who is accused of her murder, standing at the entrance to the bungalow, his hat crushed down on his head, his raincoat swathed over his shoulders like a muffler held to his face, gloved hands with clinking handcuffs crossed upon his chest. All around him are stalwart policemen.

Only the rough-cast wall which surrounds the bungalow separates him from the surging mass of people—women booing and shouting "Vile wretch," "Cad," "Brute," in shrill, high-pitched voices.

One elderly woman spits in his direction, and in the wild rush towards the motor-car which is to take him away, women and children, crushed and half fainting, are swept away.

When Mahon first came out of the bungalow onto the porch there was a momentary silence.

Then there brooke loose a shrill howl of passion as the hundreds of women, many with uplifted arms and clenched fists, rushed towards the entrance.

For a moment Mahon gazed at the surging mob as if panic-stricken; then he pulled his raincoat up to hide his face, and was led to the gate.

ONE PLEA FOR FAIRNESS.

Well-dressed women, pale with passion, crushed round the entrance. Their faces were distorted as they hissed and shrieked at the accused man. Only one voice was raised on his behalf—that of a woman, who cried out loudly, "Poor chap; be fair; be English."

Women had taken up positions outside the entrance to the bungalow as if they were in a theatre queue. They brought camp stools with them, and waited patiently in the hope of catching a glimpse of the accused man.

The road from Eastbourne was dotted with people making their way to the scene. A score or more of motor-cars were packed on the waste land near by.

Hundreds of people were surrounding the bungalow. They climbed on the wall, stood on each other's shoulders, pushed and jostled into the best positions for seeing those taking part in the inquest arrive—a dense mass of excited people, all waiting for the man who is the central figure in one of the most extraordinary dramas of recent times.

A stranger might have thought that it was a fair day. Hawkers were moving in and out of the crowd selling fruit. Fashionably dressed men and women rubbed shoulders with working men and servant girls. Motor-cyclists threaded their way through the excited throng, bringing girl friend on pillion seats as if to a picnic.

Why the authorities elected to hold the inquest in such a tiny building as the bungalow passes comprehension.

Apart from the tainted atmosphere of the room, of which several people complained, the lack of reasonable accommodation for Press representatives and the public was a serious mistake.

COMPLEXION HINT BY FAMOUS DOCTOR

Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, the surgeon, speaking at the Invalid Children's Aid Association in Parklane, W., said:—

Many a girl could still keep her school-girl complexion if she only took brimstone and treacle.

The man who lives in the Himalayas never has indigestion, appendicities, cancer, or colitis. These things are increasing and are the price we pay for civilisation. We are being wrongly fed. The result is that the poor primitive savage is a finer man than any of us.

SHIPPING CLERK'S UPS AND DOWNS

The failure of Thomas Cowan Steven, shipbuilder, of St. Andrew-square, Edinburgh, is announced in the Edinburgh Gazette.

Mr. Steven was associated with many speculative enterprises with Sir John Stewart, who recently shot himself in his castle. His deficiency is estimated at £150,000. He is at present in the Argentine Republic.

He was a shipping clerk in 1913, but started shipbroking just before the war, made a rapid leap to fortune, and at the nd of the war was reputed worth a quarter of a million.

RECKLESS BROKER.

When Esca George S. Stevens, stock-broker, of Addison avenue, W., was fined £10 and £5, costs at Exeter for driving a motor-car dangerously, it was stated that he dashed into a flock of sheep, four of which were killed outright, two had to be shot, and four died of injuries.

LEGLESS DRIVER WINS 3 RACES

Although he lost both legs in the war, B. H. Austin won three motor races at Brooklands.

He was first in the disabled Drivers' Handicap at 72 m.p.h., and repeated his success in the Junior Short Handicap and in the Junior Long Handicap, the former of which he won at 72 m.p.h. and the latter at 81 m.p.h.

In the Short Handicap he was only a radiator cowl ahead of Capt. Woolf Barnato. Eight cars crossed the line almost together.

ESCALATOR TAKES PLACE OF ELEVATOR

Three new escalators at the Bank Station of the Central London Railway, each made to travel 90ft. carry 135 passengers in a minute. They cost £96,000.

Three lift-wells have been displaced to make way for the new moving staircases.

The Derby Favorite

This is Lord Astor's colt Bright Knight (Frank Bullock up, who finished second in the Two Thousand Guineas a short head behind Diophon, now the public's first choice for the great classic of June 4. For the last four years Lord Astor has taken second place in the Derby. His persistency and good sportsmanship deserve to be rewarded, and public opinion is reflected in the short price of nine to two at which Bright Knight is quoted.

LOVE TRAGEDY IN ENGLISH VILLAGE

Schoolmaster Says Farewell to Sweetheart With Sporting Gun

A sensational love tragedy has occurred at Oxton, Notts, an assistant village schoolmaster, John William Smith, shooting himself with a sporting gun after climbing to his sweetheart's bedroom window to tell her that he was going to kill himself.

Smith apparently lost his reason as a result of an accident last Sunday. He was in love with Miss Dorothy Bestow, a pretty young girl who kept house for her grandfather.

Smith, armed with the gun, startled Miss Bestow by climbing into her room during the afternoon, and wildly calling "Good bye," said, "I am going to shoot myself."

When neighbors entered the house Smith took the window at a jump and dashed down the road pursued by a footman and a farmer and his sons. After crossing several fields the pursuers saw Smith coolly load his gun and deliberately point it at them, saying, "Don't come any nearer or I will shoot."

Before they could prevent him he had put the muzzle of the gun in his mouth and pulled the trigger. Death was instantaneous.

BANK BOOKS FOR CHILDREN BEQUEST

Presents of Cigars for Councillors Feature of Welshman's Will

Presents of bank books to encourage thrift amongst children, and coal, tea, and cigars for Councillors, are some of the remarkable bequests which are contained in the will of G. L. Norris, a Penarth (Wales) celebrity, who died in December last, leaving over £14,000.

The following are some extracts from the quaintly worded will:

Bank books and each deposit of 5s. are to be given to the Sunday School scholars of Penarth. A copy of my will is to be kept in the schoolroom, so that the girls and boys may know what they are entitled to in the way of bank book prizes, also an enlarged photo of "G. L. Norris," framed, is to be hung up beside the will. In my opinion the great amount of deplorable poverty and destitution is owing to a want of proper training in the habit of thrift.

Other bequests are :£5 a year for the Penarth, Cogan, and Llandough allotment holders for the best 20 perches cultivated and best crops, also in the form of Post Office Savings Bank books; £5 for the best and heaviest pig raised every year in Penarth, Cogan, and Llandough.

To the members of the Penarth Urban Council he bequeaths two boxes of cigars and two boxes of cigarettes annually, to be kept in the Council Chamber handy for any member who wants to smoke.

Mr. Norris directed that at his funeral there should be no flowers, because "wreaths are often ordered and seldom paid for."

Man (at Tottenham): I told the policeman he had the wrong man, and he said, "Very well," and arrested me.

First Locomotive Model Attracts No Bids at Auction

There were no bidders for the model of the first locomotive in England, constructed in 1781 by William Murdock, the co-inventor with Watt of the steam engine, when it was offered for sale in London recently.

When bids were invited, someone offered £1; then someone raised the bid to £5. The reserve price put upon it was £1,000, and Mr. Hurcomb's invitation to start the bidding at £500 not being responded to, the model was withdrawn.

The model is only 19in. long and 14in. high. When William Murdock, the inventor, ran it round his room in Cross street, Redruth, Cornwall, in 1784, it carried as freight the shovel, the tongs, and the poker.

The late Sir Richard Tangye purchased it 80 years ago for £500 from Murdock's great-grandson.

MISER DIES FROM EFFECTS OF BATH

Court Application Brings Out Details of Two Eccentrics

The Hon. Victor Russell applied in the Probate Division London for the appointment of a receiver and manager in the estates of two brothers, W. H. and T. S. Brissendon, two misers, who lived in New street, Vincent square.

William Brissenden died from the effects of his first bath for 40 years. Thomas Brissenden died of starvation, although he had £60 in his pocket at the time of his death.

The application was granted.

Forty years ago, when their mother died, the brothers set up house for themselves, and grew more miserly with age. The elder brother did the shopping, and shopkeepers dealt generously with him owing to his poor appearance.

When the sanitary authorities stepped in, at the neighbors' request, they found the house contained one bedstead, without bedding. The brothers had slept in their clothes on chairs or on the floor.

When Thomas became too weak to cook his food, he appeared to live on bread.

His sister said: "He must have been worth at least £10,000."

GREAT ELECTRIC POWER SCHEME IN VIEW FOR BRITAIN

Government Will Act if Severn Barrage is Recommended

COST £25,000,000

Power Generated Would Save 3,000,000 Tons of Coal Every Year

A series of vast projects for generating electrical power for use in the chief industrial areas of the country is now under the consideration of the Government. One of the schemes is the proposed £25,000,000 barrage across the Severn.

Tom Shaw, Minister of Labor, at a meeting of the Parliamentary Labor Party said that if the committee now investigating the proposed Severn barrage reports in favor of it, the Government is prepared to give facilities for carrying out the work. The scheme has been investigated by the Water Powers Committee of the Board of Trade.

The scheme was originally devised by the Ministry of Transport when Sir Eric Geddes was at the head of the Ministry. It is estimated that more than 500,000 horse-power will be generated during a ten-hour day, against 385,000 horse-power generated by Niagara. This power would save 3,000,000 tons of coal every year.

London and the entire Black Country, as well as Cardiff and the coalfields of South Wales, would share in the use of the power, while the construtions of the barrage would provide work for 250,000 men for seven years.

The power would be obtained by trapping the water in the upper part of the estuary as the tide rises by means of gigantic sluice doors, which would automatically shut at the turn of the tide.

GALLANT SAR.-MAJOR.

Sgt.-Major Skinner rescued the four children of William Blake at Alum Bay (Isle of Wight) from a bog in which the youngest had sunk up to his neck and the others to their waist.

FOOTBALL NEWS FOR JAIL BIRDS

Ample Meals, Books and No Hair Cropping Nowadays

The "brighter prison," as it now exists, was described by Herbert Pickering, governor of Newcastle-upon-Tyne Prison, addressing a Rotarian meeting. Some of its amenities include:

Clothes without the broad arrow;

Collars and the promise of ties;

Weekly news bulletins, giving football results;

Daily shave and ordinary hair cutting instead of cropping;

More letters and notebooks for special study purposes;

Library books that can be changed weekly.

Mr. Pickering said prison meals were ample, the food was of better quality and more varied, and tea and cocoa were substituted for "the everlasting porridge."

Shaving and trimming of the hair helped men to regain their self-respect.

Mr. Pickering said it was a mistake to think prison life was easy. The men did 12 hours' work every weekday.

DRIFTING MINES PERIL AT SEA

Vessels arriving at Grimsby report having seen mines adrift in the North Sea, though the war ended more than five years ago.

The steam trawler Retako arrived off Grimbsy with a mine which the crew had picked up near the Dogger Bank. An Admiralty mine expert went out to the ship and rendered the mine harmless before the vessel was allowed to enter dock.

Advertising Success Result of Persistency, Says British Trader

"Persistency is the great essential in advertising," said Councillor J. Stanworth, J.P., of Blackburn, vice-president of the National Chamber of Trade, addressing the Lancashire and Cheshire Federation of Ironmongers at Blackburn.

When he began to advertise in the Press, he received orders valued at £12 15s. for £180 expended. He persisted, and today his postal customers exceeded 25,000.

Mr. Stanworth emphasized that the effect of the best advertising in the world could be destroyed in two seconds by a discourteous assistant. Advertising would bring new customers, but their retention depended on value, coupled with courtesy and efficient service from well-trained assistants.

"Of course," added the speaker, "no advertisement, however smart and clever, sells a bad article twice to the same customer."

GOLD DISCOVERY ON WELSH FARM

A reef containing gold has been found on Maestryfer Farm, Penmaenpool, in Mawddach Estuary, near the Clocau and the Prince of Wales gold mines, where the gold was obtained for Princess Mary's wedding ring.

Two miners from California and Alaska are digging nuggets from the reef, and the quartz is being examined by experts.

JACKDAW'S ALARM PREVENTS FIRE

A jackdaw's alarm prevented what might have been a serious fire at Cheadle, Staffordshire.

In the early hours of the morning Mr. Sleigh, of High street, was awakened by the screeching of the bird. Going downstairs he found the house of his neighbor, E. Moss, on fire. He aroused Mr. Moss and the two men held the fire in check with buckets of water until the brigade arrived.

Dead At 85 Had 69 Grandchildren

"Father" of the Cambridgeshire village of Steeple Morder, Mr. William Pearce, who has died at the age of 85, leaving a widow of 83, had 69 grandchildren, 10 of whom served in the War.

Mr. Pearce who was father of 14, lived to see 19 great grandchildren. The last 49 of the 65 years of his married life had been spent in the same house.

FIREBALL FREAK IN ESSEX VILLAGE

Sounded Like Big Gun and Made Huge Crater

A fireball caused strange scenes in the village of Stansted, Essex.

It fell on Saturday evening at 6.30 near the main London-Cambridge road, hitting the bottom of the trunk of a tree, but apparently not harming the upper part.

The fireball made a sound like a heavy gun explosion, and formed a crater several feet wide. Then its weird antics began. It

Came up again under the roadway, with another big bang, several yards away,

Cut through the gas main, which burnt afterwards for two hours,

Knocked a motor cyclist off his machine,

Smothered with dirt and stones Rowland Norman, of Walpole Farm, who was getting into his car.

Travelled along a line of barbed wire for 40 yards, wrecking a wooden fence and blowing up portions of the grounds.

The fireball finished its career 60 yards from where it first fell. It disappeared into the ground. Reaching the scullery of a house occupied by Mr. Allen, an electrical engineer, it dislodged several bricks from the outside of the building.

The reports were heard all over the village, and many windows were blown out by the explosion, in one instance at a house 300 yards away.

SNOW IN MAY IS BRITISH WEATHER

The north of England and the Scottish Lothians are in the grip of winter. They have been swept by severe snow and hail storms, and the cold is intense.

In the Cumberland lake district the snow on the mountains is inches thick, and Derwentwater is ringed with snow-covered heights. In many parts the sheep have been brought down to the village fields.

The higher ranges of the Pennines are also covered with snow to the depth of several inches, while in North Lincolnshire extraordinary weather has prevailed, snow, hail and rain falling intermittently, followed by bursts of sunshine.

Hail and snow have likewise fallen heavily in Sheffield, and the local moors are snowbound.

Snow lies deep all over the hilly parts of the West Lothians. In the neighborhood of West Calder, in Mid Lothian, a laborer named William Riley, whose body was found in a ditch, died from exposure to the bitter weather.

The great cold will seriously affect market gardens and orchards.

BIG WINDFALL.

News that he has inherited some £80,000 left by his uncle's widow, a Northallerton woman, has been received by George Squires, aged 75, of the Almshouse, Northgate, Newark.

Mr. Squires, who has four daughters and six sons living, was formerly a groom at Newark.

VISCOUNTESS RUNS POULTRY BUSINESS

Viscountess Cobham has started in her own name a retail poultry farm business at London-road, Bromley Common, Kent, and is selling direct to the public poultry, eggs, and other farm produce. The farm of 100 acres is attached to her residence, Oakley House.

Viscount Cobham superintends the farm workers. There are four girls employed as well as a number of pupils.

Oakley farm has a poultry department, dairy, piggery, and nursery gardens. There are 475 head of poultry, 10 cows, 60 pigs, and other livestock.

The younger members of the Cobham family assist in the farm work.

BIRD-LIME BILL.

Sir Henry Brittain, M.P., supported by members of all three parties, has introduced a Bill to prohibit the use of decoy birds, bird-lime, or anything of the kind for the capture of wild birds.

It is also proposed to make it an offence to keep birds in cages in which they cannot freely stretch their wings.

SCOTLAND YARD CHIEF ROBBED

Chief Inspector Fair, of Scotland Yard, is the latest police chief to have his house entered by thieves.

Mr. Fair lives at Stockwell, S.W., and when the intruders, who escaped with some jewellery, entered they were attacked by a dog, which they kicked into insensibility.

Recently Sir Archibald Bodkin, the Public Prosecutor, was robbed of a handbag at Victoria Station, and Lieut.-Colonel Laurie, Assistant Commissioner of Police, had his house in South Kensington broken into.

GOLD RECOVERED FROM LAURENTIC

Great success has attended the salvage operations in connection with the wrecked Laurentic off the mouth of Lough Swilly.

It is understood that divers have brought up nearly a third of the quarter million of gold which remained to be recovered when salvage operations began this season.

The Laurentic, of the White Star Line, was torpedoed by a German submarine outside Lough Swilly, on the north coast of Ireland, in January 1917.

TWO SERVANTS ARE GIVEN £20,000 BY RICH CITY KNIGHT

Housekeeper and Butler Get Windfall in Employer's Will

RICH UNCLE'S HEIR

Sheffield Man Inherits £40,000 Estate of Hermit Relative

Dressed very simply in sombre clothes a middle-aged housekeeper goes about her duties in Wimbledon thinking of all that she may do with £10,000.

The woman is Miss Tranaka, and some day she will inherit this great fortune in recognition of her years of faithful service in the family of Sir John Roper Parkington, who died last January.

"I hereby desire than no member of my family shall in any way meddle, or interfere, with my servants who shall be in my employ at the time of my death."

This was the preface of Sir John's will, one of the most remarkable wills of recent years. Sir John left £170,-814 18s. 7d. Miss Tranaka, the housekeeper, and Mr. Tiroch, the butler, will eventually receive about £10,000 each.

Mr. Tiroch, when asked what he intended to do with his fortune, preserved the polite placidity of the traditional butler.

"I should not dream of leaving the family so long as they require my services," he said. He added that he had been with Sir John for very many years, had often accompanied him abroad, and had been with him much during his last illness.

"Do you, when you receive your £10,000, intend to set up a house of your own, and retire in comfort?" Miss Tranaka was asked.

The little housekeeper, in her dark clothes, shook her head.

"Oh, dear, no," she said, with a smile. "I have had enough to do with servants. I have done the housekeeping for a number of years now, and I don't want any servants of my own.

"I may buy a little house, but it would be very small, so that I could run it myself, do all the work and cooking.

"I shouldn't stay long there, however, for I want to travel. That is my ambition—to see the world."

All Miss Tranaka's relatives are in England. Although of Anglo-Greek birth, she has not been in Greece, and that is probably the first country she will visit.

"But my home will always be England. I love the English countryside."

ADVENTURER'S LUCK.

After an adventurous life, in which he has been soldier, sailor, troop train driver, steel works engineer, and shopman, Harry Taylor, of Fox street, Sheffield, is said to have made good his claim to a fortune of £40,000.

Taylor has served as fireman and engine driver in this country and South Africa, and in various capacities has twice sailed round the world. He drove a locomotive in France during the war, and last worked for a motor company as shopman.

He has finished roaming, he says, and now intends to live comfortably.

TAXI DE LUXE ON DONDON STREETS

Have you seen London's new superluxury taxicab?

Oxford blue is its color, with a fine threading of Cambridge blue. It carries no fewer than ten lights to brighten its way by night. The occupant can dim or switch off the three interior lights at will.

The furnishings include curtains of blue and gold brocade, maroon upholstery, spring cushioned tip-up seats, leather arm awings, three mirrors, ash trays, a silver flower vase, and an amplifier for the speaking tube. A gilt statue of Liberty surmounts the bonnet.

Three Golfers Do Same Hole in One Within Two Days

Cedric Sayner, of Rotherham, and Owen Sanderson, of Bradford, two of the players taking part in the northern qualifying competition of the £1,000 golf tournament on the West Lancashire course at Blundellsands did the 10th hole in one stroke.

Archie Compston accomplished the same hole in one in practice on Tuesday, so that three tee shots have been despatched in it in two days, which must surely be another record.

Sayner, a sturdily built player of 27, has a confirmed habit of doing holes in one. He had five 1's during 1922 on the Hallamshire course near Sheffield, where he learnt golf, and altogether he has now registered eight 1's, so that he is well in pursuit of Candy Herd's unparalleled total, 17.

TATTOOED GIRL.

"I love Paddy McDonagh" was tattooed on the left arm of an unknown girl found floating in the River Lagan at Belfast.

GASSED HIMSELF IN EXPERIMENT

An experiment on himself was suggested as the cause of the death of Walter Pitt Payne, 20, a dental student, of Bromley, Kent, who was found dead wearing a gas mask with the shutter of the mask partly open.

The Coroner said the theory was that the young man, in experimenting, had apparently taken too much gas, become unconscious, and unable to help himself.

A verdict of death by misadventure was returned.

RAILWAY ARCH "HOME."

It was stated at an inquest at Harrow (England) on a baby who died from bronchial pneumonia that the family lived in a railway arch near South Harrow. It was boarded up at each end, but had no windows, ventilation, or flooring, the only floor covering being several layers of linoleum. Water ran down the inside walls.

Woman (at Bow): I have driven my husband to work for four years—I mean in a motor car.

FRENCHMAN HELD ON MURDER CHARGE IN POISONING MYSTERY

Landlord of Surrey Hotel Died After Taking Dose of Salts—Strychine Believe Administered—Police Search for Evidence

The full opening of the Crown case against Jean Pierre Vaquier, charged with the wilful murder of Albert Poynter Jones, landlord of the Blue Anchor Hotel, Byfleet, produced a detailed narrative which held a packed court at Woking spellbound with its intense drama.

How Mrs. Jones, the dead man's wife went to Biarritz for a health trip, how she there met the black-bearded Frenchman, a broadcasting operator at the hotel? and how bi-lingual conversation on the sands with the aid of a dictionary began—this was the beginning of the story, according to the prosecution.

The acquaintanceship developed. The couple (it was alleged) stayed as man and wife at Biarritz, at Bordeaux, in Paris, and eventually in London—where there was a scene with a chambermaid at a well-known hotel.

The development of the drama, at Byfleet, was described, and the climax of Mr. Jones' death led to this sensational passage:—

Mrs. Jones (the prosecution asserts) charged the Frenchman with the crime, saying "You assassinated Mr. Jones." Vaquier replying (according to Mrs. Jones) "Yes, Mabs, for you."

Following the opening statement evidence was called, a feature being the reading of remarkable alleged statements by Vaquier in which he made charges against an unknown man.

It was announced that Mrs. Jones will go into the box.

On the evening of March 28, counsel said that Mr. Jones entertained a party at the hotel. It lasted until midnight. Next morning Vaquier was the first to get up. Mr. Jones followed and seemed well and happy.

He called for a glass of water and went to the mantlepiece in the barparlor and took down a bottle which was supposed to contain Bromo salts.

He measured out a teaspoonful, poured it into the glass and, as he always did, mixed the salts himself. He said, "This damn thing won't fizz this morning."

"THEY ARE BITTER!"

He put up the glass to his mouth and swallowed the contents at one gulp, then exclaimed, "They are bitter."

Mrs. Jones immediately poured out some of the contents of the same bottle on to her hand, put it to her mouth and remarked that it tasted very bitter. A few crystals fell to the floor.

Counsel described how Mr. Jones was seized with illness, and after an emetic was carried upstairs, with the assistance of Vaquier.

Later, when Mrs. Jones encountered Vaquier (according to Mrs. Jones), he said to her: "How is master? Is he well?" He burst into tears, and went down on his knees, took her hand, and said, "Madame, O God, do you accuse me?" She said, "Yes." He then cried bitterly.

Next day, March 30, Vaquier made a statement to the police. On April 2, according to Mrs. Jones, she accused Vaquier of murdering her husband, saying directly, "You killed him!" and he replied (again according to Mrs. Jones' statement), "Yes, Mabs, for you."

"ALWAYS GOOD TO ME."

Mrs. Jones said she replied: "I would have killed you. He has always been good to me."

On the following day, said counsel, Vaquier left Byfleet, leaving a note behind him in which he bade Mrs. Jones "Adieu for ever."

On April 16 a London chemist recognised Vaquier from a photograph as having bought strychnine and chloride of mercury on March 1, giving the name of Wanker. He bought enough strychnine to kill four people.

His explanation was that he wanted the stuff for wireless experiments, but expert evidence, said Mr. Roseme, would prove that strychnine never entered into these experiments.

The first witness called was Mr. Horace Bland, partner in W. Jones and Co., chemists, of Southampton-row, W.C., who bore out counsel's statement regarding Vaquier's alleged purchase of the strychnine. Police evidence followed.

A remarkable statement reported to have been made by Vaquier was then read by the interpreter (Major Alfred Watkins, of Woking). In reply to the charge he said: "I expected this. From the start all the suspicion has been against me. I assure you on the tomb of my mother that I am innocent. I will make known tomorrow he who bought the poison and he who had the poison bought."

POLITICS DRIVES LADY TO SUICIDE

It was stated at the inquest on Mrs. Rose Louisa Smith, president of the Caversham branch of the Reading Conservative Association, whose body was found in the Thames, that the defeat of Major Cadogan at the last election worried her greatly.

Nervous prostration succeeded her political activities.

"Death from drowning while of unsound mind" was the verdict.

LAWYER RUINED BY DISPUTE WITH WIFE

Gets Three Years For Fraudulant Conversion of Funds

Said to have "gone absolutely to pieces" after differences with his wife, John Abercrombie Holdsworth, aged 64, a London solicitor, was sentenced at the Old Bailey.

He had been found guilty of the fraudulent conversion of £3,000, belonging to three of his clients.

Mr. Travers Humphreys, for the defence, said that up to 1913 Holdsworth was a highly respected and successful man, making about £2,000 a year. His profits then dropped to £300 a year, the result of unfortunate disagreement with his wife, to whom he had been devoted.

Mr. Justice Greer said Holdsworth had aggrevated his domestic difficulties by giving way to drink in an unmanly fashion.

POLICE WOUNDED IN SUDDEN ATTACK

Sergeant Griffin and Guard Mullen, of the Free State Civic Guard, were shot and seriously wounded near Carrick-on-Suir, on the Kilkenny border.

They were going to an unoccupied house belonging to a man named O'Dwyer, when without challenge three or four shots rang out. Griffin was seriously wounded in the abdomen and Mullen in the chest and back of the head. They are in a serious condition in Clonmel Hospital.

BEQUEATHS SON'S VICTORIA CROSS

Mrs. Grace Bradbury, of Parkfield, Altrincham, widow of the late Judge Bradbury, a Lancashire county court judge, and mother of the late Capt. E. K. Bradbury, R.H.A., V.C., left unsettled property in her own disposition valued at £3,351. She bequeathed to her grandson, Jim Crewdson, "as my most valued possession, the Victoria Cross, awarded to my son, Edward, who was killed in action on September 1st, 1914, for gallantry and ability in organising the defence of 'L' Battery against heavy odds at Nery in France." She requested her grandson to regard it as having come from his uncle and his mother, to whom it would have been given had she lived.

STICK TO ENGINE BUT ESCAPE DEATH

A traction engine, drawing a load of timber, became out of control, and ran down a steep hill near Barnstaple.

At the bottom the engine crashed into a barn, and turned completely round. Its front wheels were broken, and the funnel and canopy were torn away.

The driver and steersman pluckily remained at their posts in an effort to guide the engine to safety, and neither was injured.

Man (at North London): I got a blow. Whence it came I know not, but I felt it, and found my lip cut.

GROCER WHO WROTE 500 LOVE LETTERS

George Blake Must Pay £250 For Changing His Mind

Five hundred love letters were stated to have been written in two years by George Blake, 52, a grocer, of Brixton, S.W., who at a Liverpool sheriff's court was ordered to pay £250 damages to Miss Laura Sutherland Maggie, a shop assistant, of Stoneycrott, Liverpool, for breach of promise of marriage.

For Miss Maggie, Mr. Maxwell Fyfe said Mr. Blake wrote in his last letter:

Business has not turned out exactly as I expected and I do not know which way to turn to get out of the financial difficulty in which I am. I cannot see any possibility of marrying you for many years to come.

Twenty days later Blake married another girl, said Mr. Fyfe.

Miss Maggie said she had spent £100 on her trousseau.

Mr. C. Addinsell, for Mr. Blake: You still have plenty of admirers?—Miss Maggie: I have not met them. I am nearly 30. What am I to do?

Addressing the jury, Mr. Addinsell said Mr. Blake had spent on Miss Maggie more than he could afford and had changed his mind. It was in the interests of everybody that a man should frankly admit he had changed his mind rather than there should be a large number of unhappy marriages, leading to the divorce courts.

PETAL GLOVES THE LATEST FASHION

Rose leaf gloves are the novel notion in fashionable handwear. These are fabric gloves designed for the coming summer season in England.

These gloves, which are British-made, are of the gauntlet type, and are so made that a series of flounces, which form the gauntlet when in wear fall naturally into shape as the petals of a wild rose.

The linings of the material, which are exposed to the eye, are in soft pink or mauve, but the glove itself may be any color.

LATE POTATO SEASON.

The lateness of the Jersey potato season is shown by the fact that only 27 loads were weighed over the public weighbridge during the past week as compared with 859 for the corresponding period last year.

HEAVY DAMAGES IN WORKER'S LAWSUIT

Percy Brett, a railway worker, was awarded £1,750 damages in the King's Bench, against 23 of his fellow-workmen at the G. W. R.'s works at Swindon.

He sued them for libel, slander and conspiracy.

His case was that, when he was chargeman of a gang, their earnings reached an unprecedented figure, and a meeting of chargemen passed a resolution which contained the alleged libel. As a result of that resolution he was removed to a subordinate position.

Mr. Justice Rowlatt said plaintiff's counsel contended that the men were "out for Brett's blood." They wanted to get rid of Brett, because he did too much work.

THE SPIRIT OF LENINE TALKS TO CONAN DOYLE WITH HELP OF A TABLE

Dead Ruler of Soviet Russia Told Gathering in Rat Ridden Mansion "Artists Must Rouse Selfish Passion"—First Mistook Street Light For Wraith.

A FANTASTIC SCENE

LONDON, May 30. — (United News.)—A strange and dramatic story of how the spirit of Nicolai Lenine, dead ruler of Soviet Russia, conversed through a table, tapping with a group in a haunted room in London, has been revealed by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

In a signed article which appears in to-day's London Daily Express Sir Arthur declares that he and five others had communiction with Lenine's spirit in a mansion near Picadilly, London.

The events leading to the fantastic scene in the mansion began when the Daily Express published stories regarding the haunted room which was alleged to be surrounded by an evil phychic atmosphere. Raps were heard in the room, luminous rays were seen on the stairs of the house and the figure of an elderly man with an evil face was seen several times by a young woman employed on the premises, the newspaper reported.

Conan Doyle tells how, in order to test the reports, the group assembled in the haunted room at 11 p.m. Wednesday. Outside, the streets were crowded with people going home from the theatres but a ghostly silence hung over the rooms of the sinister old building. The young woman who first seen the evil face spirit was a member of the party. Conan Doyle described her as "the clairvoyant." In the group, there was a young Danish artist who claims phychic vision, Horace Leaf, a medium, a Wimpole street physician, the Rev. Vale Owen and Conan Doyle.

To guard against practical jokers, the doors were locked and twine was tied across the only staircase leading downward from the room.

The party grouped themselves about a table so as to be able to obtain table messages and turned out the lights. There was utter silence in the musty room, except where voices echoed hollowly when some member of the party spoke. All was dark save where a dim light penetrated from the staircase. For a moment the watchers thought that this ghostly glow might be some wandering wraith of the spirit world; but then they decided that it must be light of the great city, filtering in through a glass skylight.

Taps, creakings and rattling sounds came from about the dark building, but at first they were no stronger than those usually heard in rat-ridden mansions. Members of the party placed their hands on the table which shook occasionally. Perhaps it was the rumble of London's subways beneath roaring Picadilly. For a time the party feared that no spirit would materialize.

"I See Him."

Suddenly, says Conan Doyle:

"The clairvoyant on my left whispered agitatedly, "I see him—he is there—he is standing on the stair looking down at us."

What the trembling girl described as looming before her eyes was "an elderly man, bearded, with rather slit eyes and cunning expression."

Another member of the party corroborated her. "I could see a faint luminosity but nothing more." Conan Doyle writes: "However, I am not physchic in conceptions."

The two seers report that the man had descended the stairs.

They spoke, begging the unseen figure to tell how they could assist. Conan Doyle describes the conversation as follows:

"In a minute the table began to move. It rose and fell with steady rhythm. Having explained the code, the dialogue between us ran thus, the answers coming swift and clear-cut:

"Are you a spirit?" "Yes."

"A man."

"Yes."

"Are you the spirit who has haunted this room?"

"Yes."

"Have you a reason for haunting it?"

"Yes."

"Is it remorse for deeds done?"

"Yes."

"I then explained to the spirit the conditions under which he lived and the need to run thoughts away from wordly matters."

Conan Doyle continues:

"I begged him to cease to annoy innocent people and told him that he would only work out his own salvation by being unselfish and striving for higher things."

Prayed For the Spirit.

"The Rev. Vale Owen prayed for the spirit and then Conan Doyle asked if the spirit had any message and would give his earth name."

Then the writer says:

"The following letters came out: "L-n-n-a-n."

"Is that right?" I asked. "No," was the reply.

"Is Lenin the name?" "Yes."

"Are you Lenin, the Russian leader?"

"Yes."

"Have you a message for us?"

"Yes."

Then the spirit spelled, "Artists must rouse selfish passion."

In further attempts to converse with the spirit, Conan Doyle says it was gathered that the rest of the message was an expression of desire that Russia and Britain remain friends, with a warning that unless they could come to some terms they would drift into a war in which Russia would be very strong.

"Then the table turned dead." Conan Doyle writes.

"It cannot be said that there was anything objective to which the senses of all of us could testify. On the other hand we were all in earnest and there was no pressure on the table.

"I don't know Vale Owen's conclusion, but I am convinced and everyone else was convinced, that we were in touch with a real entity, with a real message."

PORT HOPE'S NEW INDUSTRY

MR. HYMANS, REPRESENTING ENGLISH CAPITAL, LOOKS OVER BUSH CHINA CO. PLANT.

Mr. Stanley Hymans, of Girders, Limited, Friars Hall, London, England, was the guest of Mr. H. T. Bush on the 24th. Mr. Hymans was here for the purpose of inspecting the Bush English China Company plant, and after going over it he was most favorably impressed with what he saw. Mr. Hymans has some big clients in the Old Country who are taking a financial interest in the Bush English China Company, and he came here for first-hand information so that he can tell his clients just what the opportunities are for Port Hope's new factory. As we have already stated, he was more than pleased with what he saw, and in his own words he sees a bright future for the Bush English China Company. Another thing that impressed him was the fact that the town of Port Hope, including the Harbor Commission, were behind the project.

The Times is more than pleased to be able to give to the people of Port Hope the pleasing remarks of this gentleman, who is representing the English capital being put into Bush English China Company, and it must be very gratifying to everyone to feel that the efforts of the people of Port Hope, both as a municipality and as individuals, is so much appreciated by those interested in the project.

Reports from very reliable sources tell of good progress being made in regard to the stock being taken up, and the unbounded confidence of Mr. Bush and his associates, backed up by authorities in the china business, speaks well for the new industry which Port Hope will have in the very near future.—Port Hope Times.

FIRE DESTROYED CONIAGAS MILLS

With Strong Wind Blowing, Raging Fire Swept Everything in Its Path

NORTH BAY, May 30 (Canadian Press). — Coniagas Mines Mill at Cobalt caught fire at 10.30 this morning, and was soon a mass of flames.

Reports from there state that it will be a total loss.

The shaft house has caught fire, and a high wind is blowing toward the lake.

A number of houses are in the path of the flames, and it is feared they will be destroyed.

Great excitement prevails in the town, according to a message received here shortly after eleven o'clock.

The fire shot through the mill with a terrific force, spread back to the shaft house, and took everything in its course.

The buildings were as dry as tinder, and oil soaked, and the firemen were powerless to check the flames in the mine property, although the surrounding buildings were saved.

It is estimated that the damage will amount to about $300,000.

Although no official statement had been issued up till one o'clock this afternoon regarding the future operations, there will be a cessation of work for some time, and a considerable number of men will be out of employment.

The mine is one of the largest silver producing in Northern Ontario, covering 40 acres in Coleman Township.

The head office is in St. Catharines. R. W. Leonard is president and F. D. Reid is general manager.

A RECITAL

There was a good attendance at the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening for a joint recital by four pupils of teachers in various Conservatory departments: Miss Helen Ross, pupil in elocution of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, Miss Helena Heffernan, vocal pupil of Miss Florence L. Scott; Miss Kathleen Sutton, pianoforte pupil of Mr. R. Gliddon, and Arnold Spencer, violin pupil of Mr. F. Filion. The quartette of talented young people gave a very pleasing evening of vocal and instrumental selections and readings.

Miss Kathleen Sutton received much applause for her beautiful renditions of difficult piano music, played with facile ease and charm. Her numbers were Schubert's "Impromptu," and Pauer's "Le Cascade."

Miss Helena Heffernan's high, clear, fine soprano voice was heard to splendid advantage in two groups, Landon Ronald's "Cycle of Life," "Prelude," "Down in the Forest" and "Love, I have Won You," the second group including "Ma Voisine," by A. Goring-Thomas, and Edward Elgar's "Pleading," the latter beautifully rendered and receiving much appreciative applause.

Miss Helen Ross, the elocutionist of the evening, made a good impression on her hearers. Her attractive presentation of pretty readings, her dramatic ability and well-modulated voice and the careful attention to rhythm which is an outstanding element in her work, made her numbers very pleasing. They included five readings: "The Fairies," Eugene Field's "Winkin', Blinkin' and Nod," Dr. Drummond's "Leetle Bateese," "The Walker of the Snow," and Pauline Johnston's "Cattle Thief." A particularly good presentation of the latter brought a little amusing encore, in "Grandma Pays the Bills." Miss Ross received a pretty bouquet of flowers.

Arnold Spencer, a clever young violonist of the city, was the fourth member of the quartette. He has a good grasp of technical difficulties, gives careful attention to tempo and has an excellent tone. He played an "Air on G String," a "Polish Dance," "Two Movements, Students' Concerto," and Neruda's "Berceuse Slave."

Accompaniments of the evening were Miss Florence Scott and Miss Olga Fowler.

PROHIBITION PROBLEM NOT REGULATED RIGHT

Government Should Pass Act Similar to the Eighteenth Amendment in U. S.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 30 (Canadian Press). — That the Government should pass an Act similar to the famous "Eighteenth Amendment" in the United States, in order to properly and uniformly regulate the Prohibition problem in Canada, was the proposition submitted today to the Hamilton Methodist Conference by Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, secretary for Social Service and Evangelism of the Methodist Church in Canada.

Dr. Moore also declared that if the Government intended to place before the people of the Province a plebiscite in connection with the present Ontario Temperance Act, ample notice of the same should be given.

The Conference Committee on Church Union passed a resolution to the effect that the amendment to the preamble of the church union measure now before the House of Commons could not be accepted by the churches interested.

GOOD ADDRESS KIWANIS CLUB

Rev. J. D. Paterson Spoke on Social Service Work in the Far West.

Social service work in the far west under the auspices of the church was the subject of an interesting address at to-day's meeting of the Kiwanis Club. The speaker was Rev. J. D. Paterson, retcor of Wearing occupied the chair at the All Saints' church. Kiwanian J. invitation of President John R. Marshall. To-day's guests included Mr. Frank Cunningham of Manchester, England, introduced by Kiwanian Harry Boyle. Kiwanian John Craig reminded the members of a field day to be held at the Exhibition Park on Saturday, June 7th, and gave an outline of the work accomplished there in connection with the movement to foster community sport of all kinds. President Marshall also referred to the good work carried out at the Exhibition grounds and said the Kiwanis club would be responsible for the sale of at least one hundred tickets. President Marshall also reported on the successful completion of the swimming pool at Jackson Park and gave Kiwanians James MacIntosh, Walter Stocker and others credit for a large share of the work performed by the committee of which Kiwanian MacIntosh was chairman. In a week or two the club will arrange a picnic at Jackson Park in which the members and their wives will participate and the swimming pool will be formally turned over to the Health Association.

Church Takes Lead.

In his opening remarks Rev. Mr. Paterson said that in all movements for the bettrement of humanity the church has taken the lead. The speaker referred to some of his experiences in connection with social service work in the Carrot River district in the northern part of Saskatchewan. Here the population is scattered over a large area and the scene pictured by the speaker is quite unlike the glowing pictures put out by the railway companies in which threshing bees and tractor opertaions are depicted with comfortable farm homes as a background. For the first few years of a settlers life his home is usually a sod shack. Educational facilities are poor and if they pull through it is due to their grit and determination. An appeal has been made to the Universities of the Old Lang for graduates to come out and help solve the educational problems of this land. The speaker told of one young woman school teacher twenty-two years of age who rather than live with her pupils who were all foreigners elected to live a bachelor life in a shack close by her school. Mr. Paterson sounded a note of warning regarding the great Red movement which he said threatened to sweep over the entire west. The centre of this movement is in Winnipeg. By means of the social service work the children received a limited education and were given a better outlook on life. There is still much to be done and a constant call for volunteers to carry on the great work.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Kiwanian John Dewart. The booster for to-day was Kiwanian Isaac McNab and the prize winners were Kiwanians Billy Williams, Ray Scott and Charlie Lecheur. Kiwanian McNab enumerated some of the benefits of life insurance and referred to the tremendous growth of the business of making people independent and happy in their old age as well as protecting them in their productive days.

ALLIES INTEND TO REMAIN IN CONTROL

LONDON, May 30. — (Canadian Press).—The Allies intend to keep a firm hand on the military control on Germany by maintaining a commission of control in full operation until the disarmament demands made in the Treaty of Versailles are fully executed, according to a long note from the Council of Ambassadors sent to Berlin from Paris to-day.

WAR HERO HAS HAD HARD WORK

He Started on Farm Given Him by the People of Tennesse But Lost Everything He Had by Fire.

By ROY GROVE.

PALL MALL, Tenn., May 30.—Ill fortune has followed Alvin C. York, called by Marshal Foch "the greatest hero of the World War."

He is hard at work on his 400-acre farm here, given by the people of Tennessee.

"It will be a long time before I can get it into shape," he explains. "There is a lot of work to be done, clearing and cutting. It costs me nearly $8 a day for the feeding of my stock alone.

"My barn burned down, and I lost nearly everything I had in it. I had hay in there that was three years old. All but two of my cattle were destroyed. The stock we got out ran right back into the fire again.

Spurns Thousands

"I was surely hard hit. No insurance. My farm tools were all destroyed.

"I cannot get much done around here because of my right arm. Sort of rheumatic condition contracted during the war, caused by exposure, I guess.

"Yes, I carry insurance, the old army kind. Costs we about $5.80 a month. Yes, I could claim disability, but I am not."

This man who, almost single-handed, silenced a nest of 35 German machine guns, killed 22 and captured 132 Germans including a major, could be religious convictions prevented him from accepting movie, vaudeville and lecture contracts.

He turned down offers that would have brought him hundreds of thousands of dollars and settled on the 400-acre farmg given him by the people of Tennessee.

Senator McKellar is pressing a bill in Congress to give York the status and pay of a retired army captain—$180 a month.

And York, who has turned down tempting contracts, will accept the money if the bill passes.

Not a Religious Fanatic.

"It would come in mighty handy and would help a heap," the big, red-headed, raw-boned mountaineer told me. "I would certainly use it.

"You know, most people think I am crazy for not accepting all the golden offers that have been pushed my way.

"I know. I have heard them say, 'Well, if I had the chance that York has to make a lot of money, I sure would hop to it.'

"Folks outside think I am just a religious fanatic. But I am not, though I do believe deeply in religion.

"Most of the people are no different than I am, and if they were in my shoes and had the fortune or misfortune, as you might call it, to have been through what I have, I know they would understand me and feel the same way I do about commercializing my life.

Would Fight Again.

"Then again, there are types of people who would go right out and get the money—but I believe God does not give such folks the chance.

"The boys who are still over in France deserve the everlasting honor of the people of America. The people too soon will forget them."

York was a second elder in "The Church of Christ and Christian Union," a sect strongly opposed to war, when the Frentress county draft board sent him off to the army. Friends urged him to claim exemption as a "conscientious objector," but York refused.

York's scruples against killing worried him and he often talked with Captain Danforth, his commanding officer. They discussed the situation from a biblical standpoint, and slowly York became convinced that it was his duty to fight, if necessary.

"If there is another war—?" I started to ask him.

"Sure I would go," he declared. "If we had to do some more fighting, I say, let us go and get it over with."

FRASERVILLE HAS A PROMOTION DAY

Faithful Sunday School Scholars Rewarded—

FRASERVILLE, May 30.—Last Sunday was promotion day in the Sunday school at Fraserville. Also the granting of diplomas and prizes to various members of the school for faithful lines of activity.

A unique feature or plan which tends to inspire faithful attendance is the granting of suitably engraved diplomas to any and every pupil who attends Sunday school for fifty Sundays each year. On each diploma there is a place for a seat as an award for subsequent years of faithful attendance. A gilt seal being the award for a record of attendance for a seventh year.

This year there were three, Maggie Moncrief, Kenneth Moncrief and Mildred Moncrief, who received each a seal for the fifth year.

Three, Austin Trotter, Ethel Cunningham and Olive Carl received each a seal for the fourth year.

Nine, Leigh Hewitt, Clifford Wood, Mary Wood, Talbert Trotter, Ray Bothwell, Harry Cunningham, Mrs. Wm.. McElroy, Viola Carl and Roberta Wood received each a seal for the second year.

Five received diplomas, one of whom, William McElroy, drove four and one half miles each Sunday. Even the pleasure of getting married did not interfere with his attendance not only for fifty Sundays, but for every Sunday during the year.

Mr. and Mrs. James Walter each received a diploma as the oldest member of the school.

In addition to the foregoing, which is only for being present for fifty Sundays, a prize is given for class conduct, scripture memorization, church attendance and Bible study.

In classes 1 and 2 every pupil received an award, and the following 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes:

In class 3, Mona Holden, Ruby Cunningham and Ruth Trotter.

Class 4, Talbert Trotter, Ray Bothwell and Clifton Carl.

Class 5, Mildred Moncrief, Ethel Cunningham and Olive Carl.

Class 6, Austin Trotter, Frank Kidd and Leigh R. Hewitt.

MARRIED ON A LIGHTHOUSE.

Some folks have been married by radio. Others have said their marital vows in airplanes up in the clouds. But a wedding on a lighthouse is something new. It remained for Ole Olsen and Grace Weber, vaudeville entertainers, to do it. The ceremony was performed on a gangplank of Mile Rock Lighthouse at the entrance to the Golden Gate, San Francisco, 40 feet above the sea. Judge Frank Dunn officitaed. Inset is a close-up of the nuptials.

CAVAN TAKES TO BUCKWHEAT.

CAVAN, May 30.—There was quite a lot of hail here on Sunday afternoon but it did not do any damage. The showery weather is still holding back a number of farmers with their seeding, several having only a few acres sown. Now that it is getting so late in the season they think they will have to put the remainder in buckwheat.

It is estimated that people wear always two inches of shoe leather in a year.

Calm and dignity with which Japanese are conducting themselves are worthy of traditions of your great and noble nation.' "

FABLES ON HEALTH

BABY'S FIRST TOOTH

The first tooth!

It's a tradition in every family possessing a baby. And it was thus in the Mann family. Mr. Mann staged a veritable celebration at the office.

Teeth buds begin to form in the third month of life before birth. Thus, the diet of the mother has a great deal to do with the later development of the teeth. The mother should have liberal amounts of milk, green-leafed vegetables and fruit containing mineral salts, as well as vitamine-bearing foods.

During the first months of life feeding affects the teeth. Breast-fed babies almost invariably have better teeth than those artificially fed. About the fifth or sixth month the first tooth should begin to appear.

The dangers of teething have been greatly exaggerated by mothers. While there is likely to be a little feverishness and discomfort, and while the baby may seem to gain no weight, there is little cause for alarm.

A soft bit of cloth or cotton should be used to keep the teeth clean until well grown and after that regular applications with a brush.

Also thechild should be given mineral salt-bearing foods, which help develop bone as well as the teeth.

Regular visits to the dentist are essential as soon as the child is sufficiently old.

LEATHER COLLARS.

Leather collars and cuffs are very attractive in colors as well as white for linen, serge or jersey dresses.

DRY LAW TRAGEDY ASSERTS NOVELIST

Rebecca West In London Sunday Times Finds No Joke In Prohibition.

LONDON, May 30.—There is more tragedy than humor in the prohibition question. That is the conclusion reached by Rebecca West, the novelist, after an extensive tour of the United States.

Her article in the Sunday Times sums up the American dilemma in this Gargantuan sentence:

"Will America have the saloon on the one hand, which took the immigrant, dismayed by this new world's greyness and lack of blue seas and orange terraces and gave him oblivion, in exchange for his strength, his hope of fortune and his family's food and clothes; which changed the negro from the volatile, laughing boy brother of the white man to a sullen maniac, prowling around for occasions of his own undoing; that often made the Mexican laborer in the West and the Southwest into a murderer; that was the home of the conspiracies laid by roughneck bosses against the fine and innocent? Or will she have this nightmare law that poisons the upper and middle classes' physiological processes with bad whiskey; that breeds disrespect for law; that gives a crook a chance to be an uncrowned king?

"What a dilemma for a nation that has kept in its aspirations the Lincoln touch. No! After having been in America one doesn't laugh as one used to at jokes against prohibition."

BOOZE SENTENCES TOTAL 324 YEARS

Slackening Off During the Last Few Months In Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 30 (United Press). — If one man were required to serve the aggregate sentences handed out to booze law violators in Chicago during the last twelve months, he would have board and lodging behind the bars for 324 years, according to Edwin A. Olson, United States District Attorney for Chicago.

The total booze law convictions in the twelve months, according to Olson's statement, is 1,504, whih gives him the basis for aother statement that "Prohibition enforcement is doing more than aggravating Chicago's booze kings—it is putting them out of business."

The number of convictions in twelve months is but one record that has been established by the Prohibition enforcement department—another is the record established in closing premises that housed liquor law violators.

Records on the property injunctions issued show a total of 636 were issued from 1st May, 1923, to May, 1924, and that the property closed for one year by the court action has an aggregae value of $20,000,000.

The list includes 16 breweries in 19 Northern Illinois counties and the million dollar De Jonghe hotel, a popular hostelry in the heart of Chicago's loop district.

Olson hails the property injunction as his most effective weapon against the booze kings. It gives him a means of prosecution much more effective than criminal action, and at the same time serves to keep property owners from accepting questionable tenants.

"They are not going to run the risk of having their property closed for an entire year for the sake of a few months' rent paid by a booze runner or a basement distiller," Olson said. He added:

"In the last few months we have had fewer reports of booze joints than at any time since Prohibition and I am confident that the next few months will see a still greater decline in complaints."

METHODISTS AT NIAGARA FALLS OPPOSING MEETS

Hamilton Conference Declare Liquor Referendum Is Unwarranted—O.T.A. Might Be Strengthened and Made More Effective

PATIENT FOR UNION.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 29. —Hamilton Methodist Conference opened this afternoon at Lundy's Lane Methodist church with about 300 delegates present, clerical and lay. Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, the General Supt. presided over the opening session.

Rev. H. S. Dougall of Oakville, was elected President of the conference on the second ballot.

The following resolution moved bby Rev. C. R. Morrow, seconded by Fred Mann, the following resoluiton (was passed unanimously by standing vote):

Whereas the liquor traffic sanctioned by law held sway in our province for scores of years and during all these years marked its pathway with human wreckage and sorrow, and whereas, when, in 1916, impelled by the stress of war, the government, of which our honored Premier was a member, submitted the Ontario Temperance Act to the legislature, it was unanimously adopted and, whereas, after three years trial of the Act the electors of this province gave an overwhelming majority for its maintenance and against Government sale, and two years later recorded another majority against importation of liquor, thus showing their determined opposition to any traffic in liquor either by private individuals or through Government agents, and whereas some people are clamoring for what they call Government control but which in reality would be Government sale, thus making our Government in its corporate capacity to be bartender, for the province which is something no individual members of the Government would think of doing, and whereas a change to Government sale would not only make the Government the vendor of liquor but would also put it into competition with the bootlegger and give sanction and legal respectability to a traffic now outlawed. Whereas the Ontario Temperance Act has in its few years' trial done much good and is growing in efficiency.

Whereas, the Premier has called to the office of Attorney General Hon. W. F. Nickle a gentleman in whom we have confidence and who we believe is making sincere efforts to enforce the Act, and who has had only a few months in which to prove its effectiveness.

Therefore be it resolved, that, in our judgment, there is nothing to warrant the unnecessary expense involved in taking another vote upon the question until sufficient time has elapsed to give the Act fair trial and in the meantime it should be allowed to remain on the Statute Books without change, save any amendment which might strengthen it and make it more effective.

Urge Family Worship.

Family worship was also urged adopted by all Methodist families, something the association felt is being sadly neglected.

Rev. Dr. Chown addressed the conference on the action of the Ontario private bills committee in amending the Church Union Act by asking the legality of merging. He felt this would cause delay from two to six years and would work great damage to the cause of the Lord. He felt the Methodist church has been patient enough and would not stand for further dallying. "It will be impossible to hold the Methodist church much longer," said Dr. Chown and he expressed fear that there was danger of independent local churches in the Canadian west forming new church bodies among themselves.

The laymen's association held its annual banquet this evening at which an address was given by Bishop F. D. Leele of Philadelphia on "The wroth of a man."

Mayor Bowman, Alderman Wilkinson and Affrick and Otto Brown and Harold Heximer of the Boys' City Council extended a civic welcome to the conference. Rev. Dr. Bacon, Presbyterian and Rev. Dr. Snyder, Lutheran of Niagara Falls, N.Y., also addressed the conference. Also Dr. Wellis of Drummond Hill Guy B. Gordon, Rector of Christ Presbytrian church and Rev. Canon church, Anglican.

CHEMISTS PAY MARMORA VISIT

Members of Canadian Institute of Chemistry Inspect Deloro Smelter.

ON TOUR TO-DAY

MARMORA, May 30.—The Canadian Institute of Chemistry, in annual session in Kingston this week propose to make a tour of inspection on May 30, visiting in turn the Cement Company's works at Point Anne, the Industrial Alcohol Company's distillery at Corbyville, and the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company's plant at Deloro.

Between 50 and 75 members are expected to make the trip. Arrangements for their reception at Deloro include a complimentary luncheon. Included in the party will be some of the most prominent chemists in Canada.

Rev. J. M. White, of Eldorado, spent Tuesday and Wednesday at the Methodist Parsonage.

Mrs. C. R. Langley, of Deloro, underwent an operation for appendicitis on Wednesday.

On Sunday last Ray, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Loveless, was operated on by Dr. McKechnie, of Toronto, for adenoids and tonsils.

Mr. Archie Jones, of North Marmora, lost over 100 tomato plants by frost last week.

Potatoes are difficult to obtain locally. As much as $2.50 a bag is being paid for them.

Mr. Alex. Kennedy is the proud owner of twin Jersey calves, which are about 6 or 8 weeks old. The calves are as fine specimens of their kind as can be found anywhere in the vicinity.

Mr. H. Ford Berry, of Deloro, who has been ill for some weeks with pneumonia, is convalescent. Mr. Harry Smith, however, another Deloro resident, has contracted pneumonia.

After a close contest in the Young People's League of the Methodist Church, the Reds, under the leadership of Miss Nellie Williams, won the four months' contest by 4 points.

A special meeting will be held next Wednesday, when the winning side will be honored. Miss King's side will provide the programme for the evening, as they held second place, and "eats" will be provided by the third and fourth departments.

Ball Team's Prospects.

Deloro baseball team are very optimistic over their prospects for the current season. In Shea and Brady they consider they have acquired two new players who will give good account of themselves. The team's victory over Havelock on Monday gives the impression that they will be formidable opponents of the rest of the Trent Valley League.

BRITONS HONORED AMERICAN FALLEN

At Brookwood Cemetery the Graves of 435 American Soldiers and Sailors Were Decorated.

LONDON, May 30. — (United Press)—Where ever Americans who fell in war are buried on English soil Britons joined with Americans to-day in honoring their memory. The custom of placing flowes upon the graves of the war dead on decoration day, is one that appals to the British and increasing numbers each year take part in brief ceremonies and see that a "stas and stripes' 'marks the burial placeof the warrior.

To-day American Ambasador Kellog headed a committee of Americans which honored Britains unknown warrior in return and placed a wreath on the simple slab in Westminster Abbey and another at the Cenotaph in Whitehall.

Memorial day services was conducted at St. Margaret's church in Westminster by the Rev. Grnegie, Dean of the Abbey and Chapain of the House of Commons.

At Brookwood Cemetery, graves of 435 American soldiers and sailors were decorated.

About half this number was killed when the troopship Tuscana was torpedoed in February 1918. There are about 180 other American graves in this country and some 80 in Ireland.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

Large Swarms of Flies Appear on the Bridge Over the River.

HASTINGS, May 30. — Large swarms of flies, commonly known here as eel flies, and the first of any account noticed this year, appeared on the bridge and places surrounding the water on Wednesday afternoon. In years previous the flies appear at a much earlier time than this, but owing to the cold and backward weather they have delayed their appearance. As Wednesday was a much warmer, it accounts for the numerous swarms. The life of the fly seems short, but for the length of time they are here, the housewife and, in fact, everyone, finds them over disagreeable, but not harmful, to come in contact with.

COLBORNE PLAYERS DEFEAT HASTINGS

HASTINGS, May 30.—A large crowd of fans thronged the Athletic Grounds on Wednesday afternoon of this week, when Colborne and Hastings clashed in a Northumberland League game. The Colborne Colts showed more form than in any other game this season and trotted out of Hastings, a team of world beaters with the neat score of 9 to 4 tucked under their belts. Ques did the hurling for the Colborne crew and turned in a whirlwind of a game, while Herrington, for Hastings, also pitched nice ball, and would have made the score much closer if his team-mates had given him any support. Hastings showed lack of practice, while Colborne appeared to be in mid-season form. A large crowd from Hastings were present, but the few followers of the Colborne team did most of the yelling as the Hastingers only had a few chances to raise their voices.

The line-ups:

Colborne—D. Ques p, Mayhew c, Ross 1b, Barfett 2b, Wilson 3b, Myles ss, Delaney rf, McBride lf, Hawkins cf, A. Ques and Turpin subs.

Hastings—Herrington p, Scriver c, Stevenson 1b, Keogon 2b, Collins ss, D. Lemoire 3b, Dodd lf, rf, Cruickshank cf, Way, sub.

Umpire—Cowie of Colborne. Base umpire—C. E. Jones of Hastings.

By innings:

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Board of Education Held a Meeting--Changes on C. N. R.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 30. — With eight members — a bare quorum—present, the Board of Education held the regular monthly meeting last night and transacted routine business. The six absentees were: Trustees D. W. Douglas, Dr. Watson, Dr. Richardson, Major Bygott, Cock and Arnold.

Mrs. M. F. Reed, nee Fay Ketcheson, who retained her position as teacher in the primary department since her marriage some time ago, sent in her resignation last night and this was accepted. Two applications for positions on the teaching staff were received, but these were not read and the appointment of a successor to Mrs. Read was postponed until the next meeting when, if more resignations and applications are accepted, these can be dealt with at once.

The property committee was instructed to look after some repairs that were reported necessary in the furnaces of the new High school.

S. B. Coon and Son, of Toronto, the architects that prepared the plans for the new High school, wrote to say that it had been reported to them that the building was not being properly ventilated and heated and that as a result the air in the different rooms was damp. The architect pointed out that this could not fail to damage the walls, ceilings and woodwork and that the Board would be responsible for any loss sustained in this way. The building committee will investigate.

The contract for the coal and wood required to heat the Public and High schools was awarded to P. J. Kelly as recommended by the Property committee, who had dealt with the tenders, Mr. Kelly's offer being the lowest. The bids of the various dealers were published in The Examiner at the time the matter was dealt with by the committee.

Mr. Kelly's price for the best grade of coal required is $15.50 a ton.

Secretary Stephens was instructed to advertise for sale the old brick building, formerly a private residence, which was used as a home for the two classes of the primary department before these were moved into the old high school building at Easter. The furnace, a Quebec heater and son... other fixtures will be disposed of separately. The building which is located on the corner of the school lot will be moved away so as to give additional space for the play ground.

A heavy budget of accounts were passed, several bills being held up because the finance committee found that they lacked the O.K. of the member of the Board who was supposed to sanction the outlay.

A Correction

It is the British American Oil Company, of which J. N. Plumpton is the local agent, that has erected three oil tanks near the depot, not the Imperial Oil Company as inadvertently stated yesterday. The former company has recently established a branch here and will be well equipped to carry on business.

Changes on C.N.R.

The office of trainmaster on the Midland Division of the C. N. R. which includes the branch from Peterborough to Belleville and which passes through Campbellford, has been abolished and a new position that of Assistant Superintendent created. R. E. Orr of Lindsay, former trainmaster, has been promoted to the new place on the staff and his headquarters will not be changed from the town where he is at present located. J. D. McMillan of Belleville, is division Superintendent.

The heavy traffic in grain from Midland to Belleville, continues over this branch.

MANY FRIENDS HONOR A CENTREVILLE GIRL

Miss May Donaldson was Recipient of Many Gifts—

BAILIEBORO, May 30. — Over ninety friends gathered at the home of Mr. T. Donaldson, Centreville, to present his daughter May with a community shower in view of her approaching marriage on 3rd June to Mr. Davidson, of Camborne.

The shower was of a miscellaneous nature, and the gifts were useful, varied and beautiful, showing the high esteem in which Miss Donaldson is held by her friends in this community.

Rev. A. H. McConnachie presented the gifts, and in a short address expressed the company's good wishes to Miss Donaldson, who has been in the past a willing worker in church, Sunday School, and choir.

Mr. Donaldson replied in a few words, thanking all the friends for their presence and beautiful gifts, and assuring them that since May was not going far away, they would always be welcomed in her new home.

The evening was spent in card-playing and singing. About eleven o'clock lunch was served to all present.

Miss Donaldson will be much missed in the community, but her many friends join in wishing her every happiness in her new surroundings.

REDS REINFORCED

CINCINNATI, May 30.—"Chick" Shorten, outfielder, formerly of the St. Louis Browns, and Hugh Gritz, second baseman of the Minneapolis American Association team, have been obtained by the Cincinnati Nationals to strengthen the crippled Reds.

STIRLING AND THE DISTRICT

Members of Hastings County Council in Town Yesterday -- Winner of Prize.

(By a Staff Reporter)

STIRLING, May 30.—Ten members of the Hastings County Council, comprising roads and bridges committee and other officials were in Stirling yesterday and dined at the Witney House. They were on their annual tour inspecting the culverts on the main highways and will submit a report of there findings to the County Council, the summer session of which opens on Monday, June 16th at Belleville. The members of the party were: James A. Moore, reeve of Queensboro, chairman of the committee on roads and bridges, Warden Charles Rollins, Coe Hill; S. Fox of Madoc, road superintendent; W. W. Dracup, reeve of Rawdon; Walt Whitlock, reeve of Madoc village; W. Newton, reeve of Hungerford, Alford Reade, reeve of Sidney, N. Brown, deputy-reeve of Thurlow; W. Banter, reeve of Marmora township and J. Douglas.

Economy is the watchword with the Hastings County Councillors this year and an expenditure that can possibly be avoided will be undertaken, a member of the committee informed the Examiner. There are, however, a number of bridges in the county that must be repaired and some that should be replaced by new ones. These will be given attention when the June budget is prepared at Belleville next month.

Brought Fame to Stirling

Donald Ross, the High School student who has brought fame to that institution as well as to the village, by receiving third prize for an essay on forest conservation in the competition conducted by a Toronto newspaper with the sanction of the Government, wears his new honors with becoming modesty. Donald is only 15 years old, but is in the third form at the High School here. When the competition was announced he prepared his essay without taking his teacher, schoolmaster or friends into his confidence, so that his success created general surprise. If he had failed to secure a place among the winners no one here would have known that he had entered the lists.

Donald is the son of General A. E. Ross, of Kingston, who on the breaking out of the Great War enlisted in the medical corps, and who made a distinguished record overseas. General Ross was elected Federal member for Kingston in a bye-election in 1922.

Donald has since the death of his mother about eight years ago, been residing here with his grandmother, Mrs. S. H. Parker, and his maternal aunt, Miss Emma Parker. He has been a student in the High School for the past three years, showing special aptness in literature and history. To write an essay that won a prize among over 300 submitted required in addition to ability to express himself correctly in the English language, but a technical knowledge of the subject, a knowledge remarkable in one so young.

Principal Halpenny of the Stirling High School, speaks in terms of praise of Donald, both personally and as a student. His natural ability makes it an easy matter for him to keep up with his studies. The young fellow is also interested in athletics, and is one of the best players in the High School baseball team, which is a member of the town league.

"Prettiest Village in Ontario."

If the members of the Village Council were disposed to be as boastful as some of the other muncipalities in the province, and put up a sign at the town limits claiming that Stirling was the prettiest village in Ontario, passing tourists would not likely be skeptical when they read the announcement. The main thoroughfare, Front street, is certainly an ideal residential section, and looks the best now that the trees which line both sides of the way are equipped in their summer verdure. The houses are handsome and the lawns and flower gardens are beautifully kept. Farmers of Hastings county, looking for a home, after they give up active work, in which to end their days, never hesitate in making a choice. If Stiring lacks manufacturers, and if business inflations are unknown, its prosperity is of the steady variety.

The total amount of taxes to be raised last year was $20,047. When the collector, Dr. M. W. Sine, turned in his roll at the last meeting of the Council, all of this amount had been paid in execpting $45, and this was largely due from those residing in other places. It will be charged up to their property.

Stirling's tax rate last year was 45 mills. The rate for 1924 has not yet been struck, but it is not likely to be any higher, as the assessed value of the village shows an increase. The assessor has made his returns, but the figures have not yet been totalled. The assessment is well over 50 per cent. of the actual value of the property.

The roadways in Stirling are a credit to the enterprise and taste of the taxpayers. The Belleville-Peterboro highway forms part of the main thoroughfare, and the Village Council has fallen in line with Campbellford and other interested communities that have united in a memorial to the Ontario Government asking that this road be made a part of the Provincial system.

Reeve C. B. McGuire, rated as one of the best civic servants Stirling has ever had, last year secured a grant of $5,000 from the County Council to improve the streets. This was expended on a cement bridge over the Rawdon Creek, where it crosses Bridge Street, which is a link in the highway referred to. Front Street was improved and given a coat of tar, but this was applied so late in the season that it did not get a chance to settle properly before the wet and cold weather set in. The work will be done over again as soon as the present rainy weather shows signs of abating.

There was an agitation some time ago for the installation of a modern system of waterworks, but this proposition has been abandoned for another year at least.

PROSPECTOR FOUND DEAD NEAR TIMMINS

TIMMINS, May 30 (Canadian Press). — Believed to have been dead at least five days, Hugh O. Kerr, of Toronto, a prospector, was found in his shack in the southern section of Mattagami, near here.

Death was apparently due to heart failure.

Kerr was a man of peculiar habits, and his absence from the streets occasioned no alarm for several days.

WHITE JADE.

Earrings and necklaces of carved white jade are effective with the all black gown.

BLACK HAND IS ON THE WARPATH

Hamilton Man Found Dead on Streets of Buffalo.

HAMILTON, May 30.—(Canadian Press)—Black hand intrigue is believed responsible for murder of Joe Basili, storekeeper, this city, whose body was riddled with six bullets on streets of Buffalo last night. He was standing on street when an auto drove up containing three men who spoke to him, then shot him dead. Local police were advised by long distance telephone that Basili's slayers escaped. One probable theory in connection with murder hinged on recent developments in connection with exposure of powerful ring of high graders in northern Ontario. Basili's wife is facing trial on charge of high grading. It is alleged that she sold gold stolen by high graders.

TO HELP DRUG ADDICTS WHO FIGHT THE HABIT

TORONTO, May 30 (Canadian Press). — Holding their annual meeting yesterday in Wesley Building, the Inter-Church Advisory Council of Canada unanimously adopted a resolution dealing with the narcotic drug traffic and narcotic addicts, and urged that steps should be taken by the proper authorities to provide suitable institutions to help addicts who are endeavouring to break the habit.

INSPECTOR GETS YOUNG FISHER

Boy Caught a Fish And The Inspector Caught The Boy.

MILLBROOK, May 30.—Solon, the Greek philosopher, once said, "Lawe are like cobwebs where the small flies are caught, but the big ones break through." Probably in this day instances can be found which illustrate the grave injustice implied in the terse saying.

Herb. Cardwell, the 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Cardwell of Wallace's Point, Otonabee River, was returning from Toronto last September where he had been competing in the races postponed from Exhibition time on account of rainy weather. The races took place on Saturday, and it was Sunday morning when Cardwell reached Port Hope, which was as far as he could come by rail on that day. Having left his car at Frazerville station, he started to walk, but was overtaken by an affable stranger who offered him a lift in his car. Cardwell then relates the following story:

"The driver stated he was on his way to Bewdley, but finding out Herb.'s name and that he had been at the Cardwell home, he offered to drive him to the Point, taking him to Frazerville when he found that was where his passenger had to go for his car.

Thanking the stranger for his kindness, Cardwell, as was natural under the circumstances, assured him he would gladly oblige him with some service in return should opportunity present itself. On May 5th of this year the same stranger called at the Cardwell home, and finding Herb. at work on his car, asked confidentially if the latter could procure him a fish. Mindful of his obligation for the favor last fall, Herb. answered that he had no fish on hand, but possibly might procure one if it was actually wanted, but was told never to mind if none were in his possession.

In about twenty minutes another stranger appeared, stating that he had been giving the first visitor, who was in trouble with his car, some assistance, and the latter had sent the note which he handed over. It read:

"Dear Mr. Cardwell,—

"Please give this man the 'lunge you thought you could procure for me and oblige the man who gave you the ride. G. W."

Cardwell, who is a well-known athlete, is not a fisherman, but out of courtesy promised the fish for the next morning, the visitor saying he would be on hand to receive it. Lacking enough paint-remover to finish his car, Herb. asked the man if he would mind bringing him a can since he was coming out in the morning, and he would thus be saved a trip to town.

When the can was handed over the following morning, the reply to Cardwell's query as to price was to the effect, "I'll say nothing about this if you'll say nothing about the fish you're going to give me." Cardwell does not own a net, but had borrowed one the previous evening, and had four bass for his visitor. Before going to the house to get them he asked, "You are not an inspector, are you?" to which the reply was, "Oh, no, nothing like that." Yet as soon as the fish were offered the man showed his official badge and informed Herb. that he was a law-breaker and liable to a penalty.

Another inspector arrived the next day to try and secure the net used, but found himself unsuccessful. Cardwell never received any formal summons to appear regarding the charge against him, but was informed he could see the Magistrate and settle the matter out of court. His father being absent in the city, Mrs. Cardwell accompanied her son to Peterborough, where they found this privilege denied them and were obliged to appear with other offenders.

Cardwell pleaded guilty. A fine of $100 was imposed, but when Mrs. Cardwell had been granted the privilege of speaking, this was changed to $20 and costs, or one month in jail.

The question is whether an inspector is justified in tempting a boy to commit a breach of the law in order to trap him, or whether such intrigue should be scorned.

Five Men Killed Daily In The British Mines

LONDON, May 30. — Herbert Smith, president of the Miners Federation, gave some statistics regarding fatalities in the coal mines of Britain, little known to the average person, in his opening speech at the miners' wages inquiry.

In 1923, he said, 212,256 men were disabled for more than seven days, and in addition 1,297 lives were lost. These figures meant that every working day more than five persons were killed. Every 215,000 tons of coal raised was stained with one man's blood. Every working day 850 men were injured.

"If the victims of accidents in the mines," Mr. Smith continued, "were marshalled in one procession, four men in a rank, and each rank one and a half yards apart, they would have a procession of 45 miles. Every 15 yards of that tragic march they would have an ambulance containing a man who was seriously injured and every 61 yards a hearse. This is part of the miner's wages, part of the price he pays in the struggle with natural forces that people may have coal and he and his family bread."

Small 100-watt relay stations are planned for local broadcasting in Great Britain.

CHICAGO PLANS A BIG AUDITORIUM

This Auditorium Will Attract Hundred Of Thousands Of People To Chicago Annually.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 30.—(United Press).—The largest convention hall and community center in the United States, if not in the world, will be built in Chicago if plans of the south park commissioners here materialize.

Packers of the plan propose to remodel the old Fine Arts building left by the World's Fair in Jackson Park and make it the leading auditorium of the nation—one that would attract hundreds of thousands of people to Chicago annually.

Citizens of the south side are expected to vote June 2 on a large bond issue, part of which would provide funds for the colossal project.

The structure as planned will contain a series of halls that can be thrown open into a huge auditorium, seating 25,000 persons. The scheme provides for indoor swimming pools, gymnasia, ball rooms, club rooms, recreation halls and minor auditoriums.

Present specification for the main auditorium place the speaker's rostrum in the center. The large hall is also planned for huge athletic carnivals. The main building at present has approximately 150,000 square feet of floor space. It has two large wings, which could be used for art and commercial exhibits.

The exterior of the Fine Arts building would be restored, and the dome—considered one of the most imposing in America—would be retained in the new structure.

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park commissioners, declared that the proposed auditorium would be one of the greatest in the world. "It should attract half a million people to Chicago every year," he said.

MEDCIAL MEN'S ANNUAL MEET

Thousands Of American Physicians Will Attend The Session On June 2.

CHICAGO, May 30.—The forward strides of the science of medicine in the last year will be surveyed by thousands of American physicians who will attend the annual session of the American Medical Association, to be held on the Municipal Pier the week of June 2.

Various state and national health associations will have statistical and public health displays. The federal government will be represented in three exhibits, given by the departments of agriculture, interior, and public health.

The official scientific meetings will be divided into 16 sections covering all of the medical specialties. In the section on medicine, special attention is to be paid to progress in the treatment of diabetes with insulin, and to the treatment of heart diseases and closely related conditions. In the section on surgery, virtually every field of operation on the human body will be discussed. Obstetricians, eye, nose and throat specialists and authorities on the diseases of children will reflect their progress in addresses and clinics.

The sections on the use of drugs and on preventive and industrial medicine will confine one meeting to discussions on modern methods of resuscitation after gas poisoning and electric shock, and also on the prevention of lead poisoning in modern industries.

Two other sessions will be concerned with modern anesthesia, including papers on painless childbirth and the use of ethylene. Another special meeting will be devoted to the more advanced aspects of the use of the X-ray. The program includes about three hundred papers.

Many distinguished medical men of foreign countries will be present and each will bring an important record of medical achievement.

FLEET COMING TO VANCOUVER

Dominion Government Rejects Responsibility For Trip Into Interior.

JOLT TO COMMITTEE

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 30.—(Canadian Press).—Plans of the civic committee for the reception to the special service squadron of the British fleet here next month were given somewhat of a jolt yesterday when wires were received from Ottawa that the Dominion Government would accept no responsibility for plans of entertainment of the fleet other than the two smoking concerts which it was previously agreed to give at Vancouver.

It has been the understanding by the committee that the federal authorities would give 240 men and 40 officers a trip to the interior as far east as Winnipeg. All points between Vancouver and Winnipeg were greatly interested in this proposal and were preparing welcomes, but the wire from Ottawa stated that the Government recognized no responsibility in this connection.

The provincial Government had made a grant of $2,500 towards the reception and the Vancouver city council has voted $6,000.

Much trouble is caused by poor connections from the storage battery.

RURAL POPULATION LOW IN HAMILTON TOWNSHIP

Interesting Figures in Assessment Return Show Depopulation Over a Number of Years—More Land Cleared.

COBOURG, May 30.—The assessment for Hamilton Township has just been completed and shows some interesting figures. First as regards population, the total population, including every person residing in the municipality, is 29,201. This is an increase of 120 over last year.

How Population Decreased

Going back, however, for several decades, the assessment returns of this municipality give some idea of the extent of rural depopulation. A census taken nearly 75 years ago shows that Hamilton Township then had a population of 4502. In 1861 it had increased to 6,315. Ten years later there was a decrease to 5,721. In 1881 the population was 5,153, and in 1891 it was 4,313.

Proportion By Families.

In 1891 the number of familes in the township is given as 872. With a population of 4,313 this would give an average of between six and seven in a family. The last census gives the population as 2,920, and the number of families as 725, which, divided up, means families averaging about four people.

Acres Under Crop.

Thirty-three years ago in 1891 there was 44,880 acres under crop, 9,855 acres under pasture, 6,036 acres in wood land, and 1,300 acres in orchards. To-day there are still 3,198 acres of wood land, which is certainly a good percentage, and 58,063 acres of cleared land; 894 acres are designated as slush land and swamp.

Valuation.

The last census gives the total value of the land as $1,330,465, with a total acreage of 62,156. This would indicate an average of a little over $21 an acre.

Religious Denominations.

The present census shows the religious denominations by families to be as follows: Methodists 256, Prebsyterians 214, Anglicans 67, Congregationalists 41, Roman Catholics 39, Baptists 12, other denominations 4.

33 Years Ago.

In 1891 the census shows the religious denominations by individuals. It is recorded that there were 361 Roman Catholics, 599 Anglicans, 1247 Presbyterians, 1691 Methodists, 2 Bible Christians, 84 Baptists, 277 Congregationalists, 6 Quakers, 7 Salvation Army and 39 not specified.

An Old Assessment.

The assessment roll for Hamilton Township for 1826, nearly 100 years ago, certainly presents some interesting figures. It is preserved in the history of Hamilton Township, written by the late Walter Riddell, of Cobourg, father of Mr. Justice Riddell.

Population 297

The population is given as 297, with probably one third of these residing within what is now the Town of Cobourg. There was then 809½ acres of cultivated land. The total value of all assessable property was $99,221.

The Tax Rate.

The rate in 1826 was one penny on the pound for district purposes, and one-quarter of a penny to pay members of the House of Assembly, and the total amount collected in taxes was about $519.37. Twenty-one persons whose names appear on the roll are assessed for a cow only. The highest tax paid by any one individual was $15.37, the lowest paid was a little less than three cents. Four individuals only paid over one pound, and all the rest under one pound, or less than four dollars.

Paid Fourpence.

There were 28 persons who paid fourpence and under. There was no assessment on a common log house, but square log, frame, brick and stone houses were assessed with additional fireplaces.

Live Stock In 1826.

It is recorded that these 297 people owned 478 horses, 642 cows, and 230 young cattle. There is no mention made of sheep or pigs. Five pleasure wagons were assessed for various amounts.

The Industries In 1826.

As these were assessed at that time one mill with one pair of stones, two mills with additional stones, three saw mills, two stores and one store house, we can infer that these represented the commercial and industrial activity of the township, with the exception of farming.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

JACKSON PARK SHELTER.

Sir: I was in Jackson Park on Sunday afternoon. About 3 o'clock a heavy storm of hail and rain blew up. The green-painted metal shelter proved to be a shelter indeed for about twenty-five people. That is only one time of many occasions on which it has proved its usefulness. And yet some of our civic solons have conceived the brilliant idea of having this same shelter conveyed to Central Park and converted to the use of bowlers! What a brilliant idea! And how little are some of our civic rulers in touch with the common people.

"HUSBAND" WAS WOMAN, TOO!

For 15 months Bertha Jones (left) of Cleveland believed herself to be the wife of Harry Meyers. Then neighbors began to gossip and Bertha learned her "husband" was a woman, too. And "Meyers" (right), now booked on the police blotter as Lillian Huffman, was arrested on a suspicion charge. But she still wears her male attitre. For 17 years Lillian has worked and dressed as a man, police say. At the time of her arrest she was employed in a cabinet factory. The two never lived together, Lillian contending her wages were not sufficient to keep them both. But Bertha received more than half of "husband's" pay each week. Now Bertha is pleading for Lillian's release.

WONDER CHILD.

Celebrated wonder-child, Adele Aarons of Philadelphia, continues to amaze scientists. She began to walk at three months. At a year old, had the intelligence of an eight-year child, and said to a visitor:

"I am annoyed, you see. I'm cutting my teeth. I have never had molars before, you know. The pain is excrutiating."

There are hundreds of thousands of grown-ups who will have to look in the dictionary for the meaning of "excrutiating."

Maybe these are wonder-children are forerunners of a super-race of the distant future. The boy of 10 today knows more than graybeards of 5000 years ago. Knowledge and wisdom are not the same, however.

Natives of Turkey can tell time by observing the eyes of a cat.

SOBERED.

Europe's troubles now are chiefly financial, for the people are progressively working harder and the war's destruction is being rebuilt with amazing speed.

And the financial situation over there is improving in the best possible way—governments living within their incomes. In the first four months of 1924, German government spent about 250 million gold marks less than it collected in taxes, etc. France in the same period saved a surplus of 1220 million Francs. Italy, too, makes a bright showing, her government revenue and spending almost balancing in the last nine months.

Breaking Into the Films

By HAROLD E. SWISHER.

HOLLYWOOD, May 30 (United Press). — Margaret "Peg" Talmadge, Hollywood's best-known mother of famous motion picture players, speaks with a knowledge of her subject when she talks on "breaking into" the films.

As the mother of Norma, Constance and Natalie Talmadge, Mrs. Talmadg assumed the role of parent to studioland's best-known picture family.

Life today is pleasant for Mrs. "Peg" Talmadge. The wolf has been permanently banned from the doorstep. But it was not always thus, and it was with the hope that advice from her own store of Hollywood memories would prove beneficial to the mothers of other girls who long for fame in the flickering drama, that Mrs. Talmadge gave the following exclusive statement to the United Press.

"Don't come to Los Angeles," Mrs. Talmadge advises mothers, "unless you are well provided with money to carry on a long campaign. Success in motion pictures does not come in a few weeks or a few months. It is a matter of working for years.

"Upon arriving in Los Angeles I should advise mothers to purchase a small car because distance between the various studios and casting bureaus are great, and much time can be gained with a car. This is an important matter, for Universal City is nearly 20 miles from Culver City, and even the studios in Hollywood itself are not grouped.

A Matter of Rents.

"If finances are limited, there is really no need for a mother and daughter to live in Hollywood, where rents are higher than in other districts around Los Angeles. Small houses and flats can be obtained in certain parts of the city for from $35 a month up.

"The first thing to do is to watch the newspapers closely and find out what productions are about to be made Then learn what parts your daughter might play in the picture. Be modest and carefully appraise your daughter's talents. Undoubtedly she will have to start as an 'extra'.

"Meanwhile, see the various casting offices, both those at the studio and those which make a business of furnishing 'types' for the studios. Register and leave photographs at these bureaus. Keep in touch with them daily.

"A mother can be her daughter's best manager, but if there is sufficient money available, it would be advisable to secure a manager or a press-agent-manager. If the mother decides to be her own manager, she would cultivate the acquaintance of directors but, let me speak frankly, without becoming a nuisance.

"Nor should the assistant directors and cameramen be overlooked by an ambitious mother. Judicious cultivation of their acquaintance and friendship is valuable. Then there is the scenario writer. Often a scenarist, from reasons of friendship, will 'write in' a small part for a budding actress.

Getting a Start.

"Getting a start in motion pictures is largely a matter of acquaintance. Directors and casting directors must be apprised in one way of another as to just what ability and future prospects a girl has for the parts she wishes to play.

"The best way to break in is as an 'extra'. After a girl has played as an 'extra' in the various studios, she will have made many valuable acquaintances and will find procuring engagements a less difficult matter.

"There is a plethora of pretty girls in Hollywood. The streets are full of them. So I would not advise the merely pretty, young woman to come to Los Angeles. Besides beauty, she absolutely must have a natural talent for mimicry, for characterization and impersonation.

"Without innate dramatic ability, a young woman will not go far in Hollywood. And this appraisal of her dramatic talent should be made back in the home-town before the tickets to Los Angeles are purchased.

"The best way to find out beforehand is to give the young lady a tryout with a stock company or in amateur theatricals. If she shows promise and is blessed with both beauty and brains, then Hollywood might be given a trial. But, oh, what a long and heart-breaking struggle it is to achieve success!

A Hard Struggle.

"Mothers and daughters, I warn you, in advance, for I know. I struggled long to help my daughters ahead. I know the hardships as well as the rewards. But I often wonder whether I would want to fight the battles all over again if I were 15 years younger once more and my daughters were wtill in their 'teens'.

"No girl should try to get into pictures without her mother's aid and advice. It is not because there are pitfalls around the studios. Studios in a way are merely factories. And there's no more danger for a girl in them than there is in any office building or manufacturing plant.

"There are scamps in every business and profession, and girls in all walks of life, outside the studios, have their experiences to tell. Studio folk are no different than the general run of Americans.

"But a mother is most essential. She has had long experience with the world. She is trained in reading character. She can pick her daughter's associates with more skill than a young girl can.

Needs Mother's Care.

"Moreover, every mother acquires some business experience. She can make better bargains for her daughter's services. A girl upon entering motion pictures needs advice, comfort and consolation in the weary, disheartening first year or two. Only a mother can give such solace to her.

"Mothers, don't let your daughters come to Hollywood alone. They will need your comforting arms about them many a time. There will come a time, perhaps, when the daughter will think she doesn't need you. But she will be mistaken. She will always need you.

"I know a mother in Hollywood who is helping her daughter on to success. The daughter, a mid-western girl, is learning to ride. Her mother rides with her. She is learning to fence, to swim, and to dance according to the requirements of the pictures in which she appears. She is educating herself in a dozen different ways 'between pictures,' and her mother is learning with her."

AFTER YOU GET THEM.

"Before we were married, Arthur," said a young wife reproachfully, "you always gave me the most beautiful presents. Do you remember?"

"Yes," said Arthur; "hut, my dear, did you ever hear of a fisherman giving bait to a fish after he had caught it?"

"HEARTS AFIRE!"

By MAY CHRISTIE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—brilliant young inventor, who, though loving Prudence, became entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—Guest at the country home of wealthy

Mrs. Vansittart—from whom Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Virginia throws Peter Armstrong over because he has been blinded in an accident in his laboratory, and she tries to marry an old 'flame,'

Bert Traymore—who will not have her. Immediately thereafter the police arrest Virginia for her numerous thefts, and takes her off.

Prudence is sitting at Peter's bedside one night when she hears a sound as of someone moving stealthily in the laboratory. Prudence lights a candle, goes into the laboratory, and a masked man springs at her.

Armstrong rushes to her rescue, ill though he is, and in the ensuing struggle tears off the thief's mask, showing Bert Traymore, who had come to steal and patent his invention, the work of years. The shock restores Armstrong's sight again.

Janet Mercer, who nursed Armstrong and is in love with Will Ogilvie, is a great friend of Mrs. Vansittart's.

They discuss Virginia's downfall.

CHAPTER LXXXII.

Traymore Sets Sail.

Mrs. Vansittart took up the thread of conversation.

"Virginia's attorney cut a sorry figure, trying to bring it in as 'kleptomania.' She'd lifted things from the local stores for weeks. The manager of Blank's had caught her once, it seemed, but Virginia had got on his soft side, and he let her off. Bartholomew's, that big jewelry place in Meriton, had most conclusive evidence against her. It seemed that after one of Virginia's visits—in my car, if you please, and using my name freely to get credit everywhere!—an emerald bracelet, worth $1500, was missing. When the police came here they found the bracelet in her trunk!"

"Gracious!" breathed Janet, to whom a sum like $1500 was a fortune. "The nerve of her!"

"But she wasn't clever enough," went on the older woman. "To hide the stuff she'd stolen from here, in two boxes in the ground in the wood was the crudest idea I ever heard of! Simpson, the detective, found it out. He never gave me a hint of it until the last minute, when the police were already on their way here,"—and Mrs. Vansittart gave a dainty shiver.

"The judge was quite lenient in the circumstances," said Janet, thoughtfully. "He only sentenced her to a year, and if she'd been a man she might have got five! She'd been 'bound over' twice before, and some time ago she'd done two terms of about six months and a year each, hadn't she?"

"Yes. Lucky for Peter Armstrong that she threw him over before the cataclysm! She'll be wild now if she hears that his sight has been restored to him! And wilder still when she hears what that famous firm have offered him for his patent!"

There was a long pause, while little Lucia prattled to her dolls, unconscious of the vivid drama that was revolving in her elders' minds.

"Any news of Traymore?" queried Janet at last, brusquely.

"None. As he didn't get away with anything, so far as we know, the police probably will drop the matter. But it was simply outrageous that attempt of his to get hold of young Armstrong's invention! I suppose, if Prudence hadn't stopped him, and then Armstrong himself rushed in, Traymore would have dashed off to some foreign country, patented the invention there, and made his fortune!

"All's well that ends well," said Janet, unoriginally, but very truly.

Some days before the previous conversation, an unshaven, badly-dressed, young man, hat crushed well down to shade his features, might have been seen hurrying furtively on Broadway.

Once or twice, afraid he might be recognized, he turned down a side street.

But, finally, by devious ways, he reached his destination, which was a cheap photographer's, where 'passport photos' could be taken, developed and printed all in the one day.

It wasn't vanity that drove Bert Traymore there. It was the urgent need for leaving the United States!

And those tiresome passport regulations must be catered to.

He had a chance to go abroad, but alas! the passage must be in the steerage!

Firstly, because Traymore hadn't got the money even for the second-class.

And, secondly, because he might escape unnoticed in the steerage mob; whereas—if the police had orders to watch the various embarkations—they would probably keep their eye upon the first and second classes, and any disguise he might adopt would be more noticeable among better-dressed passengers, whereas he could amble aboard the steerage with a five days' growth upon his face, a handkerchief knotted about his neck in lieu of a collar and a tie, and an old hat rammed upon his head.

He didn't look too savory at the moment, but the photographer took the picture, and four hours later Traymore had the necessary copies in his pocket.

Arrived at the passport offices, there was some difficulty, however. Traymore couldn't satisfy the officials there, and was asked to stand aside and await further investigation.

Sweat rose on his forehead. The dreadful suspicion seized him that the men in this office had received instructions not to issue a passport to him, and even now might be telephoning City Hall!

What a fool he'd been to come here, after the episode in Peter Armstrong's laboratory, which he (Bert Traymore) had ingloriously 'muffed.'

It was like walking into the lion's den, wasn't it?

He sat on a bench in the passport office, eyes on the floor, and hat twirled nervously between his fingers.

When the officials' backs were turned he contrived to tip-toe off, hurrying down the long stone corridors, and out into the fresh air.

He boarded an uptown street car, and didn't get off till somewhere near Times Square.

Then, walking westward, he hurried down an alley-way and knocked with a given signal at a door, whose upper panels were of glass, heavily veiled.

A fierce-looking man inside drew back the curtain and peered through at Traymore standing on the sidewalk.

What he saw, after a moment's scrutiny, seemed to satisfy him, for he undid the bolt, admitted the newcomer, and then swiftly shutting and locking the door behind him.

"Come in; I didn't recognize you right away, with that fungus on your face! Say, guess you're in trouble of some sort?"

Traymore followed him down some steps, through another door, and into a room heavy with the fumes of stale tobacco, of synthetic gin, and fiery 'Scotch.'

"Have one? Eh?"

"Can a duck swim?" Traymore made an attempt at jocularity, but his nerve did not return to him until he quaffed a couple of glasses of the stuff whose origin and purity were dubious.

"Say, that's got some kick to it! It's great!"

Some men, who had been 'shooting craps' at a green-covered table, flung down their dice and rose to assist Traymore in his refreshment. Under the influence of the tongue-loosening liquid, he explained his quandary, and of his desire for imminent flight.

"You'd suit Carl, young fellah," one of the men remarked, turning to a weather-beaten Dutchman, who, it seemed, was skipper of a schooner due to leave that night for Holland. "Carl's short of hands, and I guess this boy'd work his passage over, and no questions asked."

Traymore barely contrived to suppress a shudder at the thought of what life would be like as an 'able-bodied seaman,' but he couldn't, in his present plight, afford to lose this chance of getting away.

Carl was good-natured. It was settled. And—with a favorable tide and winds, and forgetful of Virginia and all other ties that had ever bound him to the U.S.A.—Traymore set sail for foreign lands and new adventures.

RUMANIA TURNS TO PROHIBITION

Commission Appointed to Assist In Drafting Legislation.

BUCHAREST, May 29 (Associated Press)—The idea of prohibition, at least in a mild form is beginning to take root in Rumania.

Vintila Bratiano, minister of finance, and brother to the Rumanian premier, has appointed a commission to assist in drafting legislation designed to curtail and regulate the sale and consumption of strong spirits, particularly "tzuica," a native brandy.

It is not planned to interfere with light wines and beer. The habit of drinking these beverages is so deep-rooted that interference probably would be considered unwise by any Rumanian government.

The main purpose of the proposed legislation is to restrict the diversion of food products from nutritive purposes to that of manufacturing liquors of high alcoholic content. It is proposed to make it illegal for producers of foodstuffs to sell more than a small portion of their products to manufacturers of spirits, and also to impose an additional heavy tax on maunfactured strong drinks.

A nationwide educational campaign in favor of the measure is planned by the churches and other civic bodies.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

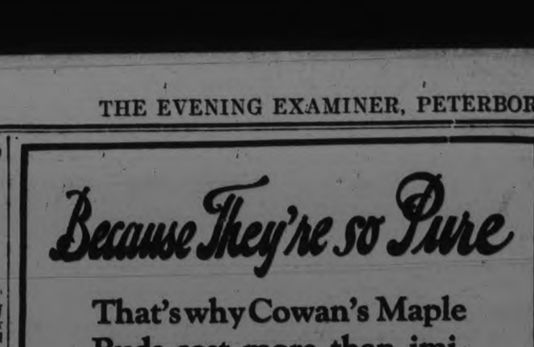
THE DISSATISFIFD FROG



"What do you want to do, Mister Discontent?"

"Oh, dear!" croaked the green frog, puffing out his cotton sides until his tissue-paper skin nearly burst. "I do wish something would happen! They call this place Doofunny Land, but nobody ever does anything and it's never funny!"

"What do you want to do, Mister Discontent?" asked Hinky Dinky between nots, for his head never stopped its bobbing up and down night or day.

"Humph!" croaked the green frog. "It's all right for you to call me Mister Discontent, for you can be happy anywhere. You weren't made to swim and sit in the sun on a wet log, and catch flies, and watch the moon and fireflies on summer nights."

"Well, neither were you, dear sir," nodded Hinky Dinky. "Your first swim would be your last. Your fine green tissue-paper skin would peel off you like the outside of a boiled beet, and your white cotton flesh would get as water-soaked as a sponge. And your wire toes would get rusty and your——"

"Oh, stop, stop!" croaked the frog. "They call me a croaker, but what are you, Mister Hinky Dinky? I never heard such dismal words in all my life."

"There! There!" cried the little man. "I only meant it kindly. I just wanted to show you that you are better off as you are."

"I do try," croaked the frog, "but one day I fell out of the window and I saw how real frogs lived. Happy was no name! They dived and splashed and blinked and croaked and swam races and played leap-frog, and all I could do was to sit there and watch. That was when I decided to run away, and so I came to Doofunny Land."

"The real frogs have their troubles, too," nodded Hinky Dinky. "You'd never guess how much trouble they have."

"I don't believe it," declared the paper frog. "I don't believe it."

Nancy and Nick and Mister Fuzz Wuzz heard this conversation, and poor dear Mister Fuzz Wuzz was worried. "I hate to have folk unhappy," he said. "I do wish I could do something."

Suddenly Silver Wings appeared on a flower. "I am going to give the froggie his wish," she said. "The Fairy Queen heard him and sent me to weave a charm:

"Pollywogs, froggies and lizards and eels,
Turn a somersault backward and see how it feels."

With that the frog gave a backward spring and sat grinning and blinking his googily eyes, too happy for anything. "Why, now I am a real frog," he boomed in a new deep voice. "And I feel gorgeous. Goodbye, people."

With that he hopped off down the road and disappeared in a hole in a hill.

"We shall see what happens now," said Silver Wings. "All his life, Mister Frog has lived in a safe place and been taken care of. Now he must look out for himself in the world where he has gone."

"Well, he has gone now," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz, "and I should like to know what happens to him. Nancy and Nick, you can go anywhere in your magic shoes. Follow the paper frog out into the world and keep an eye on him." o

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Before buying real estate mortgage bonds, find out the value of the land security behind the bonds and what percentage of the mortgage the value of the land represents.

Very often real estate mortgage bonds are not properly secured. That is, the bond issue represents nearly the total value of the building and the ground—the normal market price. Conservative finance agrees that a mortgage bond issue should not be for more than two and one-half times the value of the land on which the building is built. A great French financial institution, Credit Foncier, will not lend but one-half the value of the real estate in such cases.

The reason why such bonds, which represent the total normal market value of the building and ground, are dangerous, is simple. If the building, which is represented by the bonds, fails and is sold at auction it will not command anywhere near the normal market price and the bondholders will be left "holding the sack" when the bond payments are settled up from the proceeds of the auction sale.

LIBERALS WORK FOR FREEDOM OF PRISONERS

Czar's Government Did Not Dare Execute The 18-Year-Old Girl In Face Of Universal Protest.

BERLIN, May 30.—Maria Spiridonova was saved from the gallows in 1906 by a world-wide protest.

The czar's government did not dare execute the 18-year-old girl in the face of universal protest against the abuse she had suffered at the hands of brutal soldiers, and she was sent to Siberia for life.

With the abdication of the czar Spiridonova returned to Russia to become an effective leader of the peasants. But she soon ran foul of the Bolshevists' leaders, with whom she tried to work, and now another world-wide movement has been launched to rescue her from Soviet imprisonment and make it possible for her to leave Russia and regain her health in some quieter land.

The International Workers Association is behind the movement to effect the release of Spiridonova and also hundreds of other revolutionists, socialists and workers who are in Soviet prisons and concentration camps. A general appeal has been made to all labor and revolutionary organizations throughout the world to help in the campaign of non-partisan revolutionists held in Russian prisons.

Social revolutionists, anarchists, of so-called liberals and radicals are syndicalists and various other sorts joining the movement and broadcasting their appeals in terms which denounce the communist regime in Russia as a "dictatorship over the proletariat" rather than a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

Since July 6, 1918, Maria Spiridonova was saved from the gallows in 1906 by a world-wide protest. Bolshevist government. When she has been in disfavor with the returned from 11 years of Siberian exile she was welcomed as a leader of the peasants, and worked with the Soviet regime until the ratification of the Brest-Litovsk Treaty, which she denounced as inimical to the interests of the peasants.

With many other Left Social revolutionists she was arrested after the murder of Count Mierbach, the German ambassador, and her life since has been one of constant persecution, according to the organizations which are seeking Maria's release.

BANDITRY BLOSSOMS IN MANCHURIA WITH ADVENT OF SUMMER

The Cold Of Winter Serves To Keep These Bandits More Or Less Quiet And Timid.

HARBIN, Manchuria, May 30.—The notorious bandits of Manchuria, called in Chinese "Hunhutze" or Red Beards, have begun to reappear with the advent of warm weather. Their favorite field of operations is along the 900-mile line of the Chinese Eastern railway, among the prosperous settlements populated by Russian railway employees and Chinese farmers.

The cold of winter serves to keep these bandits more or less quiescent, maintaining themselves as best they can on booty acquired during the summer season. Nevertheless, they do not find it necessary to hide in the mountains or forests during their period of inactivity. On the contrary they mingle freely in the life of the towns as peaceable citizens, sometimes occupying themselves with some petty trade, or begging in the streets.

Occasionally one chances to be recognized, in which case punishment is swift and sure at the hands of an executioner who wields a two-handed sword, or in a locality dominated by the military, before a firing squad. In either case the occasion is public.

The severity of their punishment when caught suggests the tear with which the populace regards the bandits, and there is plenty of reason for this. In the summer they actually terrorize the railway towns, levy taxes on the lumber concessionaries, fight battles with the troops and are too often successful, and interrupt navigation on the rivers. They operate in well armed disciplined bands and thus far opposition to them has met with doubtful success. Railway guards exist but are poorly armed and poorly organized, so that railways employees living along the line are resigning their posts and moving to places of safety.

Work in the lumber concessions become intermittent in the summer because of frequent attacks, capture of employees, heavy taxes and forest fires of suspected origin. Steamers and junks on the rivers are occasionally fired at, boarded and plundered.

No remedy is as yet even suggested. Troops have been used against the bandits but never in sufficient numbers to accomplish anything, and in the opinion of observers they never will be exterminated by force of arms so long as present political conditions continue.

SOMETHING ABOUT LINOLEUM

Little Jimmie Watt watched the lid of his mother's tea-kettle rise with the force of the steam—and the steam locomotive was the result.

Most great discoveries from Franklin's kite to the invention of vulcanized rubber and their origin were partly by accident and partly by thoughtful observation.

Linoleum was the accidental discovery of an Englishman named Frederick Walton, in 1863. Walton was a merchant dealing in India rubber and was seeking a less costly material which would be more durable and serviceable than the oilcloth floor covering then in use.

One day he happened to examine the thin film which had formed over a can of paint which had been left open. This film was tough and elastic. It seemed to have all of the properties of rubber. Then came the idea that linseed oil oxidized might serve as a basis for a floor material.

So Frederick Walton set to work mixing finely ground cork with the oxidized linseed oil to give it added resilience and wear, and pressed the mixture on burlap. He called the new material linoleum.

During the latter part of the nineteenth century there were various floor coverings on the market. Most of these were used as a base to some fabric which was coated with several thin layers of clay. This surface when dry was painted by hand in various geometrical designs. Naturally Frederick Walton's first linoleum was painted in much the same way. He did not immediately produce the inlaid patterns which are so familiar to us now.

In a remarkably short time linoleum became popular and its manufacture was placed on a commercial basis. The name "linoleum" comes from two Latin words, "linun" meaning flax, and "oleum" meaning oil. So literally linoleum is flax oil, or as we say, linseed oil. This oil is familiar to most of us—a heavy amber colored fluid which comes from flax seed. It has a peculiar quality in that it will oxidize quickly and produce a film which protects the surface from the ravages of wear and weather.

In making linoleum, the linseed oil is first boiled to remove the impurities and to hasten the oxidizing process.

It is then sprayed on long scrim sheets hung in streamers from the ceiling of a tall building. Here in a temperature of 100 degrees F., the linseed oil becomes a tough, elastic "skin." The spraying is done twice a day for from six to ten weeks until the sheets become almost an inch thick. They are then cut down, placed in a kettle with various gums and fused together under a temperature of almost 300 degrees F. The "cement," which is the name applied to the oxidized oil in this stage, is poured out of the kettles and allowed to cool. It has now the consistency of rubbery molasses candy and is very heavy.

In order to insure a smooth, clean surface on the finished linoleum, only the purest cork may be used. This is brought to Canada from Spain, Portugal and northern Africa, where is is stripped from the cork oak trees. This is ground and reground until it has the consistency of fine, white flour. All the dirt and foreign particles have been removed. The ground cork and the linoleum "cement" are mixed together in a machine that looks like a sausage grinder. The mixing is done thoroughly by grinding and regrinding and the product is now linoleum "mix."

Burlap as used for making bags so common to all of us, is not suitable for linoleum. Linoleum burlap must be very evenly woven without knots or weak spots. This is necessary because of the tremendous pressure exerted when the "mix" is pressed to the burlap. Burlap is made of jute which is grown in India and shipped from there to Dundee, Scotland, where thousands of people do nothing year after year but spin jute and weave burlap. This burlap is six and twelve feet wide. The burlap goes into a calendering machine which distributes the linoleum "mix" evenly over the burlap surface. Huge, heated steel rolls, weighing many tons, press the linoleum "mix" firmly on the burlap back, "keying" the "mix" to the fabric.

The plain linoleum must be matured in "stoves" or drying rooms. This seasoning may require from two to eight weeks depending on the thickness of the linoleum and climatic conditions.

After linoleum has been thoroughly matured it is passed through a printing machine which applies the patterns by means of printing blocks. There is one block for each color in the pattern. The finest paint is used in this printing process.

If a plain linoleum is desired in one of the many colors in which it is produced — blue, grey, green, black, brown or white—the necessary coloring material is put into the linoleum "mix," the "mix" is "keyed" to the burlap by calendars and matured in the "stoves." After the inspection the linoleum is ready for the market.

In making inlaid linoleum two methods are used. In the one the linoleum "mix" is colored with different pigments and then rolled out like pie dough. These sheets are called "blankets." Blocks are cut in the different colored "blankets" and fitted together on a burlap back and "keyed" together and to the back under the tremendous weight of hydraulic presses of 1,200 lbs. to the square inch. The other way is to use stencils through which the various colored "mixes" are sifted to the burlap back and fused together by using the hydraulic presses.

In Europe for many years linoleum has been the universal floor material. Queen Victoria had specially designed linoleum for her beloved Balmoral Castle. In the finest homes in England, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany and Scandinavia linoleum is used in the finest rooms. The idea is gaining ground now in Canada, with the beautiful patterns being produced by Canadian manufacturers—for they have really outdistanced their predecessors in the production of beautiful combinations of color and design. These manufacturers are working closely with interior decorators to keep step with Canada's demand for interiors of color and charm. So linoleum is no longer a kitchen-pantry-bathroom floor material, but has stepped gracefully and beautifully into the other rooms of the house.

Modern linoleum served its apprenticeship in the workshop of the home. It was sanitary, durable and easy to clean in the kitchen. Now with the charming colors and designs combined with its durable, sanitary qualities it is becoming very popular throughout the house.

LOCAL CHEESE BOARD PASSES AWAY AFTER FIFTY YEARS GOOD SERVICE TO CHEESE FACTORIES AND BUYERS

Desertions Of Members Attracted By Counter Projects And Other Causes Led To Closing Of Almost Historic Institution—Some Members Who Stayed To The Last Believe In Future Reorganization—More Than Mere Selling Agency.

PETERBOROUGH IS NOT ALONE

Peterborough Cheese Board, after an honorable record of service to the cheesemakers and buyers of the district and country, dating since 1879, has ceased to do business. The prognostication of James Cook, a buyer on the Peterborough Board, made several years ago, "You'll soon be as bad as Lindsay," has been fulfilled, and the buyer for W. S. Cooke & Sons will pass Peterborough this year.

At one time the Board in Peterborough was one of the strongest in the Province, with forty factories represented at a meeting, boarding 6,000 boxes of cheese with eight buyers present. In 1908 there were 34 factories who listed 41,420 cheese, but five years later, in 1913, the number had declined to 13 factories and 21,191 cheese.

In the latter year drastic steps were taken to prevent members trading outside the Board, and on June 4 the following resolution was drafted: "Any buyer, or his representative, who purchases cheese on the Peterborough Cheese Board, and who bargains for the sale of cheese with any factory within a radius of twenty-five miles during the season of 1913 shall be expelled or not allowed to attend the Board as a buyer."

Mr. Cooke declared farmers should be aroused to a sense of duty since buyers were deserting the Board owing to the small quantity of cheese offered. Mr. Switzer reported that the quantity had declined in a few years from 5,000 to 1,700 boxes at a sale. Many good factories were selling outside the Board, including North Dummer, Stony Lake, Cedardale, Buckhorn, Fraserville and Maple Leaf.

In July of that year, reasons were sought for the falling off of interest in the Board, and icecream and the high cost of cattle feed were two of the points made in excuse for the decrease in cheese. Some of the deserting factories returned to the fold, and were among the supporters last year when a dozen factories participated in the sales with four buyers.

Twelve years ago the opening price for cheese on the Peterborough Board was 13; there were nine buyers present and 914 cheese were boarded. At last year's opening Board there were 158 cheese boarded by four factories at 17 cents. At the closing Board there were 894 cheese sold at 19 1-16. On May 21 this year, when the meeting place was visited at the time set for the first Board, there was not a member present.

Was a Benefit.

Outside of the value of the Board in enabling the members to dispose of their cheese, the organization was a benefit in bringing together fortnightly a body of men engaged in the same business and striving toward the same end. The round table conference, with its interchange of ideas, was a valuable asset to the members themselves, and, through them, must have benefitted the product they made.

A few of the proprietors who recognized the true worth of the Board, remained loyal throughout the years of hardest work, but defalcations among those who had not the vision or who were attracted by counter plans, led to the closing of the Board. Some deserted to ship their cheese independently; others were enticed away by the United Dairymen Co-operative Co.; some were driven out by the inroads of the creamery men who took their collecting trucks all over the country without regard to cheese factories or local conditions, and the climax was reached in the Government rules and restrictions regarding the grading of dairy produce. The farmer is being told to stay on the "back hundred" and produce, while others look after the money end of the business.

Among some of the members who went down with the sinking ship and have clutched at other expedients this year there are some who believe staunchly in the come-back that will follow what they believe to be a temporary discontinuance of business. The first practical plan to enable the farmer to fix his prices, they argue, cannot fail after demonstrating its practicability for fifty years. Co-operation among the farmers themselves, conducting their own business direct with the buyers and avoiding the upkeep of a selling organization, are some of the advantages lost with the passing of the Cheese Board.

Rumours of other impending closures are rife: Campbellford, which had only 75 boxes contributed by two factories at one sale, being mentioned. Stirling Board, deserted by seven factories who went over to the co-operative plan, has not re-opened this year. Madoc is tottering.

Belleville is one of the strong Boards, and its members believe firmly in the principle of the organization. This year it will be stronger than ever, and the feeling is spreading that large central sales of cheese will tend to reduce the cost of selling and increase competition among the buyers.

The officers of the Peterborough Cheese Board during its last year of operation were: T. Braden, president; W. D. Robson, vice-president; Henry Batten, auditor; E. Hawthorne, secretary-treasurer.

SPRING SEEDING IN AT STIRLING

Strawberries Are Well Advanced And Good Yield Expected —Creameries Are Busy.

STIRLING, May 30.—Spring seeding is about completed, and the grain is looking fair, although the season is backward. Very little planting has been done except a few early potatoes and some of the hardier garden stuff. Strawberry plants are well loaded with bloom and where they escaped frost a good yield is assured.

The two creameries operating in this section, viz., Belleville and Stirling, seem to be getting their share of the dairy business, as their trucks are well loaded with cans as they pass to and fro on their trips. The cheese factories are also getting a fair share of business.

Milk was worth about $1.00 per cwt. for that testing 3 per cent. butterfat, during April.

There is no cheese board in Stirling this season. The factories are either selling through the Co-operative Association or on the Belleville Cheese Board.

Dry Weather Helps In Cavan District

CAVAN, May 30.—The last couple of days' nice weather is helping very much on the farms. To-day the majority of those who are not through seeding are working on the land and some report that it is working up well. Of course, there are yet fields which will take a prolonged dry spell to allow them to be brought into shape for sowing.

Plum trees, currant bushes, cherries and strawberries are blossoming out.

The spring sown grain is doing well.

Bees Not Successful.

This year has not proved to be a good season for bees. So far, no one has been heard of who was successful in wintering all his bees.

Mr. Herbert Syer, Eighth Line, Cavan, states that he lost two hives in the winter, while several others were weakened, but the hives are now commencing to gather honey.

Mr. Leonard McNeil, of the same Line, reports the loss of one hive, while his stronger hives are now working well, possibly due to the plum blossom.

BAILIEBORO FARMS.

BAILIEBORO, May 30.—Considerable damage has been done to the crops and fruit orchards by the night frosts of the past week. In many cases the leaves of the clover and of the trees have been badly frozen.

The fall wheat has also gone back considerably, and unless a rapid growth, along with some warm, dry weather, soon does come, it is feared that the spring grain will be scalded out anywhere where there is wet land.

There is still a large quantity of spring grain to be sowed yet in South Monaghan.

HAS WORLD-WIDE CHEESE PRIZES

John Finnegan Honored By His County As World Champion —Gold Watch and Chain.

SPLENDID RECORD

John Finnegan of Marmora was recently accorded a fitting recognition of his success in winning the world championship in cheese making in Scotland with his Canadian cheese, his county friends presenting him with a gold watch and chain.

Mr. O'Connor made a splendid chairman for the occasion. Mr. Chas. Rollins, the warden of the county, made the presentation to Mr. Finnegan. Mr. Rollins spoke of how Hastings men had distinguished themselves for their valour and bravery in the Great War, but now in times of peace one of the Hastings men had won distinction in this unique way. It is an honour to the county to be able to show their appreciation of Mr. Finnegan by presenting him with the gold watch and chain on such an auspicious occasion.

Mr. Finnegan expressed his gratitude to his friends in a few remarks and said he intended to keep on making the best cheese he could and, if possible, bring more honours to his county. Mr Finnegan has already received a gold medal for his work this year and the County of Hastings will soon present him with a diploma.

Mr. G. T. Publow, the chief dairy instructor for Eastern Ontario, then spoke for a few minutes. Mr. Finnegan has, previous to this year, won other prizes for his cheese making. Mr. Publow mentioned how several years ago in the world's competition in Scotland, Canada carried off all the prizes in the cheese making contest. The following year South Africa won the first prize and immediately by advertisement stimulated the dairy industry in that country.

The following year, however, Canada again won the first and third prizes. This means a lot to the dairy industry of Canada.

Mr. Publow urged the farmers and all those interested in the dairy industry to do the best they could to stimulate interest in this branch of Canada's industries. He commended the citizens of Hastings for the way in which they were honouring Mr. Finnegan and mentioned that Frontenac County on a similar occasion had honoured several of their men in the same way.

On account of the difficulty of being heard, due to the wind, the speakers were very brief, but all spoke to the point.

A number of local men of the township spoke for a few moments, each emphasizing the importance of this line of work. Mr. Nugent, clerk of the county, who is also advertising agent for Hastings, spoke of the honours Mr. Finnegan had brought to his county.

Mr. Airhart, reeve of Marmora, Mr. Bonter of the County Council, Mr. Bailey and Mr. Linn, of Stirling, who are interested in dairying, made brief addresses.

A fresh cow is not necessarily a bold and boisterous one.

When a cow is dry she is not necessarily thirsty.

Alfalfa is not the name of a man.

A correspondent from Iowa says: "When I shut up the chicken house in the evening, our old cat follows me and goes into the chicken house, up on the roost with the chickens. In the morning she comes down when I let the chickens out." The same friend adds: "My brother killed a big black snake in the barn. There was a lump in the snake and he found out that it had swallowed a china egg as big as a duck egg." Strange things happen in Iowa.

"I hate to discourage you, neighbor but you're going to have dried plums on that tree." "How so?" "Didn't you just prune it?" "Well, how about those grapes you're raisin'?"

John Douglass, a seventy-two-year-old farmer, cultivates his five-acre tract with an ox team. "Plowing with oxen is more to my liking than the old Scotch game of golf," he says. "I call my oxen the Apostle Peter and the Prophet Daniel. Swear words don't come easy when you are saying Bible names."

Jack asks, why buildings with lightning rods are rarely struck by lightning? Well, Jack, there are two kinds of charges of electricity, namely, positive and negative. As a charged cloud approaches a rodded building, an opposite charge is induced in the rods. This induced charge escapes rapidly and quietly from the sharp point and neutralizes the cloud.

He Didn't Make His Will

"SOME day," said Perkins B. McGill, "I'll take an hour and make my will. It is a job that I despise, although I know it's sane and wise, for it reminds the shrinking skate that he'll some day be in a crate, and o'er his head the goats will browse, and also sheep and bobtailed cows. It should be done, I must admit, and shortly I'll attend to it, but just at present, as you see, I'm busy as a bumble bee, and I shall let it slide, I wot, until my work slacks up a lot." While he pursued his useful game a dark blue auto climbed his frame. He gave a few brief anguished pants, and bade farewell to wife and aunts, and journeyed to the shining shore where autos butcher folks no more. And his affairs were badly mixed; to get things straightened up and fixed, administrators and their clan came in a stately caravan. A second cousin filed a suit, a lawyer looked around for loot, and creditors sprung large accounts, and fakers asked for large amounts, and hungry relatives appeared with claims detestable and weird. And when it was all settled up the widow drew the Airedale pup, and all the balance went to pay the costs—which is the good old way. The widow's busy scrubbing floors and doing other drastic chores, and as she toils she murmurs still, "If Perkins had but made a will!"—Walt Mason.

Plenty of Peppers, Thanks to Flappers

ABOVE—VELMA WATKINS AND LUCILLE WILLIAMS IN THE PEPPER FIELDS.
BELOW—MISS WATKINS (LEFT) AND MISS WILLIAMS

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

SANTA ANA, Calif., May 30.—The bitterest agricultural job, on the face of it, is planting and harvesting peppers.

But Orange county flappers have found a way to sweeten it and keep the boys contented with farming.

At the beginning of the season when a million-dollar crop had to be started in 6000 acres, the fairest daughters of Santa Ana donned their niftiest duds and went Maud Mullering among the ranches.

From farm to farm they smiled and chaffed and cultivated their way.

Didn't Charge a Cent.

It was a continuous surprise party for the grizzled veterans and the would-be sheiks of the pepper lands. The girls levied no charge for work. Their actual labor may have been negligible.

But labor wasn't their prime purpose. Their object was to relieve the rancher's tedium by parading a vision of strange loveliness among the monotonous furrows—an inspirational novelty in public service.

They didn't wear calico, overalls or flat-heeled shoes. They wore spiffy hats over marcelled bobs, silk stockings and French heels. Silly to follow a lister in high heels?

Of course—delightfully silly, the plowboys thought. What matter if they ruined a pair of slippers, so the bitterness was taken from pepper planting and the job got done in record time and to the happier prosperity of the region!

SOLVING THE PLOUGH PROBLEM

(CHAPTER TWO)

By CARL H. GAMBLE.

Wheel Plow Troubles.

I find the following to be the most common complaints on wheel plows: (1) Furrows do not lie alike (gang plows only); (2) side draft; (3) difficult penetration; (4) heavy draft; (5) non-scouring; (6) does not leave clean furrow; (7) uneven depth of furrow.

When furrows do not lie alike. This is, perhaps, one of the most common complaints, especially on gang plows, and is caused by just one thing—the plows do not cut and turn the same amount of earth. To overcome this:

See that frame is level. Set front furrow wheel level with share of plow, and do not change it. Set both rolling coulters to cut from ¼ to ¾ inch outside of share landside. Set front furrow wheels so front plow will cut correct width furrow according to size of plow as branded. Measure from the wall of the furrow to the rolling coulter for width of furrow. Adjust hitch so front furrow wheel will run snugly in the corner of the furrow.

Side draft. This complaint is most common on gang plows, and is caused entirely by the centre of the team, when four horses abreast are used, being naturally from 6 to 10 inches to the landside of the centre line of draft of the plow. To neutralize this:

See that the plow is equipped with the eveners recommended by the manufacturer. Traces must be free from hame to singletree. Do not use hip straps when plowing. Traces must be long enough to allow free action of the team. A good average is to use traces about 8 or 10 inches longer for plowing than for the wagon. Adjust hitch vertically until there is as much weight on the front furrow wheel as on the rear when plowing. Adjust hitch sidewise so the front furrow wheel runs snugly in the corner of the furrow. Always run the rear wheel straight. In case of a narrow-cut plow and a big team, it may be necessary to lead the front furrow wheel slightly toward the furrow wall.

Difficult penetration. Dull shares are the main cause of poor penetration. Complete illustrated directions for sharpening, setting and tempering shares will be supplied for the asking. Sharp rolling coulters are necessary, and never set the hub of the coulter ahead of the point of the plow. A dull rolling coulter set well forward on the plow acts as a gauge wheel and keeps the plow out of the ground.

Examine adjustment of collar on rear axle, and see that it has not slipped down, allowing the landside of rear plow to drag on the bottom of the furrow. When this is correctly adjusted, you should be able to slip the point of your finger under heel of landside when plowing.

Heavy draft. Most of the suggestions under difficult penetration should be considered under this subject. First and always, of course, dull or poorly-sharpened shares will cause heavy draft There is one other important adjustment on both sulky and gang plows, and that is the rear axle bracket. Most wheel plows provide for an adjustment so that the rear furrow wheel may be set about ¼ inch outside the heel of the landside when on the floor. This will cause the wheel to carry the side draft when the plow is in motion, instead of dragging it against the landside.

Non-Scousing. If the plow is new, clean every trace of varnish from the share and moldboard. You can do this with any brand of paint and varnish remover, or, if these are not handy, get a can of lye at the grocery store, mix it with a couple of quarts of water. This will cut the varnish off readily, but plow must not be allowed to stand with this solution on it, or it will rust very quickly. If possible, plow a few furrows of sod or firm soil to get a land polish on the moldboard. Shares must be sharp. Coulters must be sharp. If plow continues to fill and stick, clean the moldboard and share thoroughly with a wooden paddle, and, in persistent cases, wash the moldboard with water. A little patience in following these instructions will aid in getting the desired land polish and overcome non-scouring. Understand, of course, there are some conditions of soil at certain seasons of the year where it is practically impossible to make a plow scour. These conditions are rare, except in the heavy gumbo soils.

Does not leave clean furrow. This is caused by dull rolling coulters not set far enough to land to cut a clean furrow wall outside of the plow shin. Sharp shares and sharp coulters properly adjusted, will absolutely insure a clean furrow.

Uneven depth of furrow. Practically the same causes discussed under the head of "Difficult Penetration" and "Heavy Draft," apply generally to this complaint. In addition to these, please observe the following: Both front and rear bail stops on sulky and gang plows of the foot-lift pattern should be set so the bails rest firmly on them when the plow is locked down in plowing position. If the shares are in good shape, and the bails riding on the bail stops, the furrows will be uniform depth.

HARD FACTS ON MARKETS SPOIL FARMER UTOPIA

Holding Back Of Cheese Until Price Advanced In Non-Productive Season Proved Unsuccessful.

HAVE NO MONOPOLY

(ALEX. McGREGOR.)

When Aaron Sapiro, father of co-operative marketing in the State of California, made a tour of Ontario, he certainly for a time made the farmers of the province believe that there was an easy way out of all their selling problems. Mr. Sapiro worked here under the auspices of the Provincial Board of Agriculture and the idea of bringing him to Canada originated with Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture, and who made the tour of the province with the visitor, speaking at all of his meetings and endorsing his propaganda.

Mr. Sapiro's Argument.

It was to the dairymen of Ontario that Mr. Sapiro specially addressed himself. Briefly his argument was that the products of the cheese factories were being rushed to the markets and that this had one inevitable result, the keeping down of prices during the making season. Cheese, said the speaker, is made in Ontario about six months in the year, while it is consumed for 12 months. The price is always highest during the closed season. It is not the producer but the dealer who is benefitted by these conditions. The speculator keeps the cheese in cold storage and puts it on in limited quantities so as to keep up the price.

Here And In California.

The visitor from California told the dairymen that they should regulate the supply of cheese themselves and so get the profits that now go into the pockets of the middlemen. Reciting what he had done by organizing the fruit growers of California, he pictured a condition under which the farmers of Ontario could realize the ambition of their lives—the power to set their own price for what they raise instead of being forced to accept what is offered them in a constantly shifting and uncertain market.

Where The Case Broke Down.

But if the dairymen of Ontario ever dreamed—and some of them certainly did— after listening to Mr. Sapiro, of an agricultural Utopia, they have since been awakened and forced to face the hard facts again. Conditions in California and Ontario are not parallel and that was the one weak point in Mr. Sapiro's propaganda. Fruit growers in that state have a monopoly of production in the United States. They are protected from the competition of foreign semi-tropical and tropical countries by high tariff walls. They are, therefore, in a position to so regulate the supply that the market is never glutted and the price is by this means kept up.

New Zealand a Proposition.

It would be useless for the dairymen of Ontario to hold back their cheese while their chief competitors, the farmers of New Zealand, were flooding the British market with dairy products and New Zealand is a country too where the season for the making of cheese is longer and climatic conditions are more favorable than they are in Canada. The fruit growers of California, the tobacco and cotton farmers of the other southern states may be in a position to regulate supply and demand to a certain extent, but that is because in these several fields they practically have everything their own way.

Problem Still Unsolved.

The marketing problem, in spite of the plausible statements of Mr. Sapiro, still remains unsolved. The dairymen selling in a market that is open to the world must continue to take their chances. Their one hope is to so improve the quality of their products that these will be given the preference over all others by the British consumer. With the latter no sentimental imperialism is taken into account in the purchase of imported articles. It is the best that is given the preference, regardless of the country from which it comes.

LOCAL CROP REPORTS

Edward Archer, of Smith Township, reports that the crops in that district are not coming along very fast and that not much more than half the grain has been sown yet. The fall wheat is looking very good, but the spring grain is rather backward. The ground is terribly wet and the cold weather has held the seeding back considerably.

J. E. Campbell, of Douro Township, states that the crops look pretty good in that district, but that the farmers cannot get help without paying very high wages. Most of the seeding is finished and some of the farmers are further ahead than they were at this time last year.

Leonard Clancy, of Otonabee, speaks well of the crops in that part of the country and says that the grass crop is very good, and that practically all the cattle are at present pasturing in the fields on the rich grass. He says that the early seeding will not be damaged, but there is doubt about the timothy hay.

CALVES BY THE CARLOAD.

INDIAN RIVER, May 30.—A buyer shipped nearly a carload of calves from Indian River yesterday. A good many brought about $9, others $10.50 or more. A lot of rather thin ones were sold. The U.F.O. buyer was there, but he did not have so many. Farmers prefer to know what they are getting. The expenses are necessarily high and the shrinkage is sometimes heavy. A great many calves have been shipped before this spring.

MAKE FARM ATTRACTIVE TO ENHANCE ITS VALUE AND MAKE LIFE BRIGHT

Many Dollars May Be Added To The Selling Price Of Farm Property By Spending Little Time On Appearance—Farmer Must Use His Knowledge.

MAKE $500 MORE A YEAR

By AMOS BRADFORD.

Dollars and cents in the pocket are, of course, important in adding to the farm income. Some of the suggestions made in these columns will apply to every farm. Other suggestions apply to individual cases, but the idea in all is to hit upon some additional situation and turn it into money. Farmers are doing it everywhere. There is something that each one can find that will bring in a little additional money.

This week I want to stress the importance of making the farm home as livable as it is possible to make it. There is a story about a lawyer who had a farm that he wanted to sell. The farm was in fair repair but the lawn was run out. Bare spaces showed in all parts of the lawn; and moss and weeds had appeared. The lawyer was at his wit's end to know what to do. He had tried grass seed in previous years, and had done other things, but still the weeds and moss continued to grow.

One day he telephoned a farmer whom he knew to stop in at this house on a certain day as he wanted to see him about a certain matter. The farmer was there at the appointed time.

"What can I do with this lawn?" the lawyer asked. "I have been trying to sell this place for $6,500 but can get no offers."

The farmer made a trip all about and carefully examined the lawn, and then said:

"This lawn needs two things—lime and the right kind of grass seed!"

"Well, I'll try your advice," the lawyer said. And he did. The next year he sold the farm for $8,000.

According to the story, a year or so later, the farmer consulted the lawyer on a small matter and the lawyer sent a bill later for $20. The farmer was a bit taken back; but, recalling his trip to the lawyer's farm and his plan of building up the lawn, he sent the lawyer a bill for $20 for the advice he had given him! And the slate was clean again.

This story is more than a mere tale. It is a bit of philosophy that, if applied, will dignify the scientific knowledge of the farmer as a professional and business man and will indicate that a farmer's knowledge in his field of human activity is just as valuable as knowledge in any other field. The trouble the farmer has, is to cash in like the other fellow. But if making a beautiful lawn will add $1,500 to the value of a lawyer's farm it will do the same thing to the farmer's farm.

I am confident that making a farm stead beautiful with an appropriate lawn about the farm house will add a great many dollars to the selling value of any farm in any part of the country.

You don't need to do this to sell the farm. The real dollars in your case will be in personal satisfaction and in pride to the family. After all, these are the vital things of life. In making the outward appearance of your home beautiful you are adding to the income of the farm. The increase is not cash in the pocket but an addition to the total worth of the farm. You have increased the value of the investment. And that is adding to the farm income.

So here is something each of us can do. There can be no over-production of cozy, attractive farm homes. No increase in the number of these will produce a surplus that cannot be marketed. Raise too much wheat or too much corn or too many hogs and the price will sink below the cost of production. But let an enormous crop of improved farm lawns and neat, picturesque farm homes grow up and the big crop will vitalize agriculture as nothing else can do. There can be no surplus production of such homes. Here, then is something that each of us can do to add to the immediate income of the farm. Start with a lawn; a new one for an old one—an improved lawn to make the farm more valuable.

Roads, to be good roads, must be good roads on bad days.

When you say you are going to get rid of your chicken lice, say it with kerosene and white wash.

The Chinese can tell us a thing or two about rich milk. Much of their milk supply comes from water buffaloes, and it tests as high as 20 or 30 per cent. butterfat. These animals are also used for cultivating in the fields.

SIX LOADS WHEAT COME TO OMEMEE

Farmers' Co-operative Company Brings 12,000 Bushels From West.

OMEMEE, May 30.—The continued wet weather having held up the spring seeding in this locality, many farmers who intended planting early grain will now convert the land into buckwheat and corn, the former having advanced in price to $3 a bushel.

The recent frosts did much damage to the wheat fields and any garden stuff which was far enough advanced, such as asparagus, rhubarb and lettuce, was totally destroyed.

The eggs and butter market remains about the same as last week. Eggs are retailing at 25c, while dairy butter is bringing 30c a lb, and seems fairly plentiful, notwithstanding the quantities of cream being gathered for the Omemee creamery, the shipments to Toronto and Belleville, also the Reaboro Cheese Factory and Allanbury's milk plant in Lindsay, all of which receive a large patronage.

The United Farmers' Co-operative Company, Omemee, received a carload of No. 1 western oats last week. This is the sixth carload this spring, which means about 12,000 bushels, all of which has been quickly disposed of, and the demand last week was greater than the supply. It is thought that 1,500 bushels more could have been sold, as many farmers were disappointed in not receiving their quota. The price a bushel was 49c.

Garden Work Is Slow In Warsaw District

WARSAW, May 30.—Warsaw cheese factory had three vats full of milk this morning.

One man lost over 800 tomato plants with the frost, but says he has a lot left yet. The strawberry bloom did not seem to be hurt.

Garden work is not generally very far advanced. On flat clay soils but little has been done. A woman near the lake has had tomato plants out for three weeks, and managed to protect them, but a man in the village has to replant practically all his garden.

Wool is bringing a slightly better price this year.

There are some splendid looking fields of wheat.

Several farmers have said that they were afraid for their grain, but it is doing all right. Nearly everyone has a little patch of low ground he did not get in, or did get in and will have to tear it up, and in both cases will plant either buckwheat or Hungarian wheat later.

Spring Has Been Hard On Bailieboro Chicks

BAILIEBORO, May 30.—Practically all of the poultry men of this district state that this spring is an exceedingly hard season on the early baby chicks. The wet, cold weather makes it necessary to keep the baby chicks confined under cover, and the one thing that is necessary to make chicks thrive is an abundance of warm sunshine. There are heavy losses in the majority of early flocks.

Local produce is slightly higher, farmers are selling wheat at one dollar and five cents per bushel, and eggs advanced from twenty to twenty-one cents this week. Owing to the fact that so many of the farmers wives are sending the cream to the creameries, dairy butter has advanced slightly.

Farmer Gets 16 Per Cent.

WHO is responsible for the high cost of bread? Not the farmer, that is sure. Indeed, the cost of wheat bears small relationship to the cost of bread. This fact is made evident by a recent investigation of the Department of Agriculture which has shown that the farmer received only one and one-half cents for his wheat that went into a loaf of bread that retailed at prices ranging from eight cents a loaf to ten cents.

According to the Department's investigations the bakers got most of the money. This ranges from four to eight cents a loaf. The Department says: "The retail price of bread will be little affected by changes in the price of flour inasmuch as the cost of flour entering into bread is relatively small when compared with the other items of cost.

When the items entering into bread costs are analyzed it is not the wheat growers who are responsible for costly bread, but the agencies concerned with its marketing, bread-making and selling. The wheat grower receives only 16 cents out of each dollar the consumer pays for bread.

If 50 cents more were paid farmers for a bushel of wheat on the basis of the Department's investigations the increase in bread costs would be less than a half cent a loaf. Even then the wheat grower would be realizing only twenty cents out of the consumer's dollar. There is no other standard farm product that yields the grower so small a part of what the consumer pays as does wheat.

NEW ANGLE IN SMALL ESTATE

Clause Provides for Return of the Estate

TORONTO, May 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Second divisional court to-day was faced with an extraordinary situation in connection with the Ambrose J. Small estate, on June 5, 1923, court had made an order allowing Mrs. Teresa Small to file an affidavit as to the death of her husband, Ambrose Small, formal order as taken out included declaration by court that Mr. Small was dead.

The order further included a clause to the effect that whoever was granted probate of the will should give security for the whole amount for its return to Ambrose Small "in case he shall be alive." "A manifest inconsistency," commented Chief Justice Latchford. "Ambrose Small is dead and security is to be given for return of the estate to him in case he shall be alive." The matter was brought before the court in the minutes of the settlement of the action in the will between Mrs. Small and sisters of Mr. Small. Judgment was reserved.

NEW FROCKS

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 30.—(United Press).—To have a frock for every occasion is quiet an essential thing these days. One needs morning frocks, afternoon frocks, beach frocks, tea frocks and frocks for various other occasions. The woman who is content to make one frock do all occasions is no longer seen in the cities where ready-made garments sell so cheaply.

The women of limited means often find the task of being appropriately gowned for all occasions a difficult one. Therefore, it is the woman who is clever at remodeling last year's gowns who always appears well dressed in spite of a meagre pocketbook. Making over clothes is an art in itself. It is more difficult to remodel an old gown than to make a new one.

There are many ways, however, to remodel last year's frocks so that they will bear the earmarks of 1924. We will take the typical frock of last spring for instance. These frocks had the low-bloused waistline made on an elastic band. As we all know, the elastic waistband is no longer used on the smarter gowns of this season since most gowns are devoid of waistline, being straight-lined models. By removing the elastic band from an old frock, and reducing the width of the skirt by taking in the side seams, one has the invariable silhouette of today.

If the straight chemise effect is too severe, a bow of self material or chiffon can be attached at one side of the gown, giving the side-trimming effect which is in vogue. Those who prefer a semblance of waistline may use a band of ribbon or self material to form a narrow girdle effect. Often we find that the ready-made frock has been pieced together at the elastic waistline. In this case one may insert a narrow band of beading or embroidery at the waistline. Where fulness is used in the skirt, it must be confined over the hips as the front and back of all frocks are flat this year.

The panel frock of last year is also passes, but taking off panels is a very simple matter and the material used in the panels may be utilized elsewhere on the frock. If the panels are sufficiently wide they may be added to the back of the frock to give the waist length cape effect. Narrow panels may be joined together with ecru lace to insure width for the capelet. Again, one may sew the panel material together and have it pleated to produce a cape. There is another way panels may be used to trim a frock. By using them in band form about the skirt just below the knees, one has the new bottom-trim effect. Many of the latest frocks have flaring flounces at the bottom of the skirt. A straight-line frock can have a flounce of contrasting material added below the knees to give the flounce effect. In fact, many of the new figured silk gowns have wide flounces of taffeta in solid color finishing the bottom of the skirt.

The black frock can be vastly altered by applying several layers of crepe de chene of contrasting colors at the hem. By simply stitching three narrow widths of contrasting colors together and adding them to the hem, one has a 1924 frock.

Then, as to the evening frock! There are so many ways of giving the jaded evening frock a new lease on life! By using ostrich or marabou banding about the hem, on scarf ends, etc., one has one of the latest frocks. Then again, the frock of last season may be remodeled by simply using row after row of dyed lace or ruffles upon the skirt. Fluffy, ruffled frocks are very much in vogue for slender figures and almost any frock can be turned into this class. Even by using a layer of pleated chiffon on the skirt, one has a new garment.

Gowns of the tailored type can be remodeled by using the front trimming effects which are so popular today. This is achieved by means of an embroidered band which extends from neckline to hem. On either side of the narrow embroidery band are tiny ruffles of shirred lace. One may also use the buttom trimming down the front of the semi-tailored frock. In this case a row of crystal or pearl buttons extends from neck to hem with a narrow lace or net edging at either side of the buttons, running the length of the frock. The Eaton collar and bow tie usually accompany a dress of this sort.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH CONGREGATION HAD MEETING THURSDAY

Reports From the Various Departments of the Church Were Presented

The annual congregational meeting of St. James' Church was held on Wednesday evening in the school rooms of the church, with a splendid attendance. Rev. J. D. Richardson acted as chairman, and opened the meeting with devotional exercises, Rev. W. H. Buckler leading in prayer.

Reports were presented from the various departments of the church's work.

Mrs. Welbourne reported for the W.M.S., and Mission Band; Mrs. T. Brown, for the Ladies' Aid; Miss Bennett, for the Mission Circle; J. Arthor for the General Missionary Fund; Gordon D. Richardson for the Young People's League; A. E. Prest and J. Sanderson, for the Sunday School; J. O. Fife, for the Building Fund; C. F. Kitney, treasurer, for the General Fund; and Ernest Kitney, chairman of the Envelope Committee reported on weekly envelope offerings, showing the number that are regular contributors to the church's funds through the weekly envelopes.

Rev. Mr. Richardson's report showed a membership enrollment of 425—an increase of 40 for the year.

There were 28 baptisms and 10 funerals, 6 being members of St. James' Church. The total amount raised by the church for all purposes was approximately $9000. All the reports given were of a very encouraging nature and showed a substantial advance over previous years.

The giving of the reports was interspersed with a splendid musical programme, the following contributing:

Piano duet, Amy Fairbother, and Greta Welbourne; solos by Mrs. H. Doig, Mrs. Frost and Mr. Pratt; vocal duet, Mrs. R. Kitney and A. Lee; quartette, Mrs. B. Cutmore, Miss M. Wood, Mr. B. Cutmore and Edwin Rowe; violin solo, Mrs. Gilchrist.

The election of Society representatives to the quarterly official took place by ballot, the following being elected: George Dryland, J. Welbourne, George Wagar, Mr. Vannest, John Sanderson, Robert Ritchie, Ernest Kitney.

A social half hour in charge of the lady members of the official board brought to a close a very pleasant and profitable evening.

"ETERNAL TORMENT" NOT BIBLICAL.

"If I believed in that dread place
Where billions writhe in pain,
In untold agonies of woe,
I'd never smile again.

"If I believed my friends were there,
The thought would crush my brain,
I'd curse the day th... I was born,
And never smile again.

"If I believed one soul was there,
I'd weep my eyes away;
I would not want my greatest foe
Dwell there a single day.

"I'd wish the world had never been,
Nor ever breathed mankind;
I'd wish our race would cease to live
Die—body, soul and mind."

Could I believe that Power Divine
Would wear so foul a stain,
Be so unkind, unwise, unjust,
I'd never smile again.

GETTING OUT OF RUT.

The right way to get out of a rut, especially on a muddy road, is to back out, with the front wheels steered toward the left. Thus the least effort is put upon the engine and there is no strain on the wheel spokes and the front axle.

STRONG SOAPS.

Strong soaps and alkalis should never be used on painted or varnished surfaces, because while they soften and remove the dirt quickly they do the same with the paint and varnish.

LINEN VESTEES.

The vestees, collars and cuffs that are attracting the most favorable attention these days are of very fine handkerchief linen, hand hemstitched and trimmed with hand-run tucks of tiny lace edges.

ALL READY FOR THE BIG CONTEST

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 30.—(Canadian Press).—Their long seige of training behind them, Georges Carpentier and Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul, two of the cleverest and hardest - hitting light heavyweights in the world, to-day were conditioned for their ten-round international contest to-morrow.

The bout, with favorable weather conditions, promises to attract from 30,000 to 40,000 spectators, with gate receipts from $250,000 to $300,000. The boxers planned to spend a quiet day with only light exercise to-day to keep their muscles loosened. Carpentier and Gibbons will meet for the first time to-morrow afternoon when they appear to weigh and submit to physical examination. Carpentier figures he will scale around 175 pounds, probably 174½. Gibbons expects to tip the beam at 177. Michigan City began filling up early to-day with an advance crowd expected to jam all facilities to-morrow. Every hotel was filled last night, and many visitors were housed in private homes. The concensus of opinion of experts to-day was that the contest will be desperately fought, with the winner in doubt, although the majority favor Gibbons.

EIGHT BOXERS ON A TORONTO VISIT

TORONTO, May 30.—(Canadian Press).—Eight visiting boxers appeared at the international boxing tournament here last night. Johnnie McGregor, from Hamilton, and seven from Pittsburg, and the former and four of the latter earned brackets, and will appear to-night in the semi-finals or finals.

The best bout of the evening was the final middleweight class between Harry Henning, of the Classics, Canadian and Ontario champion, and Ray Fay, of Pittsburgh. The local boy won, but he was all out to stave off Fay. Cliff Graham won from George Mazza by a knockout in the second.

Douglas Lewis, of this city, and Fred. Halsall, of Pittsburgh, won their welterweight bouts in short time, and their meeting to-night should be a real affair.

Only gameness enabled Gene Clay to last the third round against Joe Novak, a Pittsburgh southpaw.

EVERYBODY PRESENT.

The City League Baseball Association will hold a meeting to-night at 8 o'clock in the Holy Name Rooms on Simcoe Street. All teams interested in this league are requested to have a representative present, as the work cannot be done properly if only one or two are present.

CANADIAN CLUB HELD ELECTION

Effort Will Be Made to Increase the Membership--The Year's Work

The annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club of the City was held yesterday afternoon, in the Green room of the Young Womens' Christian Association, when election of officers took place, and reports of the secretary and treasurer were read.

Miss A. Lancaster, presiding, asked for the report of the executive, who has been constituted a nominating committee at their last meeting, and called Mrs. R. R. Hall to take chair during its reading by Miss A. Erskine. The report seconded by Miss M. Archer, was adopted, electing the following officers for next season President, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, 1st vice president, Miss A. Lancaster 2nd vice president; Mrs. A. H. Stratton, secretary, Miss A. Erskine, Erskine, treasurer; Mrs. G. E. Porter. New members of the executive are: Miss Amy Halliday, Miss Daisy Walker, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and Miss Elsie Cameron. Members who retain their position for another term are: Mrs. R. R. Hall, Miss Edith Murphy and Mrs. Adrian Macdonald.

Mrs. Kerr, taking the chair, thanked the members, and asked for the support of the retiring president, Miss Lancaster, and the executive members. Mrs. Kerr suggested two subjects for consideration yesterday; an increase in the membership fee, and an effort to increase the member ship total. Mrs. R. R. Hall, seconded by Miss Lancaster, moved that the fee be increased from $1 to $1.50 but withdrew her motion later, after discussion, in favor of a motion by Miss Mary Clementi, seconded by Mrs. R. M. Waddell, that the fee be $2 per annum, the ladies being of the opinion that the advantages afforded the members by the society bringing so many prominent speakers to lecture to them, were well worth the additional amount. An average cost of ten cents per lecture was the rule during the past season, when ten very fine speakers were heard.

It was also decided, on motion of Mrs. Waddell, seconded by Mrs. T. W. H. Young, that the meetings be called at four o'clock, instead of at a quarter past four, as formerly.

With regard to an effort to increase the membership, which has been stationary during the past two seasons, it was moved by Mrs. A. L. Amys and seconded by Mrs. B. Gardiner, to have a big rally meeting for this purpose, with an attractive speaker as a drawing card. The executive will make arrangements for this meeting.

The secretary's report, given by Miss A. Erskine, showed a very successful season juts ended, with a number of exceptionally interesting speakers. The membership total to date is 115.

Mrs. G. E. Porter gave the treasurers' report, showing a total of receipts at $164.88, with expenditures of $170.55, leaving a deficit at the end of the season of $5.67. The receipts included membership fees of $115, a balance from last season of $28.30 and silver collections at the meetings from non-members. The expenditures were mainly payments to visiting speakers, and payments of various items in connection with their visits. The University Extension Course speakers make a charge of $20, over and above their expenses

Miss Edith Murphy spoke at some length with regard to the work of the retiring president, Miss A. Lancaster, saying: "We are anxious to express to our retiring president, Miss Lancaster, our appreciation of the two successful years that the Canadian Club has enjoyed under her guidance. We would like her to know that we realize fully the zeal and executive ability and knack of putting things neatly and well that she has shown. We think it only wise to warn her that we may expect at some future date, when possibly she may have forgotten the strain of holding office, that she will listen favorably to the members when they come and plead with her: "Will ye no' come back again?" We would like to express our appreciation and warm thanks for her services."

Miss Lancaster thanked Miss Murphy and the assenting members very deeply for their words, and expressed her pleasure at acting as president during the past two years, which would be a pleasant memory to her. She thanked the executive the two secretaries, and the treasurer, "who has done more than could be expected of her," for their co-operation and support during her term of office.

At the conclusion of the business session, a social hour was spent, and afternoon tea served from a table prettily centered with a large silver basket of assorted tulips. Mrs. R. R. Hall was in charge of tea arrangements, assisted by the members of the executive. Between thirty and forty ladies were present at the meeting.

BASEBALL

Games played last night for the Griffin Shield resulted in the following scores:

JAMIE BROWN BACK IN LITTLE COTTAGE

EDINBURGH, Scotland May 30.—(Canadian Press).—"Jamie" Brown's term as Lord High Commissioner to General assembly of Church of Scotland has ended. Old miner and his wife have returned to their humble cottage home at Annbank, automatically divested of their temporary titles and dignities which, by universal testimony they bore with great efficiency, modesty and dignity.

In his farewell address to the general assembly of the Church "Jamie" touchingly testified to divine help in discharging his duties and heartily thanked members of assembly and public for their unbounded kindness and good will.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

LESSON FOR EMPLOYERS AND PARENTS IN PICTURE ON LIFE OF WORKING GIRL

New Fox Production, "You Can't Get Away With It," Tells Interesting Story.

In the William Fox production of the Gouverneur Morris story, "You Can't Get Away With It," which comes to the Regent Theatre for three days, there is an element which is said to hold particular interest for every working girl, as well as for parents and employers.

It has to do with one girl who accepted illicit love and luxury in return for poverty, work and the world's respect. She couldn't get away with it, in the vernacular of the street, and the story tells why. And this in spite of the fact that her love was honest, that is, if sincerity is honesty. The man, her employer, was married.

Betty Bouton plays the girl and Percy Marmont, who made such an impression as Mark Sabre in "If Winter Comes," is the man. Others in the cast are Malcolm McGregor, Barbara Tennant, Grace Morse, Clarissa Selwyn and Charles Cruz. Rowland V. Lee directed and the scenario was written by Robert N. Lee.

Scenes of luxury contrast with those of want and passion mingle with emotions of buried hate and smothered love, in the story by Mr. Morris, so that much may be expected of the film dramatization.

CHRISTIE COMEDY OF RURAL LOVE IS FULL OF REAL FUN

Bobby Vernon Starred as Country Clerk in Barnyard Fun Film, "Cornfed"

That the Christie forces can be as screamingly funny in a barnyard as in a ballroom is strikingly evidenced in their latest Educational-Christie Comedy, "Cornfed", now providing the patrons at the Royal Theatre with a half hour of delightful entertainment.

"Cornfed" features popular Bobby Vernon in the leading role, and is as the name implies, a rural comedy. All the characters of the rural melodrama are seen in the picture—the poor but honest country boy, the rich banker's son, the scheming father, the grasping squire and the bee---utiful heroine, played by Duane Thompson.

If there is less plot to this comedy than is usual with the Christie Comedies, there is more comedy action. The director, Gil Pratt, has taken advantage of Vernon's comedy abilities and given him many opportunities to display them. Vernon is cast as a clerk in a country store and the store setting provides material for many gags.

Vernon is supported by Duane Thompson, Lincoln Plumer, George French and Victor Rodman. The picture is from a story by Keene Thompson.

AT THE ROYAL

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT IN MACDONALD PICTURE

One may sum up the merits of "The Lonely Road," Katherine MacDonald's latest First National attraction, which opened at the Royal Theatre last evening, by saying that it is remarkably good entertainment.

Admirers of the fascinating Miss MacDonald need only to be told that she is more beautiful than ever in the role of "Betty,' 'the young wife of a struggling business man. That she has been given as her leading man Orville Caldwell, whom Elinor Glyn has called the most physically perfect man on the screen," and a strikingly original story, should make the satisfaction of the most fastidious picture patron complete.

B. P. Schulberg supplied all that remained to make the success of the picture certain when he named Victor Schertzinger as its director and selected a cast that leaves nothing to be desired. Every member of the company, from Miss MacDonald on down to the soulful -eyed little Stan ley Goethals—probably the most interesting child player on the screen ——must have been named after the most careful consideration by director and producer.

This, the latest story by Charles Logue, relates the adventures of a youthful married couple who fail to find in one another the companionship for which they had yearned. Starting at the altar—where most stories end—it offers an intimate glimpse of an American home that every audience will quickly recognize.

AT THE CAPITOL

The Capitol Theatre has a super programme to celebrate the wind up of its vaudeville season: Harry Thompson's big five-act unit vaudeville show gives a solid hour of entertainment, in a medley of musical, dance and comedy offerings; Mae Murray is seen in the big feature picture, "The French Doll," and there is one of the funny Felix the Cat comedies, with an excellent series of short reels. It is a big and lively programme, affording the theatre's patrons a long and amusing evening of diversified entertainment, at only a small advance over the regular prices. The theatre was well filled for last night's performance.

Edward J. Zaday acts as announcer for the vaudeville, singing a couple of songs and introducing the various members of the company in turn, in a fashion that sets the keynote for the hilarious hour of fun that follows. The Romano Sisters, a pair of dainty danseuse, in glittering gowns, do some sprightly dances, in lively, swift style, and are followed by Harry Thompson himself, a former member of the "Maple Leaf Trio," who retains the fascinating "Dumbell" manner and dress and sings in the popular "Dumbell" way. His numbers, with their monologue interludes, included "Twelve O'Clock at Night," odd and effective, "I'm Minding My Business," and a little song, "More." Applause greeted every offering by the varied performers, perhaps a little more enthusiastic for Felix Rush and Tucker Nelson, in an act entitled "Two Old Bats," whose broad style tickled their hearers immensely, the male portion of the audience laughing uproariously at most of their sallies. With a "Pumpkinville" manner and accent, and prominent chin whiskers, they have a line of rapid-fire comedy that gets over in good shape. One of the old cut-ups does a buck and wing to the music of the French horn, played by his partner, and they end their bit with an "Uncle Josh" vocal duett.

Addill and Maye have a music, song and dance act. He is a strolling Italian player, with a well-played fiddle and a good, deep voice, and she is a little, resplendent blonde, doing some excellent toe dancing in a Chinese costume of black and gold, playing a flute with her partner's violin, and coming out later in flashing pink to dance again, daintily, and to sing "Sittin' In a Corner."

Edward J. Zaday's vaudeville cocktail, bringing the whole company on together, finishes up the unit act. Zaday is the comedian, in a dress suit and long red, string tie, with a line of fantastic comedy. Julia Varady is a small lady with a splendid voice, who does a Hungarian goulash dance, in vivid national dress. A gorgeous painted Spanish shawl covers the equally lovely Spanish gown of one of the Romano sisters, who does a brilliant castanet dance, the red heels of love on her little black shoes, and her sister is a "Moulin Rouge" lady, in abbreviated skirts and marvellous plumed headdress, doing a series of agile serpentine convolutions in her dance number. In an ensemble chorus, the nine clever entertainers have some good harmony singing in "Sweet Adeline," and "In the Good Old Summer Time." Julia Varady and Edward Zaday sing together the lovely duett, "Song of Love," to Schubert's immortal setting, in which the lady's high, clear voice is heard to perfection.

The Capitol orcrhestra does some good work in its accompaniments for an exacting vaudeville program, Miss Gladman's talented leadership showing her grasp of difficult work.

Mae Murray's capricious style and gorgeous gowning has excellent scope in "The French Doll." The daringly-dressed little lady dominates the stage throughout a series of swiftly - moving scenes. As Georgine Mazulier, the daughter of a pair of furniture counterfeiters, she attracts possible victims, and leads them to spend their good money on spurious furniture, of supposedly ancient vintage. Her costumes are gaspy at times, and her dances are spectacular, as always. The other characters are merely supernumeraries to the dazzling little star, but she makes a satisfying central figure and poses elaborately in her role of sweetheart to an infatuated fish magnate, the king of "kanned kippered kod," whose idea of making love is to escort his lady love through his smelly fish factory. There is an odd element injected into the picture by a veritable lounge lizard, in Rod La Rocque, acting as Jose Carrova, the lover of a rich, discontented American woman. Her jealous old husband takes a pot shot at the young, sleek gentleman, but gets Georgine, who is in the immediate neighborhood, instead. However, the lady recovers in time to allow the curtain to go down on her acceptance of the fish king, instead of the insinuating Jose. What might have been a very good tale of excitement and heady romance has evidently been subordinated to the little star's desire to hold the stage at all moments. However, Georgine's gowns provide enough thrills, possibly. Instead of tragedy, an element of comedy interjects itself at tense moments. When Papa Mazulier has one of his frequent attacks of "seeck-ness," his attendant, the third member of the faking trio, pours water from a carafe generously down his shrinking neck. A peculiar interlude is the injection of a portion of the story of Marie Antoinette into the picture, to round out the pose of the little French girl who has just kicked the butler.

The comedy is a good one, and got plenty of laughs last night. Felix the Cat is at his best as "The Ghost Breaker," having a terrible time with a bevy of pale ghosts in a haunted house. And there are some entertaining short reels, including some good pictures in powder blue of bass fishing on the French River.

THE VERDICT—

The best all round program in some time--that's what last night's audience told us, and seeing is believing!

ERRORS BY RAYBESTOS COUNTED FOR COBOURG

Local Midland League Team Outhit the C.N.R. Visitors But Scattered Their Clouts and Nine Boots Proved Costly Handicap In Opening Game.

Timely hitting by the visitors coupled with loose fielding when there were runners on the bases resulted in victory for the Canadian National team of Cobourg in the opening game of the local Midland League season. On the visiting team were Skitch, Thompson and Schaefer of last year's Cobourg Senior C.O.B.L. team and Cliff Boundy, well-known umpire. These players, added to last year's Town League champs made a smart fielding and heavy hitting team. Manager Miller of the Raybestos has gathered together many well known local players who should go a long way in the pennant race when they hit their stride.

The game opened rather badly when Thompson booted Butler's roller. Butler was caught off first and Thompson's single through short was wasted when Markey hit into a smart double play, Thompson to Duggan to Corrin. The locals retired in order in their half of the frame. The scoring opened in the second stanza. After Skitch had singled Thompson let Drumm's hard grounder get by. Skitch was caught at the plate on Landymore's infield roller to third, but Drumm scored on Boundy's infield out. In the Brakemakers' half Butcher doubled with two down but was stranded when O'Grady through out Nichols.

The visitors came back strong in the third. With one down and a runner on third, Connors dropped Thompson's long fly to centre, allowing Maher to score and the batter to reach third from where he easily scored when Markey singled. Skitch struck out and Drumm's tap in front of the plate was taken by Rogers.

Raybestos evened up the count in their half of the inning. After Coursey had fanned, Delahaye singled over second and stole second and third. Duggan struck out but Connors hit to right for a base and scored on Rogers' triple to deep left centre. Corrin singled scoring Rogers but Landymore threw out Thompson to end the inning.

The railwaymen got two more in the fourth on two singles, a hit batsman and a wild pitch. Raybestos had two men on with none out but the necessary punch was lacking as two men got on at the expense of the runner in front.

The visitors added another pair in the fifth on a single and two errors. Singles by Corrin and Butcher after Rogers had doubled gave the locals two in their half of the frame.

Singles by Maher and Butler with errors by Rogers, Thompson and Butcher and a hit batsman contributed three more in the sixth while Duggan's double with two gone was wasted in the locals turn at bat.

DEAF RUNNER TRACK FLASH

ROLF HARMSEN

BISMARCK, N.D., May 30.—Rolf Harmsen, North Dakota schoolboy sprinter, is unable to hear the crack of the starter's pistol, yet he has run the 100-yard dash in less than 10 seconds and is going to try out for the American Olympic team.

Harmsen is 19 years old, weighs 180 pounds, stands 5 feet 11 1-2 inches in height, has a mark of 9 3-5 seconds in the 100-yard dash and an unofficial mark of 5.2 in the 50-yard dash.

Because he cannot hear the starter's gun Harmsen must watch his opponents to get his start. Although he often loses a fraction of a second in starting he is a veritable flash once he gets in motion. Harmsen will enter Bucknell next year.

BANKERS TRIM EXAMINER 10-9

Bankers Stage Rally and Overcome Eigh Run Lead to Win From Examiner.

Staging a great comeback in the latter stages of the game the Bankers defeated the Examiner 10 to 9. It was a game that was featured by heavy hitting and poor fielding.

The Examiner scored 8 runs in the first innings and looked like sure winners, but the Bankers were not to be denied and they gradually climbed up and overcame the big lead. "Hip" Hardill started for the Bankers but only lasted the first inning. He was walloped hard and the Examiner crew batted around once and then some. "Jeff" Hardill relieved his brother and put a stop to the scoring. The newspaper gang only scored one run off his delivery. Hardill had a bunch of smoke and a good assortment of stuff. He whiffed the Examiner players inning after inning.

Ralph Holyman was on the mound for the newspaper outfit and he turned in a nice game. He worked nice but his teammates gave him ragged support at times, having about ten errors chalked up against them. In the second and fourth inning Holyman retired the side via the strike-out route.

The Examiner got the drop in the first inning scoring eight runs. They scored another in the fifth.

The Bankers scored one run in the first, got another in the third and in the fifth inning they drove in five on a couple of long hits and a flock of errors. They scored another two runs in the sixth and in the seventh inning they sent across the winning counter.

The Bankers showed great fighting spirit, for the eight runs scored in the first inning by the Examiner was enough to discourage any team. But the Bankers didn't let that worry them and came through in great style thanks to Jeff Hardill's great pitching, for he tied the newspaper crew in a knot.

Several sparkling fielding plays featured the contest. The newspaper crew had a double play in the third innings, Collins, Franks and Taylor figuring in the play. Grosse made a couple of fine catches in left. Dugan made a fine catch of Phelan's foul fly near the grandstand.

Harry Cobb, umpire-in-chief of the Mercantile League games, received a bad cut on his lips when a foul tip broke his mask and caught in full force in the mouth. He continued after the injury was fixed up a bit.

The teams lined up as follows

Bankers—McClarity, c; H. Hardill, p, 1b; Phelan, 1b, 3b; J. Hardill, p; McQueen, 2b; Whitehouse, ss; Herbison, rf; Grosse, 3b, lf; Bell, cf.

The Boston Americans are proving the sensation team this year. They are now in second place in the American League, only a few points behind New York. WIN FOR PETES ON SATURDAY WILL TIE BELLEVILLE FOR FIRST PLACE

Everything is set for the most exciting ball tilt of the season at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon, when "Chuck" Shultz's Oshawa crew, with "Duke" Dainty on the firing line, will tie into the Petes, who expect to shoot Al. Heckman in against the automotive gang. It is the only game in the Central Ontario League series tomorrow, and the fans all over the circuit are expecting a sensational clash. As many of them as can get here expect to be at the ringside when the battle opens at 3 o'clock.

The game will be in charge of Umpires Frank Hallinan and Benson of Toronto, the officials who gave so much satisfaction at Oshawa on Wednesday night.

Oshawa will be full of fight tomorrow, and with Dainty on the hill-top from the start they figure they will sew up the race by a victory over the Petes. Naturally the latter cannot see it that way and are as well stocked with determination as the Motor Town boys. The result should be a contest that will keep the fans on their toes all the way.

The standing of the league at present is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Belleville	2	1	.667
Peterborough	1	1	.500
Kingston	2	2	.500
Oshawa	1	2	.333

A victory for the Petes tomorrow would therefore put them on even terms with Belleville, at the top of the heap, while a loss would send them down to the bottom.

With so much at stake there is almost as much excitement over the contest as if it were a final. The Oshawa fans in particular are worked up about the game. They blame the Motor Town management for keeping Webster in too long on Wednesday night when the Petes were hammering him, and are howling for revenge, figuring that "Duke" Dainty will turn the trick for them tomorrow.

The Petes can't see it that way, but know they have a real battle on their hands.

JUNIOR PACKERS DEFEAT MASSEYS

Teams Met For First Time In League Game This Season.

SCORE WAS 2 TO 1

The C.P.C. Junior and the Masseys met for the first time in a league game this season on Thursday evening on King Edward Park, the C.P.C. taking the all points by 2 goals to 1.

The C.P.C. won the toss and had the advantage of the wind, and by some nice football made headway.

Bell was very prominent on the right for the Masseys and receiving from Pulley gave Montgomery a difficult shot to handle, but the C.P.C. goalkeeper tipped the ball over the bar. The corner was well placed. Curtis relieved with a huge return. The Packers' forwards were playing a short passing game, but hung on to the ball too long. From one of Cooper's returns Bell got possession, and placing nicely to Cordrouy, the latter player beat Montgomery.

From the centre kick the Packers raced away. Saunders brought off some fine saves. Carmichael eventually beat him with a shot well out of his reach. Saunder fisted out from Mitchell; Naish in trying to save the situation put the ball through his own goal. Half time arrived with the Packers leading by 2 to 1.

Saunders who played one of his best games, was very conspicuous, first fisting out and meeting a return from Soutar, Osborne relieving the pressure by kicking out. Mitchell took the kick and placed in front of the goal, Cooper heading out in fine style. The Packers were having the best of the arguments but could not penetrate the defense of the Masseys. There was no further scoring, and a good game ended in a win for the Packers by 2 to 1.

The teams:

C. P. C. — T. Montgomery, H. Curtis, J. Downer, Soutar, Halliday, S. Willes, Mitchell, James, Strudley, Carmichael, Billingsley.

Masseys — Saunders, Cooper, Slaughter, Ashmore, Pulley, Naish, Bell, Cordrouy, Vinet, Emith, Edgar.

Referee, Frank McKinley.

KAY AIDS LEAGUES

Umpiring Girls' Softball Games And Managing Two Curlers' Teams.

Although Alex. Kay has resigned as an official arbitrator and his voice will not be heard calling 'em around the Central League circuit this year he has not thrown away his umpire's trappings nor does he intend to let his voice get rusty from lack of exercise. "Alex" is giving the Girls' Softball League the benefit of his experience and he has been officiating for most of their games at Central Park.

Mr. Kay is also the popular manager of two teams of coming stars, juvenile and midget outfits who carry the hopes, blessings and support of the Curlers. Last year the Curlers under "Alex's" leadership went through to capture the Ontario Midget pennant. He has also offered his services for any of the City League games.

URUGUAY TEAM WIN AT SOCCER

South Americans Showed Great Form in Defeating United States in Paris.

ARE REEL CONTENDERS.

PARIS, May 29.—Uruguay to-day qualified for the quarter-finals in the Olympic soccer football competition by defeating the United States, three goals to nothing, in a match, the score of which does not begin to show the difference in class between the two teams.

In a duel between North America and South America for football supremacy of the world, the former was outplayed, out-generalled, outrun and out-scored.

The other teams which qualified to-day were Sweden, which electrified the Olympic football world by defeating Belgium, one of the prime favorites in the tournament, eight to one; Egypt, which proved another giant-killer by sending Hungary back with a 3-0 defeat, and Italy, which won from Luxembourg, 2 to 0.

Thus, the day furnished two big surprises and two favorites, Uruguay and Italy, won.

Fine passing, wonderful speed and greater knowledge of the technique of the game won for Uruguay.

STILL THE BEST.

Walter Johnson recently pitched a one-hit game and had a shutout. He fanned fourteen men that day. On the same day Ty Cobb made five hits in the game against the Yankees. And yet they say they are slipping.

VETS INCREASED LEAGUE POINTS

In a Senior League Game Last Evening at Quakers' Expense—Score 3 to 0.

The Vets continued their success last evening in the Senior Soccer League against the Quakers by the score of three goals to nothing. The Quakers trotted out a new line-up which was an improvement, but erratic in point of goal.

Quakers—Pellow, goal; Young and R. Willshaw, backs; Terrace, Craig and Butler, half-backs; Mayette, Wilson, J. Willshaw, Williams and Walker, forwards.

Vets—Frick, goal; Wasson and Crow, backs; Frost, Mann and Blowers, half-backs; Clark, Richards, Burrows, Collingwood and Dyer, forwards.

Referee—J. C. Russell.

The Quakers faced the sun and were down to the Vets goal, to be repulsed by Blowers, who sent Dyer along the wing. The outside left tested Pellow with a left-foot drive. Then Dyer placed a beautiful cross into goal, when the Vets did everything but score. A few minutes afterwards Dyer broke away on his own, but Pellow saved. They came back again, to be successful through Blowers with a shot that struck in below the bar and gave Pellow no chance. Goal-to-goal play ensued for a while until a surprise drop shot from Frost completely fooled the Quakers' goalie. Clark placed two corner kicks right in front of the goal, then Dyer put past. At this period of the game the Quakers responded well to the issue, but were very erratic in their passing or beating their opponents. Half-time—Vets, 2; Quakers, 0.

On resuming, exchanges were very even. From a faulty clearance by Quaker backs, Dyer travelled into goal, but spoiled his chances when he hit the ball with his arm. The Quakers penetrated the Vets' defense, to see Frick clear very dilitory, and Mann cleared in time. Butler sent a long drive from 20 yards range that Frick twice punted clear under difficulties. Craig also tested the Vets' goalie from a foul kick. The Quakers pressed hard for the next ten minutes without any result. They would work close in, to keep Frick busy. Blowers relieved the pressure when he tricked three players in succession, and steadying his forwards, parted to Dyer, who met the ball in quick time to centre. Burrows jumped to gain possession with his head. The ball went up in the air, and dropping down peculiarly into goal, astonished Pellow. There was nothing of importance thereafter, except that Vets seemed contented with their lead. Vets, 3; Quakers, 0.

Goal scorers—Blowers, Frost and Burrows.

SOCCER NOTES.

On Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park the Thistles and Canadian Woollens will play in a league game. Kick-off at 3.30 prompt. In a previous tussel the Jags won by 5 goals to 2. Referee, J. L. Howarth.

Next Monday evening the Executive of the P. and D. F. A. will meet in Chamber of Commerce rooms at 7.30 prompt, when the Junior Executive intend having a meeting in the interest of soccer in the city. Co-operation is essential.

An error was made in the goal scores list last week. A. Williams, Thistles, has only scored 1 goal. Anderson, the full-back of Thistles, scored from a penalty against the Quakers and is quite proud of it because he took four years to get that goal. The last time Andy Jackson scored a goal was when he won the cup at Lindsay.

Charlie Griffins, Vets' goalie, made a successful debut as a centre-forward when he scored from a corner kick. Last season, during one of the games he played throughout the whole 90 minutes as a forward.

Great interest is being taken in the C.G.E. field day to be held on Saturday, June 28th, at Cobourg. The local C.G.E. soccer players will play against the C.G.E. Davenport team for a handsome trophy, and they intend bringing it to Peterborough.

Clark, the Vets' outside right, is improving in every game he plays. His nippy touches and close passing, along with his accurate crosses keep the defense guessing. He is a brother of the well-known local referee, Jack Clark.

The Canadian Woollens will play the Thistles at King Edward Park Saturday at 3 o'clock sharp. The following will be the Canadian Woollens team: Hillman, Chambers, Perry, Ward, Monkman, Quinn, Roberts, Wylie, Mitchel, Sayers, Jones, Elliott, Gaskell.

NEW YORK, May 30.—International League Club owners will gather in Buffalo on Saturday to aid the Buffalo Club in dedicating its new baseball stadium, and to attend a meeting called to E. M. Landis, High Commissioner of Baseball.

President John Conway Toole of the International League, said today he had received no word from Commissioner Landis as to the purpose of the meeting but he intimated that the charge of alleged syndicate baseball between the Newark and Baltimore Clubs would be sifted to the bottom, and that possibly the draft would be brought up for reconsideration.

GIBBONS WILL HAVE TO STOP CARPENTIER EARLY TO GET A RETURN MATCH WITH CHAMP. DEMPSEY

BY JOE WILLIAMS

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 29.—It does not require a considerable amount of prophetic courage to step out and name Tommy Gibbons as the winner over Georges Carpentier in the 10-round fight to be held here May 31.

For all the fine form he has shown in training and the added weight he carries, the Frenchman is through. He was on the downgrade when he met Jack Dempsey in 1921 and his subsequent knockout at the savage hands of Siki late the following year offered further proof of his complete decline.

Siki hasn't won a fight since and any number of American clowns have beaten him severly during the past six months. The dope is not complimentary to the Frenchman's ability and offers nothing to indicate that he will be particularly formidable against any first-class fighting man.

Will Have to Beat Dempsey's Record

It may be presumed that Gibbons is still a first-class fighting man, though the stand he made against the hard-hitting Dempsey through fifteen long rounds out on the Montana plains last summer undoubtedly took a lot out of him.

Gibbons still hopes to get another crack at Dempsey, and he hopes to get it by beating Carpentier. But Gibbons will have to do more than merely beat him; he will have to knock him out and do it with a spectacular flourish.

Dempsey stopped Carpentier in four rounds, Gibbons, to re-awaken interest in another bout with the champion, must register a knockout in three rounds at the latest. In short, he must do better than Dempsey did.

This will give the promoters fresh material to use in "smoking up" another Gibbons-Dempsey fight. The turnstile fish will not stop to consider that any one of several other light heavyweights, not excluding Young Stribling, might have done the same thing.

Gibbons Plans an Aggressive Fight

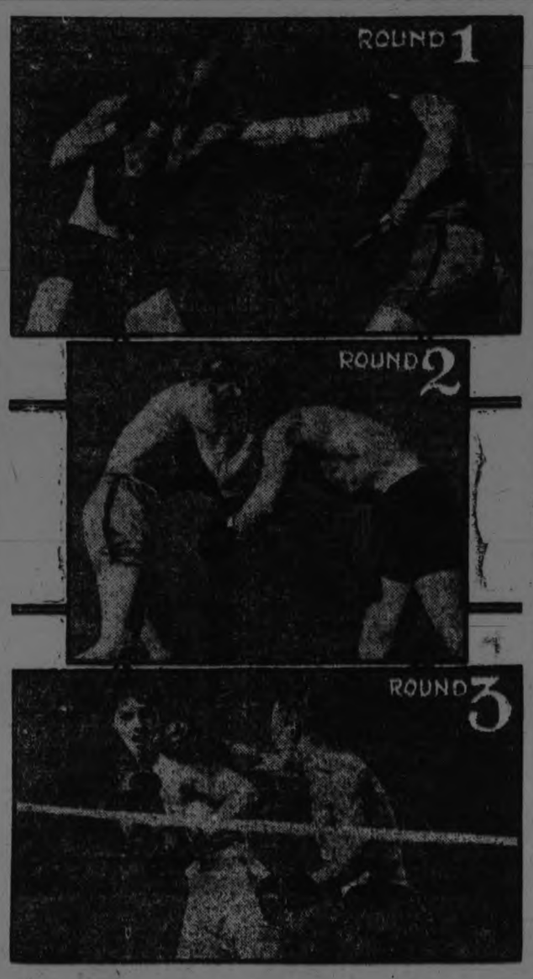
Gibbons, talking over his plans with the writer, promised to make an aggressive fight from the start. If he keeps his word this will be a thrilling due of fists while its lasts—and it won't last long.

Carpentier always carries the fight to his opponent. Ignoring all counsel to the contrary he carried the fight to Dempsey, a bigger, heavier and more dangerous hitter than Gibbons, and at one stage during the flurry, landed a straight right-hand punch—his big gun—that almost won for him immortal fame.

The Frenchman will fight Gibbons the same way he fought Dempsey, for he knows no other way. Gibbons, in consequence, will have plenty of opportunity to prove his ability as a sharpshooter, a fighter who can pick an opening and send over a knockout.

Can Gibbons hit hard enough to stop Carpentier? I think he can an will. If he doesn't, you can put it down that Dempsey ruined him last July.

How Gibbons Hopes to Win in Three Rounds



ROUND 1—By launching a relentless, aggressive attack which will test Carpentier's speed and wind to the utmost.
ROUND 2—By beating a continuous tattoo on Carpentiers' stomach, supposedly his weak spot, as a result of a giddy career on the boulevards.
ROUND 3—By bringing across a right to the jaw with sufficient power to send the Frenchman, now already weakened, crumpling to the canvas.

Bat Siki was mangled in an auto smashup and it is feared he will never be able to fight again, thank goodness.

Mons. Carpentier landed in New York the other day .....There is no telling where he will land the day he fights Gibbons.

America is sending 25 fencers to the Olympics, which is just 25 more than we though where in this country.

Carpentier says the fight with Gibbons will be his last. . . . Mr. Gibbons will probably see to that.

Mrs. O'Goofty took a yellow envelope from the hands of a blue-suited messenger boy.

A glow of joy mounted her seamy cheeks, a light of divine happiness shone in her weary eyes.

"From my boy," she murmured, as she tore open the envelope with trembling fingers.

It read:

"Don't forget to have my grey pants pressed for Sunday."

THE MOST REMARKABLE THING ABOUT THE DEMPSEY-WILLS THING TO DATE IS THAT IT HASN'T BEEN CALLED OFF.

A lot of guys in Washington could take a lesson in frankness from Nick Altrock, who admits he is a nut.

Mack figured that he was all set for a big year.

* * *

Usually reticent about discussing the possibilities of his club, he came out boldly with the statement that he believed New York would win but was sure the Athletics would finish second.

* * *

Then trouble started.

After playing one game, Second Baseman Bishop was forced out of the lineup because of illness.

Strand, who made 325 base hits in the Pacific Coast League last year, was unable to get them safe. He has been benched.

With the exception of Rommel, none of his pitchers has displayed winning form.

As a result of these and many other tough breaks, the Athletics are flirting with last place rather than acting like pennant contenders.

Yes, sir! The woes of a big league manager are many.

East Up Against It In Big College Battle With the West

EXPERTS AGREE THE EAST WILL HAVE ITS HANDS FULL THROWING BACK THE COMBINED CALIFORNIA INVASION IN THE NATIONAL INTERCOLLEGIATES, MAY 30 AND 31. THREE EASTERN HOPES ARE PICTURED.

SCHOLPP, POLE VAULTING; HILLS, SHOT PUTTING; CO MINS, BROAD JUMPING.

By BILLY EVANS.

BOSTON, May 29.—The preparatory manoeuvres of eastern colleges are not touched with the warm purple glow optimism as the date approaches for the annual championships in the Harvard stadium May 30 and 31.

So far the east has shown little in the way of aggregate strength that promises to worry the formidable teams which will come up from the Pacific slope.

At the present writing many critics are predicting that the two western universities—California and Stanford—will fight it out for the championship.

Yale Looks Strong.

Yale alone seems to stand a real chance to score heavily at the expense of the Golden Bears and the Palo Altoans. The Blue athletes performed impressively in winning a recent dual meet with Princeton.

Bayes Norton gave two fine performances in the sprints, the quarter milers, Chapman, Gage and Geilfuss, continued their triumphant stride and Will Comins' broad jump of 23 feet 7 3-4 inches in the mud was nothing short of remarkable.

Eddie Bench heaved the javelin 175 feet and Syl Scholpp was right around 12 feet in the pole vault. Mal Douglas did the mile in 4.30, which was more than creditable considering the conditions.

A summary of these performances would yield Yale approximately 25 points in the intercollegiate games, and that's enough to be dangerous anyhow.

Hills Is Out of Luck.

Princeton showed a star in George Scattergood, a fine low hurdler who may win in the stadium carnival. Ralph Hills would have to be considered in the shot put if it wasn't for Glen Hartranft, the Stanford marvel, who is conceded first place in this event. Gates in the hammer throw is the only other Princetonian who shapes up.

Pennsylvania has a poorly balanced team, and has already been beaten by Cornell. The Quakers' main hopes are Hill in the sprints, Rose in the broad jump and Owen in the pole vault.

Cornell's outstanding star is Ed Kirby, a mile runner who won the event last year in the splendid time of 4.17 1-5.

That Harvard can not be counted on strongly was shown Saturday when the Crimson went down to decisive defeat before Princeton. Harvard placed three winners in Watters, half mile, Tibbets, two mile, and Carpenter, discus. Watters is probably the star of the three.

KNICKERS FOR OUTDOOR SPORT.

Skirts As As Much Out of It In the Rockies As Corduroys at the Ritz-Carlton.

By MARIAN HALE.

Out where the west begins the skirts end.

The wide open spaces force a democracy in clothes. And our well-dressed women and men alike answer the challenge by adopting breeches or knickers, smart laced riding boots, sporty Norfolk coats or sweaters and mannish cloth or felt hats, with nifty accessories in the way of coquettish tams, piratical looking bandannas and foxy neckties.

Skirts—they are as much out of it in the Rockies as corduroys at the Ritz-Carlton.

This year, beginning June 20, the Yellowstone National Park is celebrating its 52nd birthday and is inviting the world to come out and join the party.

But they expect that the biggest changes in the half century of existence to be noticeable not in the geysers, mountain peaks, wild animals or forests, but in the attire of the guests.

When the Yellowstone Park was younger, the public was not so solid on the fresh air and back-to-nature idea as it is now. The average citizen thought of the outdoor as a good place to come in out of.

The masculine idea of a smart costume was a pair of tight-fitting breeches, high-heeled pointed shoes, a trick cutaway coat, boiled shirt, stiff collars and cuffs and rakish high hat.

And the women went one worse. They set forth with wide bonnets, floating veils, starched shirtwaists, leg-o'-mutton sleeves, wide, heavy skirts with many starched or taffeta petticoats and all sorts of frills and fineries.

Women then depended pretty much upon artifice. And there are still some under or overdeveloped women who are more lovely to look at with kindly enveloping skirts than in frank, honest knickers.

But they say there's nothing like the western air to pull you up to normal or bring you back as your case seems to need. So leave your party clothes at home and come dressed like the rest of the gang, is the injunction to everyone who accepts the invitation to the national park's party.

A LADIES SOFTBALL MATCH AT THE PARK

In a ladies' softball game played at Central Park last evening the Woollens defeated the Y.W.C.A. by the score of 20 to 19 in a battle in which both pitchers turned in a good game.

Miss Gimblett did the mound work for the Y.W.C.A., and turned in a very good game, while her team mates fell down badly behind her several times, and runs were very plentiful.

Miss Patterson pitched for the Woollens, and found the same trouble as Miss Gimblett.

Although the Woollens made a number of errors that accounted for some of the runs, they managed to come through with the punch that won the game.

H. Legros was behind the plate, and called them very good.

The teams lined up as follows:

Woollens — Miss Patterson, p; Miss Mann, c; Miss Sturgeon, 1b; Miss Clark, 2b; Miss Gregory, 3b; Miss Kennedy, ss; Miss Logan, rf; Biss Bradley, lf; Miss Langton, cf; Miss Woodgate, sub.

Y.W.C.A. — Miss Gimblett, p; Miss Cooper, c; Miss Cooper, 1b; Miss Wheeler, 2b; Miss Evans, 3b; Miss Meredith, ss; Miss Brown, rf; Miss Kirn, lf; Miss B. Meredith, cf; Miss Bradley, sub.

Umpire, H. Legros.

Joie Ray said some time ago that he was going to take up prize fighting, but somehow or other nobody has been able to catch him.

BISLEY SHOOT TO BE RECORD

Largest Number Of Competitors From Dominions Expected This Year.

NEW OVERSEAS CONTEST

LONDON, May 30. —(Canadian Press Cable.)—Lord Cheylesmore, presiding yesterday at the annual meeting of the national rifle association, announced a new Bisley competition, "The Overseas Match," which will be open to British subjects resident overseas. This match was introduced in view of the large number of visitors at Bisley annually from the Dominions. The prize list will total £100 and no entrance fee will be charged.

Lord Cheylesmore mentioned that there would be a record number of competitors at Bisley this year including representative teams from Canada, Australia, South Africa, India, Rhodesia, Natal, Gold Coast and Malaya. He said the Australians who are holders of the Empire trophy had again waived their right to have the challenge match shot in Australia and were showing good sportsmanship in bringing the trophy to be contested for in Britain.

It is announced that the Prince of Wales has consented to present the prizes at Bisley this year.

Billy Evans Says

Major league pitchers are a clannish lot.

If some star rookie making his major league debut has a weakness at the plate it soon becomes common gossip.

The pitchers pass it around. Major league pitchers hold more private conferences than big-time politicians.

* * *

Soon the east and the west will be clashing in the two major league circuits. Within the next month there is going to be many an exchange of opinions between the pitchers.

The pitcher regards the good batsman as the common enemy who must be stopped.

When some minor league star with a batting reputation breaks in, opposing pitchers work on him in an effort to ascertain any weakness he may have in his style.

A great many of the rookies have one grievous fault. Often it is hastily corrected. However, it is never overlooked by the opposing twirlers.

* * *

Recently, while sitting on the bench of the home club prior to the start of the game, I overheard the following conversation about two highly touted recruits:

* * *

The two pitchers, regarded among the best in the American League, were discussing a third club, which both had recently pitched against. So as not to divulge any secrets I will not mention the names of the players discussed.

"The big fellow can't hit low-ball pitching," confided one of the twirlers. He's a sucker on a curve ball broken over the outside of the plate at the knee.

"He hits a fast ball delivered above the waistline hard, and simply murders it if you get it inside. Never again will I pitch high and inside on him.

"He's a fast ball hitter pure and simple. Mix in the curve, keep it low and slow up on him and I don't think he will hit his weight."

The other pitcher concurred in the opinion expressed.

* * *

The conversation then shifted to another likely youngster, with the pitcher who had been listening doing the orating.

* * *

"The other fellow is tough to figure. He's one of those free swingers who looks bad on a ball and then hits the same kind of a ball out of the lot the next time you throw it.

"I have worked on him from every angle and he looks like a pretty good hitter to me. I have found that he usually takes the first ball and I always try to get it over for a strike. Then I start working on him.

"He hits them much better on the inside than the outside of the plate. A curve ball doesn't trouble him much unless you all but waste it. I found a half-speed ball was most effective because he takes such a hard swing."

* * *

The bell rang for the start of the game and the conference ended. However, it is apparent that the bush league recruit is up against it if he has a weakness at the plate. Once the pitchers get wise they tell the world.

* * *

The woes of a big league manager are many?

If you doubt that statement we respectfully refer you to one Connie Mack.

Once upon a time winning pennants and world series were hobbies of Connie's. His club was always in the running.

Then came dark days. Since 1914 he has earnestly endeavored to get together a winner. Several times it has seemed he was on the point of succeeding, only to have something clog up the machinery.

* * *

It was Mack who put the American League back on the map in 1910 by trouncing the supposedly invincible Chicago Cubs.

In 1907 and 1908 the Cubs walloped the Detroit Tygers in the annual classic. In 1909 the Pittsburg Pirates trounced Hughey Jennings' Detroit club.

American League prestige was waning when Mack put over a penant winner and followed it up by taking a world series from the Cubs.

From 1909 to 1915, Mack and his teams were very much in evidence. Since then he has been in almost a total eclipse.

* * *

For two months last season Mack's club was the sensation of the American League, then it flopped. During the first month of the 1924 race it has been as big a disappointment. Perhaps it will shortly show a reversal of form.

* * *

Unquestionably the failure of the Athletics to play winning ball from the start this year, has upset the Athletic leader more than any other thing that has happened to him during his major league career.

Mack felt positive that he had a ball club with great possibilities. He has not entirely weakened on it as yet, but he has his doubts.

Working on the theory that his club lacked a batting punch he went out and added three outstanding minor league stars to his lineup last winter. These three players, Simmons, Bishop and Strand, came to Mack with the reputation of being real hitters.

Mack figured that he was all set for a big year.

* * *

Usually reticent about discussing the possibilities of his club, he came out boldly with the statement that he believed New York would win but was sure the Athletics would finish second.

* * *

Then trouble started.

After playing one game, Second Baseman Bishop was forced out of the lineup because of illness.

Strand, who made 325 base hits in the Pacific Coast League last year, was unable to get them safe. He has been benched.

With the exception of Rommel, none of his pitchers has displayed winning form.

As a result of these and many other tough breaks, the Athletics are flirting with last place rather than acting like pennant contenders.

"MOTHER IS MY COACH," SAYS MARATHON WINNER

CLARENCE H. DE MAR AND HIS MOTHER

BOSTON, May 30.— "I never had a coach," says Clarence De Mar, who recently won the American marathon at Boston for the fourth time, setting a new record. "I just ate the good food that Ma cooked for me and I imagine that was better than any kind of expert coaching I could have got."

De Mar is a Boston printer and part of his training routine consists in running to and from his workship, a distance of some nine miles.

"I never spend any car care to go any place," De Mar tells you. "It's more fun running or walking."

De Mar will head the American marathon squad to Paris this summer for the Olympics.

STAFFS NEEDED FOR TREATMENT OF EX-SOLDIERS

Hon. Dr. Beland Says the Number of Patients Has Been Reduced But Not the Applications For Treatment — Reduction Cannot Be Accelerated If Ex-Service Men Are to Get Attention.

DEFENDS THE D.S.C.R.

OTTAWA, May 31. — (Canadian Press).— Estimates of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment were considered by the House of Commons, in committee of supply, Friday. Discussion was continued on the vote of $2,600,000 for care of patients and medical examination of pensioners. Hon. H. S. Beland, minister of soldiers civil re-establishment, stated that it was the intention of the department to return to its owners Mowat Hospital at Kingston The government had the option of doing this any time after the lapse of five years.

General Ross (Conservative, Kingston), took up the case of Tubercular ex-soldiers. While the gas experienced at the second battle of Ypres had little to do with tuberculosis, he said, the effect of the gas later in life was frequently very severe and many to-day were suffering from it. Many of the men known to be suffering through the weakening of the throat and lungs as a result of gas but not having tuberculosis should receive treatment from the D.S.C.R.

Should Retain Hospital

Twenty-eight men were in Graven hurst hospital last year with tubercular trouble and while all men were ex-soldiers the trouble was not directly traceable to war service. Gen. Ross urged the government to consider seriously the maintenance of the Mowat Hospital for tubercular cases in Kingston, General Ross gave cases of ex-service men who had died as a result of illness taken after the war but not traceable to the war service. The majority of cases were well cared for but there was a small number who needed the further attention of the department.

Doctors Efficient

Dr. Beland replied that the cases cited by some half dozen members of the House were after all a very small proportion of the 167,000 cases which had to be reviewed year after year and most of which were satisfactorily dealt with by the commissioners. The medical board of nine, chosen by the board of pension commissioners were not under his jurisdiction and their decision not under his review. Of the doctors who were within his jurisdiction in every part of Canada he had the highest possible opinion. He had not had to change more than four or five since he came into office.

General Ross: "That is what I com plain of. That the recommendations of these reputable physicians are being turned down by the board."

Reduction of Staff

Speaking of the reduction in staff, the Minister said that to let out 2,000 from the Department within two years and three months took considerable courage. Replying to General Ross, Dr. Beland said that a system was being worked out by which the Kingston Hospital would be kept open in a manner which would be sat isfactory to the people of Kingston.

Sir Henry Drayton (Conservative, West York), drew attention to a case of a soldier discharged from hospital after two operations which had rendered him unable to earn a living and without compensation. The Minister promised to look into the matter.

After some further discussion of individual cases, the item for medical examination and care was adopted. Another item of $20,000 for vocational expense also was adopted.

Staffs of Hospitals

Suggestions that staffs in the employ of the military hospitals and consulting departments should be decreased were made by opposition members. The staffs maintained in Ottawa came in for particular mention by General Ross of Kingston.

The committee was considering a vote of $3,553,000 for salaries, divided as follows: general administration $1,425,000; training, employment and insurance $128,000; hospitals and clinics $2,000,000.

The minister replied that he had approached the question three years ago with the conviction that the Ottawa staff was too big. He had been forced to the conclusion that it could not be reduced very rapidly. Then they had 8,000 employees for 5,000 patients. To-day they had 2,800 employees for 3,600 patients

Need of Treatment

"If you have a heart you cannot reduce any faster," added Dr. Beland. "If a man comes knocking at the door claiming treatment, you can not turn him away without examination and classification of his status. All this means work. There is a reduction in the number of patients. There is no diminution in applications for treatment, however. Unless the department shuts down on applications it will need many employees to deal with the applications and the cases arising out of them. We are reducing the Ottawa staff at the rate of eighteen or twenty a week. I venture to predict that the reduction will be slower as the years go on."

Same Acreage of Wheat in Alberta

REGINA, Sask., May 31.—(Canadian Press).—In a crop report issued Friday by the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, the wheat acreage of the Province this year is given at approximately the same as last year, 12,791,000 acres. An appreciable increase in the acreage sown to flax is indicated The oat acreage is placed at last year's figures.

No damage to crops in any district is recorded but two or three points report lack of moisture. Wheat seeding, the report shows, is completed in every part of the province but the growth has been retarded by cool weather.

PROPOSALS TO AID EMMIGRANTS

AMERICA OPPOSED

ROME, May 31 (Canadian Press). —All of the resolutions concerning special aid for emigrants drawn up by Section 2 of the international conference on emigration and immigration during the last fortnight were adopted yesterday at the plenary session of the conference, but the United States, Argentina, and most of the other South American countries either abstained from voting or voted against all the resolutions that were presented.

The resolutions adopted provided for: Establishment of special hostels at frontier ports for emigrant families; government supervision of the lodging of emigrants; supervision by authorities of countries of ports of call to secure to emigrants treatment to which they are entitled; special assistance for women and children; recommendation for an agreement whereby emigrants established in a country where there is no resident agent of the country of their origin may apply to the representative of another country for legal information and protection; recognition of private societies for the protection of emigrants in immigration countries; settlement of the question of the support of families left in emigration countries by the workers employed in immigration countries ;international protection of and assistance for war crippled emigrants; protection of emigrants against exploitation before departure, en route, and at their destination; publication of the codified law of the various countries concerning the rights and obligations of emigrants to be distributed in pamphlet form; adoption of a universal postcard and reduced postage rates of emigrants; and establishment under governmental control of co-operative, mutual aid, and prudential organisations among emigrants.

OTTAWA, May 31. — (Canadian Press).—The matter of rates for the Ottawa Hydro Commission patrons is to be held in abeyance for a few days, according to a letter which has been received from the Ontario Hydro Power Commission.

When the local Commission was notified of the proposed new schedule, which meant an increase of approximately 30 per cent. for Ottawa, a letter of protest was sent to the Ontario Commission.

Tomb of Poet Gray Menaced by Houses

STOKE POGIS, England, May 31.—(Associated Press). —The natives of this parish, famous for its connection with the Penn family, founders of the State of Pennsylvania, and also its associations with the poet Gray, are disturbed because of the march of progress.

The pretty neighborhood has recently attracted golfers and others as an ideal spot to build labor-saving bungalows, and these are gradually increasing in numbers and getting closer to the churchyard containing Gray's monument and tomb. As the 12th century church badly needs repairing, a fund has been opened for its restoration, and also to purchase several acres of surrounding land, so that Gray's tomb will not be overshadowed or swamped, as the fund promoters put it "by the tide of modernism" in the shape of up-to-date cottages.

THE VICTIM

Robert Franks, 13-year-old son of Jacob Franks, millionaire retired watchmaker, who was kidnaped as he left the fashionable private school he attended, and then slain in a struggle with his captors. His body was found in a culvert the following day. Two law students admit killing the boy for a $10,000 ransom.

LAW STUDENTS ADMIT MURDER

Prisoners Admitted Killing Boy for Ransom of $10,000 They Demanded of Victim's Father.

CHICAGO, May 31. — (United Press). — Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, sons of millionaire families, and both law students at the University of Chicago, to-day confessed kidnapping and murdering Robert Franks, 14-year-old schoolboy, State Attorney Robert E. Crowe announced.

The confessions came after extensive questioning. Both boys admitted killing the boy and said their motive was for the $10,000 ransom they demanded of the victim's father. Leopold, who was traced through the finding of his eyeglasses near the nude body of the slain youth, admitted writing the ramson letter, Crowe said.

The confessions bring to an end one of the most sensational murder cases in Chicago police records.

Hundreds of suspects have been held in connection with the crime, and many clues have led the police to cities throughout the country. Details of the youths' confessions will be made public shortly, Crowe said. Both Leopold and Loeb were completely broken physically when their confessions were made.

DRUGGISTS IN COURT

Sold Honey Balsam to O.T.A. Spotters at Chatham.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 31 (Canadian Press). — Ferris Weaver, clerk, employed by J. G. Clark, druggist, and T. C. Sullivan, druggist, completed their defence in the City Police Court yesterday to charges of violating the O.T.A.

The cases are to be argued in a weeks time.

Charges of selling liquor were preferred against both following purchases of honey balsam, a patent medicine, by O.T.A. spotters.

A feature of the trials yesterday were strong denials by the defence of evidence by the enforcement agents that they claimed they needed the medicine as a beverage.

CHICAGO "FLASHBOARD" MAY END DISPUTE OVER DIVERSION OF GREAT LAKES WATER OLD GRIST MILL EXPEDIENT IS SUGGESTED

Millers Used to Put Flashboards Along the Tops of Their Dams to Retain Spring Freshets For Use In Dry Season — Would Apply This Principle to Niagara River.

ERIE A MILLPOND.

BY GEORGE BRITT

CHICAGO, May 31.—(Special to the Examiner).—When the spring rains flooded all the creeks back in the country, thrifty millers used to put "flashboards" along the tops of their dams to enlarge their millponds and save the water for summer.

The homely practice pictures the solution of George M. Wisner, consulting engineer for the sanitary district of Chicago, for the controversy over the city's intake of lake water to carry off its sewage.

Wisner knows the sanitary district and its problem. As a youth just out of engineering school in 1892 he helped turn up the first shovelful of dirt for the canal which connects Lake Michigan with the Illinois River and reverses the flow of the Chicago River.

"Just vary the flashboards on the milldam into larger regulating works above Niagara Falls and there'll be no more complaint of low wate," declares Wisner.

Lowers Lake Levels.

"Here is the situation today. Chicago is taking about 10,000 cubic feet of water per second. It has become a necessity for the city's health.

"Sewage disposal plants are operating and being enlarged, but they cannot meet the need entirely for years. Unless Chicago takes this water, the river will carry its waste into the lake and pollute the drinking water supply.

"This diversion at Chicago reduces by about 5 per cent the average flow over Niagara Falls. It has lowered the average level of Lakes Michigan and Huron, also, by about 5.5 inches. The principal protest has come from the Niagara power interests, Canadian and American, which would use this water to turn turbines.

"The effect on navigation is that lake boats cannot load quite so heavily, each inch subtracted from harbor depth meaning a loss of about 100 tons of cargo from a big freighter.

"Regulating works which placed in the river opposite Buffalo will increase the year-round level navigation and give more water for power. The scenic grandeur of Niagara Falls would not be imparied in the slightest.

Chicago Will Pay

"Chicago is ready to pay all the bills and guarantee satisfaction. The works would cost about $2,500,00, with about $50,000 a year for maintenance, a reasonable sum to have the $100,000,000 investment in the Sanitary canal.

Lake Erie would become a great millpond under this arrangement. The lakes are at their highest about June and July, after the spring rains, and lowest about February. The regulating works would be closed every May, affecting a six inch reduction of flow of 40,00 cubic feet per second. They would be thrown wide open in December, removing obstructions during the low stage.

Chicago's tentative plan, which would be executed by army engineers, provides for a wall like a breakwater three-quarters of a mile long in the middle of Niagara River parallel to the current. Caisson-like gates would be floated across the channel on one side and sunk. This would effectively constrict the outlet from Lake Erie.

Valves in the gates would permit various degrees of flow. In winter the gates would be entirely removed, As a precaution against ice jams, the top section of the main division wall would be removable.

General W. S. Bixby, retired chief of engineers of the army, testified recently that the proposal was "an experiment well worth trying out."

Chicago's taking of lake water is not only essential at present for health, according to the sanitary district, but it will be virtually a necessity for the realization of the lake-to-the-gulf waterway. The sanitary canal, maintained as a deep channel, is an indispensable link in the chain.

CHECK TRAFFIC IN STOLEN CARS

Methods And Habitat Of International Thieves Known To Officials.

TRADE SUFFERED

OTTAWA, May 31.—"The traffic in stolen United States' automobiles in Ontario, Quebec and the Eastern Provinces seems to be nearing its end," said W. P. Young, general manager of the National Automobile Underwriters' Conference, when interviewed yesterday.

Mr. Young has been spending some time in Canada on behalf of automobile owners in the United States who have been suffering through the depredations of international thieves. He has he said, secured a vast amount of evidence concerning the haunts and practices of those who deal in this class of stolen property on this side of the border.

Intolerable Situation.

"For some time past," Mr. Young said, "we have been co-operating with the reputable dealers and government authorities in this part of Canada to check a situation which has become intolerable. Thieves in the United Sttaes, with the aid of confederates in Canada, have carried on their trade so successfully that the legitimate trading in automobiles on this side has been seriously affected. Canadian customs officials are alert, but the thieves have been using unfrequented roads and by-ways to escape the officers of the law. We know the persons connected with these gangs, their methods, haunts, as well as their market, and are now prepared to invoke the law and eliminate them."

Car Titles Clouded.

"The new Quebec motor vehicle act will no doubt prove most helpful in carrying out the proposed plans," Mr. Young said. "Hundreds of car owners now find themselves with automobiles bearing changed or defaced manufacturers' numbers, which cars may either be refused registration or have registrations revoked when inspected and discovered. Many more are in possession of automobiles to which they hold no clear title by virtue of the prohibitions of the Act."

AND THEN HE DIED

Saskatchewan Farmer Opens Carbuncle With Jack Knife.

Theodore Marchand of Tillbury Sentenced to Jail and Fined.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 31 (Canadian Press).—Theodore Marchand, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Tilbury, was yesterday sentenced by Magistrate Callwood of that town on a charge of violating the O.T.A., to a fine of $300.00, and costs, or in default, three months in jail.

As the conviction was for a second offence, the Magistrate imposed an additional sentence of three months in jail.

Marchand, through his counsel, gave notice of appeal, and complied with Court requirements to permit his release pending the appeal case.

U.S. AMBASSADOR HOST TO PRINCE

Social Brilliance To Dinner And Ball In Honor Of American Girl.

DONATION FOR RESEARCH

LONDON, May 31.—Pre-war social brilliance featured a dinner and ball at Crewe House last night when Ambassador and Mrs. Kellogg entertained the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York and forty other persons at dinner. After the ball which the Kelloggs gave in honor of their niece, Miss Elizabeth Ottis, of St. Paul, Minn., who recently was presented at court, 150 other guests were present.

After the dinner, Ambassador Kellogg and the Duke and Duchess of York left the Prince of Wales while they went over to Lansdowne House which had been loaned by Gordon Selfridge for a reception and ball to aid the endowment appeal in connection with the Rockefeller gift for medical research in Great Britain.

The Duchess of York at this function received purses collected for the fund. They were handed her by sixteen young women, including some of the most beautiful of the season's most beautiful debutantes; eight Americans, among them were dressed in rose colored gowns. They bore silver trays. The eight English girls were dressed in silver cloth gowns and carried rose-decorated trays.

Viscount Burnham announced that £172,000 had been collected for the fund. Afterward Sir Edward Hatch paid tribute to the Rockefeller Foundation and the "great vision and soundly sympathetic instinct which prompted this great benefaction."

WANTED IN HAMILTON.

OTTAWA, May 31. — (Canadian Press). — Harry Babin, of Ottawa, was taken to Hamilton Friday afternoon by Detective A. Speakman, of the Hamilton police, to answer to a charge of false pretences. Babin is alleged to have obtained $70 by a worthless cheque, Detective Speakman stated.

Confession of Murder Denied

WINNIPEG, May 31.—(Canadian Press).—In the face of three partial confessions to the police and a full confession at the coroner's inquest, Harry Taterniuk flatly denied at his preliminary hearing in police court yesterday that he knew anything of the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Katie Symchesen, on May 8 last.

The witness was repeatedly reminded of his confessions to the crime, which simply elicited the determined reply "I know nothing about it."

Taterniuk conducted his own case and in challenging statements made by certain witnesses made persistent reference to matters without any bearing on the murder.

The change in the attitude of the accused came as a complete surprise to the Crown. The accused was remanded until next Monday.

DAMAGED IN WAR ORPHANS HONOR AMERICAN DEAD

Eight Hundred French Children Bereft By War Intensify Sentiment Of Decoration Day.

CELEBRATION IN PARIS

PARIS, May 31 (Canadian Press) —The spectacle of 800 French war orphans, bearing United States flags, marching past the United States military cemetery at Suresnes to the tune of the old revoluntionary anthem, 'Les Girondines," the chorus of which is:

"To die for one's country—This is the most beautiful fate—the most worthy of envy," was the most touching part of the celebration of Memorial Day yesterday.

The youngsters were reviewed by no less a person than General Mangin, and as the band struck up the stirring old revolutionary anthem, they marched erectly, with shining faces, with a demeanour even more military than that of the French infantry regiment, cavalry detachment, and marines, platoon which were detailed to honour the dead lying in the lofty cemetery, perched upon a hilltop, from which the Arc de Triomphe and the Eifiel Tower loom up hazily and almost insignificantly in the distance.

Despite the sultriness of the weather the ceremony was attended by a large crowd.

C. A. Irwin, of Denver, whose son is buried at Suresnes, made a moving address, after which a chorus of 80 young girls from the Normal School of the Seine Department sang the "Apotheosis," by Berlioz.

Father Hennick, of Pittsburgh, recited the invocation.

Sheldon Whitehouse, counsellor of the American Embassy, representing Ambassador Herrick, briefly recalled that the spirits that went forth at Chateau Thierry and the Argonne are one with those of Gettysburg and Santiago.

General Mangin, in a brief, soldierly speech, recalled the role of the United States expeditionary forces.

CHEQUE WAS COSTLY

Two Year' Imprisonment For Issuing Worthless One For $25.

HULL, Que., May 31.—(Canadian Press).—Gelinas Jassmin, of Wrightville, was yesterday sentenced to two years' imprisonment for uttering a worthless cheque for $25.

"This seems to be a mania with you, as it is the fourth occasion on which you have obtained money through bogus cheques," said Judge R. Miller in pronouncing sentence.

JUNKERS' BLUFF FOR COALITION BARED BY MARX

German Nationalists Confess Falsity Of Their Proposal To Enter Coalition Govt.

DEMAND LEADERSHIP

Disagree With Former Government's Attitude On Dawes' Report.

BERLIN, May 31 (Canadian Press). — The German Nationalists last night broke down under the pressure of the rigorous "Third Degree" methods applied to them by Chancellor Marx during the past forty-eight hours, virtually confessing in an official party communique that they had been simulating sincerity with respect to their avowed intention to enter a non-Socialist Coalition Government on the basis of the programme drafted by the three middle parties.

In withdrawing from the present inter-party deliberations, the reactionaries reiterate their adherence to a chancellorship under Admiral von Tirpitz; they make their familiar reservations with respect to their position on the Dawes' report and declare further that participation by them in a Cabinet in which they are not given either the post of Chancellor or Foreign Minister would be intolerable. The Nationalists also admit that rejection by the other parties of their pet scheme of linking up Prussian politics with the impending reorganization of the central government contributed to their decision to abandon the present parleys.

Conflict on Report

On the question of the present Governments' acceptance of the Dawes report, the Nationalists' communique declares that ultimate decision on the question of its acceptance or rejection can only be reached after a preliminary accord on all moot points. As this attitude conflicts with the position already assumed by the Marx-Stresemann Government, the reactionaries believe themselves unable to support the government's previous commitment.

In political circles what is termed the retreat of the Nationalists under fire caused only mild surprise. In Reichstag circles it is declared the incongruity of the course pursued by the Middle parties was fully appreciated long before Chancellor Marx sallied forth in a vain attempt to reform the reactionaries.

Dawes' Report Pivot

The Middle parties undertook no further action last night as Chancellor Marx is still in possession of President Ebert's commission to form a new Government. It is believed, however, the Chancellor now will seek to revamp the Middle parties bloc and go before the Reichstag with a platform which will vouchsafe the support of the Socialists on the question of making the Dawes' report the pivotal point in the government's program. The three Middle parties, together with the Socialists and the Bavarian People's Party, command sufficient mandates to ensure them a working majority.

FERVENT EVANGELISM URGED BY METHODISTS

Imperative to Every Church, Minister and Layman, Declared Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore at Hamilton Conference.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 30.—Addressing Hamilton Methodist conference Friday afternoon, Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, referred to the need of an evangelistic campaign in the Methodist church and also urged that Methodists stand firmly behind the O.T.A. He said the friends of prohibition should press on towards dominion wide prohibition the same as they have in the United States. He said the O.T.A. has been a marvellous success in spite of its weaknesses, in spite of the fact that certain prominent ecclesiastics have expressed the view that it has weaknesses.

He urged educational work on the part of friends of the O.T.A. and the enlistment of the help of every available person. They must go on adding to and amending until the great goal of dominion prohibition as they have it in the United States is achieved. They must strive for the prohibition absolutely of all sale, manufacture, importation and exportation of liquor.

Fervent Evangelism.

Discussing evangelism Dr. Moore said it was necessary for the Methodist church to go in for a campaign of fervent evangelism. The Methodist church has always stood for fervent evangelism, but the present situation existing presents an imperative challenge to every Methodist church, and every minister and layman in the conference should feel an imperative demand to go back to their circuits determined to set on foot a more effective programme of evangelism than ever before.

Church Union Funds.

Rev. S. W. Dean addressed the conference on finance devoting his remarks chiefly to the church union fund. The Methodists had been apportioned 45 per cent., Presbyterians 45 per cent. and the Congregationalists 10 per cent. of the church union fund. Hamilton conference had been apportioned $10,000, but only about $5,000 seems available. He urged that our full amount be paid as the Presbyterian friends of union can only raise their quota by private canvass, owing to the opponents of union. The Methodists are 100 per cent. for union and are in a better position to raise the money.

Mr. Dean said there was no doubt of the ultimate outcome of the church union movement.

A memorial service was held this afternoon for ministers who have died during the year: Rev. Robert Davy, Hamilton; Rev. A. J. Snyder, Brantford; Rev. Ezra A. Adams, Norwich; and Rev. W. A. Cook, of Wiarton.

At this evening's session the one probationer, Rev. Fern Aylmer Sailes, of Brantford, was received into full connection with the church. Rev. Mr. Zimmerman, of Hamilton, moving the resolution, and Rev. Henry Caldwell seconding.

Church Union Report.

R. W. Treleaven, of Harriston, made a report for the committee on church union appointed to take action on Rev. Dr. Chown's address. The report in form of a resolution as follows was unanimously passed.

Whereas we, the members of the Hamilton Conference of the Methodist Church believe that spiritual fredom is an inherent right of the church and that the church has authority to legislate with regard thereto, although its properly organized courts.

And whereas the proposed amendment to the church union bill now before the Dominion Parliament refuses to recognize that right which we believe to be absolutely essential to the functioning of the church. And whereas the long period of negotiation has necessarily retarded church enterprises and has witnessed the creation of many union churches, the relation of which to the negotiating bodies is precarious.

Opposes Delay.

And whereas the further delay involved in the reference to the courts proposed in the amendment will intensify a situation which is rapidly becoming unbearable, creating disappointment and confusion in many congregations and will embarrass the administrative, educational and missionary work of the churches.

Moreover, we cannot concede that the bill fails to make just and generous provisions for the rights of any non-concurring minorities and that it does not sufficiently safeguard the administration of trust.

Rejects Preamble.

Therefore we feel constrained to affirm our unalterable conviction that the amendment to the preamble cannot be accepted as fulfilling the duty of Parliament to the churches, petitioning for the incorporation in the united church of Canada, and we hereby record our belief that by granting the simple measure of justice which we requested our country may be saved from prolonged religious chaos and national confusion.

EMPIRE'S PROBLEM

Greatest is Distribution of Population, Gen. Bramwell Booth Believes

VICTORIA, B.C., May 31.—(Canadian Press).—"The greatest problem in the British Empire to-day is that of redistribution of population," declared General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, on his arrival here Friday from Australia on the liner Niagara. After an active tour of Australia and of India last year, General Booth said he was more than ever impressed with the essential necessity of moving the surplus population of some parts of the British Empire "to those sections where the only inhabitants are rabbits and gophers."

General Booth is returning to London. He will travel across Canada to Quebec and sail on Wednesday next for Liverpool.

Syria Slew a Tiger With His Bare Hands Over a Century Ago

LONDON, May 31.—(United Press).—The last of the real South African Bushmen, who, probably, is the oldest man in the world, is coming to London to see the King.

His name is "Syria," or rather that is his nickname, bestowed upon him so long ago by the whites that his original native name has been forgotten. "Syria" lives at Johannesburg, and although he is more than 120 years old—how much more he doesn't know—he is still adventurous enough to set forth across the ocean, upon a promise that he will see the King and the British Empire Exhibition.

"Syria," in his time, was a mighty man. He lived in a cave and hunted tigers. He decided he would marry the daughter of his chief, but the chief said only a very brave man could marry his daughter—only a man who could go into the jungles and catch and kill a tiger with his bare hands. That's what "Syria" did—more than a hundred years ago.

HASTINGS WON LACROSSE GAME

Junior Series Opens With a Loss for Campbellford

HASTINGS, May 31.—The Junior Lacrosse Series opened at Hastings on Wednesday afternoon with a win over Campbellford. The score was 9-2.

The score did not in anyway indicate the play as Campbellford had considerable advantage but were a little weak in passing, while the local team were good on the pass. The boys played a good brand of lacrosse and it would be hard to pick out the best. Byrant Scriver played a good game in the nets and turned aside shot after shot that looked like real counters. If the Hastings team gets a few more practices under the belt they will go along way toward winning the Junior championship. Four penalties were handed out by the Referee Gould B. Clapper and A. Clapper each receiving two minutes and Archer receiving three, all for minor offences.

The game started at 5.10 p.m. Hastings secured the ball on the draw and with a nice piece of combination missed the first shot the ball going to the visitors and was then blocked by A. Clapper, who secured the ball and a nice rush and pass to Walsh who scored the first goal in four minutes.

Campbellford had apparently had as much of the play but were weak on passing but Archer, who starred for the visitors was exceptionally good.

Gould received a slight cut over the left eye which was dressed by Dr. Campbell, who was one of the spectators.

A. Armstrong of Havelock, handled the game to the satisfaction of everyone.

The goals scored by periods were for Hastings in the first, Walsh 4 minutes, Walsh, 8 minutes, J. Way, 12 minutes.

Second period—Hastings, Cruickshank, 3 minutes; A. Ingram, Campbellford, 5 minutes, B. Clapper, 6 minutes.

Third period—H. Ingram, Campbellford, 12 minutes; T. Walsh, Hastings 7 minutes.

Fourth period—Way 6 minutes, B. Clapper 11 minutes, Gould, 14 minutes, for Hastings.

The teams, Campbellford, Saunders, D. White, Archer, H. Ingram, F. Ingram, Blue, Cochrane, Ibey, Bush.

Hastings—B. Scriver, A. Clapper, Way, Walsh, Cruikshank, B. Clapper, Gould, H. Walsh, Lamber, Dodd.

Goal Umpires, K. Kennedy and Carl Haig.

TOY PISTOLS.

A letter to an Ontario newspaper a few days ago carried the suggestion from a correspondent that the practice of permitting and encouraging children to play with toy pistols be discontinued, the writer pointing out that other pastimes would put less harmful and much more useful ideas into young heads.

The Examiner at the time did not regard the suggestion as carrying much weight, failing to see that children were harmed in any way by the use of such toys.

Yesterday, however, a young Chinese boy, a pupil of one of the Public Schools, was noticed armed with a toy pistol, and he was engaged in a very realistic pantomime in which he pretended to shoot down half a dozen of his companions.

The little Oriental entered into the game with grim seriousness, and noticing the expression on his face, one could not help wondering whether, after all, there was not considerable point in the letter referred to at the beginning of this article.

It is not exactly the kind of education for a young foreigner that promises to give the best results later on.

He may grow up with a distorted idea of the place of firearms in the general scheme of things.

THE HEADLIGHT EVIL.

A campaign is to be inaugurated by the Hamilton Automobile Club in an effort to eliminate the blinding headlight evil and will call upon motorists in general to co-operate.

It is pointed out that in the last analysis it is not the strength of the headlight that matters—much depends upon the personality of the man behind the wheel.

If he is courteous and thoughtful he will see that his lights are dimmed when some other driver might be placed in a predicament if the glare were not removed.

The headlight evil has been responsible for many bad accidents.

In spite of appeals for more effective regulations there are too many glaring lights to be encountered on the highways, and many a motorist, temporarily blinded in this way, has come within an ace of leaving the roadway.

If the request of the Hamilton club for more courtesy in regard to headlights by the men who drive cars is obeyed by the motoring fraternity, there would be an immediate betterment of conditions and fewer accidents for the newspapers to record.

Peterborough motorists are asked to co-operate in this effort, and in view of the inconvenience most of them must have encountered because of the headlight menace, there should be a general response.

THE REAL DANGER.

The temperance forces have been warned by more than students of the situation that they have been making a serious mistake in tactics in entrusting the carrying out of their principles to the Ontario Temperance Act, rather than in relying upon a campaign against John Barleycorn as an economic evil and destroyer of its victims.

The educational efforts of the temperance camp were allowed to subside.

King Alcohol previously preached against, lectured against and written against until he had become disreputable has been enjoying a vacation from attacks.

Before the Ontario Temperance Act was passed a very large portion of Ontario was already dry through local option measures.

Many districts had gone dry voluntarily as a result of years of educational and emotional campaigning against alcohol as an evil.

The mistake has been made of trying to make the law take the place of temperance education.

The public memory is short.

People are forgetting the evils of alcoholic abuse.

A new generation that was too young to be impressed by the temperance campaign is growing up and carrying hip flasks.

There should be no let up on the part of genuine friends of temperance—for there is danger of conditions much worse than ever unless leaders wake up to the real peril of the situation.

THE CHANCES IN CANADA.

It is a comfort to get away from the sordid side of the question—that is, whether certain types of Englishmen can make a living in Canada. If they are young enough, with strength, health and "the will to work," there is hardly a doubt about the matter. They must, of course, like all men moving from highly specialized communities to those much smaller and less specialized, be ready to enter new occupations. But, broadly speaking, most Englishmen who can make a living at home, can make a better one in Canada; and many whom the narrow opportunities in Great Britain deny a chance to try, will find that chance amidst the more flexible conditions of the new country.

We always have the one, vast, yawning—almost yearning—opportunity awaiting every new-comer who is willing to work hard at a primitive occupation which is easily learned and fairly certain of a living wage. That is farming. It is not at all necessary to go to the wide and empty prairies to enter this profession. There is lots of farming to be done in the East, within easy view of a dozen neighbor houses and a few hours' run from a city. Last year, the Eastern Townships were very hard put to it to find labor to till and harvest their crops.

Of course, the emigrant who has fixed the scale of wage below which he simply will not go, no matter what so negligible a thing as the local labor market may decree—and who has convenanted with his noble self never, never to soil his hands with certain sorts of soil—and who thinks that the world in general, and Canada in particular, England having defaulted, "owes him a living"—that particular emigrant is quite as likely to fail in Montreal as in Manchester; and we very much prefer that he does his failing in Manchester. We do not want to be nasty about it; but Manchester probably had something to do with making him a congenital failure.

* * * *

Canada does not want "wasters" or incurable idlers or degenerates or "enemies of society" from anywhere—not even from England. We want men who want to succeed and who are willing to work for it—none others. We Canadians have a man's job on our hands. We have a northern country alongside a very prosperous and more southerly land; and we have got to make the north win. We have no place for weaklings; but we have a warm welcome and wide-open chance for soldiers, men who will endure hardship, men who think that their lives may well be devoted to the splendid task of keeping Canada British.

Canada had some English immigrants once who were well worth while. They willingly left prosperity, often wealth, comfort and ease in the United States to hew homes out of the Canadian wilderness. They felt hunger, faced desperate conditions, did not even know the world price of wheat for they had none to export. They had no food but what they grew—no clothes but what they made—no "life" but that of labor, loyalty and a steadfast determination that the flag of England should fly forever over Canada. They did not write whimperingly home that Canada was "a failure"—they wrote home that, though their children's children died of hunger, they would hold Canada for the Empire.

We called them the United Empire Loyalists. If they had not fought their good fight, finished their course and kept the faith, there would be no Canada today for certain other Englishmen to decry as a country to which it is a crime and an act of cruelty to send settlers.

Incidentally, if these latter Englishmen were the only Englishmen, there would be no Empire.—Montreal Star.

"DOOMED TO CERTAIN FAILURE."

It is difficult to see how the Progressive members of Parliament can continue to press for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway in the face of the reports on this undertaking tabled in the House of Commons the other day.

D. W. McLachlan, the engineer in charge of the Hudson Bay Railway terminals at Port Nelson, in a report to the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals declares:

"I have no longer any hesitation in saying that the Hudson Bay Railway is doomed to certain failure."

His report continues:

"Many times during the past four years I have been on the verge of coming out in absolute condemnation of the undertaking on which I am engaged, but so long as I thought that there was a chance of the Hudson Bay Railway ever proving of value for any national purpose I thought I had better not do so, especially as I know that you have always been one of its staunchest supporters.

"In the light of the ice conditions of this year (1917), which I observed carefully on August 13, August 28 and September 6, in the entrance to Port Nelson, and the operation of our ships to and from Port Nelson for the past five seasons, I have come to the conclusion that the season for tramp steamers on this route is going to be so short that the cost of doing every item of work in the handling and transportation of merchandise is going to be so great that the route is not going to be able to compete with the Lake route to Georgian Bay and rail to Montreal.

"Port Nelson was this year blanketed with ice on August 29 and there was still ice around the harbor entrance on September 6, proof of which I enclose. I feel that the season cannot be extended beyond the date on which our ships have been leaving in recent years, which means that October 15 will terminate the commercial navigation unless aeroplanes are used. The longest season that can be hoped for is two months between the arrival of the first ship at Port Nelson and the departure of the last ship."

Twenty-five million dollars of the money of the people of Canada have gone into this project which is so roundly condemned by the engineer, and Western members of Parliament and their constituents are asking for some fifty million dollars more to be thrown away on an undertaking that cannot possible succeed.

No wonder the eastern papers are a unit in condemning any further expenditure on this proposition.

It was a mistake to have ever commenced the work—it would be an indefensible piece of folly to spend another dollar upon the project.

The Hudson Bay Railway should be forgotten—and the loss represented by what has already been spent upon it charge up to experience.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Everybody is hoping that June will prove a month of sunshine as well as of roses and brides this year.

At least at one point the Canadian National Railways have a big advantage over their opposition. They get a lot of free advertising, especially in Parliament.

The country is about as tired of the long session of cold and wet weather as it is of the apparently endless talk at Ottawa.

The Globe thinks it is about time the furnace arranged to have its annual summer vacation.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Women who know how to raise children are kept too busy to tell.

A summer resort is a place where everybody is from somewhere.

New York is a place where you can live all your life and still feel you are away from home.

This is the time of the year the college seniors worry over how much money bricklayers are making.

The balance of power in Europe depends chiefly upon their balance of mind.

We like winter better than summer because the flies don't.

If they don't hurry up with these political conventions the weather will be too warm to worry over who is nominated.

Many summer resorts advertise as the playground of the nation; when, really, the front porch is that.

In Los Angeles a man was arrested for spanking his wife. Bustles had their advantages.

There are more ducks in China than in all the rest of the world, but not more smart ducks.

Many parents are not on spanking terms with their children.

A used car owner tells us he thinks he is driving a bargain.

People go to a lot of trouble they should keep away from.

Our idea of nothing to worry about all night is swindlers taking money away from Wall Street.

HOW TO MARRY.

Explain to all your June husband prospects that you have enough clothes to last you the first year.

TO STAY SINGLE.

Asking the rent on houses or on apartments will help any young man stay safely single through June.

GARDEN HINTS.

Read love stories to sweet pepper plants to make them sweeter.

FASHIONS.

Spring suits are not as noisy as the spring divorce suits.

CLEAN NEWS.

If company drops in while you are spring cleaning you may get rid of them easily by asking them to help you.

AUTO HELPS.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 30.—All classes of butchers' were in demand during the week except the heavy unfinished kind. The top paid for a load of steers over 1200 lbs. each was $8.40 a cwt. These when killed dressed out just a fraction over 58. lbs. to the cwt. Other odd lots of choice butchers' brought $7.75 to $8.15 with the larger number going at the lower figure. Good butchers' occasionally made $7.50, but the bulk went from $ 7to $7.25 a cwt. Medium butchers brought from $6.25 to $6.75 and the few common killers were sold from $5.25 to $6. On Wednesday there was a little shading from the tops of Monday.

Butchers' cows were in good supply and in equally good demand. Choice cows sold from $6 to $6.50; good cows, $5.25 to $5.75; medium, $4.50 to $5, and common ones, $3.50 to $4. Bulls were more limited, and the few really choice sold up to $6. Good bulls were $4.75 to $5.25 and fair bulls $4.25 to $4.50. A small number of bolgonas sold around $3.50. Competition was keen for baby beeves and the major part of these brought about $8, and fancy babies sold up to $9. Some not well rounded out did not go over $7.50 a cwt.

Stocker and feeder specialists are not finding these supplies at all heavy and prices are firmer. Really choice short keeps are good for $7.50 a cwt., and 900 to 1100 lb. feeders with breed are selling from lb. stockers are finding a market up to $6.50. Some western feeders sold well this week. The better class of springers are quite firm at quotations, but poor quality ones are not too saleable. The incoming week holds out a fair prospect for all class of butchers' cattle, but any variation up or down of 10 to 25 cents a cwt. depends on the volume of shipments.

The qquality of calves this week has not been high and for the bulk prices are down about 50 cents a cwt. Only a small number of calves have crossed 10 cents a pound and the large body of medium to good calves have only brought 7½ to 9 cents. Common calves are selling from 4½ to 5½ cents.

Lambs that should shame the shipper were either sent back to the country or sold at below $5 each. Very few yearlings are arriving and thees sell from 13 to 14 cents. Choice sheep 120 to 130 lbs., with wool are bringing 8 to 9 cents.

Hogs have been a little firmer all week and some have sold at $8 fed and watered. The packers' bid of $7.25 a cwt. f.o.b. has stood all week and salesmen have worked off a good many between this and $7.50.

Manitoba market is firm with receipts very light. Dealers are quoting to country shippers delivered extras 24, firsts 22, seconds 18. Jobbing extras 28 to 28 1-2, firsts 26 to 26 1-2.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 30.—The market for oats was dull with an easier feeling. The undertone to the flour market was firm. An active trade is passing in millfeed but the rolled oats market was firm. Hay prices are up fifty cents to $1 per ton. A very firm feeling obtains on the local egg market. A moderate trade is passing in potatoes. There is good demand for butter. A steady demand is reported for cheese.

MONTREAL CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL, May 30. — At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale held here to-day the offerings amounted to 1,351 boxes western cheese of which 198 boxes No. 1 white sold at 15 cents per lb and 32 boxes No. 2 white at 14 cents per lb. while 502 boxes No. 1 A colored brought 15 cents per lb., 402 boxes No. 1 B colored at 15 cents per lb. and 127 boxes No. 2 colored 14 cents per pound.

QUEBEC BUTTER

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK

WINNIPEG, May 30 — Arrivals 135 cattle and calves and 170 hogs.

Trading on the cattle market was exceptionally light due to short receipts but available offerings were absorbed under a fairly brisk demand, bidding holding generally firm over the close of yesterday.

The hog market maintained a steady tone with thick smooths at $7.10 and select bacons $7.8r.

The sheep and lamb market was not established due to lack of receipts.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, May 30.—There was little activity displayed in to-day's wheat market and after opening unchanged to fractionally higher, trading became listless, values fluctuating within 1-8c during most of the session. At the close all three future months were unchanged from Thursday's finish. Due to the holiday in the United States there was very little news filtering through, but a firmer Liverpool market helped to maintain the undertone here. Exports yesterday were estimated around 300,000 bushels of Manitobas.

Future oats were in fair demand at unchanged prices while barley and rye were dull, May barley dropping 1-2c. Flax displayed a little firmer tendency on a light trade.

A Thought

OUR FIRST RESPONSIBILITY

The alarming increase of suicide mania among the youth of the country is quite sufficient to cause keen apprehension among those thinking people who look for causes rather than effects, and who study masses as well as individuals.

Too much freedom—lack of discipline and direction—the giddy wheel of an unwholesome round of pleasures, lack of religious training, of moral obligations, and of personal responsibilities—these are the paramount reasons given for the self-destruction of pleasure-drugged, reckless youth.

In this connection it would seem that there is more of vital interest to the well-balanced man and woman than in trying to settle, at long distance, political scandals and Old World problems of hate and avarice.

Is not our first responsibility that of safeguarding the oncoming generation, that they may be happy, healthy and successful, able to protect themselves and to help others?

MEN GROW EFFEMINATE

LONDON, May 31.—According to Dr. Jane Walker, men are becoming more effeminate, this being evidenced by the fact that so many smoke cigarettes.

Thirty Years of Dunlop

Experience Certainly Tells in Making Tires

You cannot go astray in your tire purchases if you buy this kind of experience:—

Many a man is driving a motor today who was not born when Dunlop Tires first appeared on the highways of Canada.

Thirty years is a long time in the Tire business. It is the very beginning of the industry. 1888 saw the world's first pneumatic tire; 1894 saw the industry taking hold in Canada.

Doesn't it stand to reason, in view of the above facts, that we must be better equipped and better qualified to serve the exacting demands of Tire users?

Knowing the past of the Tire Industry so well, we must have pretty good intuition regarding not only the needs of the present, but the possibilities of the future.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, May 30 (Special). — Two hundred and fifty delegates are expected in town next week to attend the state convention of the Knights of Columbus, which is to be held here on Tuesday and Wednesday. The sessions are to be held at the Cedarmere Hotel, and the visitors will be accommodated there, and at the other local hotels. The ladies of the Catholic Women's League will entertain the ladies who accompany the delegates during the convention. The Cobourg Motor League will co-operate in giving them a trip around Cobourg and to local places of interest. Among prominent speakers who are expected are: Bishop Fallon of London, Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough, and Dr. Clarke Brown of London.

About twenty-five members of the local council Knights of Columbus motored out to Peterborough on Victoria Day to attend the initiation ceremonies there.

It now transpires that in connection with the case of the Imperial Accident and Guarantee Company and the Town of Cobourg, the decision which was handed out in the town's favor, provides for the corporation receiving $1863.13, instead of $1,557.90, as previously reported.

Attempted Burglary.

A Brantford dispatch to the press makes the statement that two constables were fired upon there on Tuesday by burglars, when they were interrupted while breaking into the homes of C. C. Ellis and Stuart Clark. The latter is a son of Mr. Sam. Clarke, M.P.P., and Mrs. Clarke, Cobourg. The attempted robbery was a glaring one.

Arrived By Seaplane.

Major-General McBrien, of the headquarters staff at Ottawa, was at Port Hope yesterday inspecting Trinity College school cadets. He is stated to have arrived there by seaplane, which anchored in the harbour, and was viewed with much interest.

Miss L. Beamish Bereaved.

Very deep sympathy is felt here with Miss L. Beamish, C.P.R. operator at Mr. A. J. Gould's, who was bereaved on Monday by the death of her mother. Miss Beamish went home for Victoria Day. On Monday word was received here from her that her mother was seriously ill, and late that afternoon a second message came, stating Mrs. Beamish had passed away.

Hotelkeepers Have Appealed.

The two local hotelkeepers who were recently fined $200 and costs for selling beer, which was alleged to be over-strength, are appealing from Magistrate Floyd's decision. It is expected the case will be heard at an early date.

Will Play In Town.

The local Canadian National team, which is entered in the Midland Baseball League, has been strengthened by Derry, W. P. Sketch and Bruce Thompson, donning Cobourg uniforms and deciding to play with the home team.

A Pigeon Club.

Cobourg has a very progressive Racing Pigeon Club and recently the races for the season began. The first race of the old birds series was held on Victoria Day from Guelph to Cobourg, a distance of 96 miles, air line. The results of this race were as follows: W. May, first and second; G. Manton, third; Charles Ling, fourth; G. Manton, fifth, Chas. Ling, sixth; G. Swan, seventh; A. Hatton, eighth.

Races will be held quite frequently from now on.

I am 80 years of age and always keep them in the house, and when I feel any symptoms of my old trouble coming on all I have to do is to take a few doses. With the help of your Pills I expect to see many years yet. I always recommend them to any one who is suffering from heart trouble."

YANKEE SAILOR GOOD AMATEUR AGAINST BRITISH

There Are More Than 30,000 Men in the British Navy Who Have Served More Than a Decade.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 31.— In comparing the world powers' sea strength, says a recent navy bulletin "there is a popular tendency to set down so many ships, so many guns, so much material, add the total, and imagine the problem solved.

"The result is far from the truth."

Besides the items of ships, guns and materials, there are many other considerations to be taken into account.

Personnel is one of the most important.

"Men, not ships, fight," pointed out Mahan, one of America's greatest naval authorities.

"Good men in poor ships," he adds, "invariably have triumphed over poor men in good ships."

So it's of first importance to consider the question of personnel.

Second to Britian.

In her regular naval establishments, America has 7,873 officers and 86,000 men; Great Britain, 8571 officers and 91,397 men ;Japan, 7,550 officers and 58,274 men; France, 3194 men; Italy, 2347 officers and 45,501 men.

Reserves are: America, 4256 officers and 18,179 men; Great Britain, 2179 officers and 43,858 men, not including 7664 retired officers of all ages, nor 18,768 pensioners of the rank and file, under 55 years old, who are subject to call in emergency; Japan, 1819 officers and 29,600 men; Franc, 2395 officers and 96,700 men.

Italy with 4513 reserve officers, has no organized reserve of the rank and file, but all men who have served in the navy are subject to call.

Personnels are not limited by treaty, but on the "5-5-3-1.75-1.75" basis America is 4712 officers and 11,175 men short of her complement; Great Britain, 4014 officers and 5728 men; France, 490 officers and 20,747 men; Italy, 2057 officers and, making allowance for the veterans she might call to the colors, 7607 men.

Three in Running.

Japan is up to her limit. Further, her relatively large numbers of officers in active service, in comparison with the number of her men, gives her a disproportionae skeleton strength.

In the matter of quality, naval officers seem generally to agree that test is between Great Britain, America and Japan.

This isn't meant as a reflection on the fighting prowess or intelligence of the French or Italians, but simply that these two nationalities do not appear, in the main, to be natural sailors, as the others are.

As raw material, there are no dissenters from the opinion that Americans are the best in the world, but unfortunately few of them, below commissioned rank, take to the navy as a life career. Those who do so, develop into sea dogs of a mettle impossible to beat, hard to equal.

But throughout the bulk of the rank and file in comparison with the British, for example, there's somewhat the difference which exists in all callings between the top-notch amateur and the tried professional —the latter perhaps a little lacking in pep, but making up for it in long experience.

The British, with officers as good as any to be found on earth, do not average, as to the rank and file, quite as higuly as the Americans from the standpoint of education and brains—not that they're mentally deficient, but they haven't the American's intense alertness and speed to offset this, they're mostly older hands.

Japs Lack Initiative

The Japanese, excelled by none as sailors and fanatical in their bravery, are wanting in initiative—both officers and men. American experts count this distinctly in estimating Japans naval strength. Illustratively, they mention the Japanese sea forces' behavior at the time of the recent earthquake.

This stoy hasn't generally been told. There are hints, indeed, that the fleet was dilatory in rendering aid to the sufferers on shore. But the truth is that, with the people of Tokyo and Yokohoma in unbelievable straits for lack of such assistance, as he might have given, the Japaneses fleet commander kept his ships lying offshore, incapable of action except under orders from his admiralty which was too badly disorganized by the disaster to issue any orders at all.

American naval training is intensive, but the turnover of men is too rapid to permit of best results The enlistment period is two, three and four years. It isn't long enough but it cant be helped; recruiting officers are certain enlistments won't slump if it were lengthened.

A Dwindling Navy

One of the 86,000 men in the present establishment the terms of 37,859 will end this year. There will be some re-enlistments, but it is estimated that the total of new men will be 25,390. Besides, of the 86,000 men, 63,000 are first-termers.

The British enlistment term is 12 years, and there are more than 30,000 men who have served more than a decade Most of them enlist again and again. Also there is an enormous merchant reserve. America has almost none.

Japaneses ships are manned partly on a voluntary and partly on a conscription basis. The enlistment term is 12 years, half on active service and half in the reserve. Conscription is for four years' active service, three years in the first and four years in the second reserve.

CHICAGO, May 31. — A species of fish which climbs trees and jumps into the air after grasshoppes and bugs, is the unsuspecting all-star cast of a prospective movie thriller, which "The South Sea Island Research Company," headed by former Mayor Wiliam Hale Thompson, expects to find on Daat Island, north of Australia.

The expedition is scheduled to leave here on July 4th for the announced purpose of putting this and other South Sea aniamls into a feature picture.

MAN REFUSES TO BE MILLIONAIRE

Arthur Nash Told His Employees That They Made His Money For Him, So He Gave It To Them.

CINCINNATTI, May 31. — "Golden Rule" Nash is happy.

He has escaped becoming a millionaire.

The $600,000 stock dividend which would have made him one has not passed through his hands.

He has divided it among the 4,000 employes in his garment factory here.

So Arthur Nash—that is the way "Golden Rule" signs his cheques—is not the only one in the plant who is going around with a broad smile these days.

"You have made this money for me," he told his employes. "So it is yours.

"I would be a robber—aye, a traitor worse than Judas Iscariot were I to accept a penny of it."

Nash's conscience had been troubled for weeks. The "golden rule" he had been following in his business was making him rich.

He had started out in a small way. Now, after a few years, it was necessary for him to seek larger quarters. His business already had outgrown two factory buildings.

"Golden Rule" was worried. At the rate the money was coming in, he soon would be a millionaire. And a million dollars, he argued, was too much for any man to have.

The owner of the million, he reasoned, had not created it all himself. Therefore it morally did not belong to him.

35-Hour Week.

But what was he going to do with it? To whom would he give it?

He inaugurated a 35-hour week in his plant—five days of seven hours each. That gave his employes — many of them widows—a chance to be with their children on Saturdays. He readjusted wages, so there would be no loss by reason of the shorter week.

But still the money came in. The folks in the plant worked better than ever.

Nash, in desperation of how to escape this great wealth, finally wrote an open letter to the Christian people of America. He had it printed in 30 religious publications.

Answers began rolling in at the rate of 100 a day. Most writers wanted something for themselves, or for financing pet hobbies.

"They wanted me to steal this money from those to whom it belonged and give it to them," says Nash.

Then he hit upon the answer himself.

He called his employes together, addressing them as "Friends and Fellow Workers."

100 Per Cent. Dividend.

He announced the 100 per cent. dividend. All the employes own stock in the company. Each would share in the dividend. But what of his own share?

"If I personally appropriate the part of our joint production that accumulated in profits," he told them, "I am stealing from you. As far as the law is corcerned, of course, I am doing it legitimately.

"But if I must be a thief, I prefer to be one of the gunman type. I shall not even consider taking this dividend.

"I have taken in the past only what was apportioned to me because those in whom I had great faith advised me it seemed to be the only logical working out of the problem.

"This time, however, I am not going to accept a cent of it. It is yours.

"And I hope that within a year or two you will own the business jointly with me."

LONE TRAVELLER HAS 27 WIVES

Ho Kon Tong, Richest Banker In China, Sails Unaccompanied On Aquitania.

NOT A HAREM, HE SAYS

NEW YORK, May 31.— It is rare when a man can make a European pleasure jaunt without his wife, but when he is blessed with twenty-nine wives, and sails without any of them, it might be said that it is twenty-nine times as rare.

It worried Ho Kom Tong, richest of all bankers of China, little, when this proposition was put up to him yesterday as he left for the British Empire Exposition on the Aquitania. He had explained previously that he is fifty-five years old, and has twenty-nine wives.

Casual Manner.

In the casual manner in which another man of wealtn speaks of his various motor cars, Mr. Ho., as he wishes to be called, said:

"No, I do not maintain a harem. Each of my wives has their own separate establishment. They are lovable, retiring, frugal, and painstaking women."

He intimated the cost of maintaining them was less than it costs some American men of wealth to keep up their alimony payments. He smiled when the suggesion was made that he might add to his collection of wives by selecting an American or other Caucasian.

Mr. Ho is not only rich in money, husband of many wives, but also is owner of one of the rarest porcelain collections of the world. He numbers among his possssions porcelains from most all of the Chinese dynasties.

STUDENTS' LARK ENDS FATALLY

Midshipmen Tossed Each Other Into Lake In Old Water Rite.

ONE WAS DROWNED

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 31. — Ceremonies marking the christening of the class rings by midshipmen of the present second class, soon to become senior classmen, had a targic ending this afternoon in the drowning of Leicester Richards Smith, 23 years old, of Kent, Ohio.

While death was pronounced primarily due to drowning after a corps of medical officers, hospital attendants of the navy and midshipmen comrades had worked over the body for more than two hours, a theory advanced is that the unfortunate midshipman probably was seized with a stroke of heart failure. According to some of his classmates it is not thought we was in the water for more than four or five minutes. He was a good swimmer.

Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, detailed a board of inquiry to determine the circumstances and exact cause of death. Commander John T. Bowers is President of the board and Commander Byron McCandless and Lieut. Commander Harry R. Hermesch, Medical Corps, are the other members.

The accident occurred in "Dewey Basin," an inlet from the waters of the Severn River. More than 900 midshipmen had been participating in a gleeful ceremony near old "Tecumseh," an Indian figurehead known among the students as the "god of 2.5," being the passing mark in tests, and according to an old custom they tossed one another into the water. More than 400 second class men followed with their lark, alsoa nold custom, by diving into the water, wearing old service uniforms for the occasion.

Into the basin they splashed in groups of twenty or more. Boats of the half-rater type were at their moorings not more than twenty feet apart. It appears that many of the students, after their dive, clambered aboard these craft, two of which sank, and turned over, their masts holding them on their side. Midshipman Smith is said to have been last seen clinging to the stern of one of these boats. A few minutes later he was missed by some of his comrades. Suddenly a blue blouse was observed bobbing up and down on the surface of the water, revealing the body of Smith, his face downward and partly caught beneath a sail.

Young Smith worked up from the enlised ranks of the navy, having been in the service since a boy. He reached the grade of Chief Quartermaster during his career in the enlisted personnel.

X-RAY INDICATED CANCER, RELIEVED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Splendid Fruit Medicine Performs Another Miracle.

The incalculable value of "Fruit-a-tives" can best be appreciated when it completely relieves some dangerous, deadly malady that is sapping the health and strength of the sufferer. After reading this letter, it is easy to understand why Mrs. Glover was glad to write about "Fruit-a-tives" in the hope that her experience would guide others to try this wonderful fruit medicine.

"For years, I was a sufferer with chronic Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation; the stomach pains were dreadful and finally my health broke down completely. After five X-rays had been taken, I was advised that my condition strongly resembled Cancer of the Stomach and an immediate operation was necessary. Dreading an operation, I consulted other physicians but grew steadily worse. I had almost given up hope when I decided to try "Fruit-a-tives" recommended by many friends.

Immediately my condition began to improve. Pains disappeared; soon Dyspepsia and constipation were things of the past. After a few months I was perfectly well again and have been in the best of health for over a year now." Mrs. ANNIE GLOVER, 16 Henry Street, Ottawa.

Just try "Fruit-a-tives"—let them prove their real worth. 25c. and 50c. a box, at all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

YOUNG MAN STAY WHERE YOU LIVE

PHILADELPHIA, May 31 (United Press).—"Come East, young man," as economists have advocated recently, is not such good advice as "Stay where you are, young man," according to Dr. Raymond T. Bye, economist at the University of Pennsylvania.

The old saying, "Go West, young man," has been followed by the advice "Go South," and now it is said that the East abounds with opportunities for the young man. Dr. Bye disagrees with those who advocate moving to different sections.

"Just as many fortunes are made in the East as in the West or South," he says. "People are deluded who think they can go to some particular territory and have a bonanza drop into their laps. Immigrants come here after hearing fabulous tales about the United States, but find they have to settle down to hard work and probably live in a cheap tenement.

In The East.

"The East affords many opportunities to a young man, and the young men here do not have to look further for a place to start their careers.

"America is becoming a creditor nation, so that our commercial dealings with foreign nations will continue to expand. The Eastern seaboard is the natural centre for a trade dealings, so there promises to be a big field here.

"The East is always going to need big men to run the manufacturing industries which will be important here in the future. The country's coal and iron are situated near the East and the railroad facilities are good. It is safe to say the East will continue prominent in manufacturing.

In The West.

"The chief advantages of the West are that it has not been exploited as much as the East and thus the return for a unit of capital or labor invested will bring larger returns. The advantages are also psychological. The population is not as dense, an economical factor, and the people themselves are not as conservative as Easterners, a psychological factor which will encourage young men just starting in business.

In The South.

"Plenty of economical advantages are present in the South, but the psychological factors are absent. The warm climate, which is not invigorating, and the pleasure-loving attitude which most Northerners acquire when they go to South America prevent many from succeeding.

"I have noticed that many men go South with an ambition to turn things upside down, but the climate soon destroys their ambition and they acquire a care-free attitude in business. If a Northerner could go South and keep his pep he could do things there, because there is need for all sorts of industrial development.

"All these advantages which are peculiar to particular sections are so nearly equal when they are summed up that a young man today, no matter where he is, needs to look little further for opportunity than his own dooryard."

Concrete Highways Invite Hard Tests and so Inspire Confidence

THE public at large has, within a few years, acquired a remarkable degree of confidence in Concrete as a road building material.

Nobody ever thinks of putting up on a Concrete Road a sign reading "No heavy traffic allowed." On the contrary, the general tendency is to divert the heavy traffic from less-rigid roads to parallel roads of Concrete.

Whence comes this widespread belief in Concrete as a material to be depended upon? Where did people get this feeling that the traffic can be doubled or trebled on a Concrete Road without injuring its surface?

This public confidence in Concrete could result in only one way — from actual experience. Rigid tests over lengthy periods, have proved how solidly Concrete serves. It has been shown, in the communities that have resorted to Concrete, that pounding, grinding traffic is not unduly destructive to a properly-built road of Concrete.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl, is deeply in love with

Peter Armstrong—brilliant young inventor, who, though loving Prudence, became entangled with a designing, heartless beauty,

Virginia Dale—Guest at the country home of wealthy

Mrs. Vansittart—from whom Virginia has stolen money and jewelry. Virginia throws Peter Armstrong over because he has been blinded in an accident in his laboratory, and she tries to marry an old 'flame,'

Bert Traymore—who will not have her. Immediately thereafter the police arrest Virginia for her numerous thefts, and takes her off.

Prudence is sitting at Peter's bedside one night when she hears a sound as of someone moving stealthily in the laboratory. Prudence lights a candle, goes into the laboratory, and a masked man springs at her.

Armstrong rushes to her rescue, ill though he is, and in the ensuing struggle tears off the thief's mask, showing Bert Traymore, who had come to steal and patent his invention, the work of years. The shock restores Armstrong's sight again.

Janet Mercer, who nursed Armstrong and is in love with Will Ogilvie, is a great friend of Mrs. Vansittart's.

They discuss Virginia's downfall.

Bert Traymore sails for parts unknown.

CHAPTER LXXXIII.

Two Happy Wives!

Some fifteen months after the events already related, on a certain fall evening, if one had peeped through the long, low, unshaded windows of a charming home not more than two miles from Green Gables, one would have seen a picture of domestic happiness unrivalled anywhere.

A long-legged, good-looking young man, sunk deep in an easy chair, a pipe between his teeth, and a book in his hand, was reading aloud at intervals to a charmingly pretty girl, who, seated on a rug before a crackling wood fire, was playing with a dark-haired baby, who bore a striking resemblance to the young man in the chair, but whose eyes were curiously like her own.

"Little Peter's going to have a visitor," she cried, catching up the dark haired baby, and kissing him rapturously. "Baby Prudence is coming to call on him!"

The young man in the chair laughed lazily, looking down at his pretty wife with adoring eyes.

"Match-making already, are you? Peter and Prudence? Is it to be our romance all over again?" He leant forward, playfully pinching her chin.

"Big Peter, you're a bully! Even if I were match-making, isn't it perfectly right and proper for a mother to dispose of her own child's future?" And Mrs. Peter Armstrong's laugh, which fifteen months of marriage had in no wise dimmed, tinkled forth just like a freshet of delight.

Peter laughed in unison. Everything that his young wife said or did was a source of pleasure to him, and he adored the baby just as much as she did—which is saying something!

"Curious how pretty your little namesake is, considering Janet's—er—homeliness. And Will Ogilvie hasn't much in the way of looks to hand on to his daughter, either," he averred. Then he added, as if discovering a great truth:

"Little Prudence Ogilvie must have turned pretty the moment they called her after you. Well, I don't blame the child, having such a godmother!"

"You tease!" Prudence glanced up at the clock, which had been Janet's wedding gift to her. "They'll be here any time now." And then she added, stroking her husband's knee with one hand, while she held her baby in the other arm:

"You were a darling to make Janet's marriage possible!"

Peter pretended to look startled.

"I? How? What do you mean?"

Prudence shook her head at him.

"Now, don't dare retend that you didn't make over to Janet a life interest of five per cent on your invention! She'd hardly saved anything in her six years of nursing, you know, and Will still has to support his mother. So their marriage would have been 'indefinitely postponed' if you hadn't been so generous!"

Peter shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh! It was nothing. A mere trifle! Besides, why should you and I have a corner on happiness, eh, puss? Mrs. Ogilvie nursed me wonderfully during that dark chapter of my life, when I thought I'd never see again, or be able to win you—and I was glad to do a little thing like that for her."

"You're an angel, Peter!"

"Of course, I am! That's why baby's such a cherub!" He gathered Prudence and little Peter into his arms, and at that moment the maid flung open the drawing-room door, announcing:

"Mr. and Mrs. Ogilvie."

Prudence scrambled from her husband's lap to greet her guests, who had with them a cooing infant about two months younger than Peter junior.

"Janet, darling! How glad I am to see you! You, too, Will!" and she led them forward into the radius of light before the fire.

It was a comelier, plumper Janet, with the old, yearning look gone from her eyes, and a sweet repose hovering about her lips.

"How well you're looking, Prudence! Had a good time abroad? I looked in several times to see if that new-fangled nurse, with all the certificates, was treating baby Peter right! He looks splendid, but I'll bet you missed him!"

"Every minute," said Prudence, quickly; "although Peter and I had a lovely time. We visited London and Paris and Biarritz, and then did a little motor tour in Spain; and on the way back, in London, I bought this for you."

'This' was a Liberty scarf in every color of the rainbow, which gleamed in iridescent tints as Prudence deftly adjusted it about her friend's shoulders.

Janet's green-grey eyes filled with sudden tears.

"You and Peter spoil me. I never can thank you enough——" she looked at Will, knowing that if it hadn't peen for Peter's generosity, offered so tactfully and simply that their pride couldn't possibly be hurt, she and Will might still be dragging on the old, unsatisfactory basis, known as a 'long engagement.'

"Rubbish!" Prudence set her little namesake on the rug beside Peter junior, and the two babies laughed and cooed at each other in a most delightful way. "Now, tell me what you think of our new home, won't you? You don't think it's too big for us, do you? I think it's awfully homey."

"And I do, too," said Janet, quickly. "Peter and you have lots of taste, and the architect's followed out your instructions to the letter."

Prudence lowered her voice to whisper:

"I was longing to get home from Europe and back to my baby and my new home. So was Peter. We cut short our trip. Wasn't it silly?"

"No; quite natural. And how lovely to be within two miles of your father and mother!"

"That's partly why we chose this site," explained Prudence, smiling. "And, anyway, Peter loves the neighborhood as much as I do. We'd both be lost in the city. We're country lovers."

"He's been wonderfully successful," said Janet, with out one qualm of jealousy, as she flung an appreciative glance across the room at the man who was so much more capable than her Will. "He could really retire now, and live on the proceeds of that wonderful invention, couldn't he?"

"But he wouldn't. He believes that everyone should work. He puts in eight hours a day, you know, and three times a week he goes to town." Prudence's tone was immensely proud and possessive. And then she whispered: "He's the dearest husband in the world!"

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

"It's Reddy Fox," he shivered.

"Mornin'," said old Daddy Cracknuts, pushing open the tingaling door of Mister Bags' store, where the Twins were working.

"Mornin', Daddy," said Mister Bags.

"Mornin'," said Nancy and Nick, too.

"Nice day," said Mister Bags.

"Yep! Nice for ducks," said Daddy Cracknuts. "I just knew it was going to rain! I sez to Ma last night, sez I 'Ma, the moon's tilted and that means wet weather. When it's tilted like that I sez, it spills all the rain out.' And I wuz right. It's so squshy this morning I went sockity, sock, sock every step I took, and I'm as swet a a sponge. Achoo!"

"My, my! That's too bad," said Mister Bags. "I'm afraid you're catching cold, Daddy."

"I came to buy a bumbershoot," said Daddy presently.

"We don't sell guns," said Nick quickly. He was surprised at Daddy's remark because he knew how very much afraid of guns all the wood folk were.

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Daddy. "A bumbershoot isn't a gun. It's an umbrella. I want an umbrella to keep me dry—and a pair of goloshes." Daddy said the "go" very hard. "I have to go clear 'tother side of Stony Creek on an errand for Ma."

"Why sure we can fit you out," said Mister Bags. "Here is a nice umbrella with a crooked handle to hang on your arm, and here are goloshes your very size."

So away started Daddy.

But scarcely had he turned the corner when whirr! wheee! Oeee! A fierce wind nearly blew him of his feet.

"My, my!" cried Daddy. "I never knew bumbershoots were so hard to hold. Jiminy Christmas! I wish that wind would stop!"

To add to his troubles, he had a feeling that someone was following him.

He nearly dropped his umbrella and basket and everything, when he saw a long red nose and the tip of a bushy tail sticking out on two sides of a bush. "It's Reddy Fox," he shivered. "A pretty kettle of fish I'm in."

Suddenly Reddy made a rush and in about three seconds he'd have had old Daddy by the tail, but at that instant the wind went whirr! Whee! harder than ever, and catching in Daddy's umbrella, it lifted the squirrel gentleman right up in the air over Reddy's head.

And thump, thump! Something hit Reddy two dreadful whacks on the nose and he ran away howling. It was Daddy's goloshes falling off at exactly the right minute.

Daddy stopped in the store on his way home. "Gun nothing!" he cried. "A bumbershoot is ten times as good. I'll bet you Reddy Fox is running yet."

FOREIGN BORN IS CHURCH TROUBLE

Presbyterians View Home Mission Field And Say Church Is Bewildered By Its Complications.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 31.—(United Press).—A report of the 123d year of Presbyterian Home Missions in the United States was presented today to the Presbyterian General Assembly by the new Board of National Missions. Dr. John A. Marquis, General Secretary, stated that the emphasis is no longer upon territorial expansion, but that the overwhelming problem is in the baffling complexity of our population.

Dr. Marquis said that the rapid changes of recent years have left the church bewildered and all but helpless in thousands of communities where once it was securely planted. The great new idea embodied in the Board of National Missions is to create an inclusive national organization broad enough to deal with every aspect of Christianizing America.

The work of National Missions, says the report, is conducted within the border of every State in the Union, and also in Alaska, Canada, Cuba, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo.

Within this field of National Missions are gathered human beings of the greatest mixture that have ever dwelt under one flag in the history of mankind, a total of 125,000,000 people. Among them are 11,000,000 negroes. There are also 14,000,000 foreign-born, most of whom cannot speak the English language; and these have 21,000,000 children, who, if they ever learn English must learn it outside their own homes. Together they constitute one-third of our population and are a problem in assimilation no nation has had to tackle before.

Included in these multitudes are 7,000,000 Spanish-speaking people. Two millions of them live along the southern border and 5,000,000 of them in the West Indies. In addition to these, there are about 4,000,000 other Latins living in the United States. Besides Latins there are several million Slavs, Russians, Czecho-Slovaks, Poles, etc., and something like 1,000,000 Greeks and others from the Balkans and Eastern Europe.

To give a concrete idea of how congiomerate and mixed this population is the Board of National Missions every Sabbath preaches the Gospel in forty-nine languages.

Five Big Problems.

The report stated that five problems stand out.

The first has to do with the readjustment of population as between city and country. In 120 years the number of cities with a population of over 8,000 has increased from six to 924. The total population resident in such places has increased 219 fold, or from 4 per cent. of the total population to 44 per cent. of the total. The tide of foreign-speaking population that has flowed into the greater urban centres has inundated many of the older American churches. At the same time, especially in the older settled sections of the country, rural communities have declined in population and open country institutions have lost its prestige to the villages and towns.

The second conditions which manifests itself here and there throughout the country is the retardation — economic, social and educational—which still characterizes great numbers of people. Many millions of people in the aggregate have been left far behind in the march of progress, with institutions, culture and outlook reminiscent of a long distant past, due to their topographical position. Rapid changes are taking place now as modern inventions break through the walls of isolation. But in many such sections the meagreness of the resources at hand and the very rapidity of the social change create conditions which are and will for a long time continue to be of grave concern to National Missions.

The third problem presenting many aspects and everywhere present in some form is the problem of race relations. Out of every hundred of our population 14 are foreign-born, 20 are children of foreign-born, 10 are descendants of foreign-born, who have preserved to some degree foreign characteristics, and 11 are Negroes. The United States has received 35,000,000 immigrants in the last 100 years. We have one-fourth of the world's Jewish population. In many of our largest cities, such as New York, Boston, Newark, Buffalo, Cleveland, Lowell, Chicago or Milwaukee, over 70 per cent. of the total population is foreign-born or of foreign parentage.

The fourth problem is the problem of the migrant. There are many widely-extended industries which draw workers from large areas and keep them employed for but a short period. They are not vagrants, but they are seldom long in one place, and settled community institutions have but very slight contact with them. To reach the migrant with the message of religion is a peculiarly difficult problem, but they cannot safely be left untouched by the church.

Finally, there are the very considerable numbers of definitely non-Christian peoples, that is, those who nominally at least are adherents of some other religion than Christianity. The Jews, Mormons, Orientals and that part of the American Indians still remaining in paganism are the chief examples. Their number aggregates at least 5,000,000.

The report thus discusses the church instrumentalities for meeting these problems and puts stress on education and Americanization. "A Christian democracy can only exist among an educated people," it says. The report covers in detail the entire process of reorganization of every branch of its service. Under the section concerning buildings and property it was stated that four out of five of the country churches need to be rebuilt.

GERMANY'S HAND SEEN IN TURKISH COUNCILS

Angora Republic Faces Friction With Russia and France Over Asia Minor—Old Enmities Revived.

By J. W. T. MASON.

NEW YORK, May 31.—(United Press).—A so-called Turkish council of war will be held in Angora on June 5 which will be attended by Germans whose advice concerning Turkish international relations will probably be followed. This will constitute the first real movement since the ending of the World War for the reconstruction of Germany's shattered alliances.

The council of war will be a conference on strategy not to consider starting another conflict, but to determine how the Turks may use their military strength to increase their prestige in Asia Minor. Two major problems which involve army plans now confront the new Angora republic. They concern Turkey's relation with Russia and France, at opposite ends of Turkish territory.

In eastern Asia Minor, the Russians and Turks have broken their recent friendship. The Russian Bolshevik movement, which was favorably considered by the Turks for a while, has no longer any influence at Angora. The historic enmity between Russia and Turkey is beginning to develop afresh.

Turkey's Russian Problem.

The Russians want a dominating political position in eastern Asia Minor, which the Turks refuse to grant them. Russian veiled threats of hostilities have been made; but they are without value at the present time. Nevertheless, the situation in eastern Asia Minor is approaching a possible condition of belligerency. It is for this reason that the Angora war council will consider what strategic dispositions of army corps and arrangements for future action should now be made.

In western Asia Minor, at the other extreme of the Turkish boundary, the Turks and the French are developing antagonisms concerning Syrian border matters. There have been several brawls between the Turks and the French, which have developed into an approach to guerilla fighting. The French hold the mandate over Syria. They have used aeroplane bombing methods to keep the Turks on their own side of the frontier and great resentments have developed against the French for this reason.

The Turkish Government sees the possibility of regaining possession of Syria by a continually increasing pressure of public opinion within Syria and by threats of an invasion across the Syrian border by Turkish troops. If the invasion were to fail, Angora could repudiate it. If it were to succeed, Angora would gather Syria back under the flag of the Mussulmans.

French Forces Small.

The French have only three divisions of troops in Syria. The Turks could easily overwhelm this body, as they overwhelmed the Greeks, but France has resources which the Angora authorities are reluctant to encounter. General Weygand, who was Marshal Foch's right-hand man during the World War, is in command of the French Syrian troops. General Weygand wants France to let him have reinforcements, and has been visiting Paris from Syria to press his viewpoint. But, Marshal Foch is not of Weygand's opinion; and is even said to be opposed to France engaging in a war with Turkey, if this should become necessary to hold Syria.

The Angora council of war will consider the Syrian question and will draw up strategetic plans to meet eventual conditions which may show the possibility of winning back the lost area. General von Lossow, former commander of the Bavarian Reichsweir, will be present at Angora with lesser German officers. Von Lossow was German military attache at Constantinople during the World War and has close relations with the Turkish militarists. Whatever happens at Angora, Germany will be behind the scenes.

DYSPEPSIA WAS SO BAD Could Hardly Eat Anything

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicine, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

POLICE ARE DESTROYING PICTURESQUE CHINATOWN

LONDON, May 31.—(Associated Press).—Chinatown, or that part of the east end of London long the haunt of Orientals and known only to the majority of Britishers through the eye of the novelist, is rapidly vanishing through the activity of the police.

Magistrate J. A. R. Cairns recently spoke in this regard as follows: "Chinatown, so far as its old associations and vices are concerned, will very soon have passed away. As to its 'romance,' there isn't any left; there is nothing now but dirt and squalor.

"In clearing the place of its drug-traffickers the police have done a fine piece of work. Quietly, but very thoroughly, they have gradually eliminated the master-minds of the 'dope' gangs, and those who worked under them are now unable to carry on their terrible trade."

NEWSPAPERS PROTEST A BOMB AND PISTOL WAVE

LISBON, May 31. —(Associated Press.)—The increase of crime of every kind in Portugal has inspired the important Lisbon newspaper Diario de Noticias to a denunciation of the conditions that make it possible.

"Bombs and pistols," it says "are the supreme arguments and means adopted to settle conflicts. We live in a society of criminals destined to eliminate itself by violence, and giving to the world the spectacle of a nation in which laws are non-existent and authority is impotent.

"There is no protection given the police who naturally find it safer to shut their eyes to crimes they should prevent, and a demoralizing fact is found in the constant escape of dangerous criminals from the prisons and fortresses of the country."

What liability does a bill of lading impose on a carrier?

Answered by

RAYMOND B. DICKEY

Corporation Attorney, Writer and Lecturer on Legal Phases of Finance.

Under the various statutes the bill of lading place the railroad in the position of insurer of the shipment Th railroad is liable, in general, for all loss or damage to which the goods are ordinarily subject. The ception from liability are stated specifically in the bill of lading and include loss, damage, or exceptional delay due to an "act of God," the public enemy, quarantine, the authority of law, strikes, and riots, or fire 48 hours after notice of arrival has been given. Such occurrences as inherent defects in the freight, natural shrinkage, shippers bad packing, etc., also excuse the railroads from liability. In any case where the carrier is excused from liability it must not have bee na contributing party to the loss, through carelessness or inefficiency.

LOW WAGES IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, May 31.—Current wages in Germany are substantially less than in pre-war times, according to recent statistical tables. It is contended that the purchasing power of wages to-day, when adjusted in accordance with the corresponding cost of living, is only about 73 per cent. of the pre-war purchasing power.

FABLES ON HEALTH

THE "DON'T" HABIT.

"Quite so," calmly agreed Mrs. Mann, "but nagging isn't discipline."

This argument may sound familiar to hundreds of parents.

Very frequently—all too often—one parent, or the other, mistakes scolding, nagging and threats for disciplining.

Far too often is the word "don't" worked to death.

Good habits for a child to be "disciplined" in are obedience, self-reliance, sincerity, self-control, truthfulness and general service.

To get obedience, however, does not mean to brow-beat, nag and frighten.

The breeding of fear is one of the worst consequences of discipline." Threats of punishment do not make for either truthfulness or sincerity. The child learns to lie and hide—anything to avoid punishment; it learns to fear.

On the other hand, the child can not grow up without restraint, or respect for his parents.

The task is one necessitating intelligence and tact.

But it's worth any effect you can make.

PRINTING PRESS WILL STILL FUNCTION WITH A NEW LEASE OF LIFE

Millbrook Printing Office Has Relic of the Past That Has Been Given Gland Treatment and May Live Forever--Mr. F. H. Dobbin Assisted in the Restoration and Unfolds Some Interesting History

(By F. H. DOBBIN.)

Printing presses, especially those of early construction and use, claim and get an individuality as entirely apart from machinery used for economic and mass production, such as the weaving of fabrics, cutting and shaping of iron or steel and in the thousands of processes and works. Any of these latter machines may be one of a group in a large factory or industry and become an unnoticed unit in the organization. Just a means to an end.

The printing press reverses the situation and is an end to a means, aids in disseminating knowledge and information, tells of the affairs of countries and nations, fills our libraries and informs the public as to great events. Truly, as has been remarked previously, the printing press is the Archimedan lever that moves the world. And the first Napoleon is credited with saying that one newspaper was more to be feared than a thousand bayonets.

There was ever a sort of fascination connected with the making and getting out of a newspaper in the "old hand-set and lever-pulled days" that old-time printers tell and yarn about. It seemed that in the writing and putting into type of what was written that the work was more than an occupation while distinctly less than a profession. Work was combined with craftsmanship, for without the latter, with a paucity of appliances, the product was poor. Insensibly the workman creating printing absorbed something of Art, and if diligent and observant and studious excellent results followed. So there grew up and about the making of the primitive newspapers, and the production of printed matter as well, a store of tradition that may not be found in other lines of purely mechanical production.

Trying to sound out if there were any traditions connected with other occupations and enterprises, I asked my friend, the plumber, who walked with me the same way at noon, both bent on refreshment, if there were any traditions about or in his business. He reflected for moment and replied, "None that I know of, unless i) is that people say we charge about three prices for what we do." "Hold on," I replied, "that's fact, not tradition." And he was so miffed over it that he wouldn't speak to me for a week.

Another man, in the way of making large things of iron, boilers, tanks and water wheels, and asked if he could tell of traditions in his business, gave answer positive and abrupt, when he said that his was a very serious business and no room for levity about it. Seeing that he had missed the connection I gave up and quit. Nothing sentimental about the casting foundry or machine shop. So that's that.

The Old School.

But printers of the old school, before the days of labor unions and labor-saving machinery, had an almost positive affection for the old hand-press that served so well, if so slowly, and later on transferred such sentiment to the newer and more productive presses It is safe to write that at the time at, which very many newspapers in Canada began publication, the only resources were a few founts of type and a hand press. Equipment of a distinctly primitive kind. A circulation of one thousand was esteemed as large. Paper cost twelve cents per pound. The financial success would be especially hazardous. Except to local readers, the distribution of papers to the public was slow and uncertain. As years passed on the hand press was supplanted by any one of the first forms of power-driven presses, and it is of the appearance of one of these machines within the borders of Peterborough that we have to tell about. For its bringing in loomed up on the business horizon as a piece of most daring and heroic enterprise, for no such press had come into the country for use in all the land between Toronto on the west and Montreal on the east, unless it were at Kingston.

The First Papers.

A year or two after the incorporation of the town, which took place in 1850, Robert Romaine, of Montreal, came into Peterborough with the purpose of making a much better newspaper than the locality had been favored with so far. During 1840-49, two papers—weeklies—had been published, the "Gazette" and the "Despatch." The latter was owned and published by George Hazelhurst, but ceased publication in 1852. Mr. Romaine acquired what there was of plant from the "Despatch," added other outfit, brought from Montreal, and with his brother-in-law, Thomas White, Jr., as editor (afterwards Hon. Thomas White, as Minister in the Federal Government at Ottawa), carried on.

Mr. Romaine was a thorough printer of the "old school," and had been for fifteen years previous as Queen's printer in Montreal. The hands in the Peterborough office recognized his real worth as a master printer, but respected him for other attributes, that of being what they termed a dead game sport, for there was an understanding that when a young man he was accustomed to go about the streets of Montreal with a game cock under one arm and a pair of boxing gloves under the other. The writer of these paragraphs, as his apprentice, came to know him as a thorough instructor and as a sincere guide and friend, a relation as between employer and apprentice now seldom, if ever, reached.

At the outset of publication, making use of the plant on hand, the entire mechanical equipment of the office was an old "Smith" press, on which two pages of the paper were struck off at one impression. The movement of the machine was a sort of toggle-joint affair that occasionally and unconcernedly went on strike, the upper works falling to the floor at critical times, and if the pulling handle were released suddenly. Weekly it received profuse and hearty cussing. Full production reached about seventy sheets per hour. Publication day was one of trial and mixed profanity, for printers of the day had some proficiency as linguists and used it. Another hand press was an "Albion," British-built, as the name indicates, and it showed its paternity, being excessively heavy and immensely strong. Had a sort of double-link motion, on the impression but never failed to perform. Such is the value of British-built machinery.

A Patent Plougher.

Mr. Romaine had a fad, that of devising some appliance to plough land by steam power. He constructed a model, and then handed over the office to his brother-in-law, who associated with him Mr. Richard White, a brother, and Mr. Romaine went off to England to sell his patent plough. It was a wonderful contrivance, and on trial in the old country, was said to have driven men to drink. A steam engine was stationed at one of the four corners of a field, and by a system of cables, bent around pulleys, the plough was dragged over the land. The system was not heartily received, and Mr. Romaine came back to Peterboro to carry on his printing business, retaining the Whites as co-partners. The field not proving large enough, the brothers White bought the Hamilton Spectator and moved away.

The Paper Enlarged.

About 1858 it was decided to enlarge the paper. The town was growing and demanded a larger and better sheet. The Smith press was increasingly infirm, and it was decided that a power press should be installed. This was done in 1860, and it was a red-letter day in printerdom when the machine arrived. Made in New York, it was sent by slow freight to Oswego, across the lake to Cobourg, waggoned to Rice Lake, and brought up the river on a scow tugged along by one of the small river boats. The entire population turned out to see it arrive. Of course, it was in pieces, and would weigh about three tons, but some press for the year and day. In the meantime, the office had been moved into premises in the Market block, so called, being one of the upper flats of the buildings on George Street, and which went down in the fire of January, 1918. The Whites had a bookstore on the ground floor and the office was installed on floor above. The press was unloaded, the parts lifted by block and tackle, through a back window and presently put to use. It proved to be all that its makers claimed for it, and the town took on fresh importance as the home of a real power press printing machine. Towns, at that day, ever sought some distinguishing local feature to brag about. Port Hope, for instance, bragged about its numerous schooners. So did J. J. Turner, Sr., who afterwards moved from Port Hope to Peterborough.

The press was built by Hoe & Company, specialists in printing presses, of New York. Robert Howe, the founder of the enterprise, came to the States and began manufacture in 1825. His son, Robert M. Hoe, succeeded to the business, and proved to be a man of remarkable inventive faculty, and alert to possibilities of machinery that would turn out newspapers in profusion. From the factory came, in succession, power presses of many designs, but all practical and useful. One of the most esteemed was the Pioneer Drum Cylinder (the name growing out of its construction and adaptability), the Adams flat impression press, used in bookwork exclusively. Further on was devised an innovation, the type-revolving cylinder press, which accomplished the unheard-of function of fastening the type to a large cylinder, which revolved against smaller impression cylinders presenting the sheets of paper to receive the impression from the already inked types. The Toronto Globe had one of these presses, a four-cylinder. They were built of even ten cylinders, and were as high as an ordinary two-storey dwelling. The maximum speed of printing on such a press was at 30,000 copies of one side of a paper per hour, with twenty-two men to attend to details while in operation.

The Hoe factory became famous for the excellence of its work, its up-to-date ideas, and the fine fidelity to good mechanical principles with and on which everything turned out was constructed. For the last seventy years, and to-day, it is safe to say that all over the world newspapers of metropolitan importance and of immense circulations are turned out on Hoe presses, ever the last word for reliability, speed and accuracy. The foregoing is here related to show that the venerable and everlasting printing press of which we write was of good parentage and respectable antecedents.

At the Crank.

The Pioneer drum cylinder was arranged to be driven by hand power, or by belt power if such were available. For the first eight years of its work any and everyone contributed to motion by taking a turn at the high flywheel and the crank thereto attached. There were thirteen journeymen and four apprentices in the working staff. Whatever they found to do seems (now) a mystery. The wage scale stood at 10c per hour, so the aggregate expense was not so serious. When running off the paper, each, in turn, took a spell at the crank and made things hum.

On the press was printed the Weekly Review, all the poster work that came along, books and pamphlets, and any old thing that could be handled, the largest sheet being known as "double-royal" (28 by 42 inches). In 1877 the press took on the duty of printing the Daily Review and Canada Lumberman, and kept at it until 1883, when a larger machine was procured. in its maturer years it proved to be invaluable, doing an immense amount of work uncomplainingly from day to day. Shortly after the American Cereal Company changed over to the Quaker Oats Company the press was put on publicity work for the company's products, and ran continuously for thirty-five months on one particular job, that of coupon package work, and was only discarded in order to make room for a larger and faster machine for the same purpose.

Thirteen years ago the press was sold to Mr. W. S. Givens of the Millbrook Reporter, who made use of it until his death last year, to be re-sold, with the Reporter plant, to Mr. C. W. Richards, of the Millbrook Mirror, who doubled up the titles of the papers and now issues the Mirror-Reporter.

Last January the apprentice that began his kindergarten initiation into the mysteries of press-work on the old Pioneer drum cylinder in 1864, was asked to go to the village, take down the old machine and re-erect it. Barring the need of a thorough cleaning he found the press in about as good condition as when it had changed hands on leaving its native office. And when put up and properly adjusted was ready to carry on for another thirty years or even longer.

It might be asked what was the secret of longevity that allowed this machine to perform from year to year and yet give practical money-making service? Correct principle in design and absolutely perfect construction. Printing presses, especially those of to-day that turn out the wonderfully fine and beautifully illustrated magazines and book-work are marvellous creations. Built like a watch, though massive and strong. With care and attention the usefulness seems never to be at an end. When the time comes to be superseded, some other office or plant takes them in and makes use of the machine. Few ever, except at long intervals, reach the mechanical grave-yard where absolutely useless machines come to rest.

In years past, the contrast between British and American productions, in relation to the needs in printing, have been most marked. The British printer-engineer built a press immensely heavy, endurably strong, massive in design and capable of eternal use. Plenty of metal was made use of, often in wrong places. The manufacturer hated to change patterns. And, anyway, what was good enough for the British printer was plenty good enough for the Colonies. In the same way, English-made printing inks never found favor in Canada, for some climatic reason that is hard to define, and the ink maker would not analyze and make changes. The American builder studied the needs of his customer, proportioned his machine that the parts of the press needing superior strength received attention. The English machine, such as the Wharfdale, was a mass of cams, springs, levers and tapes, and a vexatious thing to manage. The American builder found new movements and ways and simplified his product to the gratification of the user.

To-day, all metropolitan papers are printed on presses known as "web presses," the paper being supplied in a continuous roll, often of several miles in length. Impressions from the made-up forms of type are taken on a plastic sheet and a plate cast from the impression in the sheet. The plates are clamped on the plate-carrying cylinders which bear against other cylinders between which the paper passes. The product spouts from the folders in a continuous stream. Such a press prints the Daily Examiner from day to day. Nearly all of the smaller city papers have secured such presses to maintain speed in production. But, despite what has been accomplished in speed and output ,if one opens a file of the Weekly or Daily Review of thirty years ago, it will be found that the papers, printed on the old drum cylinder, of which we have written, are better, more cleanly and distinctly printed than any paper of to-day. And so we pay our respects and compliments to an old friend, worthy of a prolonged rest, but not likely to get it for many years to come.

COOKING DINNER WITH SUN'S RAYS.

Device Some Day May Supplant the Kitchen Stove, Says Inventor.

BY LARRY BOARDMAN

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Some of these days Mrs. Housewife can throw away the contents of the kitchen stove wood box, sic the bull pup on the gas bill collector and do her cooking by the heat of the sun.

This is the prediction of those watching the experiments now being conducted by Dr. C. G. Abbot, director of the Smithsonian Institution's astrophysical observatory.

Dr. Abbot has been carrying on his researches up to date with a large "solar cooker" erected on Mount Wilson, in California.

These experiments have proved so successful that he is now contemplating working out a solar cooking device of the same type but small enough to be used in the home.

The Mount Wilson solar cooker is operated as follows:

A curved mirror, 7 by 10 feet, is set up with its concave reflecting surface toward the sun and its axis parallel to the axis of the earth.

Above the mirror is a reservoir filled with cylinder oil.

Two pipes, leading from the middle and bottom of the reservoir, are joined together and run as one pipe underneath the mirror, then up and through the center of the mirror, and back into the top of the reservoir.

The sun's ray reflected by the mirror's concave surface are concentrated on the section of pipe running through the mirror's center. The oil in this section of pipe becomes heated, expands, and enters the top of the reservoir.

The cold oil farther down in the reservoir is then forced out through the two lower pipes, through the pipe underneath the mirror, into the heated section of pipe and back into the reservoir's top —a continuous flow.

Two ovens are built in the reservoir, and as the hot oil flows in a cooking temperature is raised and maintained. Either the upper or lower oven may be used, depending on the temperature desired. The temperature is further regulated by a valve through either the middle or bottom pipe at will.

Both pipes and reservoir are heavily insulated to hold the oil's heat over night. The mirror is rotated on its axis by a simple system of weights and ordinary alarm clock machinery in such a way as always to get the full benefit of the sun's rays.

According to Dr. Abbot, cooking operations carried on in the solar cooker by Mrs. Abbot were most successful. All varieties of baking, cooking of meats and vegetables and preparation of cereals left nothing to be desired. The ovens were hot 24 hours a day, and without running expense.

As to how soon solar cookers will be established in the average home, Dr. Abbot declares that he is no prophet.

"In its present shape, the apparatus is too large and expensive," he said. "Just when it will be made practical I cant' say. It has great possibilities, though, and when I can find time to work it out—!"

At any rate, Mrs. Housewife is hoping.

The Good Maxwell Noted For Its Rugged Strength

Perhaps the most notable feature of the good Maxwell—besides its economical, care-free service—is the all-around satisfaction it gives its owners.

It is one of the strongest, most rugged cars built today. It is extremely durable. Owners will tell you that it averages well over 26 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and that it returns 18,000 miles or more to a set of tires.

Its performance is worthy of a far higher price. For instance, it accelerates from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 8 seconds. Its ease of riding and handling is outstanding, and its beauty is almost too well known to need comment.

GIFT TO RHEIMS TO REPAIR ROOF

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Donates One Million Dollar Fund To Restore Masterpieces Of Art.

FOR VERSAILLES, TOO

Offer Accepted By French Government, Supplements Public Funds.

PARIS, May 31.— The French Government announces acceptance of an offer made recently by John D. Rockefeller Jr., of $1,000,000 for the reconstruction of the roof of Rheims Cathedral, repairs to the fountains in the park of Versailles and the general reconditioning of Fontainebleau Palace and grounds.

As suggested by Mr. Rockefeller, the gift will be administered by a committee composed of Ambassador Jusserand, Gabriel Hanotaux, Maurice Paleologue, Colonel H. H. Harjes and Williams Welles Bosworth.

Mr. Rockefeller's offer followed conversations carried on by Colonel Arthur Wood with M. Poincare. In a letter addressed to the Prime Minister Mr. Rockefeller said in part:

"If I have been led to make this proposition it is not only because of my admiration for the marvelous masterpieces of French art, the influence of which must remain intact and perpetuate itself through centuries for the great benefit of successive generations, but also because of my feelings for the French people, whom I admire for their fine qualities, their courage and their patriotism."

Public Unable to Subscribe Fund.

Mr. Rockefeller's gift occasioned immense satisfaction in French official circles. It had been considered one of the dire misfortunes of France that financial conditions have forced the Government to permit three incomparable treasures to remain in the dilapidated condition into which they have fallen as a result of the war.

Great efforts have been made to raise the money for necessary repairs by privtae subscription, but the drain on private purses in France has been so great since the war that the task has been almost hopeless.

Revising France after an absence of seventeen years, Mr. Rockefeller was grieved at the lamentable condition of some of the country's architectural wonders, notably the Rheims Cathedral and the palaces and gardens at Versailles and Fontainebleau. When he returned home he discussed the question with friends of France, and his present gift was decided upon as the best means to aid in the restoration of these structures.

Roof Destroyed.

The funds available, even with the proceeds through various appeals to the public, were quite inadequate for such an undertaking as replacing the roof of the Cathedral at Rheims. This had been completely destroyed and the architects had to do the best they could by makeshifts, which, however, were insufficient to preserve the Cathedral against the inroads of the weather.

During the war both men and funds were lacking to carry out even ordinary repairs on the palaces at Versailles and Fontainebleau, keep up the gardens and replace the rotting piping of the famouns fountains.

The roof of the vast building at Versailles leaked in many places, but the Government was obliged to turn a deaf ear to the despairing appeals of the palace architects for the funds necessary for the work. The appropriations available, in view of the greatly increased cost of materials and labor, were insufficient even for urgent repairs, and various schemes were put afoot under official patronage, but the money thus raised was only a drop in the bucket.

Fontainebleau, which is not quite so big as Versailles, has perhaps been more neglected, especially the gardens and park.

Translated into francs, the donation amounts to 18,500,000, which is an acceptable contrast to the two or three million francs which is all that the French budget permits to be appropriated for the work.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Friends and Neighbors Honor Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lunn.

MILLBROOK, May 31.—A delightful social event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lunn, Carmel, on Thursday evening when about one hundred and twenty-five of their friends and neighbors both from Millbrook and Cavan gathered to celebrate with them the fortieth anniversary of their wedding day.

A committee had taken charge of the affair, which was in the nature of a surprise-party, arrival at the Lunn homestead, always noted for its wholehearted hospitality, being timed for eight o'clock.

Mr. William Earle acted as chairman, making a brief opening address, other numbers on the programme including music by the Byam orchestra vocal sols by Mrs. T. Reid and Mr. F. N. Alcorn, and a vocal duet by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Mr. W. H. Coombe.

During the evening Mr. J. Thorne escorted the "bride" to the drawing-room, where she was joined by the "groom," and by Mr. Charles Lunn and Mrs. Thirtle, of Millbrook, who were bridesmaid and groomsman when the wedding took place at Orono forty years ago, Rev. Mr. Richards officiating. A. J. Fallis, M.P.P. then read the following address, Mr. Thorne and Mr. John Lunn, on behalf of those present, making the presentation of two handsomely upholstered walnut chairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lunn,
Carmel,

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Lunn, —Having learned that this is the anniversary of your fortieth wedding-day, and rejoicing that you are spared to celebrate the same, we, your friends and neighbors, have gathered here this evening not caring to let this rare occasion pass unremembered.

We wish to try and show in some tangible form the high esteem in which you are both held. You have always lived amongst us, and your kind and genial ways have won for you a warm place in the hearts of all those who have made your acquaintance.

We have at all times, found you both most anxious to strengthen the ties of home and friendship in your community.

We would ask you both to accept these tokens of gratitude. These, dear friends, are but small tokens of the kind regard in which you are both held, and the wish of your friends is that you will both be spared to celebrate your "Golden Wedding" anniversary.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours,

Joseph Thorne,
Mina Gibson,
Mr. and Mrs. John Luan.

Cavan, May 29th., 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. Lunn were deeply affected by the kindness which had so generously expressed itself both by words and gifts, the former making suitable reply on behalf of his wife and himself. Others who made brief congratulatory addresses were: Reeve J. L. McCamus, A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., Mr. H. Paul, Mr. W. J. E. Gillott, Mr. G. W. Sayles, Mr. W. H. Coombe, Mr. K. Brown, Mr. Malcolm Ward, and Mr. J. Thorne.

The supper, provided through the thoughtfulness of the self-invited "guests", was both abundant and satisfying, a two-story wedding-cake made by the daughter of the home, Miss Martha Lunn, being much admired. The "bride' in accordance with the time-honored custom, insert ed the knife before the cake was cut and served.

A number of letters were received from friends and relatives who, while warmly congratulating the "bride and groom' on the happy occasion, expressed their sincere regret at being unavoidably absent from the gathering.

Music and dancing filled out the remainder of the evening which will always remain a very pleasant memory in the minds of those fortunate enough to be present.

Previous to the presentation in the early part of the evening, Miss May Byam played a few bars of the wedding march as the "bridal party" took places in the drawing-room.

FORMER MAYOR MAGUIRE NEVER USED INFLUENCE

TORONTO, May 31 (Canadian Press). — Before Master in Chambers Charles Garrow, official receiver in the bankruptcy for the Home Bank of Canada, at Osgoode Hall yesterday, former Mayor Maguire made positive and unqualified statement that he had at no time used his influence with the city's finance department to end of directing the larger proportion of the city's funds available for deposit to the Home Bank of Canada, in response to the repeated solicitations of Fred H. Richardson.

In this statement he was corroborated by Commissioner of Finance Ross, who declared unequivocally that no member of the Council had at any time ever attempted to influence him in favour of the Home Bank.

at Near the Same Price—the Half-Utility of the Open Car, or the All-Year Comforts and Service of the Coach? It is the One Important Question Before Buyers Today.

Since Closed Car Comforts Cost Little More

Why Buy an Open Car?

THE issue with motor car buyers this year is closed car comforts at open car cost. The Coach exclusively provides such advantages without forfeit of chassis quality. It is a Hudson-Essex invention. No other type is like it.

More than 140,000 Coaches are in service. Sales exceed 3,000 each week. The Coach is the largest selling 6-cylinder closed car in the world. That proves the success of value.

It is the Closed Car for Everyone

Everyone prefers a closed car. The Coach alone is the quality car within reach of all. It changed the trend from open to closed cars. Now all can enjoy finest chassis quality with all-year utility, comfort, and closed car distinction.

In two and a half years the Coach has proved a staunchness and reliability never before associated with a closed car. In every service it satisfies the pride of ownership.

The Same Quality in Both Hudson and Essex

Hudson and Essex are creations of the same engineers. They are built under the same patents. There is no difference in quality of material or workmanship.

The price you want to pay will decide you for Hudson or for Essex. The closed car advantages of the Coach and its price surely leave no other consideration.

ANNUAL REPORTS OF Y.W.C.A.

Y.W.C.A. Secretary's Report

What is the Young Women's Christian Association? It is not a club, not a creed, but we like to think of it as a fellowship; a common agreement as to the great uses to which life should be put, Fellowship is meaningless however, save as it is harnessed to some commanding ideal or purpose. The greatest fellowship that the world knows, was the experience of God which Jesus tried to tell us about. He was one with the Father, because the purpose of His life was in harmony with the purposes of God for the world. So all our work and play and friendships here day by day will not be of lasting value or count for much unless they are for some worth while purpose.

The purpose of the Young Women's Christian Association is to lead young women into personal loyalty to Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord and to associate them in an organized effort to promote their spiritual intellectual, social and physical well being and thus to make the association, in co-operation with the church a social factor in the extension of the Kingdom of God.

And so led by this purpose the association has grown in its own small and large centres, in its national organization and in its world organ and a fellowship strong and true now extends around the world.

Membership

Our membership this year is 627 and the enrollment in various classes as follows:

Gymnasium, 511; Educational 96; Swimming, 240; Bible Study 23; Camp 51; Sustaining and Associate, 45; House 70; Basket Ball 70; Clubs 145.

Because we feel the work of Association is quite well known I shall only briefly comment on the different departments.

House Department

The girls in our residence are a real and vital part of our membership. They co-operate in all undertakings and because of their close contact and the interest which Mrs. Morrison takes in each one they can not help but feel the purpose of the Association permeating the home life

Gymnasium

This is our largest department and is filling a need for health and recreation. The enthusiasm of the girls in the gymnasium and around the building and the active part that they take in other activities of the association show that they too are a part of the Associatior whole.

Swimming

Peterboro girls have reason to be very proud of their splendid swimming pool and their appreciation goes out to Miss Littlefield who is the same efficient, enthusiastic instructor in the pool that she is in the Gymnasium. Miss Littlefield also takes a keen interest in recreation for al girls and picnic hikes, outdoor and indoor sports are a part of the program under her leadership.
